RALPH VAN VECHTEN ON MONEY OUTLOOK FOR COMING YEAR

Ralph Van Vechten, vice-president of the Continental and Commercial National, speaking in regard to the money outlook for 1913, said:

"The season has been unusually backward and the return flow of currency is really just beginning, but has not been sufficient to have any effect on rates as yet. Naturally, during the next thirty or forty days, there will be some easing off in rates, if things follow their usual course. There is a world of grain and stock back in the country to be marketed, and these shipments, together with the return flow of currency, will build up both deposits and reserves. We do not anticipate that the relaxation in credit resulting therefrom will be more than temporary. As soon as the spring demand starts up rates will stiffen again, but perhaps may not rule quite as high as they are now. If the present momentum of business is maintained through 1913, it follows that the existing tension on credit will be resumed sooner or later. Of course, our condition in this country will be affected by the conditions prevailing in Europe. If the strain abroad should continue, through the resumption of hostilities in the Balkans or from any other cause, then it is a certainty that high money rates will continue here. On the other hand, if the situation in Europe should improve so that they can spare us a considerable amount of gold in settlement of the credits we are creating by our large exports, then, of course, our condition at home will be helped materially, with a strong probability of lower rates. The impression prevails among the best authorities that Europe will continue to lean on us for some time to come by reason of the unsettled condition of affairs there following the crop shortage of 1912."

BANK CLEARINGS FOR YEAR SHOW 28 PER CENT INCREASE

The calendar year of the Duluth Clearing House Association ended this week. That year showed the largest returns that any business year of Duluth ever has shown, and the resulting figures are remarkable. The increase over the previous year amounts to 28.69 per cent, and the ensuing year promises greater things, in the estimation of the resident bankers and business men.

In 1911 the clearings amounted to $182,245,333.94. In 1912 the clearings were $233,425,837. The difference in dollars is $51,180,504.06

In December, the month that just has expired, the clearings amounted to $29,326,824.85, as against the clearings of the corresponding period a year ago, which were $18,789,310.35, a difference of $10,537,514.50.

ST. PAUL AS A FINANCIAL CENTER

During the last months of this year St. Paul began to take its proper place as a financial center. When the Merchants National and the National German American merged, it gave St. Paul a $22,000,000 institution. James J. Hill entered the banking business by purchasing the Second National and later the First National. Mr. Hill is expected to take active charge of these banks on January 2d, and will give St. Paul another institution with more than $20,000,000. St. Paul now is in a position to handle big things in a big way, and much good is expected to result.

Heart of Chicago's Financial District

At the instance of President Byron L. Smith of the Northern Trust Company, the celebrated artist, Charles Francis Brown, has done in oils "The Heart of the Financial District," being a view in La Salle Street, looking south. The fine, monumental bank building of The Northern Trust is in the foreground and the Board of Trade building appears in the distance. The original hangs in the banking rooms of the Northern, and copies in color may be had for the asking. No handsomer reproduction of Chicago street life is in existence.

Mainly About Banks and Bankers

FROM Peoria comes the announcement of the death of Frank P. Lewis, director in the Commercial German and a large stockholder in the Central National.

H. E. OTTE of the National City Bank spent a portion of his holiday time battling with the grip. He's out again after a ten-day layoff.

WARE & LELAND, Chicago, are looking for material developments "after the first of the year" which may affect stock values.

ROBERT E. GAMBLE of the Drovers is remembering his friends with a beautiful antique leather, leather-lined wallet, one of the finest of the season.

J. S. CALFEE, St. Louis, new member of the Big council, sent out his New Year's greetings in form of an autograph letter. He will be more than a silent partner in A. B. A. matters.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF CHICAGO recently purchased 21 new Burroughs adding machines for use in their country banks department, for ordinary bookkeeping work in connection with their country accounts, and for making out country statements.

THE machines all are large special machines of the duplex double total type, and electrically operated. The duplex feature permits the handling of two or more columns or sets of figures at one time. The cost was $10,000.

IT is announced that the sawed-off secretary of the Iowa bankers has been presented with a sawed-off shot gun, made so by bank robbers so that it would scatter its charge.

SECRETARY HALL isn't a bit like the gun, except as to length. He doesn't scatter but is one of the most effective and penetrating of the brotherhood.

IF there is an up-to-date state which isn't trying to get a "Blue Sky" law it has been overlooked in our list.

A. B. A. administrative committee has been called for St. Louis on January 7th. Considerable important business has accumulated.

SOME of the good "brethren" in the association are alarmed at the apparent "drift" of the revision committee. The new constitution is said (in its tentative form at least) to be an abolition document.

FIRST of all a wireless view of it would indicate a still further concentration of power (political autonomy) in the hands of the few.

POLITICS must be abolished from the council.

THEN what? It is to be transferred to the floor of the convention—a feature of unknown possibilities. The sections, or some of them, do it that way.

THERE will be hasty and ill-considered nominations and consequent dissatisfaction. The state in which the convention is held could elect all officers, unless a delegate system is established.

WITNESS the working of the free primary, versus convention plan, in Illinois. Ten of the eleven new state officials, from governor down, are from Chicago. Ten of the eleven are of the same religious belief.

THE freer the primary the greater the abuses in this direction.

MANY believe that if all politics, committeeships and expense accounts are ironed out of the constitution that all virility and ability will depart with them. It would be a bit too angelic even for bankers.

FROM the number of the revisionists came the idea of the administrative committee. True it was a remedy for certain abuses but it has robbed the big council of many prerogatives and made membership in that distinguished body a rather empty honor.

IT has too much veto power in any but war times.

A WISE, designing secretary might be elected some time who could become a Czar almost by co-operating with the members of the administrative committee.

ALL will admit that the old constitution is a piece of patch work and at the same time the new one could be a fluke if too much suppression is attempted.

IF the constitutional committee "takes everything to the floor" the first few meetings under it will be very, very interesting.

NORTHWESTERN NATIONAL BANK REVIEW says if the present abnormal weather lasts another fortnight the northwest farmers will get all their spring plowing done in the fall, or words to that effect.

SAME authority believes farmers who sold likely are to realize more than those will who are holding their grain.

REMEMBER to go to the San Francisco-Panama exposition in 1915 via San Diego. That ambitious burg is to have one of its very own. Go over to Point Loma while there and call upon your uncle, Lyman J. Gage.

IT is a long way to travel to see but one exposition, hence the plans to let you see two.

OUR good friend C. J. Wohlenberg of the Holstein (Ia.) Savings bank has sent in a kindly letter to help tide over the dull season. He knows and appreciates our difficulties, also our desire to get time off by co-operation in building up the column.

MR. WOHLENBERG says that at these times when the Northwest Iowa banker has his hands full to make all ends meet; when he first is called upon to furnish funds to buy feeding steers at 7.50—8.00 per hundredweight, and next to advance sufficient funds to fatten the steers for six months, when the railroads say "no cars for the next few days" to ship out your grain; he has about as much the blues as the editor of THE CHICAGO BANKER scratching the hair of his head out for newsy items.

"BUT the Iowa banker has seen the turning point about this time of the year and he sees where a dollar is coming back for his previous investments. The cars are commencing to move the crops and the steers have been invested with silky coats of shining hair, below

VOLUME XXXIV CHICAGO, JANUARY 4, 1913 NUMBER 1

E. D. Hulbert Reviews Banking and Financial Conditions

Comprehensive resumé by distinguished Chicago banker. Predicts prosperous times for 1913

There is little in the present situation to justify pessimism. Those who fear a repetition of the troubles of 1893 following a change of administration and change of tariff schedules fail to take into account the difference in fundamental conditions.

In 1893 we were at the end of a long period of high pressure prosperity which had brought about strained conditions of credit all over the world. Bank assets contained altogether too large a proportion of slow paper on account of the long continued pressure for loans which went into fixed property.

Stocks of merchandise largely were in excess of the demand and the situation generally was in the congested condition that always precedes a crisis. On top of all this, the condition of our government finances was causing grave apprehension all over the world.

The government hardly had sufficient money to meet current bills, and its ability to maintain gold payments seriously was questioned both at home and abroad. It is difficult to see how the crisis could have been avoided for any great length of time if there had been no change of administration or tariff schedules.

Opposite Situation Now

The situation now is in most respects the opposite. Instead of being at the end of a period of high pressure, we are at the end of a period of low pressure, during which banks have had plenty of time for housecleaning. Merchandising has been done on more or less of a hand-to-mouth basis and stocks are low. Government finances are in excellent condition and there is a large stock of surplus cash in the treasury. Under these circumstances considerations of a possible repetition of 1893 should be dismissed from public discussions.

There is a general feeling of confidence in banking circles that the new adminstration will handle the tariff question in a spirit of fairness to all concerned. It is believed there will be neither good natured yielding to selfish pressure nor spectacular attacks on protected industries. Naturally there will be a slowing down until these matters are settled, but when they are settled, if fairly, we may look for activity all along the line.

Merchandise stocks are low, consumption is going actively on, and our mills will have plenty to do. No one need fear that such reduction in duties will be made as will flood us with cheap foreign goods. In many lines the foreigner is having trouble now to compete with our goods in his own market.

Reject Monetary Board Plan

It is unfortunate the monetary commission felt it to be its duty to formulate a plan that would at once reform and eradicate every known evil and defect in our financial system. The plan proposed was to form a central reserve association to hold the cash reserves of the country, with power to issue its own notes against cash and commercial paper.

The notes of the association were to be counted as legal reserve by the banks, thus giving us, in the words of the secretary of the treasury, "never failing reserves and never failing currency."

For reasons both political and economic this plan has been rejected and abandoned. We are now about where we were four years ago, with reference to currency reform, except that the discussion of the Aldrich plan has been of immense benefit from an educational standpoint. The ground has been broken and cleared, and while we may not look for a complete reformation of our currency and banking laws in the near future, we may look with confidence for such changes as will make it impossible that solvent banks should find it necessary to suspend currency payments, as they did in 1907.

Views on Legislation

The business interests of this country are not asking for any more credit than they are getting in normal times. What they are demanding is that this credit shall not be withdrawn or disastrously curtailed every time banks get frightened about their reserves. Heretofore, all legislation at Washington for the relief of banks has applied to national banks only, and as national banks hold only about 30 per cent of the primary deposits of the country, the burden thrown on them in a crisis is too great.

The principle now is recognized that any legislation for the protection of the bank deposits of the country must include state banks, and there are plans now being worked out which there is good reason to believe will meet the approval of both the National Citizens League and the incoming administration, which will enable the banks of the country to use their united credit whenever necessary to meet any situation that may arise. This plan will embrace the protective features of the Aldrich plan, which universally are recognized as good. I firmly believe that we never shall see another currency panic in this country.

Points to Railroad Situation

The railroad situation is not altogether satisfactory, for the reason that the railroads are not receiving the compensation for their services which they think they ought to have in order to keep their equipment and service up to good standards.

While opinions differ as to this, it is significant that some of the largest and strongest railroad companies in the country are issuing car trust certificates. That is, they are obliged to mortgage their rolling stock in order to get money to pay for it. There would be at once great activity in all lines of railroad supplies and equipment if the railroads could get the money to pay for them. Without some increase in revenue it is hard to see how the railroads are to meet the business necessities of the immediate future.

The situation regarding the anti-trust law is unfortunate, largely on account of the vague features of the law which make it almost impossible for either a corporation or the government to tell whether the law is being violated or not. So long as it remains in its present form there will be no end to litigation between the government and large corporations, a condition which is well nigh intolerable.

Market Big Crops

The bright side of the picture is the extraordinary crop that now is being marketed in all parts of the country. While prices are lower, it is estimated the value of the small grains in Minnesota, North and South Dakota alone is $85,000,000 in excess of last year.

With the exception of a few small sections where crops were bad, conditions are good throughout the United States. According to government estimates, the value of the crops this year amounts to $9,500,000,000. The buying power of the country never was greater, and its financial vitality never was stronger. The balance of trade largely is in our favor and increased $126,000,000 in the month of November alone. There is a strong tendency for gold to move in our direction, and the movement can be started whenever necessary.

Taking all things into consideration, I see no reason why we may not look forward to a good year with remunerative employment for both capital and labor.

REPORT GOOD BUSINESS FOR THE YEAR

"The year now closing, while not the most prosperous in grain trade history, has been one of healthy, normal activity, and with the exception of a spasmodic flurry in the early spring, due to the reputed general crop disaster in the winter wheat states, it has been a year of reasonably steady prices," said Frank M. Bunch, president of the Chicago Board of Trade.

Bank stocks have proven to be good investments this year. Frederick M. Zeiler of Zeiler, Fairman & Co., says:

"Earnings have been excellent, especially in the latter half of the year, and present rates for money assure even greater profits during 1913. In a number of cases some of our newer institutions have begun the payment of dividends, while some of the older ones increased their disbursements to stockholders. No dividends have been passed and none reduced.

"Deposits, book value, and earning capacity have increased steadily. With the exception of one or two spasmodic moves, due to rumors of consolidation, average market quotations have shown consistent improvement."

W. C. Howe, editor of the American Lumberman, says:

"The increase in demand for all lumber and the reduction in output, traceable principally to weather conditions, have combined to increase the price of lumber to a point where manufacture may be said to be upon a profitable basis again for the first time since 1907."

"The last year for the tanners and wholesalers of leather has been unusual for the volume of business transacted in all lines. The last half of the year has shown considerable improvement over the first part," said T. Edward Wilder, president of Wilder & Co.

NORTH SIDE STATE TO INCREASE CAPITAL

At a special meeting of the stockholders of the North Side State held this week a proposition to increase the capital stock from $50,000 to $200,000 was ratified and at a subsequent meeting the board of directors declared a stock dividend of 100 per cent on the capitalization of $50,000; the stockholders now have the right to subscribe for the remaining $100,000 of new stock share for share at par. The surplus against which the extra stock dividend has been declared amounts to approximately $56,000.

WOODRUFF TRUST COMPANY DECLARES DIVIDEND

The board of directors of the Woodruff Trust Company at Joliet has declared a dividend of 6 per cent, though the company has been in existence but six months. It is said to be the first time that a Joliet bank has declared a dividend within half a year after its beginning business.

The Woodruff Trust Company is the first farm mortgage bank to be established in this country along the lines followed in European countries.

CHICAGO BANKERS OPTIMISTIC

That 1913 will bring to the country much prosperity is the opinion of leading bankers in Chicago.

"For the coming year I see no reason to anticipate anything but good business and continued prosperity. The change of administration should not cause apprehension. The tariff will, of course, be revised, which will cause hesitation in some lines of business, but the President-elect has promised that business interests have nothing to fear from his administration. As a result of an abundant harvest, business is now on a solid basis and has a sufficient impetus to carry us well into the new year.

"From a business standpoint there seems nothing in sight to interfere with continued prosperity," said James B. Forgan, president of the First National.

William T. Fenton, vice-president of the National Bank of the Republic, expressed it as his opinion that no laws detrimental to the business interests of the country will be enacted.

L. A. Goddard, president of the State Bank, said:

"I am really never in sympathy with pessimistic views. Attitude of the people has much to do in shaping conditions, and it is not unusual to magnify what appears unfavorable. The result of the November election was not a surprise, except possibly as to the size of the landslide. The country was prepared for it. Now what is there in sight to shake business or cause alarm? Certainly the new administration will not start out to wreck the prosperity and happiness of the people. Conditions as they appeared have always been met successfully and the intelligence and loyalty of our people surely have not retrograded. We all know that both in wealth and in volume of business the growth has been beyond our most vivid imagination, and opportunities now continue just as favorable for capable and successful financiering and for the business man who is an intelligent utilizer and is not a speculator."

"Money is in good demand at present; rates have been comparatively full, so that, taking the year as a whole, the banks will have had a fairly profitable one. If present conditions continue, and I see no reason why they should not, the banks are entering upon another prosperous year. There has been a substantial growth in the banking business of our city during the last twelve months, a new record in the volume of deposits having been made, which is of more than passing significance. Certain lines may have to undergo a period of readjustment, but, generally speaking, business should move steadily forward, and, as basic conditions are sound, the coming year should prove a satisfactory one for all," said Ernest A. Hamill, president of the Corn Exchange National.

Public Welfare

There are certain utilities that are absolutely nesessary for the public welfare. Individuals require food, shelter, and clothing—municipalities require light and transportation. The former are our private necessities; the latter, our public necessities.

For this reason the companies that supply public utilities receive revenue from a dependable source, little affected during periods of industrial depressions. With the natural growth in population, the market for public utilities is also a constantly increasing one.

Send for our circular giving a selected list of public utilities securities to yield at present prices an average income of 5.75%.

CHICAGO CLEARINGS

Clearings for 1912, according to figures submitted by the Chicago Clearing House Association, amounted to $15,380,795,541, as compared with $13,925,709,802 for 1911. The enormous gain in clearings since 1890 is apparent by a comparison with the following figures: 1890, $4,093,145,904; 1900, $6,799,535,598; 1910, $13,939,689,984. Those for 1911 fell slightly below the figures for 1910, but the clearings for 1912 show a substantial increase.

BANKERS PAY DOUBLE FINES

Bankers get a larger fine for speeding in Chicago than chauffeurs for the same offense, according to Municipal Judge Fry in the speeders' court late Thursday afternoon. The Judge fined W. B. Ross, 129 South Austin Ave., Oak Park, $20 and costs. Ross said in court that he was a banker with the Austin Trust and Savings Bank. When he objected to the fine Judge Fry told him that while chauffeurs were usually fined $10, bankers should pay $20.

SWIFT & CO. EARNS THIRTEEN PER CENT

Net earnings of Swift & Co. for the year ended September 28, 1912, were more than 50 per cent larger than in the fiscal year 1911. Total net income amounted to $9,815,439, which is equivalent to 13.08 per cent on the company's $75,000,000. These figures compare with $6,137,500 earned the previous year, equal to 8.2 per cent on the capital stock.

SPOKANE CLEARINGS FOR 1913

Just to show the world the care with which Spokane bankers furnish clearing statistics to the financial world Secretary and Manager W. D. Vincent makes all reports on a special affidavit blank. For 1912 the clearings were $225,436,618, as against $219,937,389 for 1911. The affidavit idea is a good one.

CORN EXCHANGE NATIONAL EARNINGS

Earnings of the Corn Exchange National Bank in 1912, after liberal deductions for reserves, were in excess of $800,000 or 27 per cent on the capital stock.

Principal news events occurring during 1912 of interest to banks and bankers.

The year 1912 has been an eventful one in a banking and financial way, and productive of many items of interest to banks and bankers. Chief among the points worthy of mention may be said to be changes in official lists, deaths, mergers and consolidations, and organization of new institutions. In addition the banking fraternity has been more or less interested in such matters as agriculture and vocational education, good roads, etc. A great deal of interest has been manifested in the private banking situation and in the movement which has been inaugurated for the enactment of laws, especially in Illinois, which shall have the effect of eliminating the undesirables from the business of banking, elevating the standard of the profession and adequately safeguarding the interests of the depositor.

The year has been one of unusual prosperity; the country has had the largest crops in its history. This prosperity has not been confined to any particular line or lines of business, but all branches have been benefited thereby. Chicago banks are in an especially good condition. Deposits during the year passed the billion-dollar mark; although this necessarily was decreased somewhat later on as a result of the withdrawal of funds with which to finance the crop movement, it is expected that the mark again will be reached and surpassed after the money has returned.

Changes

Merchants Loan and Trust Company at its election held in January elected five new directors, viz., Frank H. Armstrong, Henry P. Crowell, Seymour Morris, John G. Shedd and Albert A. Sprague. The directors ordered the transfer of another million from undivided profits to surplus, making the latter six millions, or twice the capital stock of the bank. In November the bank rewarded two of its employees with official positions. John J. Geddes was elected an assistant cashier and A. Leonard Johnson, assistant secretary. It also created a pension system for its employees. W. R. Moorehouse and J. M. Hopkins were elected directors of the Colonial Trust and Savings and S. B. Thomas dropped out. William G. Schroeder was elected a vice-president of the Continental and Commercial National and George B. Caldwell was elected vice-president of the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings, also continuing in charge of the bond department of that institution. John R. Lindgren retired from the vice-presidency and the directorate of the State Bank of Chicago. Mr. Lindgren was one of the founders of the bank in 1879. C. N. Gillett of the First National, who previously had held the title of cashier in addition to that of vice-president, gave up the former position, continuing as vice-president; H. A. Howland, formerly assistant cashier, was elected cashier; W. J. Lawlor, R. F. Newhall and George Hoyles Dunscomb were elected assistant cashiers; C. R. McKay was chosen manager of the transit and general books department and J. W. Lynch, manager of the credit and statistical department; E. V. Bacharach was elected a vice-president of the Mid-City Trust and Savings; Lewis E. Gary was elected assistant cashier of the Corn Exchange National. Mr. Gary has been with the bank since 1886, starting as a messenger and working up through all the departments. For twelve years preceding his election he was chief clerk of the bank. William W. Le Gros was chosen an assistant cashier of the Fort Dearborn National. Mr. Le Gros has been with the Fort Dearborn over twenty years and has served in practically every capacity up to the position which he now holds; Harry Grut, connected with the big Continental and Commercial and its predecessor for fifteen years, left that institution to accept the cashiership of the recently organized Mercantile Trust and Savings. Edward P. Bailey was chosen a vice-president of the Chicago Savings Bank and Trust Company. Mr. Bailey formerly was connected with the National Malleable Casting Company; H. T. Griswold, formerly an assistant cashier of the Railway Exchange Bank, which institution was absorbed by the Peoples Trust and Savings, was elected to a similar position with that bank. Andrew Cooke, vice-president of the Harris Trust and Savings, resigned his position with the bank to enter the firm of Cooke, Holtz & Co.; Chester Corey was appointed manager of the corporation department of the Harris Trust and Savings to succeed Mr. Cooke; Mr. Corey has been identified with the Harris organization for over nineteen years; Neil J. Shannon, formerly assistant to Probate Judge Cutting, was appointed trust officer of Foreman Brothers Banking Company; Joseph I. Cooper succeeded B. M. Chattell, deceased, as cashier of the Illinois Trust and Savings. Mr. Cooper entered the employ of the bank twenty-eight years ago as a messenger boy. He was made an assistant cashier several years ago and prior to his appointment as cashier had been in charge of the collateral loan department for some time. Chester A. Bush, in the employ of the Northern Trust Company of Chicago for several years, was appointed auditor of the Harris Trust and Savings.

J. P. R. Reinhard presented his resignation as cashier of the Monroe County Bank of Sparta, Wis. Ben L. Bruner, formerly secretary of state of Kentucky, resigned from that position to accept the presidency of the Commercial Bank and Trust Company of Louisville. Willis L. Cheney of the Wisconsin National was elected cashier and director of the Second Ward Savings of Milwaukee and Albert Elser was elected vice-president; E. W. Decker was elected president of the Northwestern National of Minneapolis; William C. White was chosen president of the Illinois National of Peoria, Ill. Liberty National of New York acquired a new president in Seward Prosser, formerly vice-president of the Astor Trust Company; E. C. Krabe was chosen cashier and secretary of the Farmers State, Milwaukee;

Edward F. Clark, formerly vice-president of the Guardian Trust of New York, became its president; N. Duane, formerly vice-president of the Manhattan Trust Company, and Frank N. B. Close, formerly secretary of the Bankers Trust Company, became vice-presidents of the latter concern. John P. Wilson, for several years a member of the board of directors of the Sixth National of Philadelphia and a vice-president since January, 1911, was elected to the presidency of the bank to succeed the late William S. Emley and Daniel Baird, the cashier, was chosen to fill the position made vacant by Mr. Wilson's elevation to the presidency. F. O. Watts, ex-president of the American Bankers Association and of the First National of Nashville, Tenn., left that city and went to St. Louis to become a vice-president of the big Third National; John Cavanagh, president of the Valley Junction (Ia.) Savings, was made vice-president of the German Savings of Des Moines, succeeding James O'Donnell, who retired to look after his interests in other banks in the vicinity of Des Moines. William C. Potter, president of the Intercontinental Rubber Company, accepted a position as vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York. Mr. Potter is a Chicago product, and is the son of Edwin A. Potter, formerly president of the American Trust and Savings of this city; Arthur E. Stillwell resigned as president and director of United States and Mexican Trust Company of Kansas City and New York. E. Quincy Smith, first vice-president, was chosen to succeed him. Ill health was the reason for Mr. Stillwell's resignation. George W. Post, for many years identified with banking interests in York County, Neb., retired from active business and disposed of his financial holdings to C. A. McCloud. He was heavily interested in quite a number of banks. D. H. McKee, for the past five years vice-president of the German Savings at Davenport, shortly will remove to Des Moines to become manager of the Iowa Loan and Trust Company of that city. Perhaps the biggest surprise of the year was the announcement that Lewis E. Pierson, president of the Irving National of New York, had resigned to enter the wholesale grocery firm of Austin, Nichols & Co. As Mr. Pierson expressed it, "The change was to his very material advantage." The Irving was very reluctant to part with his services. He was succeeded by Rollin P. Grant. Charles R. Frost, secretary of the Minnesota Bankers Association, resigned to accept an official position with the National Surety Company of New York; Charles Nickels, president of the Columbia Bank and Savings Company of Cincinnati since its organization in 1902, will retire shortly on account of advanced age; W. D. Moore, vice-president of the First National of Joliet, Ill., accepted a position as cashier with one of the important banks of Omaha; W. E. Cass Clifford, paying teller in the First National of Champaign, Ill., has been appointed assistant state treasurer by Treasurer-elect Ryan.

Mergers

Among the banks and trust companies which consolidated their interests during the past year were:

The National City of Indianapolis, formed by the merger of the Union and Columbia Nationals; Mercantile Bank and Citizens National, Seattle, Wash.; Equitable Trust and Continental Title and Trust of Philadelphia, the combined institution to be called the Continental Equitable Trust Company. Bankers Trust of New York absorbed the Manhattan Trust; Union Station Bank of St. Louis took over the general banking business, savings and commercial accounts of the Commercial Trust Company; Merchants Savings, Capital City Bank and the Bank of Wisconsin, all of Madison, joined forces; Central Trust Company of Illinois took over the Metropolitan Trust and Savings and the Prairie State of Chicago; Indiana National and Capital National of Indianapolis consolidated under the name of the Indiana National; Hanover National of New York absorbed the Gallatin National; Irving Exchange National of New York took over the Mercantile National of that place under the name of the Irving National; Fourth National of Nashville absorbed the First National of that city; Merchants National of St. Paul merged with the National German-American under the name of the former; Franklin Trust and Savings of Chicago absorbed the Douglas State; Fourth National of Boston took over the Atlantic National; consolidations also occurred between the First National and Union National of Grand Forks, among the largest banking institutions in North Dakota; two St. Joe, (Mo.) banks, the First National of Buchanan County and the Merchants Bank; Merchants National and Fargo Commercial Bank of Fargo, N. D. The board of directors of the Northwestern Trust Company of St. Paul accepted the offer of $250 per share for the company made by the First National of St. Paul; James J. Hill purchased the controlling interest in the First National of St. Paul; Eliot National and National Shawmut of Boston combined their interests; National Bank of Commerce and Southwest National of Kansas City, Mo.

New Banks

Several new banks were formed in Chicago during the year, viz.:

Mercantile Trust and Savings, Hyde Park State, Central Manufacturing District Bank, Mechanics and Traders State, State Bank of Italy, South West Trust and Savings, the Liberty Trust and Savings Bank, Market Trust and Savings Bank, Halsted State Bank, Swedish-American State Bank, Garfield Trust and Savings, Madison Trust and Savings, Lawndale State, Lincoln Trust and Savings and the Ogden Avenue State Bank, Ravenswood National, Irving Park National, Bowmanville National, Austin (Chicago) National.

Among the new banks outside of Chicago for which permits were issued during the year were the German Trust and Savings of Rock Island, Ill., capitalized at $100,000; the South Texas Commercial National of Houston, $1,000,000; Southwest Texas Bank and Trust Company of Corpus Christi, $1,000,000; Suburban Trust and Savings, Oak Park, Ill., $100,000; National Bank of Commerce, Houston, Texas, $500,000; State Bank of Omaha, $300,000; Commercial Savings of Moline, Ill., $100,000; First State Trust and Savings of Urbana, Ill., $100,000.

Agriculture

The movement for better agricultural methods and scientific education along these lines received great impetus as a result of the interest manifested by bankers in that behalf, and a great many of the state associations appointed agricultural committees.

A two days' session of the second annual conference of the committees on agricultural development and education, representing the state bankers' associations in twenty-four states was held in the Twin Cities, August 7th and 8th, at which were delivered several very interesting addresses on the subject.

A large number of bankers representing both the American Bankers Association and the committee of bankers of the associated northwestern states appeared before the congressional committee at Washington in an effort to induce the passage of the farm demonstration bill introduced by Congressman McKinley of Champaign, Ill.

The two bills now pending in congress and relating to the matter are the Page and Lever bills, which are looked upon favorably by the bankers. It is likely that when these bills come up for consideration and discussion a committee will make the trip to Washington for the purpose of urging upon congress the importance and desirability of enacting legislation of this character.

The question of lending money to the farmers at lower rates than those now in vogue was one which received a great deal of attention from the bankers. The first strictly land credit bank organization in America was formed in Joliet, Ill., under the name of the Woodruff Trust Company by men identified prominently with the First National of that city, capitalized at $250,000 and designed to handle amortized farm mortgages on the plan used by the credit foncier of France. Myron T. Herrick of Ohio, Edward Chamberlain of Texas and George Woodruff of Joliet, president of the Woodruff Trust Company, spent much time in Europe studying the methods used to finance the farmer over there.

Private Banking

A number of distressing Illinois private bank failures occurred during the year, all of which emphasize the urgent necessity of enacting remedial legislation designed to improve conditions. President B. F. Harris of the Illinois Bankers Association appointed a committee of prominent bankers headed by Charles G. Dawes to prepare a bill providing for state supervision. The bill was very mild in its provisions and such as ought not to be ob-

CAPITAL ONE MILLION DOLLARS

ILLINOIS BANKING NEWS

By C. C. Burford

The scarcity of grain cars has caused considerable discussion among Illinois farmers and bankers, and there have been many protests against the present system. Recently the Illinois Grain Dealers Association and the Farmers Grain Dealers Association held a conference at Bloomington with a view of discussing the present situation and of securing relief if possible. The situation doubly is aggravated in Illinois because of the almost certain liability of bad roads coming when grain cars become plentiful, which undoubtedly will occur when "the weather breaks up" after one of the most delightful falls and early winters which this state has enjoyed for many years. There is a great demand for money owing to the inability of farmers to secure cars for grain and this situation will extend into the new year. Meantime the farmer has stored an immense amount of grain and there is an abundance of credit for him at country banks.

Savings Books for Christmas Presents

The Chicago, Peoria and Ottawa electric railroad, a part of the Illinois Traction System, of which Congressman William B. McKinley is the president, presented each of the employees of the road with a savings pass book for Christmas with a deposit of two dollars already recorded.

The company stated in a letter that "it having been the custom of this company for years to extend to its employees a small annual remembrance in recognition of their loyal efforts in furthering the interests of the property—the offering herewith enclosed is in the form of a savings account opened in your favor. The initial deposit is $2.00 and we trust that when another year has rolled around you will have added to the account all you consistently could. A bank account, no matter how small, is always a source of comfort and satisfaction to the owner. If you already have one, this can be transferred to the same and if not, 'get the habit.'" The company has added another effective word to the doctrine of thrift and saving which is so necessary in our economic life to-day.

George W. Telling

The Commercial Trust and Savings of Danville reports deposits of $670,000 with capital, surplus and undivided profits of $164,000. This bank was established in 1903, entering the banking field in Danville after four large nationals had been doing business for many years. George W. Telling, the cashier, has served as chairman of Group 6 and takes an active interest in association work. He attended the recent Peoria convention of the Illinois Bankers Association and met many Illinois bankers. The bank has a good location in the best business portion of Danville. Mr. Telling has been identified with many public enterprises in his city and is now secretary of the Danville Clearing House Association.

Bloomington and Her Banks

Bloomington has eight banks, two of them national and six state, although it is a singular fact that not one of the state banks bears the word "State" in its name except the State Trust and Savings which is, however, closely affiliated with a strong national, the State National. The state banks are the Peoples Bank, the Corn Belt Bank, the McLean County Bank, the German-American Bank, the Illinois Savings and Trust Company and the State Trust and Savings Bank. The nationals are the First, being a recent consolidation with the Third National, and the State National. There also are two banks in Normal, an educational town two miles to the north. Deposits are large in all of the Bloomington banks, the Peoples reporting $1,446,964; Corn Belt, $1,167,694; McLean County, $746,900; German-American, $1,259,408; Illinois Savings, $44,000 (a new institution); State Trust, $277,576; State National, $937,856, and First National, $1,674,650.

"The Peorian"

"The Peorian" is the official monthly organ of the Peoria Association of Commerce and, true to the hustling ideals of the able bankers and business men of that city, sets forth the advantages of Peoria as a manufacturing, commercial and residential city in no uncertain manner. "The Peorian" is an interesting little magazine, well edited and admirably serves the purposes intended. Bankers of the state who are interested in the growth of Illinois' second city can secure copies from the secretary of the Peoria Association of Commerce.

Public Service Company Expands

The Central Illinois Public Service Company, with headquarters at Mattoon, has for a number of months been purchasing lighting and power plants in many Illinois towns scattered from about Kankakee down to the most southern part of "Egypt." It now is announced that the company contemplates a vast mileage of interurban railroads over the state. It is planned to merge the utility plants already purchased with the interurban lines. That Illinois offers a large field for the extension of electric railroads is conceded by all who know conditions, and it is thought that within the next few years there will be a large mileage constructed.

Banker to Visit Panama Canal

J. S. McFerren, president of the First National of Hoopeston, accompanied by Mrs. McFerren and their two sons, will sail from New York City February 24th for a month's voyage in Carribean waters. Venezuela and the Panama Canal will be visited. The First National of Hoopeston, with capital and surplus of $175,000, has enjoyed an enviable record for sound banking for thirty years. Mr. McFerren owns about 4,000 acres of farming lands near Hoopeston, is interested in the large canning industries of his city and in many other enterprises.

B. F. Harris Contributes Article

B. F. Harris, vice-president of the First National of Champaign and formerly president of the Illinois Bankers Association, has written an article for the Christmas number of the "Farmers Review" upon "The Essentials of Farm Credit." Mr. Harris does not often contribute to the periodicals, and bankers and farmers will read this review of American farm financial management with the keenest of interest.

Professor Cyril G. Hopkins of the college of agriculture of the University of Illinois is a contributor to the same number with an article, "A New Era in Agriculture."

Cissna Park Bank in New Home

The Iroquois County Bank of Cissna Park now is located in its new quarters, which are furnished and equipped in a most modern way, and the best of present-day banking ideas for smaller towns are included. The building is one of a type which now is being used in many of the smaller towns in the state. It is said that the bank "is one of which the people of Cissna Park well can be proud." E. L. Weise is the president and S. A. Brown is the cashier.

Isaac Miller Hamilton, now president of the Federal Life Insurance Company of Chicago and well known in that city, is a Cissna Park man, having been a banker there for many years with the firm of Young & Hamilton. The firm did a large business in loans, banking and insurance. Mr. Hamilton formerly was a state senator.

Cabinet Boost for Dr. C. G. Hopkins

Various and numerous cabinet positions have been proposed for many men, but the mention of Professor Cyril G. Hopkins of the University of Illinois for the portfolio of agriculture in the new Wilson administration is of interest to bankers and farmers irrespective of party politics. Dr. Hopkins is well known to Illinois bankers, as he has been a frequent speaker on the programs of various bankers' association conventions.

In the Orange Judd Farmer of recent date, W. H. Stout of Pine Grove, Pa., writes as follows:

"I nominate Professor Cyril G. Hopkins of Illinois for secretary of agriculture. He is undoubtedly one of the best qualified, practically scientific and scientifically practical instructors among the many talented teachers of agriculture in this country to-day."

State Treasurer-elect William Ryan was the guest of honor at a banquet served Monday evening, December 30th, by the Danville lodge of the Knights of Columbus. Mr. Ryan has served as grand knight of that lodge.

The banking house of A. G. Danforth & Co. of Washington sent out to friends neat holiday greetings and the John Weedman National of Farmer City issued New Year's greetings to customers and friends.

Kirkwood, a town of less than 1,000 people, near Monmouth, has two banks with combined deposits of about $600,000. These banks are the First National, of which W. C. Tubbs is president and C. D. Watson is the cashier, and the State Bank of Kirkwood with S. L. H. Gibson president and J. W. Houston cashier.

B. F. Harris, vice-president of the First National of Champaign and chairman of the Champaign Chamber of Commerce committee on agriculture, has received word that the federal government will give $1,200 a year for the employment of an agricultural expert for Champaign county. The remainder of the salary of $3,600 will be made up by the farmers of the county.

Farmers around Galesburg have announced that they will start raising $24,000 for agricultural improvement work in Knox county. Livingston county farmers have met at Pontiac and organized the Livingston County Soil and Crop Improvement Association. The various parties interested in good roads in Warren county also have organized.

Secretary of State-elect Harry Woods has filed his bond of $100,000 with Andrew Russell, Millard F. Dunlap, John Cherry and William Nunes, all of Jacksonville, as sureties. These four men prominently are identified with the Ayers National of Jacksonville and it is thought that that bank will be the depository for the new secretary of state.

MILWAUKEE NEWS LETTER BY CHALMER B. TRAVER WISCONSIN

Bank clearances in Milwaukee for the year were $724,683,441.15, a gain of $27,950,662 over 1911. Regarding the general status of Milwaukee banking for the past year and the outlook for 1913, E. A. Reddeman, assistant cashier and bond department manager of the Germania National Bank, says:

"The year 1912 has been exceptionally prosperous, and is the justification of a spirit of optimism that was felt early in 1911, after a period of stimulated industrial activity. An unprecedented return from the soil has resulted in a greater spending power throughout the country and places business in a position to begin the new year with a great deal of optimism. Although the demand for loans has been active, the banks have been able to care for all legitimate calls upon them at a fair rate. The volume of bank exchange usually is considered a very fair index of the activities of general business and Milwaukee clearings show a very material increase over former years."

Changes at Wisconsin National

Continuing the policy of announcing promotions as Christmas gifts to employees, the directors of the Wisconsin National Bank have announced that Lyman G. Bournique, for several years cashier, has been made vice-president. Walter Kasten, assistant cashier during the same period, becomes cashier. Both Mr. Bournique and Mr. Kasten are prominent among the younger Milwaukee bankers and active socially.

Disastrous Fire

A fire, starting in the cash register of a west side grocery store this week, burned up $200 worth of currency and checks and caused $800 damage to the rest of the store. A cross circuit of the wires providing current for the lights on each side of the register, when a purchase is recorded, was responsible for the loss.

New Legislation for Wisconsin

From the amount of legislation that is already proposed the coming session of the legislature will not lack for excitement. Water power legislation will occupy as much of the time this winter as it has during the last two sessions. Senator Paul O. Husting is said to be preparing a new bill which he hopes will do what has been tried ineffectually twice, to place the water powers of the state under its control in spite of the supreme court decisions. Numerous amendments will be presented to the income tax law. The plan to remove rentals of homesteads from income will not, it is announced from Madison, have the support of the tax commission, but the commission will have a goodly grist which will close up what the commission considers gaps in the administrative features of the law. One of the features of the session will be a new fire insurance bill which will be drafted by the legislative committee that has been sittting the last year. Among insurance legislation will be a bill relieving the Northwestern Mutual Insurance Company from the heavy load in the way of taxes which it is carrying.

To Take Over Light and Power Company

A new corporation with a capitalization of $4,000,000, consisting of $1,200,000 in capital and $2,500,000 in bonds, will take over the water power, electric railway and lighting properties of La Crosse, Wis., and Winona, Minn. This is the outcome of the receivership of the La Crosse companies resulting from the going out of the Hatfield dam a year ago, when Black River Falls was all but wiped off the map. The name of the new holding company will be the Wisconsin Railway, Light and Power Company; the companies which it will absorb are the La Crosse Waterpower Company, the Winona Railway and Light Company, whose stock is owned by the former company, and the La Crosse City Railway Light Company. The probable head of the new corporation is C. C. Smith, now head of the Wisconsin Public Service Company. The new corporation is projected as a solution of the receivership of the La Crosse Waterpower Company, which owned the Hatfield dam and power property. The bondholders protective committee of the La Crosse company, under the reorganization proposal, will have control of the new company for five years, until its reorganization is complete.

REVIEW OF YEAR'S NEWS

jected to by any honest private banker. The city council also took a hand in the matter and appointed a committee to investigate the subject. A bill was drawn up by the corporation counsel's office to be recommended to the legislature for passage by the committee on state legislation of the city council.

A later bill was prepared at the request of Ald. Si Mayer and will be submitted to the special committee which now has the subject in charge.

The bill places private banks under regulations similar to those which govern state banks, provides for quarterly reports by private bankers, inspection by the state auditor at least twice a year, prohibits private bankers from using deposits in dealing in lands, goods, wares or merchandise, and provides for a minimum capital of $25,000 in first class cities and $15,000 in others. The capital must be invested in bonds or mortgages, and the banker must have $25,000 in other assets.

The bill is designed to embrace the best features of the banking laws of Indiana, Missouri, New York and Illinois.

Franklin Trust and Savings increased its capital $100,000 in order to take over the business of the Drovers State; Drovers Trust and Savings increased its capital from $200,000 to $250,000 and the Drovers National from $650,000 to $750,000; Central Trust Company of Illinois to $4,500,000; First Trust and Savings capitalized $2,500,000 of its surplus fund, making its capital five millions; Peoples Stock Yards State increased its capital from $300,000 to $500,000; Austin State increased its capital stock to $100,000.

Willis J. Fowler, deputy comptroller of the currency, says:

"From reports obtained by the comptroller of the currency and from other sources it is evident that there are approximately 29,000 incorporated and private banks in operation in the country at this time, with combined capital of $2,080,000,000, deposits in excess of $17,000,000,000 and aggregate resources of approximately $25,000,000,000. This indicates that there is one bank for every 3,300 of population; that the average capital of the banks is $70,000 and their savings deposits $600,000. During this last decade population increased 18 per cent and deposits in banks 79 per cent.

"In the year ended with June, 1912, individual deposits in all reporting banks increased from $15,906,300,000 to $17,024,000,000, an increase of $1,117,700,000, or approximately 7 per cent. Of the total individual deposits in all banking institutions $6,496,100,000 are reported as savings accounts, which is an increase over the amount reported on a corresponding date in 1911 of $413,400,000, nearly the same percentage of increase as the percentage of increase in all deposits in banks.

"Assuming that savings depositors received on an average 3½ per cent upon their accounts, it would appear that the increase in savings deposits during the year is nearly equally divided between the amount of interest credited and the amount of current deposits. Of the total savings deposits in all banks nearly 60 per cent, or $3,608,600,000, are held by mutual savings banks, the large proportion of these institutions being located in the New England and eastern states. These mutual savings banks increased their deposits during the last year to the extent of about 4 per cent, the amount being $148,100,000, of which it would appear, however, that approximately $121,100,000 was interest credited, resulting in an increase in savings deposits during the year of approximately $27,000,000."

RIVER FOREST STATE

River Forest State, recently organized, opened for business on Thursday in its building at Lake Street and Franklin Avenue, River Forest. The bank is capitalized at $50,000 and has a surplus of $12,500. John W. Broughton is president; Thomas M. Jackson, vice-president, and John A. Klesert, cashier.

St. Louis and Southwest Banking Letter

By R. L. ROBINSON

St. Louis, January 2d.—Bank clearings for 1912 in St. Louis broke all previous records and showed a gain of four per cent over those of 1911. The total passed the $4,000,000,000 mark. Transactions at the banks and trust companies have continued in good volume, with the demand for money quite active. Reserves are well up to legal requirements at all the leading national banks. St. Louis bankers are of the opinion that during the next ten days the demand for funds will have reached its height and that after that period money will be more plentiful.

Locate Poor Man's Bank

The Industrial Loan Company of St. Louis, known in its early stages as the "poor man's bank," on Monday closed a lease for the storeroom on the ground floor of the Liggett Building and will open there to-day for the business of loaning money at 6 per cent to wage earners. Col. James G. Butler, president of the company, has announced that Arthur A. Blumeyer, who resigns as secretary and treasurer of the Arcon Realty and Investment Company, will be cashier. The company is incorporated for $200,000 with shares having a par value of $50. The directors have subcribed for all the stock and it is now being placed with large employers of labor, in order to bring the services of the institution to the wage earner, for whom its loans are primarily intended. The company plans to combat the loan sharks who charge heavy interest rates for small loans. Loans will be made on the indorsement of two fellow-workmen of the applicant. The applicant will pay at the outset the 6 per cent interest on the amount borrowed and will buy installment certificates for the amount of his loan, paying for them in weekly installments, so that his certificate matures a week before his loan.

Building Increase in St. Louis

An estimated increase of $1,300,000 in the value of new buildings for which permits were issued in St. Louis in 1912 as compared with 1911 is shown in the annual report of Building Commissioner James N. McKelvey. More than five hundred more building permits were issued than in 1911. An estimated total of $19,867,003.50 for new buildings sets a new record for St. Louis. This does not include the $2,600,000 which is to be spent on the twenty-one story building being erected by the Monward Realty Company at Broadway and Olive. About 8,600 permits have been issued in 1912 as compared with 8,152 for 1911.

Springfield Trust Company Elects

The new $200,000 trust company of which Governor Hadley and State Game and Fish Warden Jesse Tolerton are promoters have elected the following officers: President, W. M. Wade, former state bank examiner and now in business in St. Louis; vice-president, F. Miller; L. E. Shattuck, manager of the realty department and G. M. Sebree, attorney and general counsel.

New Bank for Springfield

State Bank Commissioner Swanger has issued a charter to the State Savings Bank of Springfield, capital $100,000, fully paid up. The shareholders are all directors and residents of Springfield. They are: Ernest L. Ferguson, Jake L. Hines, James H. Keet, Joel H. Roundtree, Milton C. Baker, John T. Woodruff, Louis S. Meyer, M. D. Lightfoot, C. A. Clement, Lyman A. Seaman and Edgar P. Mann.

Held as Robbers of Modena Bank

J. Oliver McGuire, a Princeton restaurant man, and Frank Kitchen, a moving picture machine operator, are under arrest charged with complicity in the robbery of the Bank of Modena, the night of December 16th, when five men blew the safe and escaped with $3,890. It is understood that the men will waive their preliminary hearing, the date for which has not been set.

Texas Crops Break Records

From an agricultural standpoint the year 1912 was the most remarkable and successful ever known in Texas. Considerable cotton is still in the hands of the Texas farmers but a much greater per cent of the crop has been marketed up to this time than has ever been the case in former seasons. As a result of the general turning loose of the staple there is a plethora of money in the banks. It is estimated that the cotton crop, including the seed, so far marketed in Texas, brought to the state last year more than $300,000,000. While the yield last year was something more than 4,850,000 bales in Texas, indications point to a large increase in the acreage this year and should the season be propitious it will not be surprising if the production is much greater than that of 1912. Besides the cotton crop, Texas more than doubled its corn production, the total yield for 1912 being 153,300,000 bushels as compared with 69,350,000 in 1911. The wheat production for 1912 was 10,596,000 as compared with 6,580,000 bushels in 1911. It is only in recent years that Texas has begun to assume importance as a wheat-producing state. The territory available for the product is almost as large as Minnesota and the two Dakotas combined. As an evidence of the growth of the industry there has been planted for this year's crop nearly twice the acreage that was in the grain in 1911. The production of oats in Texas for 1912 was 32,972,000 bushels as compared with 18,499,000 bushels in 1911. In the matter of feedstuff and forage, Texas produced more last year than ever in its history. Several million tons of hay, Kaffir corn, milo maize, sorghum, pea vines and a variety of other feed produces were harvested and insure an abundance of nourishment for live stock during the winter and spring months. Three million bushels of Irish potatoes, approximately, were grown in Texas last year and about 140,000 pounds of tobacco. Besides the great volume of money obtained from the products of the land the stock farmers and ranchmen have prospered during the past year. Cattle prices have been uniformly high while the range conditions have been fine and the cost of preparing the cattle for market has been less than in the ordinary year.

Bankers whose customers have business at the St. Louis National Yards can realize full value of such business only through an account with this bank.

Houston Oil Company Sued for $41,000,000 Damages

Attorney-General James D. Waltham has filed suit against the Houston Oil Company for the recovery of 88,000 acres of pine timber and oil tanks situated in east Texas and for $1,000,000 damages. Application for a receiver for the company also has been made. The land is valued at about $5,000,000. It was purchased several years ago from the state by John H. Kirby of Houston, who afterwards sold it to the Houston Oil Company, composed of Mr Kirby and Baltimore men chiefly. It is alleged in the attorney-general's petition that the land was forfeited to the state when Mr. Kirby deeded the land to a corporation before it had been patented by the state, the law providing that such patents must be issued before public land can be deeded to a corporation.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT IN SPOKANE

Rarely have prospects for the new year been so bright as now in the Spokane country, according to reports received by the Spokane office of R. G. Dun & Co. for publication in the semiannual trade review.

"The sections where grain is the chief product report splendid weather conditions and the acreage of winter wheat much increased over that of last year," states Dun's report, adding:

"The lumber sections show good prospects. Railroads have bought heavily and reports received from market centers are to the effect that stocks are 44 per cent less than last year at this time.

"The prices of lumber of the cheaper grades are strong and the demand large. Lumbermen look for a big demand for the Panama Exposition, and for an increased demand after the canal is opened for business, making available new markets for western lumber.

"The mining industry is in a healthy state and most optimistic reports are received from mining centers."

Sawyer of the association will come in from Western for the meeting. Others to attend will be Henry W. Yates, chairman of the executive council of the association; William B. Hughes, secretary; Charles Marshall, Nebraska City; F. S. Thompson, Albion; C. L. Wattles, Neligh; L. P. Sornson, Eustis; J. W. Welpton, Ogallala; W. A. Bucklin, Long Pine.

LARGER PAID CIRCULATION IN THE MIDDLE WEST THAN ANY THREE OF ITS COMPETITORS COMBINED

A LESSON FOR THE LABOR UNIONS

At a tremendous cost of life, property and public funds, it has been demonstrated to the complete satisfaction of the general public that it is possible in America to punish those who commit crime in the name of organized labor. Five great train loads of bankers were within ten hours' ride of Los Angeles going in attendance upon the American Bankers Association convention held there in 1910 when the great explosion occurred which wrecked the Times building and killed twenty-one of its inmates. It was not positively known, but was promptly suspected, that the labor unions were at the bottom of the trouble. Conditions in that city were something terrible at the time. The hotels where the bankers slept were guarded ceaselessly night and day. Not a building of any sort was being erected in that city except it was walled in and protected by an armed guard. Certain lines of employment were at as complete a standstill as they were in San Francisco at the same time. The bankers of America had a practical lesson of what unsatisfactory labor conditions can inflict upon a community, and of the amount of trouble which can be caused by impoverished leaders. The American Bankers Association promptly passed a resolution donating for immediate use for the families of those afflicted, $5,000. It will be remembered that the great national detective, Wm. J. Burns, was on the bankers' train going to attend the convention of which he had been made the chief protective officer. He announced promptly that he knew who committed the crime and could put his hands upon the guilty men. Employment was given him fortwith, and, be it said to his credit, the revelations which he has made concerning the policies of one branch of organized labor have astounded the world. Awaiting the opportune time, Mr. Burns arrested those who were guilty of placing the explosive in the Los Angeles Times building and in the course of time they were convicted. Mr. Burns was induced to continue his efforts and the latest result has been the sentencing of thirty-eight conspirators, all members of a national labor organization with a mistaken policy of destroying property and taking life as a means of combating non-union shops throughout all sections of the country.

Had the McNamaras been convicted by a jury instead of pleading guilty as they were forced to do to save their lives, organized labor throughout the country would have been glorifying them with picnics and reunions as martyrs to the cause of labor. Monuments would have been erected just as they were erected in the case of the Chicago anarchists in whose honor annual festivities still are being held. The fact that the McNamaras pleaded guilty encouraged the government officials to extraordinary efforts and prepared the public for the verdict which was delivered last week at Indianapolis. Judge Anderson and all of the other federal authorities who were employed in the case are entitled to the sympathy of all the decent labor people of the entire country. Union labor of the irresponsible kind should rid itself at once of leaders who teach enmity to law and society. The criminal degenerate should be barred absolutely from their councils and certainly from their employment. Chicago took a long stride forward when she convicted a number of labor "business agents" for shooting down their fellow men both as non-union workers and as leaders of opposing unions. Now that the methods of such conspirators are known publicly it ought to lead to very prompt arrest and conviction if any further infractions of the law are committed in the name of organized labor.

REWRITING THE CONSTITUTION

An important committee of very able men now is engaged in rewriting the constitution of the American Bankers Association. Economy, simplicity and fairness are the watchwords. The committee could arrive at popularity by creating a lot of new positions with expense account attachments but it likely will go in a directly opposite direction. A few of the most apt of recently suggested reforms are herewith:

1. All employees of the A. B. A. should be appointed or "hired" and not elected as in the past. Think it over and you will be able to concur. There is a feeling of safety after election which acts often as an opiate upon activity and initiative.

2. All legal affairs of the association, including investigations, should be discharged through the office of the general counsel.

3. A department of audit should be created and no money should be paid from the treasury upon requisitions from sections, committees or officials, but all the obligations of the association should be paid through the office of the auditor and then only upon itemized vouchers against funds provided by budget.

4. The committee on amendments should be kept a standing committee and the prerogatives of the finance committee enlarged.

5. Expenditures would be curtailed and the efficiency of administration multiplied by the passage and execution of a section abolishing all self-created committees and the transference of nearly all committee work to members of council.

Other useful amendments or planks will occur to all who have studied the situation. Above are submitted in fear that they otherwise might be overlooked. All are based upon observation and suggestions made at varying times by able members of the association.

J. B. FORGAN TO STOCKHOLDERS

President James B. Forgan in transmitting the 49th annual statement of the First National and the 9th of the First Trust made comment on financial and banking conditions deeply interesting to all bankers and to the public. Mr. Forgan says:

"During the first eight months of the year the supply of money available for commercial purposes was considerably in excess of the demand and interest rates ruled below. With the harvesting of large crops of all kinds of farm products general business revived. During the last four months of the year the demand on the banks for money for commercial purposes became sufficient to keep all available funds fully employed.

"The profits of the First National Bank for the last four months of the year were comparatively large, offsetting the small profits made during the first eight months and resulting in a good average profit for the year. In the First Trust and Savings Bank the profits again show an increase over previous years. This is especially satisfactory in view of the fact that the investment security market throughout the year ruled dull and unsettled, with prices trending downward.

"Such losses as have occurred or can be anticipated have been provided for out of gross earnings and there are no past due or defaulted obligations, either as to principal or interest, among the current assets of either bank. The affiliated banks again show satisfactory earnings for the year on their average aggregate capital, viz., 10.7 per cent. The net profits for 1912 (all losses provided for) of the First National Bank are $1,827,815.29, as compared with $1,778,571.23 last year and the net profits of the First Trust and Savings Bank are $1,165,558.27, as compared with $1,094,973.81 last year.

"In accordance with the policy adopted by the directors as explained in our circular of March 30, 1912, there has been no division this year of the profits of the First Trust and Savings Bank. In lieu thereof special dividends equal to 5 per cent for the year on the capital stock of The First National Bank have been paid out of its earnings. The First Trust and Savings Bank thus has been enabled to increase its surplus account from $1,000,000 to $2,500,000.00. If the earnings of The First National Bank will permit of it, this will continue to be the practice until the surplus of the First Trust and Savings Bank is equal its capital."

At a meeting of the directors of the First National, Zanesville, O., William P. Sharer, vice-president, was elected president and John Hoge, for many years a director, was elected vice-president. Mr. Sharer succeeds Conrad Stolzenbach, whose death occurred November 17th. J. B. Larzelere is cashier and Frank T. Howard, assistant cashier.

WEIGHTY NOVEL OF FARM LIFE IN WEST

Out of the great west has come inspiration to many writers of fiction, dealing with phases of life hardly known to the settled, orderly and prosperous east. Seldom, however, has any of these novelist-historiographers been moved to depict the actual struggles and trials of farm life in regions of drought and cyclones and insect plagues—the locale of Dell H. Munger's "The Wind Before the Dawn," just published by Doubleday, Page & Co.

In this long and weighty novel of nearly 600 pages is set down, with amplitude and precision of detail, the course and career of a young girl of the western world, born and reared on a Kansas farm, married at 20 to an ambitious son of the soil, and ground by pressure of farm work and household duties into an inert and almost non-resistant mass.

The narrative leaves little or nothing to the reader's imagination. Chances of crops; pressure of debt; cares of a growing family; expression of the home-building instinct; revolt at last against the solitude that is the dread of every ruralist—these and kindred factors in the story are portrayed faithfully and with relentless insistence. No Meredith's pen could have covered the literary field more completely.

With the domestic current of the narrative are interwoven, here and there, graphic pen pictures of scenes peculiar to the prairie lands—the rush of clouds of grasshoppers, stampeding great herds of cattle; the roar and sweep of tornadoes, leaving no living thing in their wake, and the unending conflict between nature's wild allies and human agencies seeking to possess the earth.

The novelist's motive is in the conflict that arises between the heroine and her husband over the mortgaging of land. She is but an upper servant, fed and clothed, but for her child's sake she seeks to avoid debt.

A strange chance of fortune puts in her hands the means of independence, and right vigorously does she wield them.

There is a severance of marital, as well as business partnership, and the woman proceeds to show how well she can run a farm without the aid of an exacting lord and master.

This, comments the writer—it is the intent and meaning of the book—is the end of every woman's desire. Elizabeth Hunter ponders long over it, when at last her runaway husband, a lucky speculator on boards of trade, wants to come back.

"There is no other way," she tells herself. "A woman, to be free, must have money of her own. She must not be supported by a man."

At least, one is sure, it may be so in Kansas, where even now one woman's vote is as good as another's.

This is "the wind before the dawn"—the beginning of a new day. Rarely has the woman's point of view been so clearly and forcibly announced in fiction as it has been in this sympathetic and highly vitalized study of rural life under actual and oppressive conditions.

A book like this is more than a mere work of fiction—it is a timely sociological study of a characteristic national epoch.

Smith, who drove 22,928.8 miles with no repair expense. Eighteen other prizes were awarded. Even the twentieth prize went to a chauffeur who ran his car 10,870 miles on 85 cents repair charges.

A. E. Kuolt on Wisconsin Banking Conditions

No failure in eight years an emphatic endorsement of an up-to-date banking law. Tells how banks are liquidated at little cost. Reports in detail to the governor

A. E. Kuolt, banking commissioner for Wisconsin, in submitting his annual report to the governor shows banking conditions to be in keeping with the general prosperity of the state. He makes certain legislative recommendations which doubtless will come before the legislature at its next session. Among other things Commissioner Kuolt says that his report presents the financial condition of 590 state banks, 4 mutual savings banks, and 13 trust companies, a total of 607 banking institutions organized under the laws of Wisconsin, and doing business on November 26, 1912, the date of the last statement obtained from them on call. The aggregate amount of capital employed by these banks is $20,011,050, a gain of $1,350,000 during the past twelvemonth; the total amount of resources is $209,037,498.52, an increase of $23,033,951.58, and the amount of lawful money on hand is $7,601,272.97, a gain of $529,177.19 over the corresponding amounts returned a year ago.

No Failures

No bank failures occurred in Wisconsin in 1912; nor, indeed, have there been any failures of banks operating under its state laws since July, 1904. Thus, a period of over eight years, embracing the panic of 1907, from which Wisconsin banks emerged scathless, has passed with a "perfect score"—a record unparalled in the history of banking in this country. "No better evidence can be given of the practicality and efficacy of our banking laws and of the system of supervision established thereunder," says the report.

General Condition

Among the principal elements considered in determining the condition of a bank are its capital and surplus, and their proportion to the amount of deposits; responsibility of the stockholders; kind and quality of the assets and the frequency of their metamorphoses; volume of business as a profit-producing factor; methods of conducting business, including prompt and intelligent compliance with the provisions of law; style and system of bookkeeping and accounting; efficiency of employees; personality of officials and activity of directors, together with the quality of service given to the public. All of these elements and many others of minor importance are delved into and brought out clearly at each of the semiannual examinations made at irregular intervals by the examiners of the banking department. The task of an examiner is as difficult as it is important. The responsibility attached to his work is great and ever present. Only men equipped with the necessary mental and moral qualifications, and possessing proper business training and experience can become efficient bank examiners. Sound judgment, a keen sense of justice, quickness of perception, firmness combined with tact, are some of the requisites of a successful examiner. He must be master of the technique of the work behind the counter. He must be resourceful, patient, and alert. His bearing must correspond in dignity to his task—that of being the bank's impartial adviser in addition to being its impartial critic.

The duties of a bank examiner involve expert work of the subtlest quality. Moreover, it is incessant, hard work, with traveling between work, with only occasional visits to the home and family. Of those that undertake this work some become useful; few become expert. "I am happy to say that the bank examiners of this department are rendering to the state expert service of high degree and of inestimable value to the banks and to the people of Wisconsin. It is with great pleasure that I avail myself of this opportunity publicly to commend the efficient public service of Deputy Commissioner W. H. Richards, and of Bank Examiners C. L. Brown, A. R. Emerson, Thos. Herroid, R. B. Ellis, A. C. Pond, C. F. Schwenker, and H. E. Stedman," says the commissioner.

"No system of supervision, however complex and far-reaching, can achieve such satisfactory results unless bank officials and directors fully are alive to their responsibility. It is the daily grind behind the counter that brings results. It is the daily communion with the public, the never-ceasing exercise of judgment, the constant attention to the wants of customers, the perpetual regard for the welfare of depositors, that make for the success of a bank. And it is the intelligent compliance with the law, based upon faith in the soundness of its provisions, that builds up the strength of a bank. I am gratified to be in position to say from personal knowledge that the largest measure of credit for the general excellence of the condition of Wisconsin banks, for the safety of deposits, for the pride the people of this state rightly can take in their banks, belongs to the executive officers and to directors because of their painstaking care and their faithful devotion to the affairs of their banks. In my official dealings with bankers, I always have met with prompt and courteous response; the demands of this department, at times severe, have been invariably and cheerfully complied with; and I feel that this public recognition of their achievements justly is due to bankers of Wisconsin.

Increase of Capital

"I cannot too warmly commend banks for voluntarily increasing their capital as soon as the volume of business has outbid the anticipations of the organizers. The capital is the foundation upon which the business of a bank rests; it is the foremost guaranty to which depositors are looking for safety; it is the accepted, if not the only, measure of a bank's strength. The statutes of Wisconsin prescribe a minimum capital proportioned merely to the population of the city or village in which the bank is located. They are silent on the need of increasing capital in proportion to the growth of business. Many of the banks that have outgrown their early dimensions voluntarily have increased their capital during the year covered by this report, in some instances quite substantially, and the total amount of such increase is $528,000.

In the Hands of the Commissioners

"On May 20th, the German Bank of Sheboygan, was 'placed in the hands of the commissioner of banking,' under sections 2024-29 of the statutes. This action was taken by the board of directors, following the sudden demise of the aged president of this bank, when considerable tampering with the assets was discovered. In addition, it was found that the president had contracted on behalf of the bank certain outside liabilities, not shown upon the books. Reorganization became imperative. Under section 2021, the board then made a pro rata assessment of two hundred per centum upon all the capital stock of said bank. At the expiration of the thirty days provided by law, all the stock was placed, the unbankable securities were charged off, and the bank resumed business. The statement of November 26th shows that deposits of this bank are now larger than before the trouble, indicating that the reorganization has inspired renewed confidence.

"Affairs of the Bank of Clear Lake, which temporarily suspended payment on January 25, 1912, show a gratifying improvement. The aggregate amount of proved claims has been reduced from $47,506.41 on August 11, 1911, to $39,575.30 on November 26, 1912, without any reduction of assets, while a portion of the slow assets has been replaced by bankable securities. Special Deputy Commissioner of Banking F. P. Ainsworth, continues in charge of this bank, and reports that chances of resumption vastly have improved during the past year. Inasmuch as the principal assets consist of lands in the vicinity of Clear Lake, and of long time mortgage loans, considerable time may be required to realize on the bulk of these assets without sacrifice. I am informed that the creditors are willing to bide their time rather than to precipitate a forced sale entailing loss.

Proposed Legislation

"In my report, submitted to Your Excellency a year ago, I took pains to present, at some length, the desirability of certain additional bank legislation. I now respectfully repeat my recommendation as to the importance of a provision for checking undue and harmful competition among banks through reasonably enlarging the power of refusing charters vested in the commissioner of banking; and my recommendation for amendment to section 2024-36, to enable state banks to qualify as depositaries of postal savings funds.

"At the present time, I am prompted to ask for still further changes in the banking laws, and respectfully submit the following recommendations:

Minimum Capital

"Under chapter 545, laws of 1907, (par. 2, sec. 2024-6 W. S.), a minimum capital of $50,000 is prescribed for state banks in cities having more than ten thousand inhabitants. This includes Milwaukee. This city now is supplied abundantly with banking facilities. A due regard for the interests of the public and fairness to existing banks would seem to demand that the minimum amount of capital for new banks in the state's metropolis should be fixed by law at not less than $100,000.

Credit Bureau

"Large metropolitan banks maintain their own credit departments, often at great expense. Smaller banks are operating under a handicap in this respect. A credit bureau conducted as an adjunct to the state banking department would be a benefit to all banks in Wisconsin. The creation of such bureau respectfully is recommended. A similar movement is afoot in other states. The credit bureaus of several states could be formed into an interstate credit bureau, whose ramifications eventually would cover the entire coun-

CENTRAL WEST LETTER

By EDGAR P. ALLEN

Omaha

The three receivers appointed by Federal Judge Pollock to take charge of the affairs of the Kansas Natural Gas Company completed their report on Monday, December 30th, with a recommendation that the schedules of prices for natural gas in forty-two Kansas and Missouri cities be adopted. The schedules call for a raise in rates averaging nearly fifty per cent to the distributing companies which will, in turn, raise their rates to the consumers. The following day Judge Pollock made the order as recommended and almost immediately a receivership was declared for the Kanas City Gas Company by Judge Van Valkenburg of the federal court in Kansas City, Mo. The receivers of the latter institution are Edward F. Swinney, president of the First National of Kansas City; E. L. Burndrett, president of the company, and ex-Senator William Warner. The receivership is effective at once and now the affairs of both companies appear to be in a serious tangle of conflicting authority. Kansas City consumers of natural gas have been paying 25 cents a thousand feet, but under the Pollock order the wholesale price is raised to 31 cents, which would make the consumers' rate about 50 cents a thousand.

Friction Among Receivers

For several weeks rumors have floated into Kansas City of serious discord among the eleven receivers of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railroad, and these rumors were verified a few days ago when announcement was made of the withdrawal of Edward Dickinson as general manager of the property. To put it plainly, as one receiver expressed it, Mr. Dickinson and his crowd were "out-voted." Mr. Dickinson was in line for the presidency of the reorganized corporation in the place of Arthur E. Stilwell, recently deposed. M. J. Knelly, for some time "acting" general manager, has taken Mr. Dickinson's place and other changes have been made, indicating that what is called the "English element," has lost certain preliminary skirmishes in the reorganization scheme.

Important Changes

Important changes have taken place in two banks at the Kansas City stockyards within the past week. A controlling interest in the Stock Yards Bank of Commerce, 1523 Genesee Street, has been purchased by A. H. Waite, president of the Joplin, Mo., National, and his brother, Charles E. Waite, vice-president of the Drovers National of Kansas City. Charles E. Waite will retire from the Drovers National at once and become president of the Stock Yards Bank of Commerce, succeeding John F. Gillespie, who becomes chairman of the board. A. H. Waite of Joplin will be on the board also. Charles B. Gooddell, assistant cashier of the Drovers National Bank will become vice-president of the Stock Yards Bank of Commerce, succeeding Charles W. Bartlett who will retire. A. Newman, formerly a national bank examiner for Kansas, whose home is in Topeka, will become vice-president of the Drovers National. These changes mean a general shake-up of financial interests at the stock yards banks, with considerable new capital injected into both institutions.

Dolley Sends Out Notices

Bank Commissioner J. N. Dolley of Kansas issued notices December 31st, for the third annual assessment of the Kansas state banks that participate in the Kansas guaranty fund. The assessment is one-twentieth of 1 per cent of the total average deposits of the banks in the last year and it is estimated that it will bring close to $50,000. The two previous assessments made a total of a little more than $80.000. It is stated that the guaranty fund of Kansas never has been called upon to pay out a penny because of the failure of any bank participating in the fund. The affairs of the Abilene State Bank, wrecked by John A. Flack, have not been entirely settled, and the guaranty fund may yet be called upon to help pay some of the claims against that institution.

Oklahoma Deposits Increase

Bank Commissioner Lankford of Oklahoma says that with a loss of four banks during the period, the state banks of Oklahoma between September 4th and November 26th, increased their individual deposits $6,740,224. The consolidated statement of the 617 state banks of Oklahoma just issued by the department shows loans and discounts of $29,246,431; overdrafts, $621,448; stock, bonds and warrants, $4,086,367 and other resource items, bringing the total to $59,187,855. The total capital stock of the banks is $9,286,250; the surplus fund, $1,110,809; deposits of $43,271,115. The average reserve held by the state banks is 48.4 per cent.

Texas Banks Flourishing

Texas state banks are doing very well indeed, according to the supplimental statement given out by Commissioner of Insurance and Banking Gill last week condensed from the reports of state banks and trust companies at the close of business November 26, 1912. The number of banks reporting November 26, 1912, was 744; number of banks November 10, 1910, 621. Net increase in two years, 121. Total deposits in 744 banks on November 26, 1912, $100,893,148. Total deposits in 621 banks November 10, 1910, $55,677,127. Increase in deposits in two years, $45,216,020. Capital and surplus of 744 banks on November 26, 1912, $35,780,808. Capital and surplus of 621 banks on November 10, 1910, $24,178,344. Increase of capital and surplus in two years, $11,602,464. The average capital of state banks now is $48,092, while the average capital and surplus in 1910 was $38,934, showing an average individual increase of $9,157. In two years the average deposits have increased $45,951.

Kansas Conditions

Commenting upon banking conditions in Kansas as shown by the last statement of the state banks, Bank Commissioner J. N. Dolley, says: "General business conditions in Kansas are excellent. Much inconvenience is being caused on account of the car shortage and inability of the railroads to move the wheat and agricultural crops. Winter wheat is going into the winter season in excellent condition in most of the counties and promises at this time to yield an immense crop in 1913. There is a strong, legitimate demand for money.

cial prosperity. There are 226,669 depositors in the Nebraska state banks whose total deposits are $82,527,694, and the average reserve is 23 2/5 per cent. The capital stock of all the Nebraska state banks is $13,833,500 and the surplus and undivided profits amount to over $6,000,000. While some of the bank items have fluctuated, the department is gratified at the showing given, and looks forward with confidence to the opening of spring and the increased activities of that season. A slight decrease in the deposits in the past three months is due, so Secrtary Royce points out, to the fact that farmers are holding their grain. This, he says, naturally would increase the loans and would create a condition which will be changed when the grain is placed on the market, the money paid back and deposits are made by the farmers.

Central West Notes

Charles M. Sawyer, of Norton, Kan., the newly appointed bank commissioner of Kansas, has announced the appointment of P. E. Laughlin as chief deputy bank commissioner. Mr. Laughlin is cashier of the Citizens State Bank of Marysville, Kan., and also is vice-president of the Kansas State Bankers Association. He was the democratic candidate for state treasurer at the recent election.

C. Cusack, a pioneer of North Bend, Neb., and president of the First National of that place, died last week. He organized the bank in 1884 and had control of it first as cashier and then as president until about a month ago, when he retired from active business.

E. L. Ammond, governor-elect of Colorado, last week sent his private secretary to visit Bank Commissioner Dolley of Kansas to find out all about Kansas banking laws and regulations. Mr. Ammond is much impressed with the Kansas way of handling banking matters and will ask the Colorado legislature to enact similar legislation.

On December 31st the directors of the Fidelity Trust Company of Kansas City voted a 10 per cent dividend out of the undivided profits. The directors also authorized a payment to each employee of 5 per cent of his yearly salary.

Eugene Rust, for ten years general manager of the Kansas City Stock Yards Company, and a pioneer resident of Kansas City, died last week after a prolonged illness. Mr. Rust was one of the most widely known business men in the Southwest and was 61 years old. At the time of his death he was a director of the Southwest National Bank of Commerce and was identified with many other business and social organizations of Kansas City.

The Texas department of insurance and banking has approved the following reserve agents for Texas banks: for the Prendergast, Smith Banking Co. of Mexia, the Guaranty State Bank and Trust Company of Dallas; for the Argyle State Bank of Argyle, the First State Bank of Dallas; for the Guaranty State Bank and Trust Company of Dallas, the Oklahoma Stock Yards National, Oklahoma City, Okla.; for the First State Bank of Grand Prairie, the First State Bank of Dallas; for the First State Bank of Amarillo, the National Bank of Commerce, Houston; for the First State Bank of Seminole, the National Stock Yards National, National Stock Yards, Ill.; for the Van Horn State Bank of Van Horn, the Stock Yards National of Fort Worth; for the Hebron State Bank of Hebron, the City National of Dallas; for the Bank of Commerce of Sinton, the Corpus Christi National; for the Round Top State Bank of Round Top, the Hanover National of New York, the South Texas Commercial National of Houston and the First National of Galveston; for the Wharton Bank and Trust Company of Wharton, the Mechanics and Metals National of New York; for the First State Bank of Alba, the National Bank of Commerce, St. Louis; for the First State Bank of Olton, the American National of Austin; for the First State Bank of Dawson, the South Texas Commercial National of Houston; for the First State Bank of Appleby, the Commercial Guaranty State Bank of Nacogdoches and the National Bank of Commerce, Houston.

C. E. Trumbo and associates of Wagoner, Okla., have purchased a controlling interest in the Central State Bank of Muskogee, Okla. Mr. Trumbo will be president of the institution.

C. F. Pettyjohn, president of the Bank of Olathe, Kan., gave a dinner party in Kansas City New Year's night to nine directors of his institution. It was a most happy occasion and included a theater party. Some time ago Mr. Pettyjohn jokingly told his associates that whenever the bank's deposits reached $250,000 he would stand treat for all the directors. Several weeks ago the deposits reached the figure set, but nothing was said to President Pettyjohn until last week when the directors notified him that they were ready for the dinner. Mr. Pettyjohn was game and the party came to Kansas City for a New Year's night celebration. Besides President Pettyjohn were P. M. Becket, cashier; D. A. Green, assistant cashier; Will Jarboe, bookkeeper; Governor-elect George Hodges, Frank Hodges, L. W. Snepp, C. H. Hyer and Willis Keefer.

Northwest Letter

Banking news from Minneapolis—St. Paul financial center, and surrounding States, compiled by J. Edwards Smith

Dr. George E. Vincent, president of the University of Minnesota, is to be the principal speaker at the annual dinner of the New York City bankers, Jan. 20th, at the Waldorf-Astoria. He accepted after deciding that he could not take the time, and reconsidering the request.

Hill Doesn't Want Office

"It would be ungrateful to decline the honor, but I could not consider appointment to a public office," said James J. Hill of the plan formed to present his name to Woodrow Wilson as cabinet member in the office of secretary of agriculture. F. A. Chamberlain, president of the Security National, said the announcement of an organization as being formed to urge the appointment is premature, but that something of the kind is to be done. The appointment, he said, would be greeted with enthusiasm the country over. W. H. Dunwoody, chairman of the Northwestern National and a director in the Great Northern, said: "Mr. Hill would be an ideal man for the position if he can be persuaded to accept. His friends gladly will do all they can to bring this about." W. B. Dean, St. Paul banker, said: "I am heartily in sympathy with the idea, and I should be glad if it could be brought about."

Lower Court Reversed

In a decision that an option contract to sell where the person is not actually bound to sell may nevertheless bind the other party to buy at the specified price, where a valuable consideration has been given the prospective purchaser, the Minnesota supreme court has reversed the lower court, which sustained a demurrer in the case of the First National of Hastings in an action to compel the Corporation Securities Company to purchase fifteen shares of bank stock at $2,250. W. A. Bradford originally held the stock, and entered into a contract with the Corporation Securities Company, the company agreeing to take the stock at the specified price on or before Aug. 1, 1911. Bradford assigned the stock and contract to the First National Bank of Hastings. The Corporation Securities Company refused to buy. Action was brought to compel the purchase. Demurrer to the complaint was sustained, the grounds given being that the contract attempted to bind the prospective purchaser but not the intended seller.

"Blue Sky" Bill

In his annual message to the Minnesota legislature, Governor A. O. Eberhart will recommend a law which will enable the state to control issuance and sale of stocks, bonds, or other securities. This law is designed to prevent sale of "Blue Sky" securities. Such a bill has been prepared by Insurance Commissioner J. A. O. Preus of Minnesota and H. L. Ekern, Wisconsin insurance commissioner. Based on recommendations of the National Conference on Uniform Laws, Rome G. Brown, attorney, has made the first report of its kind in the state, urging laws on negotiable instruments, warehouse receipts, as well as divorce and family desertion.

Adds to Surplus

The Minnesota Loan and Trust company has added $50,000 to the surplus, raising it to a quarter million, and the capital and surplus $1,250,000. The Northwestern National made no change in surplus from the $500,000 profits account. Surplus and capital of the two institutions now are $6,750,000.

Merger News

With the merger of the Second National and First National banks of St. Paul, Jan. 2d, C. H. Buckley, cashier Second National, and Edwin Mott, assistant cashier, became assistant cashiers of the First. The meeting of directors was attended by James J. Hill, Louis W. Hill, W. P. Davidson, E. N. Saunders, H. E. Thompson, C. W. Ames, T. A. Schulze, C. W. Gordon, W. A. Miller, H. S. Cole and E. H. Bailey. A quarterly dividend of 3 per cent was ordered by the board.

The Minneapolis Savings and Loan Association has elected officers as follows: President, Jacob Stoft; vice-presidents, L. T. Sheets, F. R. Chase; secretary-treasurer, P. M. Endsley; assistant secretary, Willis Endsley; additional directors, Alonzo Phillips, W. S. Jenkins, C. N. Robinson, C. A. Robinson, J. C. Hursh, F. L. Palmer, V. H. Van Slyke, C. L. Hoffman, Julius Newgord, J. H. Field. The semiannual dividend of 5 per cent was declared.

Has Same Initials as Brother

With initials the same as those of his brother a man has been arrested in Minneapolis, charged with drawing on his brother's bank account. Cashier H. A. Willoughby of the First National is inclined to take an optimistic view of human nature. He said: "There need be no fear of enough repetitions of this case to cause alarm, because more than the average of men is honest. We have faith enough in humanity to believe the question is no question at all. There is no menace. If any one has reason to have faith in human nature, bankers have."

Pension Systems

Pension systems in the banks include about 750 persons in Minneapolis. The First National has closed its third year, the Northwestern National its second year and the Security National its first year. These systems replace the usual Christmas gratuity. Each bank takes from surplus to add to the pension fund. Assistant Cashier P. J. Leeman said of the First: "It puts everybody on a basis of self-respect, makes everybody a part of the plan, encourages employees, insures them against old age, and then the bank gets into the game and helps it along." Joseph Chapman, Northwestern National, said: "When an employee reaches 60, he may retire on the basis of annual payment thereafter of 60 per cent of the average salary drawn for the 10 years previous. It puts him right out of the fear of incapacity and dependence in old age."

Increase in Capital

The capital of the First National of St. Paul was on December 31st increased from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000, and surplus from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000. James J. Hill paid into the bank more than $6,000,000, becoming practically owner. Announcement was made by E. H. Bailey. Succeeding F. P. Shepard, D. C. Shepard, E. H. Cutler and H. E. Thompson, directors were elected as follows: Darius Miller, president of the Burlington road; W. B. Dean, president Second National bank; Walter Butler, Butler Bros.; Albert N. Rose.

Address by E. W. Decker

E. W. Decker, president of the Northwestern National, gave an address on "Why Princeton" at the alumni association meeting of the Northwest at the Minnesota club, St. Paul, and E. W. Jr., gave "Impressions of a Freshman." J. S. Pomeroy, cashier of the Security National; C. L. Grandin, vice-president of the Scandinavian American National; J. E. Ware, cashier of the St. Anthony Falls Bank, made addresses at the annual dinner of the Hudson & Thurber Co., Minneapolis.

Large Dividends

Disbursements for dividends were largest in the history of Minneapolis, according to estimates, for the closing quarter and half year, or about $2,500,000. Several large institutions are not included as their dividend time is later.

Minneapolis Clearings

Minneapolis' bank clearings gain for 1912 was $114,141,572.24, or a gain of $373,044.30 a working day. Clearings for the year were $1,182,232,466.20. This is the high mark, but the bankers are expecting another gain next year. Subsidence of the early grain movement left the clearings some under the bankers' guess for the 1912 totals. Clearings passed the billion dollar mark in 1907.

Northwest Notes

In eight months the Provident Loan society, St. Paul, anti-loan shark, has given out $45,878.06 in loans and $24,984.42 of this was returned. About 3,500 calls were received for loans and about 40 per cent were accommodated. The loans averaged $54.60. More than $2,000 was saved to patrons by adjustment with other loan companies of previous loans. Ambrose Tighe, H. W. Parker, and W. C. McCurdy were re-elected for three years. Manager D. S. Coffey will continue.

The Farmers and Mechanics State, Albert Lea, formerly known as the Citizens National, has begun business with officers as follows: president, H. W. Hurlburt; vice-president, Alexander S. Campbell; cashier, A. M. Smith; assistant, Edward Crippen.

The State Savings Bank of St. Paul has passed the $5,000,000 deposit mark, the greatest total in the history of the local banks. The bank is a mutual institution and is governed by trustees. Four of the original twelve men are on the board. William Constans, Gustav Willius, Ferdinand Willius, Harris Richardson. Four of the board are dead and two living are not members now.

In appointing officers whose terms had expired, Governor A. O. Eberhart announced his intention of reappointing Kelsey S. Chase as superintendent of banks in 1914, salary $5,000, and A. E. Fritz as public examiner, salary $4,100.

Grain receipt records in Minneapolis were beaten in 1912 by 26,000,000 bushels. The biggest increase was in wheat receipts, 112,294,600 as against 97,143,920 in 1911.

The Capital National, St. Paul, has received the award of $180,000 4½ per cent state prison bonds. The first issue of $560,000 also was taken by the bank. The total sale has been $1,365,000.

St. Paul bank clearings established a new record in 1912. The total was $579,166,754. The previous record was in 1910, or $576,156,229. A gain was made every month of the year.

Points Out Evil of Speculation

J. J. Townsend, president of Chicago Stock Exchange, tells of bank president who was discharged for using funds of bank in speculative ventures, although it resulted in a huge profit to the bank.

A few years ago the president of a big bank a thousand miles or so from Chicago summoned his directors and announced with an air of satisfaction that he could present the bank with a $5,000,000 profit from a single series of transactions in gold. The season had been favorable for such speculation and he had used the bank's funds so adroitly that he had netted the institution a tremendous profit.

One of the directors inquired into the methods used and satisfied himself the transactions had been purely speculative. He then asked the president to leave the room for a moment. When the president was recalled it was for the purpose of signing his resignation.

That is not an imaginary story, but its moral is fairly obvious. That banker was the first of the school of big financiers who hazard the funds of their depositors, not for personal profit, but for the sake of the bank's profit. The directors were directors of the old, steady type, the sort of men the growing boys were taught to respect. It is a type that is not so prominent now as it once was.

Tend to Speculation

Recently there has been a rush toward speculative work. The result that must have been foreseen, if any one had taken the trouble to look into the future, has come. There is a popular hostility toward almost every big Eastern banker, just because he is a big banker and many of his station are known to be speculators rather than cautious, scrupulous investors.

There have been loudly voiced protests and criticisms. They have come from men like Bryan, later from LaFollette and Roosevelt. All have been called anarchists. But when a protest has been followed by an investigation something bad has been found. Our system is not right. It cannot be perfect, of course, but it can be improved a whole lot.

Consider the action of those directors I mentioned. I should like to see more such men to-day. I think we will have to have more of them before the criticisms subside. I think we will have to have a little more conscience and a little less mania for quick profit at the expense of the public.

Improvement Seen in 1912

The last year has seen some improvement, because there has been publicity given to the manner in which big business is conducted. The public has a right to know, and in this way get the knowledge on which a sound public opinion must be based, and when public opinion is concentrated reform is not far away.

I think the coming year is going to show more improvement, for the movement is under way and it is not going to stop. The banker and the broker worthy the name want it. They want a return to—well, call it respectability.

There has been a good deal of criticism of the broker whenever a stock issue has gone to pieces, and it is not pleasant. Yet the broker is not at fault much of the time.

There are two kinds of banker. One is the responsible, respectable man, who is absolutely essential to the prosperity of the nation and the community which he serves. All credit to him. I am glad to say Chicago's bankers are of that worthy type. But there is another kind, the man of sinister purpose and sinister act, the man who uses the great quasi-public funds at his disposal, and the tremendous influence they give him, to unload useless and really criminally bad "securities" on an innocently investing public.

The man who is generally responsible for the abominations too often charged up to the broker is that banker who floats a big issue of stuff that has not value behind it—the promoter who unloads this stuff on the broker and thereby gets rid of responsibility.

Urges Stricter Rules

One way for remedying it is to have the stock exchange rules more strict. I think the exchanges have been criticised somewhat unfairly. But to guard against continuation of it there is one remedy, the scrutinizing of all new securities proposed. Let the exchange keep record of the auditing companies. Let it refuse to touch anything which is not passed upon favorably by a respectable concern. Then let it carry on a supplementary examination of its own before the stocks are listed.

That offers no help in disposing of the fake stuff which is sold off the exchange, and the question of that remedy is more difficult to answer. I am not familiar with the Kansas law, but intend to go over it carefully and see whether it can be made to serve this end.

The tendency toward conservatism in the market I should like to see among the men on the street easily is apparent so far as the public is concerned. The customer is speculating less to-day than at any previous time in years. He is investing. It means fewer trades, of course, but it means steadiness, and I think the change acceptable. The prospect is good.

FIRST NATIONAL OF DETROIT ADOPTS PENSION SYSTEM

The First National Bank of Detroit is the first of the Detroit banking institutions to establish a pension fund for the benefit of its officers and employees, following the example of a number of banks in this country and Canada. The fund is made up of contributions by the bank and its employees, each officer and employee paying 3 per cent of his annual salary, which is deducted from his pay in monthly installments. The bank is contributing $25,000 as a nest-egg to insure the successful inauguration of the scheme. Announcement of the bank's gift and an explanation of the plan was made by Vice-president William Gray, at a dinner given for the bank's officers and employees in the Hotel Cadillac, Monday evening. President Emory W. Clark presided as toastmaster and brief addresses were made by Vice-president Gray, Frederic B. Stevens, a director of the bank, and others. The First National Bank of Chicago is credited with being the first bank in the United States to provide a pension fund. Under the plan adopted by the First National of Detroit every officer and employee who has been in the service of the bank for fifteen years and who has attained the age of sixty years, or who has become incapacitated for work is entitled to a pension. This pension is two per cent of the annual salary at date of retirement, multiplied by the number of years of service, subject to the limitation that no excess above $4,000 in salary is to be taken into account. If there has been twenty-five years of service the pension will continue for life, otherwise for a period equal to the time of service.

"STAMP YOUR CHECKS" IS ADVICE OF HALL

P. W. Hall, secretary of the Iowa Bankers Association, is sending out letters to business houses all over the state requesting them to stamp their name on all checks to which the public has access.

This step, which applies particularly to such concerns as telephone companies, other public service companies, county officers and other individuals who keep a supply of checks on various banks for use of the public.

The action is taken to avoid forgeries and to make it less likely that checks fall into the hands of unscrupulous people. The letters suggest that the checks be stamped payable to the company and thus avoid the possibility of permitting blank checks to fall into the hands of people who might use them unlawfully.

C. I. Lamping has resigned as assistant cashier of the Seattle National to take an agency for an automobile company in Tacoma. He has been connected with the bank for thirteen years.

San Francisco Chapter

WM. A. MARCUS

The San Francisco Chapter entertained many of its members and friends at its annual ball on December 5th at the Fairmont Hotel. Under the management of Chairman M. R. Clark, Floor Manager J. S. Curran and their able assistants, the affair was a most brilliant success.

Two papers of unusual interest were read on the evening of December 11th. The topics were "The Bond Dealer and his Relation to the Banker," by G. K. Weeks of N. W. Halsey & Co., and "Efficiency and the Trust Company," by D. L. Clarke, assistant secretary of the Savings Union Bank and Trust Company.

In his distinction between the bond dealer and the broker Mr. Weeks said: "The bond dealer is primarily a merchant, purchasing bonds for his own account after the careful investigations which a prudent business man necessarily would require in the case of any commodity in which he invests his own money, taking it into stock and holding it until resold to his clients. The broker, on the other hand, buys and sells on commissions, ordinarily without assuming any greater responsibility than to see that the commissions of his clients are filled in the market at the best prices possible. The handling of stocks and other speculative securities is done almost entirely through brokers, the members of some recognized exchange, but some conservative brokers making a specialty of strict investment business also handle a very considerable amount of business in bonds. The argument most used in favor of investors making their purchases of bonds through brokers is that the broker, presumably not being personally interested through having his own money invested in certain specific securities which he desires to resell, is in a better position to give disinterested advice as to the comparative merits of different bonds. As the bonds ultimately come from a dealer anyway, the more general custom on the part of investors, and particularly on the part of banks, is to buy direct from the dealer, who primarily is responsible for the investigation and recommendation of any particular bond, and through whose efforts the market for that bond presumably will be made and maintained."

Mr. Clarke mentioned some of his experiences in trust company work, concluding his remarks by saying, "The fundamental cause of superiority in trust company administration of estates, whether in probate, in trust, or guardianships, is the removal of the danger of human mortality. Mortality is what makes an executor or trustee necessary in the first place—so what assurance has any man that his administrative labors will not be cut short by the same grim event? In several thousand years of organized community life, the stock corporation and the trust company are the only business agencies that I know of which have risen superior to mortality. The trust company reduces friction, blundering experiments. It is a machine that performs well what the hand craftsman used to turn out in haphazard fashion, and it is the public at large that eventually profits from any increased efficiency. And after all, that is the goal of every progressive community."

C. John J. Lewis, who has been acting chief clerk for the past several months, succeeds Mr. Allen.

Accounts of Iowa banks invited. Reserve agents for national banks

J. W. Reed of the banking house of Baxter, Reed & Co. at Ida Grove, has sold his property there and will go West.

A banking company in Des Moines gave each of its thirty-five employees a substantial Christmas present in the shape of a bank account started in the Home Savings, an East Des Moines financial institution.

Des Moines, Jan. 3, 1912.—The year 1912 closes in a blaze of glory for the Iowa banker, while the coming year is bright with promise. Des Moines bankers are a unit in declaring that Iowa never has had a better year than that of 1912. They declare they can see nothing in the future to warrant other than joyful anticipations for 1913.

That deposits have made a steady advancement is proved by the last report of the state banking department issued last week. This report summed up conditions following the call of November 26th. It showed that during the year preceding that date deposits in the state savings banks and trust companies increased $32,424,853.54. This is regarded as an excellent showing. In the year there have been thirty-five new banks in Iowa under state supervision. Of this number ten were organized between the report for September 11th and that for November 26th. The average reserve in all banks was held at 17.6 per cent on November 26th. As compared with the call of September 11th, the report shows an increase in total assets of $1,017,646.91. The deposits in this time showed a decrease of $2,585,922.38, but this was to be expected for this time of year.

C. B. Ellis of the state banking department was enthusiastic in pointing out the good features of this end-of-the-year report. "It is a plain indication that Iowa is on a sound financial footing and one that constantly is improving," he said. "Not a single bank failure have we to report during the entire year."

Secretary Hall Comments on the Situation

Secretary Hall of the Iowa Bankers Association is not backward in expressing the belief that 1912 will go down in history as one of the best, if not the best, in the history of Iowa banking. "It has been a generally prosperous year," he said. "The country banks have been well loaned up all of the time, showing a good demand for money. Farmers have been buying cattle to feed and the banks are encouraging them in every possible way. Banks also have taken a more active interest this year in the building of silos. I know of two or three banks in Iowa that have loaned money without interest to farmers to use in silo building. Ensilage has been discovered to be valuable for stock feeding as well as for feeding dairy cattle."

Secretary Hall looks for a legitimate shrinkage financially in 1913. "I do not want to be understood as saying that I expect a panic, but I do think that money will tighten up," he said. "This will be especially true as regards money loaned for speculative purposes. In view of political changes, bankers are going to keep a tight grip on the situation and they are going to discourage unwise speculation and overspeculation at every opportunity. The tendency to use good Iowa money for outside speculation has not been as marked recently as in some former years, but I believe bankers will curb this tendency even more the coming twelve months."

Banks May Increase Capital

It is likely that two Des Moines banks will make big increases in capital stock when the annual meetings are held within a few days. The Des Moines National announced some time ago that it would increase its capital stock from $500,000 to $750,000. The Citizens National also is expecting to increase its capital stock from $200,000 to $300,000. It has been reported in financial circles that the Iowa Loan and Trust Company will declare a dividend of 100 per cent, said to be the largest on record in Iowa, but officials of the institution declare this report is not correct, although doubtless the dividend will be large. There have been several rumors in connection with this institution which indicate that some important changes are to be made shortly. These probably will follow the arrival here of D. H. McKee, for five years with the German Savings at Davenport, who became identified with the I. L. and T. early in January. Mr. McKee is well known in Iowa bank circles and is at present one of Iowa's members on the executive council of the American Bankers Association.

Bankers Club Meets

The appearance of J. N. Dolley, bank commissioner from Kansas as guest of honor at the January meeting of the Des Moines Bankers' Club Thursday proved an attraction. A fuller account of the meeting will be given next week. Secretary Hall of the Iowa Bankers Association invited several who are interested in the enactment of a "Blue Sky" law in Iowa this year, to be his guests at the dinner which preceded Mr. Dolley's address. These guests included Senator G. M. Titus of Muscatine, Senator John Webber of Ottumwa, the members of the legislative committee of the I. B. A., including John McHugh of Sioux City, J. K. Deming of Dubuque, A. F. Dawson of Davenport and W. C. Jarnagin, Iowa correspondent for THE CHICAGO BANKER.

I. B. A. May Withdraw From Agricultural Association

Although the Iowa Bankers Association will take an active part this coming year in promulgating the doctrine of intensive farming, it is probable that it will withdraw from membership in the Iowa Agricultural Association, which was formed some time ago by the various booster clubs in Iowa with the idea in view of selecting a special farm expert for each county in Iowa. The bankers believe it will be possible for them to work to advantage along a somewhat different line and they will assist whenever possible the work of the booster clubs. Interest in the augmenting of Iowa's wealth through higher and better crops has, however, been greatly stimulated already and will be much so before 1913 comes to an end.

Clever Methods of Forgers

Ministers as the unsuspecting aids of forgers seem to be getting decidedly popular. James Williams, arrested in California a few days ago for forgery, pulled off a stunt in Iowa a few weeks ago and fleeced at least one Iowa bank. Williams would cultivate the acquaintance of a minister and get the latter to stand sponser for him at the bank. He tried to get by with an $18,000 deal of this kind at New London, Wis., before he reached Iowa. It appears, however, that a stranger had been following Williams' method in Clinton, Ia. This latter chap forged the name of a preacher to a check, then called up the bank and represented himself to be the minister. "As a special favor to me, as it is after banking hours, won't you kindly cash the check I have just given so-and-so?" he says. The banker of course is willing to accommodate the minister. He cashes the check and it proves to be bogus. Merchants also have been caught by this game.

Conviction Affirmed

Detective Gust Patek, representative of the Burns Detective Agency in handling cases for the I. B. A., is well pleased with the action of the Iowa supreme court in refusing a new trial to James King, alias "Fat." King was sent up for ten years following his arrest in connection with the attempted robbery of the bank at Panama some months ago. He was one of the fellows at whom President Sullivan aimed a well directed load of bird shot on the night of the robbery and it put King off watch. The surprising thing about the action of the supreme court, however, was that neither Secretary Hall nor Mr. Patek knew that King had taken an appeal until they saw the action of the supreme court in affirming the conviction in the lower court a few days ago. It is supposed to be customary to serve notice in case of appeal, but in this instance it seems to have been omitted.

Death of Prominent Bankers

John Wilson, president of the First Savings at Reinbeck, and William Hogan, father of Cashier John Hogan of the German Savings, Des Moines, were two men identified with banking interests who died last week. Mr. Wilson had been ill for four years with diabetes and was 60 years of age at the time of his demise. He had been a prominent resident of Reinbeck for thirty years. The elder Hogan came to Des Moines from Dallas Center at the conclusion of an active farm life to make his home with his son in this city. Death came after illness of a month.

Change in Good Roads Committee

President C. T. Shade of the Iowa Bankers Association announces a change in the personnel of the good roads committee. T. J. Davis of the First National at Marion, is substituted for J. W. Bowman of the same institution.

Bank Loses Suit

The Farmers and Merchants at Marion lost its suit against J. M. Shaffer of Webster City on a note for $2,500 involving the sale of some stock in the Stotts Signal Company, incorporated in Arizona but having offices in Marion. It appears that the bank bought Shaffer's note for the stock. Later when he refused to pay upon the grounds that the stock was not as represented, the institution sued him on the ground that it was an innocent purchaser. The defense set up the claim that one bank official was closely in touch with the concern and won out. Ten similar notes given by other parties are due for similar litigation, but the outcome probably depends upon the action of the supreme court when the case is appealed.

Ex-Congressman in Des Moines

Ex-Congressman J. A. T. Hull, for many years representative of the Seventh Iowa District at Washington, has been visiting old friends in Des Moines. Capt. Hull declares that democratic success at the polls in November does not mean loss of prosperity in the nation. In fact, he says the democrats have outlined a conservative program. He believes their time in power will continue as long as they follow a safe and sane policy. Their revision of the tariff will not affect the prosperity of the country, he thinks.

To License Money Lenders

The department of public safety at Des Moines, in an effort to curb the abuses growing out of the private money lending system which prevails in all cities, has issued orders that after January 1st, each money lender must take out a license. Under the hit and miss system that has prevailed, police have had trouble in locating stolen jewelry turned over to these fellows as security on loans. The license exacted places them in the same class with pawnbrokers, who always have been watched closely.

No Change in Auditor's Office

As was expected, State Auditor J. L. Bleakly has announced that he will make no change in his office assistants this coming year. In other words, the same men will continue in charge of the state banking department for another two years.

Sends Out Warning Letter

Secretary P. W. Hall has been sending out letters urging bankers, county treasurers, telephone companies, gas companies, etc., not to leave blank checks lying around on counters where patrons fill them out in making payments. Mr. Hall suggests that these checks first be stamped payable to the bank, the county treasurer or the gas company. Then it will not be possible for forgers to secure blank checks with which to carry out their nefarious plans. The Des Moines Clearing

This Burroughs Duplex is the equivalent of two separate adding machines interworking under one keyboard — "one machine that works like two."

With its automatic "shuttle" carriage, controlling its extra adding section, this machine is capable of all that the regular Burroughs does —and many things no other adding machine can do.

With it you can list and add any number of groups of items, print the total of each group and the grand total of all the groups without re-adding.

Or two separate classes of items, like debits and credits, can be added on this machine in one column — or in separate columns — each to $9,999,999.99.

The range of usefulness for this machine in banks is so wide that we have published a special bulletin, showing the many ways of using the machine in banks. May we send you a copy of the Bulletin, free, and have our Branch office near you place one of these machines on trial in your office and show you how it may be applied to your work?

C. N. Voss, well known Davenport banker, was in Des Moines last week on business connected with the incorporation of some of the Bettendorf manufacturing concerns into one big corporation with a capital stock of $7,500,000.

A. W. Harvey, cashier of the First National at Exira, piloted a racing automobile from Guthrie Center to Council Bluffs over the famous river-to-river road. The car was racing with another car on the White Pole road, a rival highway to the river-to-river road. Mr. Harvey set a decidedly fast pace.

Considerable mystery surrounds the arrest of five counterfeiters in Iowa one day last week. Newspapers published thrilling accounts of the arrests, but investigation failed to locate the quintette in any jail in the state. The men were supposed to be shoving queer dollars, half dollars and quarters.

The Iowa State Savings at Malvern has filed articles of incorporation. The capital stock is given at $25,000. Incorporators are C. E. Boyce, P. B. Hendricks, Samuel Burrows, Frank S. Higgins, T. W. Gridley, D. W. Harvey, J. R. Scott and C. L. Higgins.

try, and whose services would be of iucalculable value to banks and to the people of the several states. The proposed credit bureau of this department thus would be the nucleus of an extensive public service.

Real Estate Loans

"The territory from which real estate securities may be accepted for loans by Wisconsin state banks and by mutual savings banks is limited by sections 2024-35 W. S. (ch. 138, 1911), and by sections 2024-68 (ch. 260, 1911), to Wisconsin and adjoining states, namely Michigan, Illinois, Iowa, and Minnesota. Clearly the object of this limitation is to preclude investment in speculative land ventures in newly opened distant territories, and to facilitate the appraisal of land values when necessary in the course of supervision. It respectfully is recommended that this wholesome provision may be extended and made applicable to mortgage loans of trust companies, to which the sections above quoted do not, at present, apply.

Competent Officers

"Several of the new banks, organized under auspicious circumstances, and, in some instances, in exceptionally favorable surroundings, have been made to suffer setbacks through inexperience of their active officers, when, under the guidance of an experienced banker, they undoubtedly would have made creditable headway.

"In the early stages of a bank's career, an experienced officer is an asset of great value. It seems, then, but fair that new banks should be required to be placed under the charge of a competent banker.

"The state requires men pursuing the liberal professions to pass an examination before permitting them to practice. This applies to physicians, dentists, lawyers, accountants, and others possessing college diplomas. In many trades an examination must be taken before license is issued, as in the case of engineers, plumbers, and barbers. Assuredly, the profession of banking is of no less importance than those now coming under license.

"I respectfully would recommend that a certain standard of efficiency, based upon actual banking experience, if not otherwise, be established by law for active bank officers in new banks, and that no new bank be permitted to transact business with the public without having in charge of its affairs a competent managing officer."

Commissioner Kuolt reports in detail with full statistics the routine work of his office. Mr. Kuolt ranks very high as an official and as an authority on banking and finance.

as the mystic corn stalk, and still is growing. Banking in Duluth is at the highest point in the history of the city, and local bankers say it will go much higher before long. Each week shows an increase of substantial proportions.

A. L. Ordean, president of the First National of Duluth, said:

"I believe that we have just started on an era of the greatest prosperity the country has ever known, and I believe further that Duluth will prosper more under this era than any other city in the Northwest. The business world is content with the result of the election, and will go on as though no change of administration was contemplated. You will find Duluth one of the great leaders in increase of business, both in banking and in other lines, before the year 1913 is over."

Dakota Notes

Condition of 500 state banks, 14 private banks and 12 trust companies is discussed by the state bank examiner of South Dakota in the tenth biennial report of the department to Governor R. S. Vessey, showing generally prosperous states of affairs. In the period covered by the report, 40 state banks, 1 private bank and 4 trust companies were organized; 6 banks nationalized; 21 banks liquidated voluntarily, 3 private banks incorporated as state banks; 8 forfeited charters by failing to open in the specified time. The net gain therefore was 29 banks for two years.

Six banks suspended payments in the two years, namely, Chelsea State Bank, First State Bank, Onida; Northwestern State Bank, Newell; Meade County Bank, Sturgis; Farmers State Bank, Mobridge; Henderson State Bank, Wessington. The examiner traces the failure of these banks to various causes, ranging from failure to maintain the required legal cash reserve, a large amount of delinquent loans, negligence of officers, and the carrying of heavy loans without good security. Because of the failures at Sturgis and South Shore, two cashiers committed suicide; several others have been given terms in the state penitentiary.

In the case of impairment of capital, the examiner finds that stockholders in the majority will refuse to make an assessment on the stock, with the idea of forcing the minority stockholders into voluntary liquidation or submit to suspension by the examiner. The law does not give the bank examiner authority to intercede for the minority stockholders and force the majority to make concessions. He suggests that the examiner be joined with the board of directors, which then would give him authority to levy an assessment to make stronger the impaired capital.

The examiner makes a strong contention against the "one man" bank, as he has found it to exist in several cases. He suggests that the directors be increased from three to five, and require from the five a closer attendance on the meetings of the board.

As a further protection to the stockholders and depositors, the examiner recommends the double liability of stockholders.

To avoid the loaning of funds to officers of the bank, the examiner makes the following statement: "Much pooling, wrongful diversion and entanglement of funds from loaning to associated interests could be prevented by amending section 29, article 2, by inserting the word 'corporation' and making it read as follows: 'No individual, firm or corporation transacting a banking business in this state shall loan to any single corporation, firm or individual, including such loan or loans made to the several members of such corporation, firm or co-partnership, more than 25 per cent of the paid-up capital and surplus of such bank.' I invite close inquiry into the preceding suggestion and trust some action will be taken."

North Dakota banks, on the showing made by the last statements issued. The average deposit for a North Dakota bank is $102,036.26, with 717 banks in operation, while the three Mandan banks have total deposits of $1,542,013.38.

C. A. Stensland has been elected cashier of the Farmers Savings, Winfred, S. D.

F. M. Lary will change the Fruitland State of Fruitland, S. D., to a national bank and increase the capital from $15,000 to $25,000.

The Western State of Mount Vernon, S. D., has increased capital to $25,000.

F. A. Eggerich has been elected assistant cashier of the State of Rowell, S. D.

Clyde Wilcox has been elected cashier of the State of Platte, S. D.

Oscar Strand has been elected cashier of the Citizens State of Christine, N. D., to succeed Ole Leer. R. W. Ego is made assistant cashier to succeed J. H. Moe, deceased.

The First State of Manning, N. D., has begun business with C. G. Kapelovitz as cashier.

The South Dakota bank examiner has ordered the arrest of B. J. Henderson, cashier of the Henderson State of Wessington. At Huron he was bound over to the January term of court on four charges, to two of which the prisoner pleaded not guilty of publication of false statements in regard to the condition of the bank and making a false statement to the examiner. The bank was closed January 29, 1912, on the ground of irregular practices. It has paid 50 per cent and another dividend is expected in thirty days. It is said to be probable the bank will pay in full, but a loss will fall on the Henderson family, the principal stockholders in the bank. At suspension the liabilities were $50,000, and the assets were listed at $70,000.

Ottl Bosshard of La Crosse, Wis., has been elected president of the Bank of Holmen, a position he had held some time. Thomas Johnson was elected vice-president; C. A. Sjolander, cashier; Oscar Houg, assistant cashier, and J. M. Halverson and W. D. Sandman additional directors.

A GUARANTY OF CONTINUED PROSPERITY

Those who have been looking for a panic, or at least for hard times, as a result of the election of Woodrow Wilson, will be surprised and no doubt gratified at the action of the United States Steel Corporation in increasing wages. The gentlemen of Wall Street seem to have been pleasantly shocked. They had figured that in view of the certain reduction of the duties in the steel schedule, and of the suit against the steel trust, there would be no increase of wages. But conditions in the trade are so extraordinarily satisfactory—and they seem to be steadily improving—as to make the advance both natural and proper.

MAINLY ABOUT BANKS AND BANKERS

E. Lee will be observed as a legal holiday by N. C. banks.

JOSEPH CHAPMAN is "a editor" again, having launched the "Bulletin" to care for the affairs of the committees on agricultural development and education of state bankers associations.

W. B. HARRISON, secretary, is threatening to do the same thing for the Secretaries Section of the A. B. A.

"THE object of this Bulletin," says Chapman, "is to urge the committees which are doing nothing to take some action, and to inspire the committees which are doing something to do more, for the cause of agricultural development and education."

THERE is no evasion of an issue so aptly stated. It means an application of "Everybody's doin' it" to all committeemen.

IN outlining the plan of work for 1913 chairmen of state committees are advised to get the best speakers to be had in the United States on agricultural and educational topics and to be sure not to overlook local authorities.

COMMITTEEMEN are advised to present bills wherever a legislature is in session this winter and thus to help the state to get a better and a more practical education for the boy and the girl.

B. F. HARRIS reports for Illinois that an attempt will be made to secure a bill authorizing county boards to appropriate money to aid in county and farm demonstration work.

C. L. GOODBAR of Indiana reports an organization in almost every county in the state for the direction and superintendence in a general way of agricultural development and vocational training. By next year he expects every county to be organized.

M. H. MALOTT of Kansas tells of the keen interest taken by bankers in his state in agricultural development, good roads and vocational training. He will introduce a bill in the legislature next month to employ a farm expert in each county.

GEO. E. LAWSON reports that not much progress has been made in Michigan except where local bankers have carried on fruit and corn exhibitions and grain contests. The committee has had but one meeting.

IN Allegan county, Michigan, the bankers have guaranteed funds necessary for the employment of a county farm expert. Grain contests will be conducted.

SPEAKING for Missouri, W. C. Gordon of Marshall goes into details about the immense amount of work which has been done. An effort is being made to have seed corn tests all over the state for the 1913 crop. Thirty counties in Missouri are taking steps to establish county farm advisors under a former law.

R. O. KAUFMAN, chairman of the Montana committee, acknowledges that the situation is slightly backward in his state owing to the difficulty of getting the members of the committee together. He has been writing to representatives in congress advocating the passage of the Page and Lever bills.

CARSON HILDRETH, chairman of the Nebraska committee, has called a meeting of his committee for January 8th and an attempt will be made to interest manufacturers, railroads and other similar enterprises in the work.

E. L. HOWE of Princeton is chairman of the New Jersey committee. Two counties in that state have organized farm bureaus and more would organize except for the difficulty in securing proper men as demonstrators. Mr. Howe predicts gratifying results in the near future.

P. A. PICKETT of North Dakota is an enthusiastic advocate of the Page bill and is happy over the fact that North Dakota won the cup at the annual conference in Minneapolis for the best work done by any of the states. The bankers are pushing a bill based on the report made by the North Dakota rural school commission. The Better Farming Association has met with wonderful success in that state.

S. B. RANKIN reports that a splendid committee of nine members has been appointed for Ohio and that it is their purpose to encourage the meeting of farmers for the discussion of better farming methods.

EMERY OLMSTEAD writes that Oregon has had many very beneficial results already through work done in the schools and exhibits at county fairs. A bill is in preparation for an appropriation to employ two men to go over the state constantly, visiting farms and speaking at farmers' institutes. The state university has about 2500 students taking the agricultural course.

ROBERT I. WOODSIDE, chairman for South Carolina, says that his committee has found considerable interest in the subject among bankers and that they expect considerable enthusiasm during the coming year.

A. R. DODSON reports that farm demonstration work has been carried on in western Tennessee by the state for the past two years with the very best of results. This makes it easy to spread the good work through the bankers' committee. The normal schools are teaching agriculture in Tennessee as well as domestic science. By an act of 1909, 111 high schools also are teaching agriculture and home economics.

JOSEPH HIRSCH has stirred up matters in Texas until he has a sub-chairman in 243 counties of the state. He considers the county organization for the present the most effective thing in sight. The Texas Bankers Association is working in harmony with the Farmers Union, also with the Farm Life Commission of Texas.

V. VAIDEN of Virginia has requested all bankers to write to senators and congressmen advocating the Page and the Lever bills.

GEORGE P. WILEY of Washington reviews the situation carefully in his state. Great advances have been made in the way of farm education through the State College and further appropriations are being advocated before the legislature. Letters are being written favoring the Page and the Lever bills.

L. A. BAKER of Wisconsin tells how his committee has taken up the work of agricultural study in great earnestness. Not less than seventeen corn shows were held by Wisconsin bankers during this season. Boys' corn clubs have been organized, having in all about twelve thousand members. Mr. Baker believes that it will be difficult to secure many concessions from the state legislature.

A CHALLENGE TO ROOSEVELT

Boise, Jan. 3d.—The editors who printed Col. Roosevelt's ravings against the courts having been fined and sent to jail, a challenge has been sent to the swashbuckling bull moose at Oyster Bay to step inside the state lines a few moments.

"IOWA is all right. We have the bins full of plenty. Our lands equal the very best in the states. Our cattle, hogs, horses and poultry take first prizes everywhere. The farmer exceeds the townsman in affording luxuries and pleasures, and we are glad that he should, for we all live from him and everything depends upon him."

GUY WICKES COOKE, publicity man for the big First National, and member of the national publicity committee of the A. I. B., has been delving into the results the chapters are getting for their efforts in the educational field.

SAYS the Honorable Guy anent the recent election of George H. Richards as secretary of the Minnesota Bankers Association that it "emphasizes again the important part that institute men are assuming in the financial world."

"THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF BANKING was organized only a decade ago and in that short period of time, according to good authority, over seven hundred of its members have been made bank officers, while a goodly number have been distinguished by just such an honor as has come to Mr. Richards."

"MR. RICHARDS turned his activity in the institute when the organization was founded. He was a charter member of Minneapolis Chapter and in 1908 was made its president. He was chairman of the national convention which was held at Atlantic City in 1909, where his ability as an executive and as a presiding officer was exhibited to splendid advantage. In 1908 he was elected to the executive council of the institute and served on that body with marked distinction."

"MR. RICHARDS' election as secretary of the Minnesota Bankers Association is a most popular one and will no doubt result in great good to that organization."

THE secretaries section will welcome Mr. Richards on account of his good work in the institute. He will be a valuable acquisition.

"THE LADY OF THE LILIES" is one of the finest calendars received this year. It came from the Maine (Me.) Savings Bank.

The Lady of the Lilies
Is gracious to the sight
Within her pansy bells dwell
As in her flower of white.

UP at Valley City, N. D., James J. Early has been elected president of the Bank of Valley City. He succeeds L. S. Flaten, resigned. Walter Cory succeeded Mr. Early as cashier.

MR. EARLY started the bank in 1901 and in reality has come into his own in many. In seven years of prosperity the bank members has used new lives and never in its history has a surplus been declared or a loss.

W. H. MITCHELL of Omaha was a holiday visitor in Chicago. He isn't a golf crazy but he had a "really" time just the same.

EVERY banker in the Illinois countryside will sympathize with his ex-president, Edward E. Whitney, in his loss by the death of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Peter C. Farrell.

WANT Chicago's 6 per cent mortgages or know any one who does? S. W. Straus & Co. has a large illustrated list, well diversified as to location and style of improvement.

SECRETARY GEORGE D. BARTLETT of the Wisconsin association was very thankful this year, especially for the fine touring car presented to him by the membership. Says George:

"When I pause to count the blessings
Which have come to me this year,
For which these thanks—tho' thus delayed—
Are none the less sincere,
I find the best that's come to me
Of all the gifts so far
Is your confidence expressed in me
Through that dandy touring car."

BARTLETT isn't after W. O. Jones' mantle of poet laureate to the bankers but this is how he explains his invasion of Jones' field:

"YOU will remember at our last convention I was presented with an automobile and as the committee limited gifts to $3 per bank, you can understand how much of a compliment such a gift carries with it. I have had no opportunity to express my thanks to each donor and in preparing a Christmas card I have tried to express my thanks in verse just to show Secretary Harrison that he is not the only 'poet' in the Secretaries Section. The enclosed card is the result."

WISCONSIN group meetings will start at Eau Claire, January 2nd, when group No. 1 holds its annual meeting, writes Mr. Bartlett who contributes the following.

"THE WISCONSIN BANKERS soon will have another 'tussle' with the Wisconsin legislature, but between the La Follette, the McGovern, the bull mooser, the stalwart, the progressive and the democratic factions it will need a brighter wizard than the wizard of Wall Street to tell where bank legislation will terminate this coming year.

"BANK COMMISSIONER KUEHL will ask for permission to establish a credit bureau in connection with his department—to which banks will be asked to report all commercial paper purchased—and such a move undoubtedly will have the support of the bankers. Mr. Kuehl will ask for more authority to enable him to refuse charters to applicants for banking privileges when he deems the field sufficiently covered or the proposed bank incompetent. He also favors enactment of a 'Blue Sky' law not quite as drastic as the Kansas law, however.

"COMMISSIONER KUEHL has made good in his difficult position during the past two years and doubtless will be re-appointed without any opposition from either politicians or bankers."

W. S. BLAKENEY, president of The Bank of Union, Monroe, N. C., has returned to the presidency of the Bank of Wadesboro, Wadesboro, N. C.

THE Second North Carolina charter has not been sold to local parties. The issue was oversubscribed by residents. We learn that they brought a good premium.

SO unexpected was the Indianapolis verdict that an entire secretary and one director are all the officials of the loan worker not included in the passenger list of the Indianapolis-Ft. Leavenworth special train.

THEY will come in handy on those trips there in constructing the new safe houses to bail other outlaws who think they are promising bank interests after they are slimming some.

HITS at Judge Anderson. He dealt fairly with the labor leaders but not less firmly than he dealt with the late John R. Walsh. Truly he is an "upright judge."

IN response to the report of the December call, the Guaranty Trust Company of New York reports deposits of $100,417,000, which is a gain of over $12,000,000 since the corresponding report of a year ago. The total resources of this institution are more than $223,000,000.

FIRST SAVINGS & TRUST, Milwaukee, sends out an interesting bond circular. Dean Jay is the department manager.

A BANKER friend out Nebraska way sends in an interesting letter from a correspondent bank detailing an unusual situation. The letter:—

"YOU will perhaps remember that some time since we wrote asking if you could assist us with some funds if we should need them. In fact we wrote you twice on this subject, and each time you replied that you would be glad to take care of it. Now I do not know whether that is the cause or not, but right away each time after we wrote you we found that our reserve had built up past the danger point, and we did not need the funds. Another instance of this kind and we will think that all that is necessary is simply to write to you, and the reserve will right itself."

"I HAVEN'T any doubt that the A. I. B. conventioneers, every one of them, can endorse your sentiments concerning Baltimore, but this year at least they will have to forego the Baltimore brand of hospitality as the convention is slated for another city—a southern city too, and one that is equally well known for its hospitality."

"I HOPE George Reeve has not seen the enclosed item, as he is rather banking on securing a lot of publicity for Richmond this year on account of having the A. I. B. convention there, and it would be a bitter disappointment for him to discover that the Monument City has already beaten him to it."

THE two paragraphs above are from F. W. Ellsworth, chairman of the A. I. B. publicity and authorized kicker for the chapters. It was a slip of memory. The 1913 convention will be held in Richmond instead of her sister city, Baltimore.

WE are sitting up nights trying to figure out a plan whereby George Jackson can run the big special tram out over the Milwaukee. Some of the chapter boys who travel mainly to the annual say they fear they will not know how to find any other station than the C. M. & St. P.

WE got enough "returns" on the Baltimore error to fill the basket showing that the chapter boys are live wires. Thanks.

THE executive committee of the North Carolina Bankers Association will hold its regular winter meeting the latter part of January at the Yarborough House, Raleigh. The date and location of the next convention will be decided among other business at this meeting. There seems to be a sentiment to hold the sessions at Norfolk and afterwards go to New York for a week.

WILLIAM CYLE DARDEN, who has been cashier of the Bank of Aurora, Aurora, N. C., since its organization two years ago, has resigned and Martin A. Smith has been elected to succeed him.

THE BANK OF PEMBROKE, Pembroke, N. C., is organizing and the legislature will be in session for sixty days beginning January 7, 1913. Among other things the "blue sky" law will be considered. January 7th the anniversary of the birthday of Gen. R. E.

New A. B. A. Committees

St. Louis, January 8th.—The important committee meeting of the year in A. B. A. circles came off yesterday in the office of President Charles H. Huttig, at the Third National Bank building. Mr. Huttig was present and presided and appeared to be in sound physical condition again.

One important matter goes over to a referendum vote of the council. Col. Fred E. Farnsworth was instructed to ask the members to say where the May meeting shall be held: at Briarcliff Manor, at Atlantic City, or at Hot Springs, Va. Members are to say what their first, second and third choices are, in the order named. Briarcliff agrees to the same prices and conditions (bar the rain) as last year. Hot Springs names the same prices but wants "two in a bed," and the Marlborough-Blenheim wants a lot more money than the association is willing to pay. So there you are.

The members of the committee present were: C. H. Huttig, president; Arthur Reynolds, vice-president of the association; T. J. Davis, chairman of the executive council, of Cincinnati, and F. E. Farnsworth, general secretary of the association. The members were entertained by Huttig at luncheon at Faust's restaurant, and at night at dinner in a downtown resturant by Richard S. Hawes and Frank K. Houston of the Third National Bank.

New committees for the association were appointed. George Woodruff, Joliet, Ill., was added to the agricultural committee. The federal legislation committee, which will work with the currency commission of the association was made up to include E. F. Swinney, Kansas City; J. A. McCord, Atlanta, Ga.; J. F. Sartori, Los Angeles, Cal.; Levi L. Rue, Philadelphia, and E. L. Howe, Princeton, N. J. (Howe is supposed to be heir to a White House latch key.) The currency commission was reappointed.

A committee to revise the cipher code was authorized. The code is ten years old and will be brought down to date preparatory to printing a new supply for the members. The necessity for changing the cipher code, the members of the committee explained, was brought about by the large increase in membership of the association and the demand for new phrases not in the present code.

Ten delegates from the association to the convention of the chambers of commerce of the United States in Washington, January 21st, were named as follows: Samuel McRoberts, New York; John J. Gannon, New Orleans; William H. Lee, St. Louis; Gordon Jones, Denver; Clay H. Hollister, Grand Rapids; Joseph Chapman, Minneapolis, Minn.; L. A. Goddard, Chicago; William J. Ingle, Baltimore; Joseph A. McCord, Atlanta. A. D. Graham, Baltimore, was named as the permanent representative of the association in the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

A. D. Graham of Baltimore was chosen na-

NO other bank president looks out from his sanctum window upon such a busy scene as greets the eye of President Lucius Teter of the Chicago Savings Bank and Trust Company. The four corners of State and Madison bound the most populous street crossing in the world. It is the very center of the retail district. Mr. Teter has had it painted in oils by F. R. Harper, an artist of note, and his visitors every business day in the year compare the glowing canvas with the actual, bustling original, out of the same window from which the painter saw his "picture."

G. B. CALDWELL had a nice piece in the Rollins magazine for January. It related to his first love, the I. B. A. of A. Refrain: "The 'Sky Law'll get you, if you don't watch out."

FOURTH NATIONAL, New York, made a big hit with its "New Year's Greeting" to customers. Believes stocks are cheap, bond market will be better, that the tariff tinkering will slow things down a bit but that the parcels post will help some.

"THERE appears to be a fairly broad market for the better class of preferred shares of industrial corporations at a price which insures a liberal income return; and it may be that these issues will in a way take the place of the short term notes which will mature during the next six months."

R. S. HAWES, Third National, St. Louis, has a tip that his friends are to have "nothing but success and happiness in 1913."

STATE secretaries are a "continuous" performance at this season of the year when dues are due. Takes tact, too, to press just hard enough to get the check but not hard enough to lose a customer.

WE believe that Wm. B. Hughes, N. B. A., has a proper recipe, consisting of a palatable mixture of demand, apology and explanation which tastes like flattery. Great dope!

BANKERS out Nebraska way continue to get swindled of small amounts by strangers who are crooks in disguise. If a crook will "discount" his paper enough some fool banker will be found ready to bite. More's the pity.

CHAIRMAN HENRY W. YATES of Omaha, as head of the Nebraska council, has named an active agricultural committee. The first meeting was on Wednesday.

OF this committee Secretary Hughes says: "Every banker will realize without explanation the magnitude of the work before this committee, the members of which will donate their time and attention for the good of all. The association asks your cordial and prompt response to all communications of the committee. It can accomplish nothing without the support of the members of the association."

SOL. WEXLER of N. O. has kept a list of southern ports which are "nearest to" or "in the most direct line" of trade to Panama. Now there are thirty-two of them, one for each year of Mr. Wexler's busy life.

"ALL the same," says Sol., "New Or-leans is going to cop off the bulk of it. Understand?"

ROLLIN P. GRANT, head of the big Irving National, New York, lives over in Westfield, N. J., and is a constituent and admirer of Woodrow.

WHEN settled in his new forty-five story bank building, Mr. Grant probably will join the aviators' club said to be preparing to fly to and from business. Couldn't miss the skyscraper going nor the state of N. J. coming back.

CHARLES L. FARRELL of Newark is the corresponding secretary of the new club.

THE organized banks will agree with the Chicago aldermen that the private banks should declare their nature on sign and stationery. There should be no "Bank of Chicago," "International Banking Corporation," nor similar misleading titles used.

PAWN shops, also, should be called by their right names and not allowed to masquerade as "loan banks," "trust companies," etc. Even the private banker will agree to the latter statement and it only is a matter for police regulation.

"DEAN OF JOURNALISM" James Keeley, with his big Chicago Tribune, could make a big hit by lining up the pawn shops along with the loan sharks.

ONE leading alderman has said: "Every banking firm organized under this bill should be compelled to denominate itself as a 'private state' bank; or it might be well to call them 'certified' banks, as each one must have a certificate."

ONLY one or two private banks left in his ward. Balance converted or forced out of business by public sentiment.

THE council committee on judiciary did not act on his suggestion, and it recommended the bill with a few minor changes to be made by the law department. Senator Ettelson agreed to present the measure to the legislature.

MOST Cook county democrats who have been voting for Charles S. Cutting for probate judge gladly would see him made a federal judge even if it kept some fairly good democratic attorney out of a job.

"BONDS" is a very attractive list sent out by Central Trust, Chicago.

A. C. TRUMBO of the Muskogee (Okla.) National sends out a news letter which would do credit to any of the larger metropolitan banks. Keep your eye on Trumbo.

THE "letter" is a booster for Muskogee and tells of both local and national business and financial conditions. Banks issuing such letters should get on his exchange list.

WE never tire of hearing nor of telling of the good things in the banking line out in Iowa.

A BANKER friend was out at Monticello "over the week end" as they say "in Lunnon." He got a jolt when he found a town of but 2,100 inhabitants doing a choice brand of reserve city banking.

HE met your uncle Henry M. Carpenter, daddy of the big Maroon foot ball captain and member-elect of the "Big Council" from his state. He found H. M. had other things to be proud of.

THE Carpenter bank had just doubled its capital, going to $200,000, and paid it up out of surplus and undivided profits. Those two funds still will have $135,000 to the good

President George B. Caldwell Explains Mission of Investment Bankers Association of America

President George B. Caldwell of the Investment Bankers never has let up in his earnest missionary efforts to create a profitable, lasting organization to fill a new field. He is the Moses of the investment bankers in seeking the light. This month he has furnished an able article to the Rollins (Boston) Magazine in which he seeks to convince the unbelievers, if such there are. Mr. Caldwell says:

"The Investment Bankers Association of America was conceived because it was believed that such an organization, with a clean individuality and a conservative membership, effectively could influence the public mind.

"In our fast growing states much legislation, well intended, annually and biennially is put in form of law. It is not always entirely good nor entirely bad. It represents the crystallizing of the public mind, in so far as it has comprehension of the things that are believed to be for the public good. As evidence in hand, I have received many letters from many states wanting information on a good form of 'Blue Sky' law. Others write, 'We see your association is opposed to the Kansas 'Blue Sky' law. Please supply us with a copy of a better law.' All of these promptly are referred to our legislative committee and our general counsel, who will try to render to many state bodies such assistance as they can. It shows a healthy interest, but the danger is that after a long period of stock speculation and with a market drop of many points, any proposed remedy believed to be entirely for the public good may result in some very bad legislation due to overenthusiasm. There is much to be said on both sides of a 'Blue Sky' law as to its wisdom from a paternalistic standpoint, and much more thought than yet has been given should be devoted to its practical operation before any law as drastic as this must be to be effective should be enacted. There are many other state laws affecting investments now existing, or that may be offered at the coming legislative sessions, that should be considered and modified to be made useful and uniform. They principally affect municipal credit and the large question of taxation. The Investment Bankers Association of America this year will lend its assistance only to such legal measures as affect investments, currency legislation and taxation, and then only in a spirit of fairness to the dealer, as well as to the investor, for after all, their interests are identical, at least in securing sane and safe legislation.

"Look at the diversified class of investments offered, the immensity of corporate financing, likewise municipal, and the conflicting laws in forty-nine states of the United States, and you can gather some idea of the complex problems that the investor must solve, if he buys intelligently. Until this time no organization has undertaken to work out any investment problem, except from a selfish standpoint. Organized, as is our association, with a diversified membership, geographically, as well as in the bonds purchased and sold, there can be only one basis on which it safely can act, and that is in the direction of constructive legislation for the general good—the general good in this case means the good of those who buy our wares—the investors. The problems are so great that they must be approached by experience, conservatism and honesty, or great harm may follow.

"In the matter of effectively influencing the public mind, as I pointed out in my recent address before our convention in New York on November 22d, there are many academic questions of mutual interest to investment bankers, about which they now differ, but in which they will harmonize by discussion and friendly interest in one another's welfare, the one subject uppermost at this time being to raise the standard of investment banking. To-day, this line of banking is a 'profession.' Yet in some cases, not unlike in medicine and in the law, it breeds quacks and dishonest practitioners. The public mind daily is brought face to face with this condition and because some one has used bad judgment, or been duped by a fakir, the whole business of banking, commercial, trust company and investment, is not only condemned, but frequently deprived of public confidence.

"If the Investment Bankers Association shall promote the integrity of its members in their dealings, not alone with one another, but with everybody from whom they buy, or to whom they sell securities, can any one deny that the dignity of the profession is not raised and the investor benefited? To-day the membership of the Investment Bankers Association stands at four hundred of the largest, oldest, and best investment banking houses in America and Canada, and if the investor will deal with its members he will go far in avoiding the pitfalls so carefully planned by the crook and fakir.

"But what is the public mind? It is not altogether the investors' minds—it is that and more. It is the sentiment abroad in the land that makes and breaks markets. If the mind is developed well and correctly, it is hopeful. If ignorant or poisoned, it is pessimistic and harmful. Is it not at this point that our association through greater and well organized publicity can do its most effective work? In a country boastful of its free thought and free press, publicity, if honest, is our greatest safeguard, and as dishonesty, when discovered, quickly is used as news and eagerly read in our daily educator, the newspaper, why should not the same medium be employed to extol our virtues? I know your reply—'Virtue is its own reward.' I do not deny this and I simply emphasize this fact, because good banks, and good banking, receive their own reward and the investment banking houses of long standing that are the most successful have gained a good name by honorable trading. By the organization of these houses into our association, have we not made it easier for the investor to obtain reliable information and safe investments? If as an organization, then, we aid in making better laws, in improving the standard of investment banking as a profession, in giving the public mind honest publicity regarding the diversified investments they daily are asked to buy, has not the investment banker proved to the investor that he recognizes his interest, and by a greater power than he possessed individually, will, through the Investment Bankers Association, give consideration and support to some of our vital growing financial problems.

"The early conception of this association came from a knowledge gained from experience in coming in contact with the many small investors who believed in a mortgage on near-by property, but not in a bond on a far-away property. The difference, it seems to me, largely is one of confidence—confidence in the dealer—because far-away investments cannot be examined easily. It also came from a contact with the many queries propounded and answered through the various magazines having investment departments. Here one discovers a large number of inquirers—holders of sums which in the aggregate are large—many of them pitifully lacking in investment knowledge. Why should they ask a magazine rather than their banker, or a bond and stock dealer, unless they lack confidence in the latter? You might as well address the magazine on questions of health, or how to draw your will, ignoring your doctor or your lawyer. The magazines have done good work—the best they could—but it is the work of the investment banker after all. He, of all others, should advise and do so with honesty and fairness, and until he does, he will not fulfill his real mission.

"The Investment Bankers Association does not run an investigation and advisory bureau, but its members do—at least pertaining to the securities they offer, and the public should understand more fully that such information

WIND-UP OF KIRBY CASE

U. S. Judge Landis closed up the Kirby private bank failure so far as his court is concerned, in a fine burst of judicial speed on Thursday. Judge Landis found Dr. William T. Kirby, head of the defunct Kirby Savings Bank, and Mrs. Margaret L. Kirby, his wife, guilty of contempt of court and sentenced them to an indeterminate sentence in the county jail until they turn over $30,000 of the bank's missing funds.

The decision was given at the morning session of court in an oral opinion in which the judge denounced the "wire tapping" story as a palpable "frame-up," arraigned the Illinois banking laws for permitting the operation of private banks, and intimated the entire Kirby defense was a mass of perjury.

Formal sentence was entered by the court in the afternoon. The attorneys for the defense immediately took the case to the United State circuit court of appeals and Judge Baker granted a writ of supersedeas, on which the Kirbys were released pending a review of the case on a writ of error.

Bonds in each case were fixed at $20,000, signed by Mrs. Mary J. Durkin of Waukegan, mother of Mrs. Kirby.

Warrants for some of the witnesses, charging perjury, were issued and U. S. District Attorney Wilkerson was instructed to proceed against the attorneys employed by the defense.

Following is Judge Landis' arraignment of the Illinois banking laws, permitting the operation of private banks:

"From day to day evidence was heard here in an effort to locate the money of this bank (Kirby's). I say money of this bank—it was not a bank—it was a mere confidence game. It never had been a bank during the entire two years it was in operation under the name of a savings bank. It had no capital, and there never was a moment of that two years when, under any banking laws of the United States or any state or territory, it would not have been shut up. But being a private bank, it was beyond the right or power or authority of any public officer to look into its affairs.

"Such is the law of Illinois in 1913—the sacred right of any dishonest man to rent a room and put a sign over the door, "Bank," and take the savings—the scant savings of the poor—and steal those scant savings; and it is no public officer's right to cross the threshold and look at a scrap of paper or examine a page of any book in that institution. I say that is the law of Illinois to-day."

Here is Judge Landis' arraignment of the lawyers for the defense in the Kirby case:

"In this matter I desire to say the United States district attorney will give his earnest attention to the matters disclosed by the record in this Kirby proceeding, with a view to determining upon such action as he or the grand jury may deem appropriate.

"In addition to what the court said this morning, I will now only add, by way of reminder to the district attorney, that a license to practice law is not a permit to commit perjury, or suborn witnesses, or to conspire for the obstruction of the administration of justice."

Bank Elections

Stockholders of several of the local national and state banks will hold their annual meetings January 14th. A number of meetings were held this week. Illinois Trust and Savings elected two directors—Stanley Field and Frank D. Stout. The new members of the board succeed W. H. Mitchell and W. H. Reid, deceased. Other directors were re-elected. Besides paying dividends of 20 per cent on its capital stock of five millions during the year, the bank earned a substantial margin.

Stockholders of the Northern Trust met on Monday and re-elected all of the old directors. The board will meet January 14th for the election of officers. The bank's earnings during 1912, as indicated by its published statements of undivided profits, were equivalent to 20.7 per cent on its capital stock. The undivided profits account at the end of 1911 was $1,074,324, and at the end of 1912 it was $1,255,376, an increase of $181,052. This is equal to 12.07 per cent on the $1,500,000 capital, in addition to which the bank paid 8 per cent in dividends.

The surplus and undivided profits together December 31, 1912, were $2,755,376, giving the shares a book value of 284. The bank has about $30,700,000 deposits.

It is expected that Samuel McRoberts and Joseph T. Talbert will resign as directors of the Continental and Commercial National at the annual meeting of stockholders to be held January 14th and that Herman Waldeck, one of the vice-presidents, and J. A. Lewis, vice-president of the Hibernian Banking Association, will be elected in their places.

The stockholders of several Chicago banks held their annual meetings Tuesday. James A. Rankin and A. M. Johnson were elected directors of the Colonial Trust and Savings; W. M. Rumely resigned. This increases the membership of the board by one. At a subsequent meeting of the directors all of the officers were re-elected.

All directors and officers of the Merchants Loan and Trust were re-elected at the annual meeting held Tuesday.

Roger C. Sullivan has been elected a member of the board of the Peoples Trust and Savings to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Julius Kruttschnitt, who has moved to New York.

All officers and directors of the Stock Yards Trust and Savings were re-elected. A vacancy on the board was eliminated by reducing the number of directors from eleven to ten. The

Commercial Paper The Most Liquid Asset

The commercial paper broker as a clearing agency for the mercantile community and the importance of the service to the banks. Paper by Paul Bayne of Bayne, Ring & Co., New York City

It clearly was demonstrated in the panic of 1907 that the best asset a bank could have was notes of good mercantile houses that were paid promptly and since the 1907 disturbance the buying of commercial paper greatly has increased, as banks realize that it is through this medium alone that they quickly can add to their cash balances without having to make great sacrifices. Certain fundamental principles always should be borne in mind by buyers of commercial paper.

First, the character of the men connected with the concern issuing the paper is of utmost importance, for, notwithstanding all the improved methods of checking yet devised, after all has been said and done, it sifts down to the old-fashioned word, "honesty."

Second, a careful buyer of commercial paper gives first consideration to the notes of concerns handling the necessities of life, such as wholesale groceries, sugar, meat and packing house products generally, wholesale hardware, dry goods jobbers, and the notes of manufacturers of staple articles, such as stoves, hardware, plumbers' supplies, furniture, tobacco and rubber; in fact, products that have large daily consumption.

The purchase of notes of concerns that manufacture or handle the luxuries of life generally should be avoided, because the ultimate success of such concerns depends very largely upon the great prosperity of the country. People will not buy expensive articles when their first thought is of the "dinner pail." That must be filled at all hazards.

It is wise to be careful in the selection of paper, to look carefully into the banking connections of a large manufacturing concern located in a small banking town. Concerns so located should have ample banking facilities in large centres, such as New York City or Chicago, for in "hard times," when money is "tight," its home bank may be unable to loan funds in large enough amounts to protect the paper maturing on the open market while its banks in the large centres can do so immediately.

The "checking" of paper is very important and now is conducted in a most scientific manner by up-to-date banks and on this account demands upon banks in large centres for credit information constantly is increasing. These demands come from the country correspondents who have become buyers of commercial paper, and naturally they first run to their correspondents in large cities, and the many demands for information from such correspondents have resulted in placing such large banks in a position where the credit information furnished is scrutinized more carefully than formerly, and, therefore, can be depended upon to a greater extent.

Note brokers now are advising their customers to have their books audited by certified chartered accountants at the end of each year's business. This course is in the interest of the bank buyers of paper. The makers of paper rapidly are beginning to see that it greatly is to their interest, and I believe that it will be, generally speaking, a comparatively short time before all high grade concerns that place their paper on the open market will have their books regularly audited each year.

For many years it was the custom of concerns to give notes in payment of merchandise and the concerns receiving these notes endorsed them and sold them on the open market, but it now is considered a weakness for firms to sell their bills receivable. A concern should be strong enough financially to place its own paper on the open market and hold such notes in its treasury until maturity.

One of the rules of the best houses is not to accept any notes from third parties but insist upon doing business direct with the makers of the paper or the endorsers of same and in this way avoiding any chances of handling forged notes. I believe that it is most essential for the broker to know personally all the makers of paper handled by him. s

Much harm is done by brokers offering large amounts of money to small concerns with less than $100,000 capital at the same rates that are offered to concerns with $1,000,000 capital or over. This tends to make the small concerns dissatisfied with their banking relations who are amply able to take the best of care of them at all times and there should be a stand taken by the banks not to purchase from brokers the notes of firms or concerns that cannot show at least $100,000 in quick assets over liabilities.

In an easy money market it always happens that these "small ones" try to save a few dollars in the item of interest, but they should stay out at home because some time or other these notes will have to be paid and paid by their home banks, who very promptly can say "we told you so," for it has been found that as the money market hardens the discrimination begins first against the small concerns that really have no right on the market but have been persuaded to take money at low rates by over-solicitous brokers.

Another demoralizing feature is the "bearing" of the money market by certain brokerage houses, through the sending out of bids ½ to 1 per cent below the rate of which high grade paper is selling. This is poor business from the banker's point of view, as it tends to bring into the market the small concerns who should obtain all their financial requirements from their home banks.

The selling of commercial paper has equalized the money market of the country because in sections where the demand is great the mercantile houses then seek the brokers who naturally find the place where money is plentiful and in this way capital is diverted from the sections where it is easily obtained, and used in other sections that are in need of it.

The commercial broker thus has become a clearing house for the mercantile community of the country and is a very important factor

N. W. HARRIS RESIGNS

Announcement of the resignation of N. W. Harris as president of the Harris Trust and Savings was made on Tuesday of this week.

NORMAN W. HARRIS
Retiring President of the Harris Trust and Savings

His son, Albert W. Harris, formerly first vice-president, was elected to succeed him at the annual meeting held Wednesday. N. W. Harris will become chairman of the board and will continue his relationship with Harris, Forbes & Co. and N. W. Harris & Co., Inc. The vacancy made by the promotion of A. W. Harris will be filled by A. G. Farr, who will become first vice-president and chairman of the executive committee. A. W. Harris has been associated with his father in the banking business for the past thirty years, and has been acting in an advisory capacity as vice-president of the Harris Trust and Savings since it was organized several years ago. With the Messrs. Harris and A. G. Farr, the management of the bank will be in the hands of the three men who previously constituted it. N. W. Harris will act in an advisory capacity as chairman of the board. The reason for his resignation is the desire to be relieved of the burden of routine and detail responsibility of his office after many years of continuous activity.

N. W. Harris, in speaking of his son's election to the presidency, said:

"It is, of course, particularly gratifying to me that one who has worked with me practically ever since the organization of N. W. Harris & Co., thirty years ago, should be rewarded for his faithful service in this manner. For the past several years he has been in active charge of the bank's business, in the capacity of first vice-president, while I have been acting in an advisory capacity, and shall continue to do so in years to come as chairman of the board of directors. The bank's policies, therefore, will remain unchanged, for they are in practically the same hands in which they always have been. With myself as chairman of the board, A. W. Harris as president, and A. G. Farr as vice-president and chairman of the executive committee, we have the identical three people who made up our entire managing force for so many years, with now a large official and clerical force added.

"It is, of course, pleasing to me that with the increased scope and activities of the bank, I should be able to retain about me so long men who have in a very large measure helped to form its very successful business policies. As a matter of fact, practically all of our men have grown up with us in the business, and I am especially proud, not only of their ability, but of their high moral character.

"A. W. Harris has been associated with me for nearly thirty years and was a successful bond salesman when it was harder to sell $100,000 worth of bonds than it is $1,000,000 today. He is very democratic and largely is engaged in certain philanthropic work, being treasurer of St. James M. E. Church, and also The Parting of the Ways Home. MURRAY BEFORE PUJO COMMITTEE

Washington, Jan. 8th.—Faults in the national banking laws were discussed before the house money trust investigating committee today by the comptroller of the currency, Lawrence O. Murray. Under examination by Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the committee, Mr. Murray asserted the national bank act was "ineffective and inadequate."

Mr. Murray furnished the committee such data from his office as President Taft had directed him to supply. This, however, was only a small part of the information which the committee had asked for.

Mr. Murray condemned the practice, which he said was a growing evil, of directors or officers of national banks accepting "personal compensation" from borrowers to whom funds of the bank are loaned. He said legislation should be enacted to provide for "criminal prosecution" of the practice. He favored a provision of law which would prevent stockholders of banks from transferring their stock on the verge of collapse of their banks.

Besides, he indorsed a scheme to force banks to make public the list of securities held as assets by national banks.

Publicity of lists of stockholders in national banks, Mr. Murray said, would be beneficial.

Mr. Murray outlined the method of examination of national banks by his office, saying it was ineffective.

"It is merely superficial examination, is it not?" asked Mr. Untermyer.

"Yes, that is about all," replied Mr. Murray.

The comptroller said that in New York City the federal examiners worked with the bank examiners of the clearing house association and co-operated with them in the appraisal of loans and securities held by banks.

"We have received complaints from time to time from banks that said certain clearing house rules were detrimental to their business," he continued, "but we always have told them we had no jurisdiction."

The comptroller said bank examiners fixed the value of securities by the price on the New York Stock Exchange when the stocks were listed.

"Then if the stock quotation is for a false or fictitious value, the examiner accepts it," asked Mr. Untermyer.

"Yes," said the comptroller.

A dividend of Two Dollars per share will be paid on Wed., January 15, 1913, to stockholders of record at the close of business on Tues., December 31, 1912.

WILLIAM R. DRIVER, Treasurer.

Mr. Untermyer asked about the relations of the First National of New York to the First Securities Company and the National City Bank of New York to the National City Company. Mr. Murray said his office had no record of the relation of these concerns.

About a dozen national banks were affiliated with securities companies, Mr. Murray said, with practically the same organization as the banks. These companies, organized under the laws of the states, were not under the jurisdiction of his department.

By C. C. Burford

The LaSalle National, in the monthly bulletin issued by that institution, says: "In local business and industrial lines a generally satisfactory business has been done. The mild winter weather we have had thus far (January 1st) has benefited some lines and retarded others; but generally speaking, business has been satisfactory and few complaints have been heard."

The bulletin speaks of the great good which has been done by the LaSalle Commercial Association and among the new improvements for the city and vicinity are a proposed new hotel to cost $200,000, the additions made to the Township High School at a cost of $100,000, the new federal building, Harrison Hotel improvements, a new $50,000 theater, a large hospital addition, school and garage improvements and many other items. "It is no exaggeration to say that the outlook for LaSalle never was more brilliant," says the bulletin.

The total resources of the LaSalle National are $2,060,617. With deposits of $1,733,820, the officers say that their ambition for 1913 is to increase their deposits to $2,000,000.

Four New State Banks Chartered

The Farmers and Merchants Bank of Pulaski, a town in extreme southern Illinois, near Cairo, will be organized with capital of $25,000 by H. B. Eshleman, William Stringer, C. G. Sheets and D. W. Stringer.

A new state bank will be opened at Mount Auburn, near Decatur, to be known as the State Bank of Mount Auburn, with capital of $25,000. S. R. Shepherd, Oliver Hardy, E. L. Smith and F. P. Mulberry are the incorporators.

The Farmers and Merchants State Bank of Decatur is an important new banking proposition, as Decatur has no state bank except the Citizens Title and Trust, which closely is united with the Citizens National. Decatur has three powerful nationals, these being the Millikin, Citizens and the Decatur, and the new state bank will enter a field which has for many years been centralized closely by these three banks. But with the growing prosperity of busy Decatur there is an abundance of room for the new institution. The capital will be $100,000.

Good Roads Bill Drafted

The good roads commission from the forty-fifth general assembly recently met in Springfield to prepare a bill to be submitted to the present legislature. Homer J. Tice, Greenview, is chairman of the commission, and in addition to the legislative members who attended, S. E. Bradt, vice-president of the First National of DeKalb and chairman of the good roads committee of the Illinois Bankers Association, A. N. Johnson, state highway engineer, Professor John A. Fairlie of the University of Illinois and other workers for better highways attended the meeting. The bill includes the following points: The creation of a state highway commission, the enactment of a law providing for state aid in the construction of highways; a uniform system of constructing highways; the abolishment of the present system of highway commissioners; the payment of all automobile licenses to the highway commission, and uniform taxation in the various districts.

Death of D. S. Shellabarger

David S. Shellabarger, a prominent business man of Decatur for fifty years and for seven years president of the National Bank of Decatur, died recently at the home of a daughter in Red Bluffs, Calif. Mr. Shellabarger was born near Cumberland, Md., in 1837, and came to Decatur in 1856. He was prominent in the street car business, was for many years a member of the board of education and was elected mayor of Decatur in 1872. He also was prominent in civic and church matters and at one time was a delegate to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. He had been a member of Macon lodge No. 8, A. F. & A. M. of Decatur for fifty-four years. In 1906 Mr. and Mrs. Shellabarger celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. He was an early friend of the James Millikin University in Decatur. Mr. Shellabarger was a stalwart business man of a generation which now is gone and which included in Decatur such men as the late James Millikin, with whom he was a long business associate.

Mr. Shellabarger is best known to Ilinois people because of his activity in the milling and elevator business and his interests in grain affairs were large for many years. He possessed foresight which carried him through many perils that ruined other grain men. He long was a director and was the largest stockholder in the National Bank of Decatur.

Illinois Bankers Pass Away

George Wright, who established a private bank in Paxton in 1869, which since has grown into the First National of that city, died at his home in Paxton recently. Mr. Wright came to Ford county in 1862 and lived there many years, but more recently had resided in Chicago at 5614 Madison Avenue. He was seventy-five years of age.

Sound January Investments

Netting 5½ to 6 per Cent

WE own and offer for January investment, First Mortgage Bonds in denominations of $500 and $1,000, secured by absolute direct first liens on the highest class of improved, income-producing, centrally located Chicago real estate, netting the investor 5½ to 6%. Our recommendation of these bonds for investment is based on experience of thirty-one years. ¶ These bonds are so thoroughly secured, and we protect the interests of investors with such care that no client has ever lost a dollar of principal or interest on any security purchased of us since this House was founded. ¶ Each bond issue is distinct and separate, is the obligation of distinct and separate mortgagors, and is secured by distinct and separate property. The total loan is never more than 50% of the value of the security. ¶ For thirty-one years we have maintained a market for these securities through our custom of repurchasing bonds or mortgages from clients when requested, at par and accrued interest, less only the handling charge of 1%, thus giving reasonable assurance of their convertibility.

Good Roads Men to Meet at Springfield

A good roads round-up will be held in Springfield January 31st under the auspices of the "Manufacturers News," that journal having taken up the road question. The meeting will be presided over by William G. Edens of the Central Trust Company of Chicago, and president of the Illinois Highway Improvement Association. William C. Brown, president of the New York Central Lines, will be one of the speakers, and Charles Piez, president of the Illinois Manufacturers Association, will discuss good roads and their relation to the industries of the state. S. E. Bradt, vice-president of the First National of DeKalb and chairman of the good roads committee of the Illinois Bankers Association, will outline the work which the bankers of the state are doing toward road improvement.

The limited states government will be represented by an official from the office of public roads of the department of agriculture, who will make several addresses and exhibit many ideas of advanced road construction.

Illinois Notes

The First National of El Paso made many improvements in its banking house during the year 1912 and the Woodford County National of the same city will add many features during the coming year.

Danville clearings for the year 1912 were $23,093,653 as compared to $21,877,907 in 1911.

C. J. Moyer, cashier of the Corn Belt Bank of Bloomington, has been made a director to succeed the late I. N. Phillips.

Illinois ranked fourth among the states in the distribution of postal savings bonds. These bonds are issued semiannually and Illinois, with Indiana and California, made the largest gains in the purchase of the bonds.

Douglas county has some of the best earth roads in the state and Bowdre township in that county is bonded for $35,000 worth of "5 per cent hard road bonds." The bonds are offered as satisfactory to all state and federal demands and are supported "by a continuing annual tax being levied on all property in the township to pay the interest and principal." Tuscola is the county seat.

The Chicago, Peoria and Ottawa Railroad Company, a part of the McKinley lines, or the Illinois Traction System, has increased its capital stock from $500,000 to $1,500,000, and announcement has been made that an extension would be constructed in 1913 south from Ottawa through Streator, Minonk, Eureka, Washington and other points, into Peoria.

The Illinois Central Railroad Company seem to be optimistic of the future, as they have let contracts for $10,000,000 of new equipment, including 50,000 tons of steel rails, engines of many kinds and every variety of car equipment from ordinary flat cars to sun parlor observation cars.

Construction of a new interurban line 410 miles in extent and to cost $12,500,000 is planned for southern Illinois for next spring.

The Springfield postal savings bank has deposits of $17,800. "People in Springfield do not take to the postal savings plan," says Postmaster Wheeler.

Bloomington clearings for the year 1912 were $36,628,527, as compared with $33,431,770 in 1911. Twelve years ago, or in the year 1900, the clearings were $11,235,643, which may be considered as an index to the large business development of Bloomington.

BANKING BILL PREPARED BY SENATOR LA FOLLETTE

It is said that the banking and currency bill which has been in course of preparation by Senator La Follette practically is completed and that it will be introduced in congress shortly. The proposed bill will follow some of the features of the Aldrich plan and will establish a central reserve association on the precise lines of that suggested in the previous measure of the last session. The new bill differs in three important respects from the monetary commission measure, which are the characteristic features that give it a distinct basis of its own.

It is said that the bill was drafted for the Wisconsin senator with the aid of Prof. William A. Scott of the University of Wisconsin, Prof. John R. Commons of the same institution and Managing Editor Garrison of the Madison (Wis.) Journal, formerly a member of the staff of the "Outlook." The La Follette bill probably will be offered in opposition to such legislation as may be recommended by the democrats.

Walter J. Schuh has resigned as assistant cashier of the Norwood National of Cincinnati. He will be succeeded by J. Earl Coad, who has been a paying teller at the Fifth-Third National.

St. Louis and Southwest Banking Letter

By R. L. ROBINSON

St. Louis, January 8th—St. Louis bank clearings for the week ending Saturday last were the heaviest of any week in the history of the city, according to a report of the St. Louis Clearing House. The clearings were $92,813,195 as against $79,769,878 for the corresponding week in 1911, an increase of $13,043,317, or more than 16 per cent. The heaviest clearings for any one in week in St. Louis' history were for the week that ended October 7, 1911, when they were $93,131,402, or $318,207 larger. More than $4,000,000,000 in checks were passed through the St. Louis Clearing House Association during the year 1912, the exact figures being $4,027,580,808. This was a gain over 1911 of $167,899,672, and establishes the current twelve months as the greatest period in the history of the associated banks and trust companies of St. Louis. December holds the record for volume of clearings, $367,590,341. The demand for money continued quite large during the past week and rates held firm at 5½ to 6 per cent.

Incorporate Realty Company

The Bright Investment Company has filed articles of incorporation to do a general real estate and investment business, with capital stock of $25,000, of which $20,500 is paid up. The shareholders are Cornelia A. Bright, Mary E. Jones, William E. Bright, Dora V. Witt, and Carrie E. Bright. Mr. Bright said that the purpose of the incorporation is to hold and manage real estate owned by the incorporators.

Approved as Reserve Agents

The following St. Louis banks have been approved as reserve agents: Third National for the Sheffield National, Sheffield, Ala., First National, Jellico, Tenn., First National, Newport, Tenn., First National, Woodburn, Tenn., First National of Franklin County, Decherd, Tenn., First National, Robert Lee, Tex., First National, Adairville, Ky., and Peoples National, Shelbyville, Tenn.; the National Bank of Commerce for the First National, Divernon, Ill.

Finances in Best Shape

Auditor Gordon of Missouri finds that at the close of Governor Hadley's administration the financial condition of the state is better than ever before in its history. "Every appropriation has been paid as far as called for, and there is a surplus in the revenue fund, probably the first in many years. The revenues of the state are in better condition than they ever have been before in the history of Missouri," he said.

Oklahoma Bank Merger

Announcement has been made of the taking over by the First National of Ada, Oklahoma, of the Ada National. This is one of the largest financial deals ever made in Ada. The Ada National was considered one of the most substantial banks in that part of the state. Since the merging of the two banks the deposits of the First National have become among the largest in Oklahoma, almost $1,000,000.

Savings in Tin-can Bank Stolen

Because he pinned his faith to a tin bucket as being a good safety deposit vault, Joseph Tomszklewic, of St. Louis, lost $800 on Saturday last. So great is his grief over the loss of his savings that it is feared he may attempt suicide. "I had no faith in banks so I put the money, most of which was in $10 and $20 bills, in a tin pail and locked it in my wardrobe. When I went to look for the money in the morning I found the door of the wardrobe broken open and the money gone," said Tomszklewic to the police through an interpreter. Two boys are believed to have committed the robbery.

Texas Rice Crop Larger

A report issued by the secretary of the Southern Rice Growers Association, with headquarters in Beaumont, Tex., states that the total production of rice in Texas this year will be approximately 8,500,000 bushels, compared with a total yield of 8,174,000 bushels in 1911. The acreage planted to this crop last year was 238,300, but has been increased this year 11 per cent. The association estimates that this year's crop will net the growers approximately $9,000,000.

FOLK ASSAILS CENTRAL BANK

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 8th.—Five hundred democrats of central Illinois at a Jackson's day banquet here to-night heard Governor Joseph Folk of Missouri assail the central bank plan of currency reform. "The proposition," he said, "would place in the hands of a few men control of the money of the country. The lesson of the United States bank that Andrew Jackson fought teaches the danger of allowing our financial system to be placed in the hands of any class. The Aldrich idea is fatally defective in avowedly claiming to take away from the government all voice in the nation's finances."

Bankers whose customers have business at the St. Louis National Yards can realize full value of such business only through an account with this bank.

NEBRASKA BANK GUARANTEE LAW

Omaha, January 7th.—The Nebraska state banking board has just called for the last ¼ of 1 per cent assessment for the bank guaranty deposit fund and when this assessment is paid, the fund will amount to $776,275. The assessment covers the average deposits of each state bank for the last six months of 1912. These deposits averaged $82,981,604 and the assessment netted $201,730.

Subsequent levies will be 1-20 of 1 per cent of the average deposits for the half-year periods and will continue at that rate until the total guarantee fund reaches an amount equal to 1½ per cent of the total deposits of the banks of the state. The law now is looked upon with much more favor by the state bankers than when it was enacted.

John Stokes Adams, trust officer of the Merchants Union Trust of Philadelphia, has been elected also second vice-president and a director; Heverin Reed has been elected real estate officer and Henry J. Casselberry assistant secretary and treasurer.

is open to every customer. To earn money, frequently is easy, but to know how to keep it—to invest it—often is quite hard. Then, there are widows and orphans, estates, agents and trustees, that need our assistance. How can we gain their confidence? How can they be given to understand that an investment banker is their friend in need? I think this is a matter of education, of establishing high standards of integrity and a greater publicity. This demands organization and the expenditure of time and money by some one. Can it not be done best through the Investment Bankers Association?

"There is a world brotherhood of men today. The business of all nations is within our grasp, and coming out of this should, first, be a careful training regarding our dealings, and secondly, a study of the character and mental make-up of others with whom we come in contact. If the investing class now estimated at ten per cent of our population increases five per cent per year, the time is indeed near when the investment banker will be recognized as an indispensable factor only in so far as he renders real social service to this large army of investors."

"CORN, CORN, THE GOLDEN CORN"

The above title line is the refrain from Illinois' most famous native poem. Its distinguished author was the late Richard Oglesby, governor, statesman and farmer. He knew better than most men the value, to Illinois at least, of the corn crop. Yet in those days they only fed or sold the grain and burned the cobs and the stalks. The earth was rich and repeated the yield whenever asked. Now they are introducing corn to the soil in the extreme northern as well as in the southern states. It has greater value than ever before and its uses are better understood.

Outside of the colleges (and the A. B. A. agricultural committee) but few men could tell you that there were 106,000,000 acres planted in corn in the United States in 1911, and the crop was 2,500,000,000 bushels—enough, placed in wagons, to reach more than twenty times around the earth. The value of the crop was $1,700,000,000, enough to pay for the Panama Canal, build fifty battleships, cancel the interest-bearing debt of the United States and leave a surplus large enough to make a hundred men millionaires. These figures may astound you, but they are vouched for by Harper's Weekly, and by the man who put Princeton ineffaceably upon the political map. The uses for corn have grown until they number hundreds. Parts of the plant once considered valueless now are put to practical uses. In many parts of the country farmers are just beginning to appreciate it at its full value as stock feed. The silo, too, for preserving it fresh in winter, while comparatively a new device, has become a feature of every progressive stock and dairy farm. Then there is made of it corn bread, corn cakes, corn flakes, corn starch, hominy, samp, syrup and corn whiskey. The cobs are used for pipes, fuel and fertilizer. Paper is made from parts of the stalk, and part goes to make pyroxylin varnish; a third part is used in the process of making smokeless powder, while the pith packs the sides of battleships. Corn oil is utilized in manufacturing paint and lubricating oil, and it is vulcanized for blending with rubber in automobile tires. Out in Iowa they know all about and appreciate corn as they do in Illinois.

With government aid the corn belt will expand in all directions. The problems and the results in Louisiana differ from those in North Dakota. All the power of the American Bankers Association joined to that of the state associations is to be used in urging congress to extend its aid under the Lever or the Page bill. Governmental aid has helped the South and it justly can aid the North as well. Crops can be increased and soil preserved or made better at a greater profit to the nation than most men readily would believe. Soil analysis, seed tests, rotation and a long list of benefits can be taught at small expense and with almost immeasurable results.

UNIFORM BILLS OF LADING LAW

Much credit is due to the American Bankers Association and to its chief counsel, Thomas B. Paton, for the effort being made to have enacted in the various states uniform laws relating to subjects of interest to banks and bankers. One of the subjects falling in this class and which is of great importance from the banker's standpoint is uniform bills of lading legislation. Mr. Paton has sent out a pamphlet in which is described the work done in the endeavor to have such a law passed throughout the states of the Union. In 1905 Prof. Samuel Williston of the Harvard Law School was employed by the commissioners on uniform state laws to prepare a draft of an act designed to make uniform the law of bills of lading, the object being to produce uniformity in the conflicting laws of the various states and to legalize in statutory form certain customs which had grown out of the enormous commercial and financial dealings with order bills of lading as instruments of credit.

Much consideration and study were given to the draft of the proposed law as prepared by Prof. Williston, all of the interests affected being given an opportunity to be heard on the matter. The final draft was indorsed by the commissioners at Detroit in 1909 and recommended to the legislatures of the various states for passage as the uniform bills of lading law. The provisions of the law have been endorsed by the American Bankers Association, the American Bar Association, many state bankers' associations and by commercial organizations all over the United States. The uniform bills of lading law thus far has been adopted in ten states, viz.: Maryland, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Louisiana. The legislatures of a number of states will meet during 1913, at which time an effort will be made to have the subject given consideration in such of the states as already have not enacted a uniform bills of lading law.

The following is a brief outline of the 57 sections of the act as set forth in the pamphlet issued by Mr. Paton and will indicate the scope and purport of the law:

The act applies (1) to bills of lading issued by any common carrier. It provides (2 and 3) requisites and regulations as to the contents of bills of lading; defines (4) non-negotiable or straight and (5) negotiable or order bills of lading; regulates (6 and 7) duplicate bills and bills issued in parts and sets; requires (8) that straight bills shall be marked "not negotiable"; defines (9) the significance of the word "notify" on a negotiable or order bill of lading; provides (10) that receipt of bill by consignor without objection binds him to terms of bill of lading, not contrary to law or public policy; regulates (11, 12 and 13) duty of carrier to deliver goods, when justified in delivering and liability for wrongful delivery; provides (14 and 15) liability of carrier who fails to take up and cancel negotiable or order bill, to purchaser who acquires title to spent bill either before or after delivery of goods, notwithstanding delivery made to person entitled to goods; and also provides similar liability in case of partial deliveries, unless bill is canceled or indorsement of goods delivered be made thereon; provides (16) that alterations without authority of carrier are void and bill is enforceable according to original tenor; provides (17) procedure in case of lost negotiable or order bills of lading by application to court and giving of bond to protect carrier; defines (18) significance of the word "duplicate" on a bill of lading; provides (19) that carrier cannot excuse delivery by claim of title to goods unless derived from transfer made after the shipment or from carrier's lien; provides (20, 21 and 22) legal proceedings of interpleader in case of adverse claimants to goods; provides (23) liability of carrier to consignee of non-negotiable or straight bill or bona fide holder for value of negotiable or order bill where fraudulent or accommodation bill of lading has been issued by agent without receipt of the goods; exempts (24 and 25) goods from garnishment or execution, where order bill is outstanding, unless bill be first surrendered or its negotiation enjoined; and gives creditor whose debtor is owner of an order bill right to injunction and otherwise in attaching such bill; regulates (26 and 27) carrier's lien; provides (28, 29, 30, 31 and 32) manner of negotiation of negotiable or order bills and rights of persons to whom order bill has been duly negotiated; provides (33) rights of person to whom a straight or order bill has been transferred but not negotiated; provides (34) right of transferee to compel transferor to indorse negotiable or order bill where transferred by delivery and indorsement is essential for negotiation; provides (35, 36 and 37) warranty of genuineness and other warranties by person who negotiates or transfers for value a bill of lading by indorsement or delivery but that there is no warranty of genuineness or of quantity or quality of goods by a mortgagee or pledgee or other holder of a bill for security who demands or receives payment of the debt, whether from a party to a draft drawn for such debt or other person. Also provides that indorser of bill is not liable for failure of carrier or previous indorsers to fulfill their respective obligations; regulates (38 and 39) the validity of negotiation and rights of bona fide holder of order bill of lading where owner is deprived of same by breach of duty, fraud, accident, mistake, duress or conversion; or as affected by sale or pledge of goods by shipper while in possession of bill; provides (40) rights of buyer and seller as indicated by form of bill; provides that (41) demand, presentation or sight draft must be paid, but draft on more than three days' time merely accepted before buyer is entitled to the accompanying bill; provides that (42) negotiation of negotiable bill defeats vendor's lien and (43) when rights and remedies under mortgages and liens are not limited; provides criminal penalties for (44) issue of bill for goods not received, (45) issue of bill containing false statements, (46) issue of duplicate bills not so marked, (47) negotiation of bill for mortgaged goods, (48) negotiation of bill when goods are not in carrier's possession, (49) inducing carrier to issue bill when goods have not been received, (50) issue of non-negotiable bill not so marked; provides (51-53) rules for interpretation of act and definitions; provides (54-57) application of act, repeal of inconsistent provisions, time of taking effect and name by which act may be cited.

Mr. Paton calls attention to the provisions of the law which are the most valuable to the banker who advances money upon, or to the consignee who pays, a draft on faith of an attached bill of lading. Section 23 holds the carrier liable on a bill signed by his agent, although the goods have not been received, the contrary being the present federal and common-law rule; sections 14 and 15 make the carrier liable where the goods have been delivered, or partly delivered, on an order bill without taking it up or noting partial delivery thereon and the spent bill has been negotiated; section 16 makes an altered bill good for its original tenor.

The benefit of uniform laws on the subject of bills of lading readily is apparent. The bill of lading thereby will be raised to a degree of security and validity wherein, except for risk of loss through forgery, which is true in the case of any negotiable instrument, it readily may be taken as a basis of collateral by banks, which will facilitate the operations of the small shipper by giving him a more ready cash market at his own door for the goods which he has purchased and is forwarding. It will be equaly helpful to the consignee or receiver of goods at destination, who will be able, with fair safety, to pay drafts drawn upon him with bill of lading attached without waiting for the arrival of the goods.

Work in this connection has been developed along two lines: First, the securing of a law to govern interstate and foreign commerce, to be enacted by congress, and the same thing as relating to business wholly within one state, to be passed by the various state legislatures. House Bill S-957, known as the Pomerene substitute, has been passed by the United States senate and now is pending before the committee on interstate and foreign commerce of the house of representatives. This is the same bill which is being advocated by the American Bankers Association in the various states, with a few slight modifications to adapt it to federal enactment.

Bankers ought to do everything possible to assist in this work. Letters have been sent out calling the attention of the membership of the various state associations to the importance of the matter and requesting the bankers to write to their respective representatives urging consideration and support of the proposed bill.

BRAND NEW BOOKS FOR BOYS

The Penn Publishing Co., Philadelphia, is starting a brand new series of books for boys. The initial number is a corker. It is "An Army Boy in Peking" by Capt. C. E. Kilbourn of the U. S. Army. The author was with the American expedition that relieved Peking at the time of the Boxer Revolution, and his story therefore is drawn from life. It deals with the adventures of two boys who were non-commissioned officers in the American army. One of them, Don Page, is separated from the command and passes many days alone in a hostile country before he rejoins his friends. The final attack on Peking is interestingly and thrillingly related. Price at all booksellers, $1.20 net.

HANDLING STOP-PAYMENT ORDERS

Vice-president O. E. Naegele of the Metropolitan National at Minneapolis has devised a new safety plan of handling stop-payment orders by banks. Mr. Naegele says: "The forms are upon two colors of cardboard designed to be used in the card system file. The white card is the order by the customer, signed in his own handwriting in each case where payment stopped requests have been made either by letter or in person. The cards afford an advantage for ready reference over the payment-stopped order usually made by letter, and protect the bank from liability for negligence on the part of the customer.

"The blue card is used to clear the records from old outstanding payment stops sent out by the bank clerk periodically, and to keep the outstanding record down to a minimum in number on the tickler.

"It would not be surprising that many banks would adopt this card system and form of printed matter as a protection to the bank, and obviate thereby many losses and disputes arising out of payment stops resulting largely from neglect to destroy the checks when found, and failure to notify the bank immediately."

RIGHT OF BANKING DEPARTMENT TO REFUSE CHARTER

A law relating to the formation of private corporations and providing that the charter board shall refuse a bank charter if upon examination it shall make a determination against the public necessity of the business in the community in which it is sought to establish the bank, is a valid enactment under the police power of the state and is not in violation of the bill of rights, Sec. 1, providing that all men are possessed of equal and inalienable natural rights, among which are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness; and where equally meritorious applications for charters for several banks in the same community are pending at the same time, and the charter board determines against the necessity for more than one bank, the application first presented should be granted.—Schaake et al. vs. Dolley et al., 118 Pac. Rep. 80.

No Bank Robberies in Kansas

Not a single bank robbery committed in the state during 1912. Effective methods employed by Commissioner Dolley in ridding the state of gangs of robbers who infested it. The state and others assist in work

While discussing the annual business of his department recently, State Bank Commissioner Joseph N. Dolley, inventor of the "Blue Sky" law and other financial safety devices for the protection of domestic depositors and investors, made the very remarkable announcement that not a single bank robbery had been committed or even attempted in Kansas during the year 1912. When asked what became of the two gangs of robbers that had terrorized the bankers of the state for ten years he naïvely remarked, "All of them still are in the state—some under the sod, the rest in the penitentiary." Every New Year's eve since he became bank commissioner four years ago, Mr. Dolley faithfully has repeated the statement that not a depositor in the banks of Kansas had lost a dollar during the year. This was a fine enough thing in itself to repeat, but when he accompanied it last New Year's eve with the announcement that not a bank robbery had occurred in the state during the year, a host of friends, including the governor and state officers, congratulated him heartily.

In the ten years the two gangs of robbers referred to not only stole, wasted and destroyed money, merchandise and other property to the value of approximately two millions of dollars, but took human life without scruple. Many bankers walked the floor at night while these gangs were at large, and many were the wives and mothers who felt the chill of terror when night sounds coming from the direction of the bank, the store, and postoffice reached their ears.

It was two years ago in December that Mr. Dolley decided to have a final reckoning with these two gangs. He laid his plans for a fight to a finish. He kindly asked the committee on banking of the legislature for a suitable appropriation with which to carry on a war of extermination against the rascals, and got fifteen thousand dollars for the biennial term. With this war chest he promptly began work, and it is not a trivial fact to notice that with less than half the appropriation he has sent every bank robber in the state either to the penitentiary or into the local jails to await accommodations at the larger cage at Lansing.

When Governor Stubbs was elected four years ago he announced it as a vital part of his reform program that only the biggest men he could find in the state would be chosen for heads of departments. He found Mr. Dolley in a small town running a prosperous store and sharing in the direction of a few small but very substantial state banks. It is said that Mr. Dolley was one of the "best finds" the governor made, and that is saying something. Mr. Dolley had to be coaxed into exchanging the serene and untroubled life of a well-to-do villager for the chieftaincy of the state banking department, with all of its multitudinous anxieties and perplexing responsibilities. It even is said that the governor had to speak directly to him concerning the civic obligations of a citizen having for years enjoyed the protection and opportunities of the state before he consented to accept the service. But that is another story and is neither here nor there at this time. When Mr. Dolley had decided to eliminate the bank robbing gangs, and had secured his war chest for that purpose, he did exactly what Governor Stubbs expected a big man to do—he passed up all the tinhorn detectives who eagerly offered to manage the enterprise for him and telegraphed immediately asking his friend William J. Burns to come down and advise him. Burns came and both together outlined the program which has been carried out with such extraordinary energy and wonderful success. The entire cost of the enterprise has been borne by the state treasury, as it ought to be, and not a penny of it has fallen upon the shoulders of the bankers except as they contribute, like other equally well protected citizens through the ordinary process of state and local taxation.

Mr. Dolley is too big a man physically, as well as mentally, to be an emotional reformer. He does not act in response to nervous impulse as so many have done in the preceding reforms of the state. He not only does not give his consent to an idea, even though it may be his own idea, without ample and careful consideration, but he does not finally adopt it as a personal or official policy until he gives it a fair test by all the rules that usually govern the business to which the idea may be related. He has conceived no device for the protection of the Kansas people that is not sane, practicable and legal. Every one of them is woven into the fabric of the law—written plainly upon the pages of the statute book. Practical results must be in sight before any work he undertakes is put aside as finished. So when he set his dogs of war upon the two gangs of bank robbers that terrorized Kansas for ten years he said nothing; and until the announcement was made to-night very few of the Kansas people, save perhaps, the State Bankers Association, knew that he had been in the active direction of the work.

While Mr. Dolley and Governor Stubbs essentially are reformers—and by this is meant only those men who move forward with the business and social necessities of their age—both of them are brainy enough to see clearly, as well as courageous enough to admit frankly, that no reform can be made permanently practicable from a public service viewpoint that does not, in offering hope and encouragement to people without means, give ample public protection to the owners or guardians of money; for very few people are foolish enough not to realize that the man who is poor never can hope to enjoy a sound, fruitful prosperity unless money—the medium of modern commercial exchange, and the direct compensatory reward for all honest toil—is given that perfect freedom of action, and security of circulation, which is assured only by the faithful and honest protection of the state. Money did not always have the friends in Kansas that it has to-day. In times past it was not the fashion to protect it at the expense of the tax payers, but a new era has come and a different fashion of public opinion has been molded. Dolley has proved so amply the sanity of protecting the banks of Kansas—not because they are mere banks, but because they are the depositories of the Kansas people—that the legislature has fallen into the habit of finding its duty wherever the bank commissioner points the way.

The annihilation of the two gangs was no small work. One of them operated in Southern Kansas under the chieftaincy of the notorious John Callahan. The other operated in Northern Kansas, having its headquarters at Wymore, Nebraska, under the leadership of Henry Hoerr. Callahan was entrenched so well in Wichita, or thought he was, that he actually was in league with the chief of police, who frequently acted as his agent in the disposal of the plunder. The Wichita police department went farther and gave him open countenance to "night ride" the surrounding country at will and without their interference, for the bare privilege of exempting Wichita from the plundering propensities of this audacious master-robber and his gang. Hoerr had a like commanding influence in Northern Kansas. He not only plundered banks but he did such a thriving business in the theft of merchandise from railroad cars and depots that it was at one time said that half the merchants on the Nebraska border not only did not deal with the wholesalers, but actually were underselling them in the open market. But with all their power and cleverness both now are serving time in the penitentiary. When Callahan, the shrewdest and ablest of them all, shall have served his fifteen years for postoffice robberies, he will begin a long sentence in the state prison for a bank robbery in Sumner County. Not a member of either gang now is at large and, thanks to Mr. Dolley, the Kansas bankers and their wives are sleeping soundly while the state stands like a steel-clad sentinel over their vaults and money boxes.

Mr. Dolley and his colleagues not only had to fight two desperate branches of a well organized and merciless robber gang, but also had to fight their powerful sympathizers—powerful because many of them walked abroad among good people, in the guise of good citizens and faithful officers, "spreading poison" among the very people whom the state, through the banking department, was seeking to protect.

It would be unjust to give all the credit for good work done either to the state or to Mr. Dolley. They got able assistance from other sources. Mr. Dolley not only accepted the help of the government through its system of postoffice inspection but he invited the cooperation of the secret service men of the various Kansas railroads, the sheriffs of counties, and above all, the Anti-Horse Thief Association, whose members are generally farmers and always ready to mount their handy horses when the rural telephone calls them to the saddle, either to follow or head off the fleeing band of robbers. All of these forces are working like clock work with the state and Mr. Dolley and through his permanent secret service department he constantly is in touch with them. It would be a gravely negligent piece of forgetfulness not also to mention the great service Russell A. Algire of the National Surety Company has rendered Mr. Dolley in the thorough scouring he has given the criminal haunts of Kansas since he has been bank commissioner, and especially during the past two years. Although Mr. Dolley never has taken the field himself against either the Hoerr group or the Callahan group—in reality two branches of the same gang—he has absorbed a great deal of information concerning their habits. They not only made divisions of territory to operate more economically in, but they arbitrarily made new seasonal divisions of time for the accommodation of the various phases of the industry they lived by. For instance, they selected the four colder months for bank robbing, months when the windows are closed and when peoples' ears are so wrapped up in quilts, nightcaps and blankets that they cannot easily hear the explosion of a bank vault. They robbed houses during the torrid season when windows and doors had to be left open and when men and women fled carelessly from their homes in quest of fresh air. In the in-between seasons they robbed the railroads because it was during these seasons that goods were coming in to meet the spring and autumn pressure of local trade. In the commercial robberies they not only stole much but they wasted much and in many cases the loss was heavier on the score of arson—where they sought to cover up their crimes—than on the score of actual theft.

That robbers generally are afraid of Mr. Dolley and the brave stand the state of Kansas has taken through him against crime is proved by the striking fact that while Kansas had no bank robberies or attempted bank robberies during 1912, the state of Oklahoma with less territory and less population, has had twenty-two in the same time. The fact also can be illustrated by the record of Nebraska, which followed the example of Kansas in giving state protection to its banks. During the year it had only one attempt at robbery and that was unsuccessful. And still another impressive fact is that of the state of Texas. Among the twelve hundred banks in that state which are protected by a state bankers association, at private expense, there were only three robberies, while among the two hundred banks that are not under the protection of the association, twelve safes had been blown open and about thirty thousand dollars in money stolen. This clearly proves the value of organized protection and still better proves the value of the protection given by the state to its banks as is shown by the plan adopted in Kansas by Mr. Dolley.

It is not practical to go into minor details of the cleaning up of Kansas, but suffice it to say that the state has dragged a net of twenty-one bank robbers into the penitentiary and several others in jail awaiting trial to serve an aggregate sentence of four hundred and sixty-four years. If all of these serve their full terms, as the temper of the state probably will demand, they will have earned for the state over and above the cost of their keep, figuring upon the basis of one dollar a day per head, the snug sum of $114,000.00 or nearly twelve times more than the entire salary the state has paid to Mr. Dolley for the four years service he has given it as its bank commissioner. This, added to the money and property that will not be stolen by them, as well as the anxiety good people will be relieved of, constitutes an item that the tax payers, who have paid only $7,000 for the work done, ought to ponder over carefully when they are inclined to complain of the cost of good government.

Only two things more and the case of the Kansas plan of campaign against robbers shall be deemed complete, although many interesting things properly might be said by way of recapitulation. One is a notice sent out by the postmaster general under date of December 14th, and published broadcast in the public press, which is this: that postoffice robberies in Kansas have fallen from 100 in past years to just nine in 1912. The other thing is this: that Kansas was the first state in the Union to establish a state-supported plan of campaign against bank robbers as a permanent institution—a step forward, like so many other forward steps taken by the Kansas banking department, that other states are bound to follow within a short time as a highly profitable development of business economics.

BANK COMBATS FALSE IMPRESSIONS

"Considering the draw-backs of the antiquated currency system which the bankers of this country are laboring with, the growth of American banking and the development of its methods really has been phenomenal. There are 26,000 banks in the United States—national, state and private institutions—and these are controlled, not by one hundred rich men, but by the people whom they serve, and serve efficiently. The merits of these institutions and the service that they have rendered in building up local industries everywhere ought to be recalled at a time when the occasional evils of the system are being exploited to a point where the public is being made to believe that everything worth while in banking is run from New York and by a few rich men who have the say as to who shall receive accommodation and who shall not receive accommodation.

"The one sure way of getting the interior banks to stop lending large sums in Wall Street is to provide them with a central reserve association or with a central bank of some sort at which the paper of the country banks can be rediscounted. That would make it unnecessary for the interior banks to employ at New York the vast sums that they now send there chiefly for the reason that those institutions have no other market in which large sums can be loaned out on instant call."—National City Bank of Chicago, in its January news letter.

LEGISLATIVE WORK OF A. B. A.

The American Bankers Association, through the office of its general counsel, Thomas B. Paton, has accomplished considerable work in the promotion of needed legislation during the past year in various states. It has succeeded in placing on the statute books of New York, New Jersey, Rhode Island and Louisiana an act for the punishment of offenders who obtain credit by means of false pretenses or representations. It also has procured the enactment of a measure in New York making it a crime for any person maliciously to circulate derogatory statements affecting banks; another in Massachusetts and Rhode Island limiting the time of liability of banks to their depositors in the case of payment of forged or raised checks. Still another enactment procured was by the legislature of Virginia, authorizing payment of a joint deposit to the survivor, upon the death of the other party to the account, without risk to the bank.

The uniform bills of lading act, which also is being urged by the American Bankers Association, was passed this year in Louisiana, making ten states having that measure. Besides Louisiana, these states are Maryland, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania. It also unanimously passed the senate of the United States, being known as the Pomerene bill and now is pending before the house.

General Counsel Paton also has mapped out an extensive campaign for recommended legislation during 1913 in forty-one states which hold sessions during the year and has issued a pamphlet showing the measures enacted and yet to be introduced in all these states.

Omaha

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the Oklahoma Bankers Association, at Oklahoma City, it was decided to hold the next annual meeting of the association at Muskogee at a date in May to be announced later. The subjects under discussion at the meeting included a legislative program that the association will push before the coming session of the Oklahoma legislature. A stringent law relating to bank robberies will be recommended and in view of the great number of bank robberies that have taken place in Oklahoma recently the bankers feel that they will have no difficulty in interesting the legislature in the proposed remedial measures. It also was decided that group meetings in Oklahoma this year will be held during the month of February and these dates also will be announced later. Those attending the meeting of the executive committee were: Asa E. Ramsey of Muskogee, president of the association; Will S. Guthrie of Guthrie, first vice-president; W. B. Harrison of Enid, secretary, and G. E. Davis of Blackwell, H. S. Spaulding of Enid, A. E. Patrick of Chandler, Harold Wallace of Ardmore and Messrs. Churchill, Bryant and Heasty of Oklahoma City. The guests were entertained by Oklahoma City bankers at a luncheon at the Skirvin hotel.

New Trust Company for Omaha

Last week there was organized in Omaha a new trust company with a capital stock of $500,000 which will be known as the United States Trust Company. It will occupy quarters at 212 South Seventeenth Street for a short time. The officers of the new company are: Abraham L. Reed, president; Gurdon W. Wattles, vice-president; Harry G. Jordan, secretary and treasurer; Victor Caldwell, trust officer and J. T. Hilquist, assistant trust officer. The directors are: Casper E. Yost, Milton T. Barlow, Thomas A. Fry, Arthur D. Brandeis, E. M. Norsman, Sr., E. A. Duff, Charles Gruenig, Benjamin F. Smith, Charles W. Lyman, Gurdon W. Wattles, Victor B. Caldwell, Abraham L. Reed, and Harry G. Jordan. After the United States National Bank building at the northwest corner of Sixteenth and Farnum Streets is completed—sometime this year—the trust company will have handsome offices there. The charter authorizes the new trust company to operate safety deposit vaults, do a general farm and city loan business and administer trusts and estates.

Trust Company at Springfield

Organization of the new Southern Missouri Trust Company at Springfield, Mo., was completed last week and it is expected that business will start about February 10th, next. The authorized capital of the company is $200,000, half of which is paid up. The company will do a general banking and trust business and it has as its stockholders some of the best known business men of Missouri. W. M. Wade, former Missouri state bank examiner and now in business in St. Louis, was elected president: Jesse E. Tolerton, state game and fish warden under the Hadley administration, who was most active in forming the organization, is secretary and treasurer; F. Miller of Springfield is vice-president and the eleven directors are: W. M. Wade, Jesse E. Tolerton, L. E. Shattuck, W. E. Garrett, E. D. Levy, W. T. Tyler, George M. Sebree, Herbert S. Hadley of Kansas City, Dr. B. F. Fortner, and Major George H. McCann. With such backing it is believed that this will become one of the strongest financial institutions of interior Missouri.

Kansas City Clearings

From a record of only $20,000,000 cleared in 1875, when the clearing house was established, to $2,713,000,000 in 1912 is a showing that fairly taxes the imagination, and Kansas City bankers are more than proud of the figures. The record of the year 1875 would be surpassed by the clearings of three day's business in Kansas City now. This gives a fair idea of the growth of Kansas City industrially as well as financially within the past forty years. Commenting upon the situation Jerome Thralls, manager of the Kansas City Clearing House association, said: "The financial institutions of Greater Kansas City have closed a prosperous and highly satisfactory year's business. The clearings for the year ending December 31, 1912, show a substantial increase over the year 1911, and are the largest in the history of the city. The deposits of the clearing house banks of Kansas City, as shown by the last published statement, November 26, 1912, were $140,718,860, showing an increase for the year of $15,433,417, or 12.3 per cent. The total deposits of all banks of Greater Kansas City (forty-five in number) were $147,030,441. The prospects for the year 1913 are most excellent. The natural elements will overcome the slight tendency of slowing down which will prevail during the early months of the new year owing to the retarding influence occasioned by the clamor of pessimists and of a certain brand of politicians who are to the business world what cockleburs are to corn. Ninety-five per cent of the business of the great Southwest now is being transacted through the means of bank credits. Kansas City's financial institutions are undertaking to keep ahead of the procession from the point of strength, growth and service in a banking way. The capital and fixed surplus of her banks have increased 295 per cent during the past seven years, her deposits have increased 56 per cent during that period and her clearings have increased 126.5 per cent."

Farm Conditions

Snow which began falling Saturday night, January 4th, covered the ground for a depth of several inches before it stopped and bankers estimate that this moisture will be of great benefit to the wheat, much of which was planted late. Farm conditions for the most part have been very good during the present season, although in some places there was a severe scarcity of moisture for stock. "I have watched conditions in this part of the country for over twenty years," remarked Watt S. Webb, president of the Missouri Savings of Kansas City, "and I feel sure that this year will see wheat go into the spring in excellent condition. Further than that, of course, it would be impossible to predict. Farmers and stock feeders have had a good season, and stock especially, is in good shape. There have been few losses thus far and stock has required a minimum of feed. From now on in all probability the situation will be changed, but as there is an abundance of feed in the country I do not look for any hardships on the farms."

Favorable Conditions in Central West

In all of the towns and cities of the Central West the new year has opened auspiciously with conditions about normal. There have been comparatively few bank changes, the dividends running about the same as a year ago. Deposits have been picking up and the demand for money for feeding has been lighter than had been expected on account of the open weather for the latter part of the year 1912. For the week ending January 2d, Kansas City showed an increase of 6.4 per cent in bank clearings over the same period a year ago, while Omaha suffered a severe loss in the showing, owing almost entirely to the new system of clearing house accounts put into effect in that city January 1st. It is expected that on the face of the returns Omaha will show decided decreases for the entire year of 1913, although the volume of business probably will show a healthy growth and increase. ing the first year of the new system in Omaha, there will be no adequate standard of comparison with a year ago and this fact must be kept in mind by those examining the clearing house returns. For instance, the report of Omaha clearings for the week ending January 2d shows a falling off of 52.9 per cent, but with the change in clearing house returns in mind, the reader will not be misled into imagining that conditions are as bad as indicated.

Central West Notes

At a meeting of a number of Omaha bankers with members of the Omaha Commercial Club last week, tentative plans were made to secure a "Blue Sky" law for Nebraska at the coming session of the state legislature. A special committee of the Commercial Club will draft a bill to be patterned after the celebrated Kansas "Blue Sky" law and which will be designed to keep fraudulent, fake and insecure concerns from securing Nebraska money.

Announcement was made last week of the merging of the Ada (Okla.) National with the First National of that place. This will give Ada one of the largest financial institutions in Oklahoma.

Tandy A. Dunn, 60 years old, and treasurer of the Knights Templar of Missouri, died last week following an operation. He also was cashier of the Harrison County Bank of Bethany, Mo., his home town.

E. A. Sturgis, cashier of the Provident National of Waco, Tex., has handed his resignation to the board of directors and his successor will be chosen January 14th. Mr. Sturgis has been connected with the bank for eighteen years.

The Durant (Okla.) State Bank has been merged with the First National of that place. Both institutions were controlled by the same interests. The capital stock of the First National has been increased to $100,000.

The Commonwealth National of Dallas, Tex., moved into its new home last week where it will have most luxurious quarters. This building is one of the finest in the Southwest and was constructed by the bank at a cost of $600,000.

Just in time not to spoil the Kansas record of 1912 which did not have a single bank robbery, yeggmen blew the safe of the Liberty State Bank, near Independence, Kan., the night of January 5th and escaped with $3,000 of the bank's money. The loss was covered fully by insurance and no special attempt was made to capture the robbers.

The Texas department of banking has authorized the National Stock Yards National of National Stock Yards, Ill., as reserve agent for the Farmers and Merchants State Bank and Trust Company of Sweetwater.

E. R. Gurney, vice-president of the First National of Fremont, Neb., and vice-president for Nebraska of the National Citizens League for the Promotion of Sound Banking, will deliver an address before the convention of the Nebraska Lumber Dealers Association in Omaha, January 15th.

Charles H. Bissikummer, formerly active vice-president of the Albany (N. Y.) Trust Company, has been elected president of that institution.

SOME BANKS NEGLIGENT IN REGARD TO VERIFICATION BLANKS

Washington, January 7, 1913.—Comptroller of the Currency Murray to-day asked the national bank examiners to furnish him a list of the banks that during the past six months did not furnish information called for by the examiners for the purpose of reconciling accounts of banks under examination.

Complaints have been made by the examiners to the effect that certain banks, both state and national, do not return the verification blanks and in many cases it is necessary for an examiner to write several letters requesting that the blanks be filled in and returned in order that he may complete the verification of the accounts of a certain bank. The verification of bank balances is an improtant factor in the examination of a bank and it is not possible for the examiners to verify the accounts of banks without the information requested. Every bank knows this, and yet requests from the examiners sometimes are ignored.

The comptroller also will ask his examiners to send to him hereafter the names of all banks refusing or neglecting to return these verifications and also to notify the board of directors of the bank under examination that certain accounts could not be reconciled because the correspondents, naming them, would not fill out and return the verification blanks he sent them. In the case of national banks that neglect to reply to verification requests, the comptroller will send an examiner to the bank to ascertain why the information has not been furnished promptly.

OHIO BANK DEPOSITS

Savings deposits in Ohio banks and trust companies other than national banks have increased $13,275,612.77 in the last year, according to a report made by F. E. Baxter, superintendent of the state banking department. Such deposits carried by the banks in Ohio amount to $271,052,867, as compared with $257,777,254 last year.

FORMER U. S. TREASURER DEAD

Enos H. Nebeker, treasurer of the United States under President Benjamin Harrison, died recently at his beautiful home in Covington, Ind. Mr. Nebeker was born in Fountain county, Ind., in 1836, and always had resided in that community.

After a common school education and one term in the academy of Depauw University, Mr. Nebeker entered politics as a very enthusiastic republican. He was elected auditor of Fountain county in 1870 by a majority of 506 votes, a tribute to his popularity, as only democrats were elected in Fountain county as a rule in those days.

As a member of the Indiana state republican central committee he came into close touch with Benjamin Harrison, who then was a powerful figure in Indiana state politics. Mr. Harrison appointed Mr. Nebeker treasurer of the United States in 1891 and he served the position with honor and credit. He then retired to his home in Covington, where he since has resided quietly.

SAN FRANCISCO BANK COMMENTS ON FINANCIAL SITUATION.

Anglo and London Paris National of San Francisco has sent out an excellent financial monthly letter in which it sets forth the present conditions with which the country is confronted.

"The country begins the new year in the enjoyment of great prosperity somewhat tempered by political uncertainty, which, with respect to the nature and extent of impending tariff changes, and as to the attitude of the new administration toward our organization of industry, transportation and credit, operates to check production except for export and immediate domestic demand, and both in industry and the public services compels corporations to increase debt when they would prefer to increase share capital. And, as the pressure of new bond issues, especially those supported by the taxing power, the active business demand for money, the necessity of the smaller investors for higher interest and the monetary tension in Europe unduly have depressed the price of high grade bonds, many corporations of the highest credit are doing necessary financing with short term notes in the hope of lower interest rates when the notes mature. The European situation seems to be clearing gradually, but the peace which probably is impending is certain to be followed by the flotation of large loans by all the late belligerents for the purpose of funding the expenses of war. It will, however, relieve the tension and permit the normal flow of exchanges to be resumed. Opinions, however, differ as to the probability of any important reduction in interest rates after the new year settlements. The position of the United States in the world's money market is satisfactory."

The mining industries in California have made satisfactory gains, and there has been great activity in the application of water to beneficial use. The letter says there is a fair but steady stream of immigration. The total volume of trade has been larger than ever before.

The Farmers State Bank of Rogers, Tex., has opened for business with a $25,000 capital.

Banking news from Minneapolis—St. Paul financial center, and surrounding States, compiled by J. Edwards Smith

At the opening of the new year the Minneapolis Trust Company, the Minnesota Loan and Trust Company, the First National and the Northwestern National Banks found more than $1,675,000 in their receipt of over 400 checks from subscribers to new stock issues of the Northwestern Knitting Works and the Rogers Lumber Company, the issues totaling $2,200,000. Although only partial payments were required, nearly 80 per cent of the total was sent in. Clearings, without these checks, amounted to $5,820,557 the first working day, or a gain of $1,061,270 over 1911.

Ice Concern to Increase Capital

The Minneapolis leading ice concern, Cedar Lake Ice Company, has been allowed to increase its authorized capitalization from $600,000 to $1,000,000.

Finance $3,500,000 Bond Issue

Details have been arranged by Stevens, Chapman & Co., and the Minnesota Loan and Trust Company for financing the issue of $3,500,000 6 per cent first mortgage bonds indorsed by D. F. and A. S. Brooks and M. J. Scanlon, three leading lumbermen. The mortgage covers the plant of the Powell River Co., Ltd., Minneapolis, with mills and timber holdings at Powell River, B. C. The company was formed several years ago. Its paper mill began operation in May, 1912. This makes $5,700,000 financed by Minneapolis institutions in a short period.

Says Banking Appeals to Farmers

Banking as a business appeals more than any other vocation to farmers. D. D. Mayne, principal of the school of agriculture of the University of Minnesota, says that in an annual investigation of the occupations of graduates it is found that of those who have left the farms more have become bankers in the small communities of the state than have gone into other lines. Professor Mayne says it is safe to say that about 80 per cent of the school graduates engage in agricultural pursuits. "The 20 per cent readily is accounted for, as it is not to be expected that all the students know when they enter the school the vocation they most wish to follow, or for which they best are fitted," he said. "Every now and then we get a report from some alumnus who tells us he has left the farm and moved into town. Occupation? Banker. He has been depositing earnings in the neighboring bank so long that he has decided to take over the bank, or part of it. Perhaps city folk do not realize that, in general, the large part of all the deposits in all our country banks are made by farmers. Banking and farming have a close connection, and the transition from the farm to the counting office or directors' room is a natural one."

South St. Paul Clearings

With bank clearings for 1912 one-tenth as large as those of St. Paul, South St. Paul, the packing house suburb of the state capital, showed a gain of $16,110,000 over last year and of $10,036,000 over 1910, which had the previous high record in clearings. The total for 1912 was $56,500,000. Enlarged returns received by the farmers and shippers of live stock in that market are said to be the cause for the gain in totals; at the same time the receipts of cattle and sheep were under the 1911 figure. A larger percentage of the cattle and sheep received at the South St. Paul yards sold there in 1912 and the average price per head was better. The total receipts were 523,600 head of cattle and calves in 1912, as compared with 538,600 in 1911, but hog receipts were the highest in any single year, or 984,000 head against 911,000 in 1911. Some of the increased clearings are said to be traceable to new industries and the growth as a residence suburb.

Trust Companies Not Entitled to City Deposits

The city treasurer has decided that trust companies are not entitled to St. Paul city deposits as they do not come within the charter meaning of banks. He asked a formal opinion from the corporation counsel. The Capital Trust Company had asked for a share of the money.

St. Paul Investment Company Formed

The Farm Mortgage Bond Company has been organized by Butler Brothers, St. Paul, with $200,000 capital, to do business in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, and the Canadian Northwest. Officers will be: President, John A. Hartigan, former state insurance commissioner; vice-president, William Butler; secretary; Fred Sommers; treasurer, Walter Butler. The firm is an investment company, whose principal business will be farm mortgages. Bonds are to be issued against mortgages and sold.

"The company has been formed," said Mr. Hartigan, "to meet the growing demand for money on the part of farmers. All bond issues will be secured by mortgages deposited in trust companies. As mortgages are paid off the company will take other mortgages to cover the bond issue at all times. Our bonds probably will mature at twenty years and the dividends are to be declared semiannually. In time we expect to extend our operations to the Pacific coast."

Bankers Win Curling Trophy

The All-Bankers rink at Duluth has won the United States National bank curling trophy, four gold pins set with diamonds, for the team winning the most games in a specified time. The team is composed of C. Grace, skip; Delancey Webb, W. Bomerick and Joe Sauter. A ruling was made by Secretary Leslie Ross of the curlers that all games be played in one evening. The pins must be defended by the winning team every forty-eight hours and any rink may challenge the holders.

Only One Robbery In Two Years

Efficacy of the plan of being on good terms with the yegg men is illustrated by the report of C. D. Brown, head of the protective organization of the Minnesota Bankers Association. In two years there have been no bank burglaries in the state, except one in 1911. The office for protection was organized in 1908. The association has a completely equipped gallery of professional bank burglars with records of their past and present, and of their probable future movements.

Duluth Corporations

Three new Duluth corporations for the year have a total capitalization authorized of $605,000. They are the Duluth-Brainard Iron Company, capital $250,000; Scandia Fish Company, capital $5,000; Mutual Iron Mining Company, capital $350,000.

State Borrows Money

Minnesota again has had to seek the good offices of an "uncle," to tide over until the 1913 revenues come in. The state has had to borrow the largest amount of money in a year in its history. The amount was a paltry $3,272,333. The Merchants National, St. Paul, advanced $1,000,000, the Security National $680,000, Northwestern National, $369,187, First National, $192,614. The state is paying 5 per cent and has trouble in getting the money at that rate, says the treasurer.

School Children Thrifty

More than 4,000 new accounts were opened by the school children of Minneapolis in 1912, so that with the old accounts there is on deposit at the Farmers and Mechanics Savings Bank to their credit $38,292, divided among fifty-nine schools. More than 80 per cent in one school have accounts, and one-half the population of school children, or 24,432, have bank accounts.

St. Paul Clearings

For the first three days of the new year clearings in St. Paul banks continued the steady gain of last year. The increase over the first three days of 1912 was $2, 902, 620. The clearings amounted to $7,801,860. The gain the first working day was $1,244,519.

Northwest Notes

In the filing of incorporation papers, Minnesota had the biggest month in its history last December. One hundred and eleven companies with combined capital of $36,053,000 paid $21,035 for services into the state treasury.

E. W. Decker, president Northwestern National; C. T. Jaffray, vice-president of the First National; A. R. Rogers and John Birkholz, directors, are going to Texas January 15th to hunt javelins, quail and turkey.

The Farmers State of Monterey, Minn., is capitalized at $10,000. The incorporators are: E. W. Mayer, F. S. Schwalen, Triumph; A. J. Peterson, Carl Sjogren, C. A. Johnson, Monterey; Emil Olson, Odin; J. H. Erickson, A. H. Anderson, Charles Swanson, M. S. A. Johnson, Monterey; John Porisch, Alpha; Olaf Anderson, Sherburn.

The State of Erskine, Minn., has been sold to A. D. Stephens, Crookston, and P. F. Tappins of Hudson, Wis., together with local capitalists. Theodore Nelson, for several years connected with the bank was made cashier. It is proposed to make the institution a home bank as nearly as possible.

Albert Berg, former secretary of state in Minnesota, and retiring as president of the Security State of Spooner, Minn., was given a reception. He has closed out his interest in the institution.

The First State of Barrows, Minn., is expected to begin business February 1st. John Wahl and G. A. Ryberg of Duluth; Rudolph Klinkerberg, formerly assistant cashier of the Miners National of Eveleth, Professor Williams, superintendent of the high school; W. Nicolayson of Duluth, E. C. Vane of Brainerd and J. P. Ernster of Minneapolis are the incorporators. The officers: President, J. P. Ernster; vice-president, John Wahl; cashier, Rudolph Klinkerberg; assistant, Professor Williams. The building is two stories, of brick, and handsome design.

The Myers State of Wegdahl, Minn., closed by the state bank examiner, October 7th, has been given permission to reopen. The poor paper, which caused the closing of the bank, has been replaced by the stockholders in cash.

The Caledonia State, a new Minnesota institution, has been opened for business.

C. L. Strom, cashier of the Merchants and Manufacturers State, Minneapolis, has resigned to go into business. He has been with the bank five years.

The First National of Bessemer, Mich., the oldest on the Gogebic range, has moved into a new building, said to be the finest on the peninsula.

The Citizens State of Minneapolis is to open about January 15th at Bloomington avenue and Lake street. F. A. Samels is president, N. D. Samels and E. O. Gulack are vice-presidents and A. C. Stringer, cashier.

The Security State of Middle River, Minn., is a new bank with $10,000 capital. The surplus is $2,000.

In twelve years the output of Minnesota creameries has more than doubled and the revenue for sale of butter fat has more than trebled. Commissioner of Immigration H. J. Maxfield reports that in 1899 Minnesota had 582 creameries and in 1911, 814. In 1899 the creameries of the state made 44,007,933 pounds of butter as compared with 98,984,789 in 1911. In 1899 $6,959,915 was paid to farmers for butter fat, against $22,381,375 in 1911, a gain of $15,421,461. This is due in part to increase in prices. Said Mr. Maxfield:

"Dairying profitably is carried on in older states where land sells for much more than Minnesota land. If dairying is profitable on $200 land, it necessarily is much more profitable in Minnesota on land that costs only from $25 to $125 per acre."

Charles H. Darnell, 18 years old, employee of the Northwestern National, was court-martialed for failing to appear at drill with his militia company and had to serve time two days in jail. He failed to pay his fine in five days time allowed and had no alternative.

Swallowing the Second National, the First National of St. Paul has started in as a bank with $5,000,000 capital and surplus, instead of $2,000,000. The former employees of the Second were taken over, making ninety-four officials and clerks.

The Security State, $25,000 capital and $5,000 surplus, has opened at Concord and Winifred streets, backed by West Side men. The officers are: President, Chas. Christians; vice-president, F. P. O'Malley; cashier, F. L. Christians; other stockholders are Hugo Schroeckenstein, Theodore Wolff, Chas. F. Hochmuth, Charles Hochmuth, Samuel Bosshard, Charles Lehmann, W. F. Frautschi and R. A. Frautschi. The Christians, who carry the largest amount of stock, are from Iowa and have been bankers for years. The Security is to pay 4 per cent on savings and time accounts, which is the highest in the city. The Scandinavian-American has advanced from 2 to 3 per cent.

Plans for the new Merchants National will be delayed sixty days owing to a move to widen Robert Street, which the bank will face. The officers will oppose any plan to take the entire strip of twenty feet from one side the street. The bank is willing to give up 12½ feet, it is said.

Eighteen banks of Blue Earth county, Mankato, county seat, Minn., have deposits of $6,735,434 and loans of $5,437,846. When the statements were called for a year ago the deposits were $6,159,899. The gain of $600,000 is taken to represent to some extent the prosperity of the county.

"Present conditions would indicate that the coming year will witness great business activity," is the forecast of the Security National January digest of trade conditions.

"A careful comparison of the business situation at the beginning of 1913," it continues, "with the beginning of any previous year, say,

Brown's Linen Ledger Paper

It makes up into books that open flat — that stand hard usage, never turn yellow from age—that possess perfect writing and erasing qualities. It is Uncle Sam's Standard and preferred by State, County and City Governments and by big Corporations and Banks.

Brown's Linen Ledger is made of pure white rags—not of colored rags as are ordinary ledger papers which have to be bleached with strong chemicals. Strong chemicals remain in the paper fibre, cause the paper to grow dingy, turn yellow at the edges, become brittle, and these strong chemicals get to the binding of books and ruin them. No strong chemicals in Brown's Linen Ledger Paper.

Pacific Northwest Banking News

As marked by the bank clearings, Spokane has experienced a wholesome year in 1912, the figures showing an increase over 1911 of $5,499,230, or two and one-half per cent. Still further substantiation of claims that a revival of general business conditions would come during the last few months of 1912 is found in the clearings, which exceeded the $20,000,000 mark for the three successive months of October, November and December, whereas in only one month of 1911 was that figure passed. Total clearings for the year 1912 are $225,436,618, as against $219,937,388 in 1911.

Ten Spokane banks disbursed dividends of $531,000 during 1912. The others all made returns, which have been added to surplus and undivided profits. Exchange National and Traders National each paid $120,000, or 12 per cent on capital stock of $1,000,000. From December 5, 1911, to November 26, 1912, dates of the last statements issued in these years, deposits were increased by $1,501,508.64, amounting on the latter late to $32,150,367.47. Spokane banks now have invested $5,475,314.97.

Reviewing the bond and mortgage situation in Spokane, J. E. Ferris, manager of the bond and securities department of the Union Trust and Savings Bank, said:

"Spokane has been for many years the active growing center for a large number of dealers in securities, both bonds and mortgages. In municipal bonds alone, by most investors considered the ultra-conservative type of investment, and the source of credit for towns, cities, school districts, etc., it is probable that $3,000,000 or $4,000,000 of such securities were handled in 1912 by the trust companies of Spokane.

"In the financing of special propositions, including large land and development undertakings, the financing of the $750,000 Davenport hotel bond issue and others, a direct advantage to the community has been made possible.

"In the farm loan field, Spokane is without question the most important financial center in the West. At least four foreign companies have operated for many years throughout the Pacific Northwest, with headquarters in Spokane. Our two home life insurance companies have been a strong and desirable factor in bringing to Spokane and vicinity a large volume of wealth from outside sources.

"During a recent trip East, covering many weeks, I found all lines of business and manufacturing active, abundant crops, all tending to result in the accumulation of large funds, which, directly or indirectly, will come into the market for investment, and it is the encouraging effect of this wealth that will do much to stimulate general activity in new development and in all lines of business throughout the Spokane country."

Checks aggregating more than $280,000 on the $14,100,000 outstanding capital stock have been sent during the last few days to more than 1,300 stockholders of the Washington Water Power Company. This is the quarterly dividend of 2 per cent and brings the total disbursed by the company in 1912 to $1,120,000.

"During the year 1912 the Western Union Life Insurance Company, whose home office is in Spokane, made greater progress and gains than during any previous year," stated President R. Lewis Rutter at the close of business December 31st. "There were written 2,775 applications for new insurance, aggregating $5,563,605, an increase over 1911 of $876,567. The new business issued and paid for was $4,912,774, an increase over the preceding year of $675,871. This brings the number of policyholders to 9,919. The insurance in force increased $2,833,767, making the total amount $15,123,882. Every dollar of this insurance is on 'the old line' legal reserve plan, and under this law the company must maintain $1 of assets approved by the insurance department for each $1 of liabilities. The company not only meets this standard, but has admitted assets of $1.50 for each $1 of liability. The company has more than 200 agents in the field and twenty home office employees. The annual pay-roll in salaries and commissions is $166,554.11. Probably no institution of its kind can at its age show such a financial statement as the Western Union Life and be able to publish it to the public on New Year's day. The outlook for 1913 is very promising and in all probability the company will enter one or two adjoining states during the year."

Shareholders of the Spokane Savings and Loan Society received a semiannual dividend of 4 per cent at the close of 1912, bringing the year's total distribution to $25,000. This is exclusive of five per cent of the earnings which are added to the surplus before dividends are declared.

During 1912 the board of park commissioners expended $471,394.39 in the acquisition of 575.33 acres of park area, exclusive of 200 acres of valuable land received by donation. The present Spokane park area is 1,500 acres, exclusive of the right of way of the old Seattle, Lake Shore and Eastern railroad.

Sikko Barghoorn, general agent of the Netherlands-American Mortgage Bank, has acquired the palatial home in Rockwood addition of George W. Odell. Mr. Barghoorn's Spokane residence was traded in, together with cash of $15,000. The Odell home is valued at $40,000.

EDMONTON NEWS

Enormous increases over 1911 are reported in all lines of commerce, industry and finance in Edmonton for 1912, and it is predicted by conservative business men that the gains this year over last year will be proportionate at least, if not exceeding the present records. This also applies to central Alberta, a district of 200,000 square miles. The growth and progress of the city during the last twelve months is reflected by the reports of the various departments having charge of the public utilities, owned and operated by the municipality.

Bank clearings show a gain of approximately 100 per cent, the increase in the value of buildings erected is 291 per cent, and there are big increases in customs returns and postoffice receipts.

Total clearings for 1911 were $121,438,310; for 1912, $220,516,807.

Thirty-six hundred and fifty-four permits for buildings were issued in 1912. The amount involved was $14,702,239, as against $4,182,183 in 1911.

These figures do not include improvements and betterments at railroad shops, coal mines and other industrial enterprises in the suburbs of Edmonton, outside of the city limits.

The postoffice receipts, stamps only, were $160,812 in 1912, as against $114,565 in 1911, while customs receipts amounted to $1,507,629 as against $705,236 in 1911.

Wholesale and retail trade shows increases of from 57 to 125 per cent over 1911, despite the unusually high temperature in November and December, and the fact that numerous new stores were opened last year.

The municipality of Edmonton expended large sums of money for public improvements, the work in 1912 including the following: Sidewalks, 23.5 miles, total, 121 miles; trunk sewers, 13.4 miles, total 81.4 miles; connections in 1912, 1,616; boulevards, 8¾ miles, total 14½ miles; paving, 233,000 square yards, total, 437,233 square yards; graded streets, 250 miles completed; watermains, 17 miles, total, 94 miles, connections in 1912, 1,923.

The street railway department showed a surplus, the first in its history, due to heavy charges for improvements. The service handled 10,307,400 passengers in 1912, a gain of 100 per cent over 1911.

The electric light department reports a net surplus of $86,673. The total current supplied was 4,830,411 kw. The surplus for 1911 was $24,949. The department installed 111 power services, 2,118 light services and 346 arc lamps.

Clearing House Section to Collect Total Transactions

By O. HOWARD WOLFE, Secretary

Beginning with the first week in January, the clearing house section of the A. B. A. will begin to collect figures to be known as "Total Bank Transactions." These figures represent a new departure in the line of banking statistics, the decision to collect them having grown out of many ideas and suggestions received from our members in the course of our campaign to secure uniform clearing returns. Before explaining the idea further, however, we wish to make it very clear and emphatic that the new figures are not intended, in any way, to take the place of or conflict with the totals of clearances. These statistics have been compiled carefully for a period of years; they have a value and function quite apart, and they will continue to be published as heretofore.

It is as important and desirable now, as it ever has been, that all clearing houses should report to mercantile and other press agencies the total of one side only of the amount brought to the clearing house. This section does not intend to depart in any degree from its policy of advocating accuracy at all times in making these reports. Under our efforts, ably seconded by the editors of commercial lists, we are glad to note that the deplorable habit of padding clearings largely has been abandoned, to the great satisfaction of those associations which do not believe that local pride should warrant any inaccuracies whatsoever. Misleading figures have no place in the banking business.

The deposit-and-check system of banking has developed to such a remarkable extent in this country that the bank check, in spite of the fact that it is hampered somewhat by archaic collection systems and exchange evils in some quarters, has become the chief circulating medium of exchange. Let those who would revise our currency and banking system give close study to this not fully appreciated instrument of credit. The history of American banking for a hundred years has been a history of note issue. May not the next century see the completion of a perfect economic and efficient check-issue system as well?

With checks and drafts we transact more than 90 per cent of our business. In the attempt to feel this mighty pulse of commerce and judge of its fluctuations, the list of clearings is prepared. Clearings, however, represent bank exchanges; nothing so far as we know indicates the volume of exchanges between bank customers. We find in France and Germany that total clearings are insignificant compared to the totals representing transfers of funds between "open" or "running accounts" which correspond to our balances subject to check. One of the clearing house members of this section has been making some experiments and finds that the total amount of checks used in daily settlements is 120 per cent greater than that part of them which is cleared through the regular exchange at the clearing house. In preparing lists that show the amount of business cleared between banks, we have overlooked the volume that is handled in each individual bank as a clearing house between its customers. Furthermore, these figures easily are obtained and require no additional calculations or bookkeeping on the part of the banks supplying them to their own clearing house, to be, in turn, forwarded in total to this office.

Let us illustrate by referring to the general ledger statement. This is divided into two parts, assets and liabilities; for our purposes we need consider certain items under the liability side only. These are:

Individual deposits, subject to check. Certificates of deposit, time and demand. Due to banks and bankers. Savings deposits and general deposits.

The total daily debits against these items constitute the statistics which we now are collecting. It has been suggested that it would be easier to use "Total Deposits" and at first thought this appears to be so, but there are two good reasons why we should not adopt this method. First, the deposit is made up partly of checks and partly of currency and what we are after is the amount of business transacted without the use of currency. We already know to a penny the amount of per capita circulation. Second, it seems to us illogical that we should calculate business fluctuations on the basis of funds deposited; a considerable portion of such deposits representing savings against future transactions.

There has been some discussion on the point of including debits against bank deposits on the ground that such items represent a duplication. This partly is true, but on the other hand, do not the clearings of large cities represent deferred settlements of smaller centers? The clearings of New York City are made up largely of the final clearing of the exchanges of the entire country. Furthermore, must we not take into account the fact that the bank is a corporation whose drafts also must be included with the checks and drafts of other institutions?

Two items are to be excluded, however, although they are treated in the same manner as checks and drafts. These are cashiers' checks and certified checks, both of which represent a duplication of charges against deposit liabilities. Wherever the custom prevails of charging transit checks against reserve balances, thus reducing these balances, such figures are to be included, since this is only another method of employing the charge ticket. Distinguish, however, between the charge against "due from banks" (resource) and "due to banks" (liability).

A moment's thought will demonstrate how readily the desired figures may be obtained. We believe that when a majority of clearing houses furnish them, their value far will outweigh whatever may be said against their compilation. We again urge the members of this section, who have not already done so, to add their names to our list that it may be made as complete and extensive as possible from the beginning.

GROUP C, LOUISIANA

Group C, Louisiana Bankers Association, held its first annual session at Shreveport, January 8th, an attractive program being provided for the occasion. H. R. Eldridge, president of the Texas Bankers Association and vice-president of the First National of Houston, told of the benefits to be derived from the group system; J. T. Bullen, engineer in charge of good roads, Caddo Parish, spoke on the value of good roads; W. M. Deas, cashier of the First National of Arcadia, talked on the handling of cash and other details in an interior bank, and Mason Snowden, Louisiana state agent, Farmers Co-Operative Demonstration Work, told of farm demonstration work in Louisiana. Entertainment consisted of a trip to and the inspection of the industries at Cedar Grove, a special train on the Kansas City Southern being provided. There was an informal smoker at the Columbia Club at 8 P. M. Ben Johnson of Mansfield is chairman of the group; S. H. Hill of Natchitoches is vice-chairman and J. W. McDonald of Minden, secretary-treasurer.

GOOD ROADS MEN AT TUSCOLA

Bankers, farmers, merchants, automobile owners and highway commissioners gathered in the opera house at Tuscola, Ill., at ten o'clock on the morning of January 4th, under the auspices of the Douglas County Good Roads Association. The township in which Tuscola is located has some excellent earth roads. A system of ditch drainage, well-graded roads and the good care given by the local highway commissioners has produced splendid results for this township. Out of the town of Newman, which is located in an adjoining township in Douglas County, four and one-half miles of excellent brick road have been built at a cost of nearly $9,000 per mile. These examples of road improvement naturally have had a stimulating effect upon all of the people of Douglas County, and consequently there is great interest in the subject of good roads.

Highway Commissioner Seipp called the meeting to order and introduced W. G. Edens of Chicago, president of the Illinois Highway Improvement Association and assistant secretary of the Central Trust Company of Illinois, who presented the legislative plan of the Illinois Highway Improvement Association, making arguments on behalf of each of its provisions. At the close of the meeting resolutions were offered by S. Y. Whitlock, cashier of the First National of Tuscola, endorsing the good roads movement and thanking Mr. Edens for his address.

A. W. Wallace, president, S. Y. Whitlock, cashier and W. Iles, director of the First National, A. W. Bragg, president, Grover Helm and Bentley Van Voris of Bragg, Helm & Co. and Henry C. Jones, cashier of the Farmers and Traders Bank of Tuscola, all are interested greatly in the development of good roads. Highway Commissioners Seipp, Rideout and Norris of Douglas County, all are working for the improvement of local roads; Thomas Lyons, president of the Arcola State Bank, is a firm believer in the improvement of earth roads, and thinks that a great deal of good can be accomplished by the adoption of some systematic plan.

NEW CHICAGO PUBLISHING HOUSE

A new publishing house has been established in Chicago by F. G. Browne, for many years head of the publishing interests of A. C. McClurg & Co. Mr. Browne will have associated with him Frank L. Howell, who for years has been traveling book salesman for McClurg's, lately covering the eastern territory. The firm name will be F. G. Browne & Co., and it is the plan to issue a general line of books, specializing on popular fiction. The first book bearing the imprint of the new firm will be published in January and will be called "The Lapse of Enoch Wentworth," by Isabel Gordon Curtis, author of "The Woman from Wolverton." Mr. Browne's literary equipment and business experience, together with his knowledge of book manufacture, make him peculiarly fitted for his new venture, and he will have an able assistant in Mr. Howell, who enjoys the acquaintance and friendship of the book trade in every part of the country.

Mrs. A. B. Funk, wife of the late Spirit Lake banker who died recently, was the first white child born in the northern tier of counties in Iowa west of Winnebago county. Since her death, Mr. Funk has not been in good health and it is anticipated that he will leave Iowa.

Des Moines, Jan. 10th.—Des Moines bankers still are talking about the address on the famous Kansas "Blue Sky" law which J. N. Dolley, commissioner of banking in that state, gave at the January meeting of the Des Moines Bankers Club. The meeting was attended largely and was extremely enthusiastic. Interest in a "Blue Sky" law for Iowa is at fever heat and it is regarded as a certainty that legislation along that line will be enacted at the coming session of the legislature. Senator J. F. Webber of Ottumwa, who will father a bill along that line at the coming general assembly, was an interested listener at the Dolley meeting.

In addition to giving a complete exposition of the "Blue Sky" law and the way it is saving the people of Kansas millions of dollars, Mr. Dolley gave a brief résumé of the banking laws of Kansas. The methods of supervision there, such as the right to compel cashiers to take an examination and the power to forbid the organization of a bank in a community that is thought to be sufficiently well supplied, proved eye-openers to the Iowa bankers. Auditor Bleakly and Bailey Ellis, chief clerk in the state banking department, were interested especially in this feature of the address.

Mr. Dolley did not mince words in dealing with those whom the Kansas "Blue Sky" law is designed to bar from the Sunflower state. "Confidence men," "bunco steerers," "thieves"—these expressions were used without an instant's faltering. The speaker did not hesitate also to declare that many of the sellers of bogus stock who were ousted from Kansas now are robbing the people of Iowa of thousands and thousands of dollars. He declared that many of the letters which he has received from parties asking about different stock concerns which he has investigated are from Iowa and some from Des Moines.

"One of the stock salesmen from a fake concern told me that he first approaches the banker. If he fails to land him, he tries the lawyer. His next attempted victims are those preachers who get over $1,000 per year. And if he fails to land any of them, he declares the town is Jonahed and gets out of it," said Mr. Dolley.

The commissioner scored those bankers who give endorsement to fake schemes and paid his respects to "dummy directors" in no uncertain terms.

Alleged Robbers in Jail

Secretary Hall of the Iowa Bankers Association was overjoyed when notified that four men, believed to make up the gang which robbed the Citizens State of Goldfield and escaped with $4,000 three weeks ago, were in jail in St. Paul. The arrests were made by Charles D. Brown, detective for the Minnesota Bankers Association upon information furnished by Gust Patek, Iowa representative of the Burns Detective Agency, which has charge of the protective work for the I. B. A. Mr. Brown has the reputation of knowing more yeggs than any man in the Middle West and it was not difficult for him to locate the parties from the complete descriptions furnished him by Detective Patek. The latter did some exceptionally clever work. He found that two of the gang had gone to St. Paul and the other two had gone to Sioux Rapids, from where they went to St. Paul. He obtained descriptions of the men, notified Mr. Brown and when the quartette landed in St. Paul all were picked up and sent to the workhouse as vags pending the securing of requisition papers. The postoffice authorities were given one of the men to answer charges of postoffice robberies. The other three are James Simpson, alias Kimmie Foley, alias "Canada Johnny"; Mike Murray, alias "Mickey McDermott"; Rollis S. Russell, alias "Kid Martin." The Goldfield robbery was particularly bold. The men tried to escape in a livery rig, but had a runaway. Later blood hounds were put on the trails and furnished some valuable clues upon which Detective Patek worked in securing descriptions of the men.

Interest in Corn-growing Contests

Unusual interest has been attracted this year to the various corn growing contests held throughout Iowa. The season was most favorable and the corn produced was excellent. The largest amount in prizes given by any one institution was by the Des Moines Capital, which awarded $515 to a number of boys who grew the most corn on single acres of Iowa farms. A bulletin from Ames College shows that the following banks offered $10 in cash for the best ears and ten-ear samples exhibited from their respective samples at the Ames short course. First National, Pocahontas; First National, Fort Dodge; First National, Muscatine; First National, Waverly; Peoples Trust and Savings, Clinton; Adel State, Adel; German Savings, Lake Park; Security Trust and Savings, Charles City; City Bank, Jefferson; Farmers National, Webster City; Hubbard State, Hubbard; Holstein Savings, Holstein; Monticello State, Monticello; Castana Savings, Castana; Farmers Savings, Emmetsburg; Shenandoah National, Shenandoah; Iowa National, Davenport; Shelby County Bank, Harlan; First National, Hawarden; Winneshiek County State, Decorah; Worth County State, Northwood; Clarion Savings, Clarion; First National, Grundy Center; Cedar County State, Tipton; Madison County Bank, Winterset; Simmons & Co., Osceola; Rockwell City Savings, Rockwell City; Mt. Ayr Bank, Mt. Ayr; First National, Spencer; Story County Bank, Ames; Lyon County Bank, Rock Rapids. Here is an indication of the awakened interest in agricultural improvement on the part of Iowa bankers. Many Iowa banks conducted corn shows of their own and hundreds of dollars in prizes were given away. Many Iowa banks also have given prizes for road improvement and these have resulted in much good in the way of enthusiasm for better highways.

Christmas Clubs

Christmas Clubs have been forming with considerable popularity in many of the cities of the state, with the bankers in the leading rôles of promoters. The idea is that on the day after Christmas accounts are opened for the purchase of Christmas presents next year. There are various classes in which the money is to be placed and each class is designated by the amount to be deposited each week. The bank pays 4 per cent. Two weeks before Christmas the institution mails the depositor a check for the deposit with interest. The Cedar Rapids Savings and the Commercial National of Waterloo are two banks which have started Christmas Clubs, but it is probable that there are many others, as the idea seems to catch the popular fancy.

Want Postal Savings Bonds

Postal Savings bonds to the value of $7,200 were sought by fifty-one postal savings departments for distribution January first. Registered bonds for investment were asked and the largest requests came from Des Moines, $3,700; Albia, $3,500; Council Bluffs, $2,860; Ottumwa, $1,400; Muscatine and Decorah, $800 each; Fort Madison, $560; Sioux City, Centerville, Belmond and Perry, $500 each. This is an increase in applications of 41.4 per cent over July 1st, when $12,160 of the bonds were sought.

Prosperous Iowa Bank

J. F. Thompson, president of the Winnebago County State of Forest City, has written to a Des Moines newspaper relative to the announcement in a recent issue that the Iowa Loan and Trust of Des Moines expects to pay a 100 per cent dividend. Although this report has been denied. Mr. Thompson says it isn't unusual in the institution over which he presides. He declared that his bank twice has paid dividends of 100 per cent, twice paid dividends of 50 per cent and once paid one of 40 per cent. Its total earnings for thirty-seven years have averaged 16 per cent per annum to its stockholders. Mr. Thompson concludes this interesting letter by stating that he has been at the head of the bank longer than the president of any other bank in the state of Iowa.

Well Known Philanthropist Ill

Joseph Sartori, the well-known Cedar Falls philanthropist who recently set aside enough money for a hospital and a big annuity besides, has been taken to California by his son, J. F. Sartori, president of one of the biggest banks in Los Angeles. The elder Sartori was very ill and it was feared he would not live, but according to reports, he reached Los Angeles in good condition and had a comfortable journey.

Narrow Escape

Manning Martin, well-known Des Moines investment broker, and his father, C. H. Martin, president of the Peoples Savings of this city, had a narrow escape from injury when their automobile, with young Martin at the wheel, collided with another car on Grand Avenue. Both cars were going at a good rate of speed and were damaged badly. How the parties escaped injury is considered a miracle. Too much traffic was responsible for the crash.

Des Moines Clearings

Des Moines bank clearings, which showed a splendid gain for the year ending December first, kept up the good work for December, also. Total for the month was $20,005,174.41, as compared with $17,799,494.76 for the corresponding month last year. The gain is $2,205,679.65. The total for the year ending December 31st was $236,472,558.62.

Big Gain in Davenport Clearings

Davenport is patting itself on the back for the showing of clearings during the year of 1912. The total was shown to be $84,158,171. A Davenport paper publishes a statement showing clearings for each year from 1906 to the present. In 1906 the clearings totaled only $53,821,614. This is a remarkable increase and shows the strides made by Davenport financially. The headquarters which have been at the Farmers and Merchants this year will be at the Citizens Trust and Savings, following the custom of passing the thing around.

Bank Moves Into New Building

The Iowa State Bank and Trust Company of West Liberty has moved into its handsome new quarters and the officials are entertaining scores of delighted patrons. The new structure is two stories high, built of Bedford stone. The columns, which are so popular these days in the construction of bank buildings, have been placed in the front of this structure and extend the entire height, giving a most metropolitan effect. The fixtures are of mahogany and Colorado marble. The bank was organized in 1897 and the deposits now are $340,000.

Bank Supervision

The placing of the private banks of Iowa under state supervision, just as are the state and savings banks, is going to be a live topic when the legislature meets. This has become apparent from conversations with various bankers, and from items which are appearing in state papers relative to the recent meeting in Des Moines of the legislative committee. It is believed that the bankers' association committee is in sympathy with this proposed change, but friends of the bill, recalling the experience of the Illinois association, are not going to ask the members to vote on the question.

South Dakota Notes

B. R. Henderson has been arrested at Huron upon complaint of State Bank Examiner Wingfield who charges that Henderson is guilty of irregular practices and of making false statements by publication and to the state examiner. About a year ago, the state department suspended the Henderson Bank at Wessington upon the belief that he was not obeying the state law and his arrest almost a year later caused some little surprise. Some sensations are promised when the case goes to trial.

The new State Bank at Wakonda is completed and the institution is ready for business. The structure is of brick and marble and is declared to be remarkably attractive.

The Martin State of Martin has filed articles with the secretary of state. The capital stock is $10,000. Incorporators include T. C. Torrison, M. M. Cummings, Charles Allen and J. J. Boese.

A young farm hand named Brown made an attempt to do some business with a forged check at Woonsocket but C. N. White, a merchant, became suspicious and caused the youth's arrest.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IA., CLEARINGS

Cedar Rapids, Ia., clearings for 1912 exceeded those of 1911 by almost eight millions. The bank clearings for 1912 aggregated $74,224,892.47; those for 1911 amounted to $66,295,274.97. This is an increase of nearly 12 per cent in the business done in Cedar Rapids during 1912 as compared with 1911, a fact which is indicative of the rapid strides which Cedar Rapids is making.

CHAPTER RECORD

(Department of Chicago Banker)

An Open Forum Dedicated to the American Institute of Banking in Which to Advance the Great Movement for Systematic Education and Universal Membership

PITTSBURGH CHAPTER NEWS

Lawrence O. Murray, comptroller of the currency, addressed the Pittsburgh Chapter, American Institute of Banking recently. Mr. Murray's address dealt with the office he holds and he emphasized its powers and its lack of power. He stated that the law is weak in many fundamental points that are vital to banking interests. After pointing out the remarkable growth of the banking power in this country in the past fifty years, he added that the power of the comptroller had not been increased a particle in the past forty-nine years of expansion, being much less than that of many state superintendents of banks. In speaking of safeguarding the organization of national banks he stated that the real test of the progress of the national banking system is not how many national banks were organized in any given year, but how many good national banks were organized. He said:

"I believe in the organization of banks by men who will manage them in accordance with law and the regulations of the comptroller's office based upon that law. But first of all, there must be a field for the bank where it can prosper, grow strong, and be a safe place for the funds of the depositing public. The comptroller is not doing his duty if he permits a bank to be launched upon a community when every precaution has not been taken to insure the fact of its good management and its ultimate success."

With reference to boards of directors of national banks, he said:

"I do not believe in any man being a director of a national bank who is a mere figurehead; nor in men being put on as directors simply for advertising purposes. No man with the interest of the bank at heart and with his oath of office in mind, honestly can remain as a director of a bank to which he pays little or no attention. What I do believe in is a board of directors made up of representative business men of the community; men who take an oath to administer the bank's affairs faithfully and then live up to that oath both in letter and in spirit. A bank with that kind of directoral control does not fail."

On the question of bank supervision, Mr. Murray said that bank examiners never will be a credit to the government nor as effective as they ought to be until the bank act is amended properly. The thing to do is to get the best men that can be had and to do the best that can be done with the law as it is. It is fair to state that national bank examinations in many sections of the country have not had the confidence of the bankers. No man sitting at a desk in Washington in the capacity of an executive can know what a hundred men are doing in the field. It has been his effort to get good men for examiners; to give them his heartiest support when they were right; to reverse them promptly when they were wrong; to work in full co-operation with the superintendent of banking of the various states in order that bad banks and bad bankers might be eliminated; to have the national, the state and all clearing house examinters work together to improve their work, and thus to get a better reflection of general conditions for the supervising authorities. He has stood for directoral control in the banks and firmly believes that without it we are going to have at all times a percentage of weak banks bordering on insolvency and occasionally some of them going to the wall.

In closing his address, Mr. Murray made the following personal appeal to the members of the chapter:

"You must believe in yourself and realize that your greatest enemy is your own lack of ambition. You should love the work you are in and try to do whatever comes before you a little better than the other fellow can do it. Be practical, be earnest, and most of all, keep yourself prepared for better positions. When you become the executive officers of banks in a few years, as many of you will, stand firmly for clean banking; stand against speculation. Whatever the law may be under which you operate, observe it to the letter so that you can say to all the world—this bank is operated in accordance with the law under which it is chartered. Establish the reputation of being a level-headed conscientious banker. Build it on honor and ability and have no fear of any adverse criticism of your future, which I hope may be full of success honestly won."

CHICAGO CHAPTER BANQUET JAN. 18th

Chicago chapter, American Institute of Banking, will give its twelfth annual banquet, Saturday evening, the eighteenth of January, at six o'clock in the Red Room, the Hotel La Salle. This will be the social event of the year for the chapter and all preparations have been completed to make it a success. The speakers for the evening have been very carefully selected and are well known to Chicago chapter members, all being Chicago men and actively engaged in Chicago's affairs, excepting Byron W. Moser, president of the association, who is associated with the St. Louis Union Trust Company of St. Louis, and who, on account of his Institute activities, needs no further introduction.

A. C. Bartlett, president of Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co., will give an address on "Good Citizenship"; Charles H. Wacker, chairman of the Chicago Plan Commission, will give a talk on "A Phase of the Chicago Plan"; John E. W. Wayman, ex-state's attorney, has selected "Partisanship" as his subject; Douglas Hawley Cornell, pastor of the Glencoe Union Church, will give a talk on "Margins," and President Moser will dwell on the subject of "The Institute." In addition to the excellent list of speakers, high-class entertainment will be provided, which will go toward making this event profitable and enjoyable to all in attendance.

The menu card will be unique and original and will serve as a very appropriate and handsome souvenir. From all indications up to the present time this banquet will be the best and have a larger attendance than any previous banquet. Officers of the Chapter hope that all bank officials and chapter boys will find it convenient to be present.

ant cashier; all of the directors of the Franklin Trust were re-elected for the ensuing year.

Directors of the Illinois Trust and Savings, at their meeting held Thursday, voted the transfer of $1,000,000 from undivided profits to surplus fund. This action increases the surplus to $10,000,000, making surplus and capital $15,000,000. There still is more than $50,000 in the undivided profits account. All of the officers were re-elected by the directors.

All officers and directors of the Standard Trust and Savings, Home Bank and Trust Company and Mid-City Trust and Savings, were re-elected at annual meetings held this week.

The annual meeting of the Central Trust Company of Illinois will be held Monday, January 13th.

LARGE BANK EARNINGS

The State Bank of Chicago in 1912 earned 31 per cent on its $1,500,000 capital stock. The bank easily could increase its 12 per cent dividend rate, but it is stated officially that there is no immediate intention of doing so. The stock has been strong recently, sales being reported at 404. Corn Exchange National stock was strong at 428 bid. Continental 310.

BANK PRESENTS CITY WITH CLOCK

American Trust Company of South Bend, Ind., has presented the public with a handsome post clock, on the northwest corner of Washington Avenue and Michigan Street, the location of the company. The clock probably is the largest post clock to be found in any city of the United States. It weighs approximately 4,500 pounds. It has four dials, each of which is four feet in diameter. The height of the post from the sidewalk to the top is twenty-two feet. The dials are illuminated from the inside by a cluster of incandescent lights. It is an eight-day clock operated by a lead weight which weighs 150 pounds. In connection with the clock the American Trust has installed on its building electrical tubular chimes, which are struck every quarter hour.

The Detroit Trust Company elected Wm. R. Kales, of the Whitehead & Kales Iron Works, a director to succeed the late Ammi W. Wright.

BIG STOCK PURCHASE

Word comes from New York that Albert H. Wiggin, president of the Chase National, has purchased 15,000 of the bank's shares from the First Security Company. The price paid for the stock has not been given out. Shares of the bank have been quoted at 760 bid and 790 asked. At the lower figure the total price would be $11,400,000. It is said that the price paid by Mr. Wiggin was below that amount.

MONEY SITUATION

The first break below 6 per cent was reported on Tuesday, loans being made at 5½ per cent. On Wednesday the rate was as low as 5 per cent for call money. This rate, however, was not general, the minimum rate in many of the larger banks being 5½ per cent and the grain rates 5½ to 6 per cent. Funds are closer in the commercial banks as a rule than in the trust companies. The commercial banks are well loaned up and as yet have not received a very great amount of currency back from the country. A small amount of the highest class of commercial paper was discounted at 5 per cent during the week.

five, ten or twenty years ago, will show that all things considered present conditions are highly satisfactory. A considerable reduction in the cost of foodstuffs, together with some material wage increases has improved the condition of the people generally and increased business activity, has made it possible for some of the large interests again to make wage advances. Average commodity prices are higher, but the average price of these things consumed by the individual, sueh as foodstuffs, is notieeably lower. The tremendous crops produced this year have made this possible."

Dakota Nctes

According to the annual report of Doane Robinson of the South Dakota agricultural college, the value of the farm and mineral products of the state is estimated at $92,-237,000. Figuring the population at 633,518 the per capita amount is $303.

As part of the building boom at Britton, S. D., the First National is to build an addition to its structure and add a second story. Several other business buildings are planned.

One of the new South Dakota banks is the Martin State, at Martin, capital $10,000. The incorporators are: T. C. Torrison, M. J. Cummings, C. S. Allen and J. J. Boese, all of Martin.

F. G. Kurts, defaulting cashier of the German-American of Witten, S. D., indicted on two charges to which he pleaded guilty, has been sentenced to one year and one day on one charge, and six months on the other. He was arrested for manipulating accounts and embezzlement of funds. Depositors are expected to lose nothing, or little, due to adjustment of the bank affairs.

B. C. Maynard, cashier for the First National at Bristow, Neb., has become assistant cashier for the Gregory County State, Fairfax, S. D.

T. S. Buringrud of Waterville, Iowa, has bought the interest of H. N. Hanson in the Bucyrus State (N. D.) and will become cashier.

The First State of Norge, N. D., has been incorporated with $15,000 capital, by E. F. Volkman and B. H. Edminster, Fessenden.

Dividend checks for 10 per cent have reached depositors in the Meade County Bank at Sturgis, S. D., which closed a year ago. Deposits were more than $750,000. The dividend is the second 10 per cent payment.

SHAW AND LAUGHLIN TESTIFY

Washington, Jan. 8th.—An emphatic warning from former Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw that a central reserve bank such as proposed by the national monetary commission would be controlled absolutely by Wall Street, and a technical discussion by Professor J. Laurence Laughlin of the University of Chicago of the operation of the proposed divisional reserve banks featured today's hearing before the Glass subcommittee of the house banking and currency committee.

MAINLY ABOUT BANKS AND BANKERS

MR. DOWNING is a member of the Big Council for Kentucky. Is vice-president and cashier of the Georgetown National. We have heard from many members to practically the same effect.

JUDGE LANDIS on the banking laws of Illinois, in another column, will be interesting reading.

LUCKY we have such judges and such courts as federal courts. The Kirby perjury case went through the county court without ruffling a feather.

AFTER the whole frame-up had been exposed before Judge Landis, did the county court become indignant, start an inquiry and try to punish the witnesses who had committed perjury before it?

DID the county court try to punish the attorneys who suborned the perjury and set up the frame-up?

NOT on your life! It remained for the federal judge and luckily he was on the job.

ONE of the big Chieago dailies could make a ten strike by digging up the records and letting the public know what has become of the other cases against failed private banks. Not in ten years has one of them been punished. Neither would Kirby have been punished but for the courage and acumen of the attorneys for the Central Trust Company of Illinois, receiver for the failed bank, backed up by an upright federal judge.

R. C. STEPHENSON of South Bend, head of the savings bank section, A. B. A., was a Chicago visitor on Thursday. He's right orthodox on the subject of the new constitution.

BANKER ARMSTRONG of Salt Lake spent a few days in Chicago recovering from his experiences with the Pujo committee at Washington.

AS to the May meeting of the Big Council. Members of Council are to vote on the place of holding it. Briarcliff Manor, Atlantic City, or Hot Springs, Va.

RATES are the best; the eats are good, too, at Briarcliff and the house can be had exclusively, say for May 5th, and Secretary Babcock has set his trust company section dinner for May 9th at the Waldorf. See the point?

RATES are the best; the eats are good, sleep two in a bed at Hot Springs, so they tell us now. Railway connections are not very good and the hotel wants to delay the meeting to May 19th, which is Missouri's date for its annual eonvention.

THE Missouri convention is of seeondary importance only to the national meeting at Boston. Furthermore, Missouri has, in officers and by election, six members of the Big Council who will want to attend both meetings.

RATES at Atlantic City as yet would burden the A. B. A. with at least $1,500 more expense than either of the other places. Manager White of the M. B. must be off his putting game.

WELL, there you are with all the dope. Vote as you like and send in early for your compartment on the Chicago Special, wherever the meeting goes.

UNLESS Atlantic City makes the rates satisfactory she will not be in the voting list at all.

MORGAN BANK DEPOSITS ASTOUND WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 8th.—Very few of even the best informed financiers in Wall Street were prepared to-day fully to comprehend that J. P. Morgan & Co. have control of $162,000,000 of idle capital sent to them for investment by customers. If Mr. Morgan himself had not sent to the Pujo committee at Washington a statement showing the exact amount of money he is carrying on deposit in the chain of banks he controls, the report would not have met with such credence.

When it is known that only three financial institutions in the country carry aggregate deposits exceeding the $162,000,000 on deposit with the house of J. P. Morgan & Co., a better idea of the situation can be gained. These institutions are the National City Bank of New York, with total deposits when the last report was made in November of $211,416,-608; the Continental & Commercial National of Chicago, $169,503,435, and the Guaranty Trust Company of New York (a Morgan concern), $168,417,464.

FRANKLIN TRUST AND SAVINGS INCREASES CAPITAL

Stockholders of the Franklin Trust and Savings at a meeting this week ratified the previous action of the board of directors of the bank increasing the capital stock of the institution to $300,000 and the surplus to $87,500. The new stoek will be issued at once. This action was brought about by the absorption of the Douglas State Bank by the Franklin Trust and Savings about a month ago.

CHICAGO'S VISITORS

Among the out-of-town bankers seen in Chicago's financial district recently were: E. A. Durham, president of the Tyler County Bank, Sistersville, W. Va.; M. B. Wheelock, cashier of the Citizens State, Colfax, Ia. Mr. Wheelock is a good roads enthusiast and is taking an active part in the work of "Pulling Iowa out of the Mud."

E. L. Coyle, vice-president of the German-American State Bank of Gridley, Ill., and H. S. Drum, cashier, were Chicago visitors Tuesday. The German-American was started in 1911 with capital of $25,000 and has enjoyed a steady growth since the beginning. These gentlemen now are considering the establishment of the German State Bank at Roanoke in Woodford County, to be capitalized at $25,000 and to have $5,000 surplus. Both Mr. Coyle and Mr. Drum are capable, experienced bankers and business men. They feel that they have a good prospect in view both at Gridley and Roanoke.

Wilson H. Doe, cashier of the Home National and Home Trust and Savings Banks of Eglin, Ill., passed through Chicago on Monday en route to Corpus Christi, Tex., for a much-earned vacation. It is imagined that Mr. Doe will take part in the splendid duck shooting which prevails in the Corpus Christi country. Mr. Doe is one of the best known of Illinois bankers. He has taken an active part in group and state association work and has served on the Illinois council. He has been with the Home National for thirty years, twenty-two years of this time as cashier, and has seen many changes in local, Chicago and Illinois banking affairs.

with quite a chunk yet under cover. Can you beat it?

FEW towns the size of Monticello can boast of a bank having $2,000,000 in resources, with competition, as it is in Iowa, at every village. It's a great state! Can any other beat the showing of Monticello State Bank?

OUR good friend, P. C. Kauffman, secretary and general manager of the W. B. A., is ill at ease. He fears that during his illness some of his friends may have been overlooked when the Seventeenth Annual Proceedings book was sent out.

NATURALLY he's very proud of it, for the convention was a record event, even for Kauffman. We got our copy and gave it a nickel plated, hand polished notice which we are sorry Honorable Kauffman didn't see.

YOU can't afford to miss THE CHICAGO BANKER, even when ill. H. E. Otte had his nurse read sections of it to him in preference to some farm stuff [illegible] by Chapman, Edens, Vincent [illegible]

[illegible] he A. B. A. [illegible] wrote to a [illegible] the other day [illegible] arrell is the greatest [illegible]

[illegible] course it's no small job to collect in the [illegible] from 13,000 A. B. A. members—from [illegible] hate to pay away money as bankers [illegible]

[illegible] a tip to Graham of Baltimore and [illegible] prospective candidates at Boston: [illegible] have to go some to beat the stunts performed by our Chicago man.

SECRETARY WOLFE of the Clearing House section will begin about now to collect the figures on "Total Bank Transactions."

THIS is something new that grew out of tips and suggestions from A. B. A. members interested in clearing house work. That human dreadnaught, Van Vechten, has been pushing it along and piling up an unbeaten record for himself in clearing house section development.

GOOD joke on Fred C. Hill, secretary for group 9, Missouri. He sent out his 1912 annual (a dandy, too) statement dated "1812."

HILL'S bank is the Montrose (Mo.) Savings, a roll-of-honor institution which keeps all hands busy these prosperous times.

FIRST NATIONAL, Philadelphia, has sent out "Credit Service," one of the best bank booklets extant. Vice-president Wm. A. Law will be glad to send you one.

"WE SOLICIT YOUR ACCOUNT" is the frank opening line on the statement folder sent out by the Lawrence County Bank at Pierce, Mo. Wm. A. Rhea, a group worker, is the cashier. Bank has had a very prosperous year.

NO one knows but Farnsworth where the next meeting of the council will be held. Perhaps at Hot Springs, Va., but by preference (ours at least) at Biarcliff. Those who were at that beautiful place last May are entitled to a chance to see its beauties when it isn't raining.

"G. P. A." LANDMAN of the Michigan Central thinks the big Boston Special should go east via Detroit. J. H. Johnson, Wm. Livingston, and Emory W. Clark are in accord. What do you think? There are those who believe the "Century" quite equal to the "Wolverine." What?

JOSEPH R. NOEL, president of the North West State, as chairman of the committee on thrift and savings for Illinois, A. B. A., has secured invitations for members of his committee to the Fellowship Dinner on January 22d.

THE occasion will be the mid-year meeting of the I. B. A. executive council, under the chairmanship of Col. John S. Aisthorpe of Cairo.

THE council will meet in the afternoon, and so will Dr. Noel's committee, and the dinner will come at 6:30 p. m. in the Florentine Room. Strictly informal.

GEORGE F. ORDE, Minneapolis, says business up there, and especially in the First National, is unusually brisk for the time of year. Furthermore, it promises to keep up. All indications point toward increased prosperity.

PRIVATE banking is prohibited practically in Ohio this year under the new constitution. Must be under state supervision, which usually brings about incorporation. Has worked that way in other states.

ANOTHER new deal in Ohio is the double liability on bank stocks even on the unpaid portion where only part payment has been required.

OREGON has a brand new "Blue Sky" law and other states are expecting a similar one. The "fake security" man is going to be forced to lead the simple life. Probably he will go back to the farm.

ILLINOIS likely will have bills up for regulating private banking and also for a "Blue Sky" law. In Oregon the "Blue Sky" proposal was subjected to a referendum vote. It practically carried unanimously.

THE Balkan allies want to keep the conquered territory and to be paid a little loose change on the side. We paid Spain liberally for the Philippines after we already had them. Honestly, do you not think we were easy marks?

CLIFFORD DEPUY, publisher of the Northwestern Banker, Des Moines, has been in the city wishing his banker friends "Happy New Year" and expanding his subscription list.

IN the "Western Farmer" for January 1st, published at Spokane, is a fine article for the pro-farmer banker, on "How to Make Country Life More Attractive."

M. J. FORSELL of Pullman, Wash., wrote it in a competition for a $50 prize offered by the Old National of Spokane, to students in the State College. The bank provided the subject as well as the prize.

THE OLD NATIONAL keeps pretty nearly in the center of things progressive, as you may have noticed. Vincent thinks up the schemes and the bank does the rest.

TO answer many inquiries it may be stated briefly that there is hope of getting one of the agricultural bills through the present congress. Chairman Joseph Chapman is waiting the opportune time to make a descent upon the senate with his A. B. A. committee.

THE LEVER BILL, which has passed the house of representatives and now is before the senate, provides for the establishment of an extension department in all colleges of agriculture, by which can be carried to the farmers of the nation the best methods of farming known to science, through the personality of trained farm demonstrators.

THE bill carries with it an appropriation of $10,000 annually from the federal treasury to each state unconditionally besides a proportion of conditional appropriations of $300,000 of which no state shall receive its share until it appropriates an equal amount for the same purpose.

THE WASHINGTON BANKERS ASSOCIATION of the District of Columbia had Congressman Lever before it in a special session to explain his bill.

STRONG indorsing resolutions were passed and it is likely that Mr. Chapman's committee can make a point by co-operating with the Washington association in the matter.

THE NORTHWESTERN MICHIGAN BANKERS ASSOCIATION has come out strongly for county agricultural schools. The Michigan law provides $4,000 annually for each school of the kind when "properly established" by school supervisors in the counties. Looks good for a general forward movement.

JOHN F. SEELEY, president of a little savings bank at Caro, Mich., which you could not locate readily on the map, recently tipped off a good thing to Uncle Sam.

SEELEY proposed that if no denomination numerals were placed on the back of future issues of bank notes that depositors necessarily would sort and arrange them before handing them to the teller, thus saving American banks the costly labor of turning them over.

THE back of the new bills will be "a picture" and neither will state denomination nor number of the bill. Also it will be a great saving in time for those busy gentlemen who want to help out the high cost of living by raising "ones" to "tens."

"THE BANKER AND THE FARMER," an address by Secretary W. B. Harrison, O. B. A., has been printed as a leading article by the "Interstate Farmer."

AMONG the articles in the January Home Progress are "Out-of-Door Sleeping in Winter" by Grace Ober, "The Child and the Picture" by Estelle M. Hurll, "The Child's Poetry-Books" by Abbie Farwell Brown, "A Winter Play Yard" by Robert Seaver, "An All-in-One Play Suit" by Grace Ober, "The First Duty of a Parent" by William S. Packer, and "Hidden Treasures of Toyland" by Pattie Rodman.

"WILD LIFE THROUGH THE CAMERA" is the title of an article by Dwight Franklin in the January Home Progress. Hunting with a camera is as exciting as hunting with a gun and the proof of one's markmanship does not have to be eaten up immediately. To be sure it takes the patience of an Indian to do it successfully, but that is half the fun. Mr. Franklin's article explains the two methods of hunting—lying-in-wait and stalking, and gives simple rules for the guidance of young sportsmen.

HOME PROGRESS MAGAZINE is published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston.

THE suspicion grows that William Rockefeller thinks he knows something he doesn't want to tell.

WE favor swapping Theodore I for Castro and taking the chances.

"I HAVE just read with much interest your editorial in the current number of THE CHICAGO BANKER headed 'Rewriting the Constitution,' and I hasten to say that I agree with you in all five of the propositions which you set forth. These, I think, are elementary, and I hope that the splendid committee which we have appointed will embody these recommendations in their final report."—J. R. Downing.

The CHICAGO BANKER

A Weekly Paper Devoted to the Banking and Financial Interests of the Middle West

JANUARY 18, 1913 | Entered as Second-Class Matter January 15, 1903, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March 3, 1879 | 10 CENTS A COPY

Mr. Reynolds Testifies

Washington, D. C., January 16th.—George M. Reynolds, president of three big Chicago banks, was the clearest, most forcible and most convincing of all the long list of those who have appeared before the Pujo and the regular banking and currency committees. Mr. Reynold's testimony was sent out in full to thousands of newspapers, the correspondents recognizing it as the "best stuff" yet brought out.

The main points developed in the testimony before the Pujo committee were the following:

That the money power now lies in the hands of a dozen men.

That an excess of power of any kind in the hands of a few men might properly be called a menace to the nation.

That a wide distribution of the power of credit would be better in the long run.

That the law of competition is not dead in the banking world and that it should not be replaced by the law of co-operation.

That Mr. Reynolds is perfectly willing to have laws that will assure the masses proper treatment, and is willing to take his chances under the laws of competition.

That Mr. Reynolds is opposed to the policy of voting trusts.

That he does not regard as a proper condition the control by a great banking house or a number of great banking houses of the markets of the country for issuing securities or their control of banks which buy the securities they sell.

That he is opposed to interlocking directorates in competing institutions.

That the Chicago Clearing House has no prohibition as to the amount of capital in connection with the admission of members, its conditions being merely that the applying bank shall be incorporated under the laws of the state or nation and shall be solvent.

That the Chicago Clearing House encourages all banks to acquire membership if they are eligible.

That he would approve the incorporation of the clearing house if a law could be passed without interfering with the free and automatic operation of business.

That he would approve strict government supervision of clearing house associations and has no objection whatever to it, or the fullest publicity.

That he regards the attitude of the clearing house with respect to exacting a fixed charge on out of town check collections as similar to the action of the government in passing legislation requiring railroads to impose the same freight charges.

That the Continental and Commercial National never was and is not a holding company.

That the institutions allied with the Continental and Commercial are respectively a trust company and a savings bank, both old established institutions; that they do not and could not do a holding business, and do not

PROMOTIONS come in some banks only when death has created an opening. In the more progressive institutions they come with increasing business and as a reward for services well performed. Lyman G. Bournique, a former Chicago man, started in at the foot of the official line in the big Wisconsin National, at Milwaukee. He soon reached the cashiership where he made an enviable record and the directors have carved out a brand new vice-presidency for him as a fittting reward. Mr. Bournique had his business training with Armour & Company, which no doubt helped some. He has hosts of friends in this city to congratulate him on his success.

Mainly About Banks and Bankers

PRESIDENT GEORGE M. REYNOLDS, of the Continental and Commercial left for Washington Wednesday to appear before the Pujo committee. He went willingly to answer questions as to western banking methods and to "lay the ghost" that New Yorkers run the Chicago banks.

"CHARLIE" P. TAFT has sold the Phillies baseball club at a big price. He lost the commerce court—one of his assets—at no price at all.

SORRY that Miller Weir has retired from the Jacksonville (Ill.) National. He made the bank hum. Possibly he made the job look too easy?

AT JACKSONVILLE, FLA., Arthur F. Perry is the new president of the Florida National. C. E. Garner became chairman of the board.

CHAIRMAN JOSEPH R. NOEL, of the A. B. A. committee on savings and thrift, has called a meeting for January 22d at ten a. m., club room of the Congress Hotel. All members of the committee have been invited to the dinner of the executive council of the Illinois Bankers Association to be held that evening.

E. L. VAN METER is the new assistant cashier of the Ogden (Utah) State Bank. Deposits are over two millions.

FIRST NATIONAL of Pueblo shows nine millions in deposits, which is about the record for cities of that size.

CHICAGO has a new bonding company —"The Chicago Bonding and Surety Company." Ex-Congressman A. J. Sabath is the president and Charles J. Vopicka the treasurer. Other officers also are well-known men. Has a good chance.

SECRETARY PAUL HARDEY of the Colorado bankers has sent out the proceedings book for the Pueblo convention, Aug. 19th-20th. A neatly folded panoramic picture of the delegates and guests in a body has been included.

"TRUST Companies of the United States for 1912." an annual publication sent out with the compliments of the United States Mortgage and Trust Company, New York, has made its appearance. It well might be called the "Trust Company Red Book" and has come to be an authority upon trust company statistics.

THE publication shows the statements of condition as of June 29th, and gives a full list of officers, directors, correspondents, dividend rates, stock quotations and other statistics.

ATTENTION is called to the fact that trust companies of the country stand higher today than ever before in public confidence, which is attested by increased resources and greater usefulness to communities which they serve.

IT is believed that the possibilities of the expansion which has come to this form of banking were not fully realized in former years. New functions are being added and many opportunities are presented for further service to the public.

THE RED BOOK was first sent out in 1908, in which year the deposits of all the trust companies in the United States amounted to more than two and three-quarter billions. The gain from 1908 until 1912 has been more than a billion, until now the funds actually deposited in these institutions are approaching closely to four billions. Too large a sum to comprehend.

STATISTICS are furnished in the front part of the book showing the reserve and other requirements in the various states, together with a digest of state regulations both interesting and instructive. The trust companies are listed both alphabetically and by states. There is included also an alphabetical index by companies, making it one of the quickest reference books to be had covering the subject.

THE alphabetical list itself is a very interesting feature of the work. It shows that seventy-one institutions begin their titles with the word "Union." Sixty-five companies have chosen the word "Citizens" and fifty-five companies use "Peoples" for the first word in their title line.

THERE are fifty "Farmers" trust companies, forty-two use the title "First," and there are thirty-three "Central" trust companies. "American" stands in front of twenty-nine trust company titles and the word "State" in front of twenty-seven.

THERE is no first choice as between "Merchants," "Commercial" and "Fidelity," each title being used eighteen times with "Guaranty" fifteen.

TWELVE leading institutions are named after Washington, twelve are "Home" trust companies and as many are named "West," while "Mercantile" and "Title" are used each eleven times.

THERE are thirteen "Southern" trust companies, seven "Northern" and no "Western." It is an even choice between "Continental" and "Colonial," each being used nine times, and another tie comes between "Columbia" and "Commonwealth," each being used eight times. Five institutions are called "Bankers," five use the name of "Franklin" and five are "Guardian" trust companies.

THE great emancipator, Lincoln, has four trust companies named after him, while Jefferson has but three. But one in the long list is called the "Workingmans" and but one is called the "Lawyers" trust company, showing those two occupations not to be exactly in favor with trust company bankers.

BANKERS are being called upon at all times to advise with persons who are about to make investment of funds in some of the

Bankers and Agriculture

The A. I. B. Educational Director also is active on the New York State Bankers Agricultural Committee

American bankers are trying to do their share toward solving the problems incident to the disproportion between city and country population and industry. Bankers were among the first to realize that the development of agriculture by means of scientific farming and stock raising and improved mechanism of credit is the principal, if not the only, way to lessen the high cost of living. Economic conditions are not as simple as they seem. While city consumers are paying exorbitant prices for food, farmers are getting only reasonable returns for their labor and capital. Middlemen are adding from forty to several hundred per cent to the cost of production. The problem that confronts agricultural scientists and financiers is how to decrease retail prices of farm products in cities without decreasing net revenues to farmers themselves.

Dynamic interest in the subject of better farming was aroused several years ago when James J. Hill, in one of his startling speches, made the statement that ruinous methods of cultivation had decreased the productiveness of wheat lands in Minnesota 50 per cent, and paved the way to bankruptcy. Such conditions, incidentally, impaired the security of farm lands, and the Minnesota Bankers Association, from mixed motives of business and patriotism, proceeded to co-operate with the schools of that state in the promoting of agricultural education. Similar action has been taken by bankers' associations in a majority of other states, and something of a revolution in educational methods throughout the country already has resulted. A conference of representatives from the bankers' association of twenty-four states recently was held in St. Paul and Minneapolis, whose sentiments were expressed in the following resolutions:

"Resolved, That in the judgment of this conference the problem paramount in agricultural education and development is not to devise new theories but to transmit to farmers on farms some of the abundance of scientific knowledge possessed by educated experts. Existing institutions and methods logically developed promise to provide suitable education for coming generations of country children, but economic conditions demand immediate and specific instruction for adult farmers in their fields. Such instruction can best be provided through the location of agricultural experts in all rural counties, who, like physicians, can be consulted at all times and under all circumstances. Such experts must possess sufficient intelligence and personality to discuss practical farming with practical farmers on common ground and in common language.

"Resolved, That in the judgment of this conference any plan of vocational education sufficiently comprehensive to meet present and impending conditions must be under the general direction and maintenance of the United States government, in co-operation, educationally and financially, with individual states. While this conference has for its particular purpose the promotion of agricultural education and development, the fact is recognized that any plan of vocational education conducted under national and state auspices must be broad enough to include industrial arts, and thereby establish mutuality of interest in the advancement of city and country prosperity and happiness.

"Resolved, That in the judgment of this conference the education of women in domestic science and art must keep pace with the education of men in agriculture and mechanical industry, for in no other manner can be maintained the social balance essential to home welfare. Upon the development of American womanhood quite as much as, if not more than, the development of American manhood the future of American civilization depends."

The reader will observe that the foregoing resolutions contain no specific reference to the subject of agricultural credit. There are two reasons for such omission. One reason is that agricultural credit is a subject of national, rather than state scope, and is being investigated by the American Bankers Association, whose membership consists of banking institutions throughout the United States. It is expected that agricultural credit will receive special consideration at the convention of the American Bankers Association to be held in Boston next October. Another reason why agricultural credit has not thus far been specifically considered by state bankers associations is that bankers generally are not yet convinced that existing institutions logically developed are unable properly to finance the business of agriculture. Farmers obtain much of their personal credit from country stores and manufacturers of agricultural machinery. Farm mortgages largely are taken by insurance companies. Such conditions do not exist in Europe to any great extent, and there is a sentiment that the importation of European methods of agricultural credit might be as difficult as the importation of European systems of currency has proved to be. Especially will it be difficult to induce American farmers to become individually responsible for the debts of any membership association similar to those that flourish in Germany. Something based upon the principles of American building and loan associations, however, might be elaborated into a system of mortgage banking. Much also might be accomplished through the amortization of farm mortgages so that both principal and interest could be paid in convenient installments. Whether or not the present system of banks, trust companies, savings institutions, and insurance companies can meet legitimate demands for rural credit is a question in controversy. If existing institutions can and will properly finance the business of agriculture, they should be permitted to do so. Otherwise, they should be reconstructed or other institutions created.

In the discussion of agricultural finance the difference between banking on the security of personal property and banking on the security of real estate should be clearly understood. The banker's conception of banking is stated in the following extract from one of the lesson pamphlets issued by the American Institute of Banking:

"Perhaps the worst weakness that any banker can possess is lack of ability clearly to distinguish between his own money and the money of his depositors. Such discrimination requires something more than conscience. It requires appreciation of difference between tangible and intangible assets, between crops and land, between manufactured products and manufacturing plants, between commercial credit and invested capital, between lending money and going into partnership. Whatever may be proper transactions for savings banks and trust companies, and proper investments for personal funds, it is the sole province of commercial banking to bridge over the period between seed time and harvest, to facilitate the transformation of raw materials into finished products and to provide the connecting link between mercantile sales and collections. It is not the province of commercial banking to own mortgages on farms, however fertile; to be partners through overloans or otherwise in manufacturing and merchandising, however profitable; or to control mines, however rich. There should be clear distinction between banking and promotion. Both are useful and honorable, and both are harmless when kept apart, but when mixed they make an explosion. Disaster follows defiance of this inexorable law of financial chemistry."

Whatever may be done under present conditions to develop mortgage banking, no satisfactory solution of the problem of personal credit for farmers can be expected until the American system of inelastic currency is changed. Under present conditions there is an annual squeeze of nearly a billion dollars for crop moving purposes. This squeeze affects bankers much, business men more, and farmers most. Unfortunately the only elastic feature in American finance is the call loan market in Wall Street. Whenever the annual squeeze for crop moving occurs, the rate for call money rises, with the inevitable result that the movement of money from New York to the interior is more or less offset by a movement of money from the interior into Wall Street. A sensible system of elastic currency, based largely and logically upon documents representing agricultural products, is, therefore, the first essential of agricultural credit.

Banking Laws and Methods of Cuba

Able paper written by W. H. Morales, secretary of the National Bank of Cuba and president of the Cuba chapter, A. I. B., Havana

Among the Latin-American countries which are of interest to bankers and students of finance, Cuba occupies a special place, as a field where invested capital yields safe returns, under attractive conditions. Since the republic was established a decade ago, and regardless of situations abroad, the leading banks and public utility corporations have been paying dividends and adding large reserves to their capital stock, while other enterprises have flourished.

The commercial importance of the West Indies in the early history of America, due to geographical situation, is emphasized with respect to Cuba to-day. Her position at the union of the Atlantic with two important seas, close to North, South and Central America, makes her a point of natural convergence, especially with the opening of the new canal to the world's commerce. Moreover, the size of the country (which almost equals that of Belgium, Greece and Switzerland combined), the exportation of its tropical products and the importation of nearly all that it consumes, give to the country a foreign commerce of its own, besides a large inland trade.

Taking as a basis exports of $123,136,379 and imports of $113,266,997 the last calendar year, as shown by official statistics, it is evident that the banker in Cuba, as intermediary between the producer at home and the foreign consumer, is a factor of great importance. The movement of sugar and tobacco determines the price of money, which is highest from August 15th to January 15th, the maximum being reached in December, when the cane grinding begins. With the expansion of sugar acreage and improved methods of manufacture, the estimated sugar production for the coming season (1912-1913 crop) is placed at the unprecedented figure of 2,000,000 tons, practically all of which will be sent abroad.

Such a volume of trade, of course, requires a large amount of organized capital to handle it, and in place of the individual banker who furnished the money in former times, the incorporated bank has been established on modern lines, to supply the Cuban planters and business men with the necessary means for crops and other purposes, including the exchange business with foreign markets. This result is brought about through a banking system in the form of a central institution, with head offices at Havana (the metropolis) and branches in the principal towns. By this method, aided in recent years by the development of railroads, the finances of the island are circulated according to local needs, bringing the industrial and trading centers into direct contact with each other. As the Cuban government funds are, moreover, disbursed through the National Bank of Cuba, its fiscal agent since the first American intervention, the use of subtreasuries is dispensed with, and government moneys are kept in circulation through a banking medium.

While the country has no currency of its own, yet it employs a currency system which differs from all others. Except in the eastern part of the island, where United States money is the sole circulating medium, the unit of value is the Spanish gold dollar, the price of other moneys in use, namely U. S. currency, French gold and Spanish silver, being quoted on the bourse in Spanish gold. This status of Spanish money in Cuba is an anomaly, as in Spain there is no gold dollar, the unit of value being the peseta or Spanish franc, containing 4.4893 grains of pure gold or 69.4456 grains or pure silver indifferently. Such a double standard puts Spain, domestically, on a silver basis (with the peseta as the unit of value), while Cuba stands on a gold basis, with the Spanish gold dollar as the unit, leaving silver to circulate at its commercial value.

Following Gresham's law of circulation, Spanish gold gravitates abroad, and in Cuba it has been placed by custom and governmental fiat at a premium of 6 per cent to create a further demand therefor.

Along with gold, Spanish silver is in general use in Cuba (except the eastern portion) for the payment of wages and in the retail trade, its price being at present nearly at par with gold.

United States money always is at a premium, the par of exchange being 103.653 per cent Spanish gold, equal to 109.872 per cent in Cuba by reason of the 6 per cent premium above mentioned. In terms of exchange, the importing point of United States money is reached at about 108½, and the exporting point, about 110¾ Spanish gold, the importing point being dependent on the cost of Paris exchange in New York.

While the official character of the peseta is expressed as 4.9781 grains of gold 900/1000 fine, the commercial assay is given at .896 approximately, based on tests of Alfonsinos. For government purposes, United States money alone is used, all customs, public and postal dues being payable therein, or in foreign gold, as the Spanish Alfonsino or Centén (25 peseta gold piece,) pursuant to the basis of $4.78 and $3.83 U. S. currency respectively, pursuant to Military Order No. 123 of 1899 and its amendments. The monetary history of Cuba is not readily available to the casual student, but it is a matter of tradition that in former times Cuba's representatives in the Spanish Cortes contended hard and successfully for the supremacy of the gold dollar standard in this country.

Although there is no banking act, there are provisions of law governing the subject, contained in the Spanish codes and in the government decrees issued under American intervention.

A legal tender clause in the civil code, ratified by the above military order, provides that debts shall be paid in the specie agreed, or, in the absence of a stipulation, in gold or silver of legal circulation. The commercial standard of $5.30 Spanish gold for the Alfonsino or Centén, and $4.24 Spanish gold for the French luis, is recognized in the same order. It is

The privilege of issuing notes, formerly given to the Spanish Bank of Cuba, having expired in April, 1906, the only bank notes now in circulation are those of the U. S. national banks which are at par with American gold. The charter of the National Bank of Cuba authorizes the issue of notes, of which right the institution does not avail itself.

Two classes of banks are recognized by law, namely, banks of issue and discount, and territorial or mortgage institutions. While trust companies are not mentioned in the Commercial Code, yet their powers may be exercised by banks where permitted by charter. The National Bank of Cuba has the express power to do a mortgage bank and trust company business.

Internal organization is an interesting problem. Small banks are almost unknown, owing to the special personnel and complex equipment required. The effective handling of four systems of money in two languages, the great movement of foreign exchange and collections, with a system of technical Spanish laws which often must be reconciled with those of other countries, make an elaborate organization indispensable.

Standard loans are made on the basis of two-name commercial paper, to mature within a period of 90 days. There being no usury statutes, the rate of interest is not restricted, the same varying from 7 per cent on listed collateral loans or prime paper to as high as 12 per cent per annum on other unsecured obligations. The legal rate of interest is 6 per cent, where a rate is not otherwise stipulated. Ordinary loans are made in the form of promissory notes. Merchandise as collateral for loans is the subject of a special agreement. There being no chattel mortgage law, personal property must be given as a pledge, either by deposit with a third party, or actual or constructive delivery to the lender. Loans evidenced by notes, bills or receipts, when signed by the owner of an establishment, may, by Decree No. 400 of 1900, be secured in favor of any registered bank, firm, individual or corporation, by recording them in the Mercantile Registry, and when so registered constitute a personal liability against any subsquent purchaser or holders of the business until they are discharged. As the same law requires all merchants to be registered, its effect is far reaching. Advances on crops to sugar planters are secured, either by a real estate mortgage, the sale of sugar for future delivery, or promissory note with pledged collateral.

Listed stocks and bonds are acceptable in a special form of contract called "Pignoration," under which title vests in the lender, and the property or reversion, in the borrower. If the securities are registered, actual transfer is made to the name of the lender on the books of the corporation.

There is a grand total of $255,973,244 Spanish gold approximately of corporate capital listed on the Havana stock exchange, several important railways and other large corporations not being quoted thereon.

Cattle loans necessitate the registration of title in the creditor's name. Censos or ground rents, being in the nature of mortgages which do not nature as to principal (save at the option of the debtor) as long as interest is paid, are not acceptable by the banks. The intervention of a notary public or an official broker is usual in commercial loans, except in the case of bills, notes and unsecured contracts.

Bills of exchange represent the great mass of the discount business, as shown by a turnover of $262,000,000 in exchange as compared with $17,717,735.48 of loans by the National Bank of Cuba during its last fiscal year. These drafts are mostly foreign.

There is no legal distinction between a draft and a bill of exchange, both coming within the definition of a "Letra de Cambio." They should contain the following formalities to insure safety and rapid progress in case of suit: Date and place of drawing; time of maturity, i. e., whether at sight or otherwise; name of payee; amount; value received and from whom; name and address of drawee; signature of drawer.

Drafts are issued regularly in sets of two each, the buyer being entitled to as many parts of a set (ejemplares) as he may require. Irregular endorsements are not in use. A party guaranteeing or lending his credit on a draft or other negotiable instrument, must do so in terms (perferably in solidum) or by endorsement in regular course. Endorsements transferring ownership should be in full or in blank. Those purporting to be in full and omitting date, transfer possession only, as in the case of collections. Negotiable instruments falling due on Sundays or legal holidays are payable the preceding day. The official holidays are, January 1st, February 24th (Independence Day,) May 20th (Inauguration Day,) October 10th, November 1st (Election Day,) December 7th and December 25th, in addition to Sundays. No days of grace are given to drawers or makers.

Protest must be made within 24 hours after maturity, to hold endorsers. As such protest is a notarial or public act, endorsers and makers are bound thereby without immediate notification. Makers, endorsers and acceptors are liable for non-payment, but siut against one of them postpones action against the rest until defendant's insolvency is shown or return of execution unsatisfied. Overdue paper bears interest from the date of protest.

PROMOTIONS AT FORT DEARBORN NATIONAL

At the annual meeting of the directors of the Fort Dearborn National of Chicago this week the personnel of the official staff of the bank was unchanged. Two of the officers received promotions. Henry R. Kent, formerly cashier, was elected a vice-president, and George H. Wilson, formerly assistant cashier, was chosen cashier to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Kent's election to the vice-presidency.

HENRY R. KENT
Chicago
Vice-President Fort Dearborn National

Mr. Kent began his banking career as a messenger in the Ninth National of New York City in 1879. He came to Chicago in 1881 and accepted a position with the National Bank of Illinois, leaving them in 1896 to accept an assistant cashiership with the National Bank of the Republic and remaining there until 1901. Mr. Kent then went to Lincoln, Neb., as cashier of the Farmers and Merchants Bank, returning to Chicago in 1904, at which time he was elected cashier of the Fort Dearborn.

Mr. Wilson's first work was for the State Bank of La Porte, Indiana, the place of his nativity, and next with the old Merchants National of Chicago until its consolidation with the Corn Exchange National in 1903, remaining there only a short time. He organized the First National of Whiting, Ind., and became its first cashier. He was assistant cashier of the Hamilton National of Chicago from its organization until 1909 and then became an assistant cashier of the Fort Dearborn National.

The promotions of Messrs. Kent and Wilson are the reward of faithful, efficient service. Both are well and favoraby known in the banking world and their many friends join in extending congratulations. The present officers of the Fort Dearborn National are as follows: William A. Tilden, president; Nelson N. Lampert, J. Fletcher Farrell and Henry R. Kent, vice-presidents; George H. Wilson, cashier; Thomas E. Newcomer, Charles Fernald and William W. LeGros, assistant cashiers; Harry Lawton, manager of the foreign department.

By C. C. Burford

The short course in agriculture and kindred subjects now offered by the University of Illinois has attracted over seven hundred farmers and junior farmers from all portions of the state and a wide-spread interest in better agriculture is being manifested by these short-term students. Ten years ago it would have been almost impossible to have attracted so many farmer youths, and older ones too, from the various counties, and twenty years ago the project would have only caused a smile or a jeer. With the introduction of better farming methods and higher-priced lands, such an interest in agriculture is bound to come as a natural result.

Grain Moving More Freely

Grain cars are much more plentiful than they were before and just after the holidays and grain elevators rapidly are becoming empty. Farmers are in no great haste to sell in most cases, as they believe that higher prices will prevail and they have sufficient credit to enable them to hold the grain. Fifty cents for May corn is being freely predicted now and farmers and bankers believe such prices will be offered. Trade is good in towns and cities, money is being spent freely by all classes and only the best of good times for this coming year are in evidence.

O. W. Moore of Monticello

O. W. Moore, for about thirty years actively associated with banks in Monticello, has resigned as cashier of the Moore State Bank of that city to enter business for himself as a loan broker and as a dealer in bonds and all high grade securities. He will open an office in the First National Bank building of Monticello and will be assisted by his son, Harry Moore, formerly assistant to the tellers in the First National of Champaign.

O. W. Moore was for twenty years cashier of the first National of his city and of its predecessor and for nine years has been cashier of the Moore State Bank, which recently succeeded the H. V. Moore Banking and Trust Company. He has established an enviable record as a safe and conservative banker. The president of the Moore State Bank is D. M. Moore, but the two men actively associated are not related. The Moore State Bank is a thriving institution located in one of the best of the smaller cities of the state and in a very fertile and high-priced farming section. Monticello has many paved streets and recently a stretch of country pavement was laid out from town and if satisfactory, as it is certain to be, more of this rural pavement will be laid.

Henning Has New Bank Building

The private bank of Lane Bros., of Henning, Vermilion county, has removed into a new banking room which is a model room for a village bank. The room is 24x60, with basement, has a private room for the president and has both a well equipped vault and a subvault below it. Hot water and heat are supplied to the building. The bank was established in 1900. The correspondents are the First National of Chicago and the Commercial Trust and Savings of Danville. L. D. Lane is the president, A. W. Lane and J. C. Lane are vice-presidents, and J. W. White it the cashier.

Moline Plow Company Grows

A financial deal of interest to bankers is the increase of the capital stock of the Moline Plow Company from $9,000,000 to $30,000,000. A ninety-nine-year charter has been granted and the directors will be increased from seven to nine. The Moline Plow Company also has purchased the plant of Adriance, Platt & Co., of Poughkeepsie, New York. The latter plant had been known for years as an independent manufacturer of farming implements. The Moline people now have seven auxiliary plants in various parts of the United States. The fee to the state for this increase in capital was $9,000.

Pontiac Banker Mourns Son

O. P. Bourland, president of the National Bank of Pontiac, is mourning the death of his son, Rudolph C. Bourland. The young man was twenty-four years of age and was an employee of the bank of which his father was the president. He had been ill since last fall and at two different times had gone to sanitariums in the hope of regaining his health, but in vain. The deceased was prominent in church and lodge circles in Pontiac. The father is well known to many Illinois bankers and has the sympathy of a wide circle of acquaintances.

Former Banker Takes Own Life

Harry A. Hauser, who learned the banking business with the First National of Lincoln, and who was later president of the First National of Carlsbad, New Mexico, committed suicide by taking carbolic acid. Mr. Hauser is believed by his friends to have been deranged because of a fear of becoming tubercular, as he had lost his wife with the same malady. He was about forty-five years of age and was born and reared in Lincoln. His financial affairs were in good shape and his friends regret most keenly his suicidal actions.

Sound January Investments

Netting 5½ to 6 per Cent

WE own and offer for January investment, First Mortgage Bonds in denominations of $500 and $1,000, secured by absolute direct first liens on the highest class of improved, income-producing, centrally located Chicago real estate, netting the investor 5½ to 6%. Our recommendation of these bonds for investment is based on experience of thirty-one years. ¶ These bonds are so thoroughly secured, and we protect the interests of investors with such care that no client has ever lost a dollar of principal or interest on any security purchased of us since this House was founded. ¶ Each bond issue is distinct and separate, is the obligation of distinct and separate mortgagors, and is secured by distinct and separate property. The total loan is never more than 50% of the value of the security. ¶ For thirty-one years we have maintained a market for these securities through our custom of repurchasing bonds or mortgages from clients when requested, at par and accrued interest, less only the handling charge of 1%, thus giving reasonable assurance of their convertibility.

Rushville Bank Remembers Friends

The Bank of Rushville, one of the growing banks in western Illinois, has sent artistic calendars to banking and business friends throughout the state. Judge S. B. Montgomery, president of the State Savings, Loan and Trust Company of Quincy and vice-president of the Illinois Bankers Association, is the president of this bank and John S. Little is the cashier and executive officer. The interior of the bank with its beautiful modern fixtures is shown on the calendars. The bank is a favorite with its customers and a large and growing business is being built up by Mr. Little.

Miller Weir Resigns from Jacksonville Bank

Miller Weir, cashier and a director of the Jacksonville National, has resigned his position and retired from the directorate. Mr Weir has served the Jacksonville National for two years as cashier and executive officer, during which time the record of the bank has been remarkably successful, a fact which is attested by its financial statement. During the two years the institution has paid all stockholders 3 per cent in semiannual dividends on the capitalization of $200,000, $33,000 has been put to the surplus and $1,378.23 is left in unlivided profits. Before accepting the cashiership of the Jacksonville National Mr. Weir had been for a number of years national bank examiner. He has not yet announced his plans for the future. Charles B. Graff has been elected to succeed Mr. Weir and the officers of the bank now are as follows: Julius E. Strawn, president; Albert A. Curry, Henry J. Rodgers, John R. Robertson, Thomas B. Orear, vice-presidents; Charles B. Graff, cashier; William G. Goebel, Harry K. Chenoweth and Albert Vannier, assistant casheirs.

Illinois Notes

H. H. Chaffin, of Virden, near Springfield, and his cousin, Jacob Anderson, of Nash, Okla., have purchased two banks in Nash and will consolidate them into one. Mr. Chaffin will be the president of the bank and Mr. Anderson, cashier. Mr. Chaffin will leave for Oklahoma within a few weeks to take up his new work.

P. L. McPheeters, assistant cashier of the Champaign National of Champaign, has been named cashier of the institution. He has learned the business with his bank and his promotion is the result of merit. Mr. McPheeters is secretary and treasurer of the Champaign County Bankers Association.

C. P. King is reported president of the Havana National of Havana and O. D. Covington, cashier. W. C. Tubbs is reported president and D. E. Gayer cashier of the National Bank of Monmouth. J. D. Lynch is president and R. L. Wray cashier of the Monmouth Trust and Savings Bank.

The State Bank of McLean will demonstrate seed corn worth with a standard tester this spring as the testing with a home-made apparatus last spring proved so popular. The bank in its monthly bulletin says: "Our soil has been so rich and productive that we have drifted into being soil robbers. We should raise as good crops as England and other countries where the soil has been farmed a thousand years and produces twice as much as ours."

Deputy Sheriff Joseph Munson of Sangamon county arrested B. N. Foster and placed him in jail in Springfield for forgery. Foster drew a check for $5 on a bank at Pawnee, near Springfield, and took it to Munson who cashed it. Later the deputy found it to be worthless and promptly arrested the forger. It is not often that victims have such sweet revenge.

Many bankers in Illinois and throughout the Central West in general who have taken courses at some one of the chain of Brown's Business Schools located in various Illinois, Iowa and Indiana cities, will read with interest of the sale of the schools by G. W. Brown to Messrs. William E. Read of Peoria and R. H. Peck of Davenport, Iowa. The consideration was $150,000 and twenty-seven schools, including five in St. Louis, are included in the deal.

The Standard Oil Company of Ohio has purchased from the Surpass Oil and Gas Company of Pittsburgh, Pa., the latter's holdings in the oil fields in Clinton county. The price paid is said to have been over one million dollars and the transaction is the largest in the Carlyle oil fields, about fifty miles east of St. Louis.

The Peoria Association of Commerce is planning to send fifty or more "boosters" to the good roads meeting to be held in Springfield, January 31st. The Springfield meeting is under the patronage of the "Manufacturers News" and William G. Edens of Chicago will be the presiding officer.

George B. Marvel is the new president of the State Bank of Clinton. This bank has lost two presidents by death during the last two years. The new president is a prominent attorney of Clinton and is chairman of the DeWitt county democratic committee. He is a probable candidate for postmaster of his city. George G. Argo, whose father, the late William Argo, died at his desk as president of the bank about two years ago, is the cashier.

The State Trust and Savings Bank of Peoria, located just across the street from the Jefferson Hotel, the headquarters of the last Illinois Bankers Association convention, reports a 100 per cent increase in deposits in the last three years. The bank has such a large number of stockholders that the January meeting was held in the assembly room of the Peoria Association of Commerce.

St. Louis and Southwest Banking Letter

By R. L. ROBINSON

St. Louis, January 15th.—Affairs at the financial institutions continued active this week with a large volume of business transacted. There is no near prospect of a falling off in the call for funds. It is the opinion of bankers here that there are ample funds for legitimate purposes. A general decline in interest is not looked for during the present month and there is a great deal of favorable sentiment in the business outlook and gain in savings deposits. The demand for money was more than fair, while rates ruled steady at 5½ to 6 per cent on call and time loans.

Bank Elections

The stockholders' meetings held this week developed but few changes in directors and officers. The Merchants-Laclede National and the Mechanics-American National both re-elected their former directors and to-day will re-elect their officers. The Third National elected only thirteen directors. J. R. Cooke, cashier, who formerly was a member of the board, will sit with the board hereafter as secretary. The directors re-elected are: Adolphus Busch, August A. Busch, John I. Beggs, G. W. Brown, S. H. Fullerton, Norris B. Gregg, C. H. Huttig, H. F. Knight, E. K. Ludington, J. E. Smith, F. O. Watts, Thomas Wright and B. F. Yoakum.

The Union Station Bank added three new men to its directorate, one of them to succeed Louis Renard and two to fill vacancies which had not been filled since the number of directors was increased recently. The new men are C. C. Collier, B. O. Rodes and A. C. Heintz.

National Bank of Commerce to Change System.

A complete change of administrative system is planned for the National Bank of Commerce following the stockholders' meeting yesterday. The board of directors will be divided into committees charged with exercising the important functions of the board which will lessen materially the importance of the directors. This division was incorporated into the by-laws about two weeks ago by the retiring board of directors, and the committees —the executive and the discount—will be selected by the board to-day The discount committee will meet every day to pass on loans while the executive committee will meet as occasion requires. James Campbell, president of the North American Company, and Harry B. Wallace, secretary of the Samuel Cupples Woodenware Company, were added to the slate of directors, replacing the names of W. B. Cowen and W. L. McDonald so that the new names added to the board of directors at yesterday's election, in addition to Campbell and Wallace are: L. Ray Carter, Harry Elliot, E. F. Goltra, F. August Luyties, Fred C. Orthwein, Clay Arthur Pierce, Charles Rebstock, and William S. Thompson. The directors re-elected are: James W. Bell, W. K. Bixby, E. T. Campbell, Samuel C. Davis, George O. Carpenter, Ben F. Edwards, Edward A. Faust, John A. Holmes, Sam M. Kennard, H. P. Knapp, Thomas H. McKittrick, Elias Michael, E. C. Simmons, Tom Randolph and W. D. Simmons. The officers who will be elected to-day probably will be: Ben F. Edwards, president; Tom Randolph, vice-president; J. A. Lewis, cashier; W. K. Bixby, chairman of the executive committee and E. C. Simmons, chairman of the discount committee.

Teichmann to Head German-American

Otto L. Teichmann, secretary and treasurer of the Teichmann Commission Company, which will now go out of business owing also to the retirement of its president, Charles H. Teichmann, yesterday was elected president of the German-American Bank. The presidency of the bank has been vacant since the death last October of William P. Kennett, and Craig MacQuaid, vice-president, has filled the position. Mr. Teichmann was selected by the directors after a canvass in order to place at the head of the bank a man with German antecedents and a command of the German language. Neither Kennett nor MacQuaid had these qualifications. Mr. Teichmann is a native St. Louisan, was president of the Merchants Exchange in 1905 and a member of the board of police commissioners from 1909 to 1911. He was elected to the directorate on Monday. L. F. Placke, formerly cashier, has been made assistant to the president, a new position, and L. S. Kohlbry, formerly assistant cashier, cashier. MacQuaid and Gus W. Niemann were re-elected vice-presidents.

Elected President of Clayton Bank

Judge John W. McElhinney, judge of the St. Louis County Circuit Court, Division No. 1, after being president of the St. Louis County Bank at Clayton seventeen years, has retired and David Schmid, for many years cashier, has been elected president. Theodore Beyer, formerly assistant cashier, has been advanced to cashier and Peter Wetzel has been elected active vice-president. D. Clinton Taylor of Manchester and Albert Heege of Clayton were elected vice-presidents and the old board of directors was retained.

Clarkson Receives Watch

George W. Clarkson, who has been re-elected president of the Grand Avenue Bank, was presented by the directors several days ago with a watch as a token of their appreciation of the manner in which he has conducted the affairs of the bank. Col. Lon Sanders of Gov. Elliott W. Major's staff, made the presentation speech.

Bank Embezzler Paroled

Louis W. Fischer, 17 years old, charged with embezzling $1,100 from the Mercantile Trust Company, while working as a clerk in the foreign exchange department, pleaded guilty before Judge Wm. M. Kinsey on Monday, and was paroled. It was shown he was only 16 years old when the embezzlement occurred and his salary was $50 a month. Fischer said he had spent the money in high living.

Martin Lammert Dead

Martin Lammert, founder of the German-American Bank, died on Saturday of last week. Mr. Lammert was born in Germany in 1844, and came to St. Louis when twelve years old. At seventeen he started out for himself in the furniture business and became actively interested in many St. Louis enterprises. He was at one time largely interested in the Anchor Line Steamboat Company, and also was interested in the Fairground Association and the St. Louis Jockey Club. He organized the German-American Bank, holding the organization meeting in his home.

Woman is Bank Director

Mrs. Helen K. Garth has been elected a member of the board of directors of the Farmers and Merchants Bank, Hannibal, Mo., of which her husband Col. J. H. Garth was an organizer and for many years president. She is the first woman to be honored with such an office by a Hannibal bank. Other directors elected are: J. J. Cruikshank, F. T. Hodgdon, J. T. Holme, W. R. Pitts, J. B. Price, F. G. Richards, G. H. Riedel, F. L. Schofield and Charles Walker.

Farmers Pay High Interest

"The difference in the rate of interest paid by the Texas farmers and those of foreign countries in twenty years would macadamize every road in Texas," was a statement made recently by Joe Hirsch, a prominent banker of Corpus Christi, Tex., who also is a member of the Farm Life Commission. To prove this statement, Mr. Hirsch has given out the following statistics: "The 250,000 farmers in Texas pay 10 per cent interest on an average indebtedness of $500 each. The average rate of interest in the countries of Europe is 3½ and 4 per cent. In other words, the farmers of Texas in twenty years would pay $250,000,000 for interest, where the European farmers' interest would be only $100,000,000.

LOCATING THE MAY MEETING

Members of council at the Detroit meeting voted hastily for Virginia Hot Springs as the place of the May meeting of that body. It so happens that May is "in the season" at that resort and the hotel, willing enough to make a fair per diem rate, stipulates "two in a room," which in individual cases may suit well enough. That was not quite up to Col. Farnsworth's notions, so he put it up to the administrative committee at the St. Louis conference. There are three on the committee and each had a first choice as between Briarcliff Manor, Atlantic City and Hot Springs. Col. Farnsworth did not wish to settle it so it was decided to put it to a referendum vote of the council and thus ballots will be sent out. Some of the advantages are these:

Briarcliff Manor: New York Central main line, one hour from New York. The hotel is one of the best and can be had exclusive for May 5-6-7. Each man gets a room and bath. New York is one hour away and the great trust company banquet is set for May 9th, the next day but one after the meeting closes.

Atlantic City: Fine hotel, plenty of room, on direct Pennsylvania Lines, but rates nearly double the other places.

Hot Springs: Not on a main line railway, poor connections. Long way from the Waldorf and you sleep two in a bed. Meeting would have to be postponed until May 19th.

When the vote is taken the members can express first, second or third choice, and thus if everyone's second choice fell upon one place, it would be chosen.

Members of council should take into consideration the travel advantages and disadvantages; the rates; crowded or exclusive use of hotel and the desire of many members of council to attend the trust company function on May 9th. Think it over.

GOVERNOR WILSON'S ATTITUDE

The speech delivered before the Commercial Club of Chicago on Saturday last by Governor Wilson, has excited a great deal of comment, some of which is friendly and some hostile. Conflicting impressions of the president-elect's attitude were gained by various persons who listened to his remarks.

It is believed by most people that during the next four years the country will continue to enjoy the wonderful prosperity which it now has. The consensus of opinion seems to be that the democrats will not be disposed to enact any legislation of a harmful character. Indeed, it would be suicidal for them to attempt to follow any such course. We shall have, after March 4th, the first democratic president in twenty years. In addition, congress will be controlled by the democrats, so that the government of the country will be in the hands of that party. Its ability to run the affairs of the national government is unknown, as it were. In other words, the democrats are on trial before the people; if they make good, there is every likelihood of further success; if they fall down, defeat will result. It is quite apparent, then, that they will be inclined to pursue a course which will prove acceptable to the country as a whole.

As far as monopolies are concerned, it will be conceded that public opinion strongly is opposed to them as a rule. It has been contended by some that there are good as well as bad monopolies and that to fight the former would result in economic waste. The truth of this argument will be admitted, for there are certain kinds of businesses which can serve the people cheaper and more effectively than if compelled to compete with other enterprises of a similar character; but, for the reasons above set forth, it is believed that the democrats will not manifest an inclination to interfere with anything obviously for the benefit of the public.

Governor Wilson may not understand perfectly all of the momentous problems with which the country is confronted, but he has exhibited a willingness to learn and to listen to intelligent advice; and this, coupled with his own good judgment and ability to learn, will enable him to pilot the ship of state safely past the danger rocks.

THE ARCHBALD DECISION

The senate of the United States has decided that Robert W. Archbald, who for many years held judical positions upon the Pennsylvania state bench, the federal district bench and more recently in the United States commerce court, used his judicial power improperly to advance his own interests and those of his friends in the acquisition of certain coal properties in Pennsylvania.

While it cannot be said that the result of the deliberations of the senate was unexpected, the confirmation of the suspicion that a United States judge used his sacred office for his own personal gain comes somewhat as a surprise to the American people.

The country is to be congratulated upon the high character of the men composing its judiciary. It is true that sometimes undesirables—men with sinister objects in view—slip in. The framers of the constitution, however, were able to foresee just such an exigency as this and made provision for relief by means of impeachment. To add to the efficacy of the remedy, the constitution further provides that any person so convicted shall be disqualified forever from holding and enjoying any office of honor, trust or profit under the government of the United States.

The remedy to be adopted in seeking relief in cases of judges guilty of misconduct in office and of erroneous decisions is not the anarchistic recall of the judges and the decisions advocated by certain radical interests, but impeachment of the judge, as provided for by the constitution, or amendment of the law in such respects as it may be found defective. It is obvious that the chosen representatives of the people can cope with such a situation far more effectively than can the people themselves, being enabled to devote more time to consideration of the matter and to give full attention to the subject in all its phases.

The investigation of the conduct of Judge Archbald covered several months. The utmost care was used in weighing the charges brought against him in an effort to arrive at such a decision as would be consistent with equity and justice. The investigation was comprehensive in its scope and perfectly adequate to deal with the situation presented.

Much deliberation and study should be given before any course designed to change the constitutional remedies provided by the founders of this great nation shall be adopted.

OHIO PRIVATES IN FIGHTING MOOD

Private bankers of Ohio will make a fight before the state legislature to maintain their institutions distinct from the national and state banks. Plans which they have completed as a result of the adoption of the constitutional amendment requiring state or national regulation of all financial institutions do not contemplate their coming in under either class of supervision as now known. The private bankers will seek a law providing for sweeping safeguards against the operation of financial institutions under the name of "banks," but will seek to have their class of concerns continued outside the limitations placed by either the present national or state banking laws.

The private bankers take the position that as a class the percentage of failures or other undesirable results has been smaller with them than with either national or state banks. This, they maintain, is due largely to the law providing for unlimited liability of the men behind the private institution.

BILL TO CHECK BANK COMMISSIONS

Representative Glass of Virginia has introduced a bill to amend the national banking act by making it a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of $5,000 or imprisonment for various periods, according to the seriousness of the offense, for bank officers to accept commissions from borrowers or to grant loans in cases where borrowers have offered money inducements for the making of a credit extension.

END OF A USELESS COURT

The public will hail with joy the end of the disgraced commerce court. The passing of Judge Archbald is a good omen. The court was "conceived in sin and brought forth in iniquity" if ever such a thing happened since Bible writing days. The very interests which proposed the court organized it. Almost its first decision caused a scandal. Like the expert (?) tariff commission it knew only its master's hand, and let the pair of them go down as the last of their ilk. In the days of Aldrich and Roosevelt, Archbald could not have been convicted. Under the present senate and the incoming president, no such corrupt person can be appointed.

NEBRASKA BANKERS ENDORSE LEVER BILL

Omaha, Jan. 9th.—The agricultural development committee of the Nebraska Bankers Association met at the Commercial Club rooms, the session lasting all afternoon. The committee consists of Carson Hildreth, Franklin, chairman; Charles Marshall, Nebraska City; F. S. Thompson, Albion; L. P. Sornson, Eustis; C. L. Wattles, Neligh; J. W. Nelpton, Ogallala; W. A. Bucklin, Long Pine; George F. Sawyer, Western, president of the association; Henry W. Yates, chairman of the executive council, Omaha; Wm. B. Hughes, Omaha, secretary.

In accordance with the instructions of the state association at its convention last August, the committee arranged to call a conference of representatives of the financial and commercial interests of the state to consider the question of an organized effort to aid in the development of the agricultural and live stock interests of the state. The date for this conference was not fixed, but is expected to be during the early part of February.

The following resolutions were adopted:

"The agricultural development committee of the Nebraska Bankers Association urges the passing by congress of the Lever agricultural extension bill, believing it provides the best means of carrying forward agricultural development in our nation, and the secretary is hereby instructed to forward copies of this resolution to our representatives in congress.

"We, the agricultural development committee of the Nebraska Bankers Association, recognizing the importance to the material and moral well being of the people of Nebraska, that the State University holds in relation thereto and especially the Agricultural College; and that the building up of all the university's activities are in vital relation to each other; and after a careful consideration of the questions involved in the development of the university, we are of the opinion that to continue the policy of developing what is known as the down-town campus in Lincoln, and to segregate the Agricultural College upon what is known as the state farm, is in violation of prudent business principles, educationally unwise, and detrimental to the best interests of the Agricultural College and the students therein, and we recommend the consolidation of all the university's activities upon the state farm campus in Lincoln, and the development thereupon of a united university plant, for we believe that by doing this the best interests of the state will be conserved and an ideal institution, doing an effective service, can be developed; and we recommend to the legislature the adoption of the policy of consolidation advocated by the board of regents and chancellor of the State University and the providing of the necessary funds to carry it out."

CEMENT SHOW AT COLISEUM

The cement show opened at the Coliseum on Thursday evening and will be on until the 23d. The cement show is a national exposition of the cement industries and visitors will be repaid in pleasure and in the acquisition of valuable information by visiting this show. Cement construction is of interest not only to the architect, the engineer, the contractor and the builder, but it is of deep importance to every home owner who wants better construction at less cost—to every tenant who wants the most for his rent money in house comfort and protection against fire—to every citizen who has the city's welfare at heart in sanitary buildings, more beautiful architecture and safer construction. Out of concrete will be built the enduring monuments of the future. Factories, warehouses, dams, retaining walls, bridges, the millionaire's home and the workingman's cottage—to the building of all of these concrete lends itself most flexibly. No man abreast of the times can afford to remain unacquainted with the modern uses and wonderful forms of cement.

Investment Analysis—Its Principles and Methods

Interesting address recently delivered before Philadelphia Chapter, A. I. B., by H. S. Mott, manager of the bond department, Bankers Trust, New York City

The task before us to-night is to analyze analysis. We are to try to learn why and how investments are determined to be either good or bad, safe or unsafe, profitable or unprofitable.

The task is not easy. It has been bravely essayed in legislation and tested in the market place. Perfection has not attended even the elaborate processes of the savings bank law, for the market inexorably revises the law. No estimate of value—no conclusion of investment analysis—can afford to ignore the market. Nay, more, individual analysis correctly must foresee the collective analysis of the market, or it is lame, halt or blind.

But what is an investment? And what do we do when we analyze it to estimate its value? An investment, for the purposes of this inquiry, must be either a participation in a loan or a certificate of beneficial interest in productive enterprise. Bonds, notes and stocks represent the more or less salable evidences of the legal right to receive income. Obviously the present value of these salable evidences of ownership of the right to receive income will be affected by the greater or less probability of the payment of principal in full at maturity or by the probability of larger or smaller income.

The time-honored method of analytical approach first tries to answer the question: Is an investment safe? The word "safe" has been used in such a multitude of ways that its definitions have become as multitudinous as its uses. Probably the usual meaning of the word concerns itself with the kind and quality of physical property by which bonds or notes are secured or of which stocks denote ownership. This method of approach, as defined, has its excellent uses. Also it has its abuses, some of which lead straight to the door of arbitrary physical valuation. In any event, "tangible" values apply only to property in use, actual or potential. As the accountant has it, the measure of the value of property consists of its value to the enterprise as a going concern. There are kinds of property, such as real estate, that enjoy separate values given by the community as well as those given by the going concern; but security investments based wholly on dormant values are rare. If, then, property values thus depend mostly on the going qualities of the concern, why not consider first whether the concern is likely to keep on going?

I confess to an uncontrollable prejudice for a scrutiny of the income account as the first method of approach. When an enterprise makes real money for its shareholders, it also makes values in use for the physical property it owns. Besides it encourages a hopeful attitude toward interest and dividend payments. When an enterprise ceases to make money, i. e., profits, its securities are never, or hardly ever, cheap. Physical values out of use, even temporarily, shrink to distressingly small proportions, as the records of the bankruptcy courts disclose.

We will assume, then, as is the fact of practice, that preliminary investigation subordinates the other elements of safety to the question of earnings. Current earnings and expenses should be compared with similar items at least for the preceding year, but preferably with those of a number of years preceding. Gross earnings or gross sales of merchandise should be expected to show more or less steady increases, for the business, like the individual, that merely stands still goes backward. A week, a month or a year of small volume of business need not be considered significantly unfavorable if its causes can be determined definitely to be temporary and the surplus account is substantial. The question raised considers the nature of the business done and the conditions which surround production. The answer requires not necessarily expert or technical knowledge, but the application of the facts obtainable to what might be called a projection of opinion—a judgment of probabilities. Demand or supply having been excessive which will be excessive next week, next month, next year, and what relation will prices bear to either? In other words, the past and the present are useful only in the determination of the future. The cardinal principle of investment analysis must be to endeavor, as competently as possible, to read the future.

If one company manufactures harvesting machines, another a standard, moderate-priced automobile, and another conducts a large mail order business in the rural districts, will the demand for their goods be affected by large or small crops—the prosperity or the adversity of the farmers? If a network of trolleys is built in a railroad's territory, will its passenger traffic be curtailed? If natural gas is discovered near a large city and shortly will be delivered to consumers at thirty cents a thousand feet, how will the company manufacturing gas for ninety cents a thousand feet to the consumer be affected? To what extent is the market for a company's product dependent upon tariff duties? Do the records of other similar cases guide opinion? Or, is experience of little service? In any event before we make an investment, wisdom dictates that we form some solidly based opinion on these or other matters that may be pertinent. It is the future status of our securities that interests us.

But suppose, as is frequently the case, we find that demand for a commodity rules fairly stable or, better still, shows a well marked tendency from year to year to expand and a likelihood that the tendency will continue. It is not, after all, gross earnings that are applicable to dividends on stocks, or for that matter to interest on bonds. If expenses increase as rapidly as gross earnings, the values of the securities involved stand still or, in the comparative appraisals of the market, decline. Parenthetically, it may be said that market values always are "intrinsic" values except when the market through ignorance cannot interpret the facts in an appraisal or when the market itself suffers from abnormal conditions of supply and demand for securities. What do the expense accounts show? Does the cost of conducting the business increase more rapidly than do gross earnings or by a larger percentage? If so, in what items and why? When these questions shall be adequately answered we shall be in a position to make a reasonable determination whether the increase in expenses, if there be an increase, is due to avoidable or unavoidable causes, whether the increase is a fluctuation or discloses a tendency, and whether part or all of the increase in expenses, such as betterment and reconstruction outlay, is likely to yield larger profits in time to come.

The difference between total gross earnings and total expenses, being the amount actually available with which to pay interest charges, sinking fund charges, taxes and dividends, is the truly vital account; but it develops obviously out of the conditions surrounding gross earnings and expenses. Before dividends are paid all debts known to be bad, all known losses and a part, if not all, of any discount on securities sold should be charged off. Theoretically, discount on securities should be amortized by charges to income; practically a larger annual charge is conservative because new conditions might call for a new bond issue and a new discount to be charged off. The creation of reserve funds for depreciation, insurance, etc., and periodical charges to net earnings for their continuation and expansion according to the probable reasonable needs of the business, greatly enhance the investment values of securities. Property in use derives a large part of its value to a going concern and, therefore, to security holders by having worn out parts constantly replaced and by being protected against unusual hazards. If, then, net earnings increase by a percentage as large as, or larger than, gross earnings, and if good judgment dictates that the conditions surrounding the volume of business done, the prices obtainable and expenses are unlikely to change for the worse, the securities of such a corporation, other things being equal, should be desirable investments.

The financial status of an enterprise at the close of business on a particular day makes an exhibit with which bankers as loaners of money are familiar. As an exhibit of a company's ability to repay loans in a short time, it is of more service than the income account. For the purpose of investment analysis it is subordinate only to the income account. It is presumed to be an exact statement of all assets and all liabilities. Actually, in many cases, it is nothing of the sort. The property accounts among the assets sometimes contain items of intangible as well as items of tangible property. Good will, franchises, patents, etc., when they are rated high as assets, produce water in securities purer than that to be brought to New York by the new Catskill Aqueduct. Capital stock theoretically is full paid and in a balance sheet is treated as money owed to stockholders. But actually it is often not full paid and, except as required through dissolution and liquidation, the amount it represents is never legally owed to anybody. The surplus of current assets over current liabilities, or as this surplus is called, "Net Quick Assets," constitutes the working capital of a concern. Its proportions in relation to the need for working capital are of the utmost importance. Many a soundly based enterprise has passed into control of the courts because its promoters failed to supply it with the sinews of war or its management paid out all profits in dividends. In the balance sheet, also, should appear the accumulations of the various reserve funds which, to the extent that they are profits reserved against remote contingencies, may be considered as part of the surplus of profit and loss account. A profit and loss account surplus itself may mean much or little, according to the nature of the equities in assets that it represents. A profit and loss deficit never should appear except in the construction stages of an enterprise.

To show how naturally analysis follows the lines already indicated, it is necessary only to examine the largest accounts in the balance sheet to determine the reasons for extending an invitation to the investor. Among assets almost invariably the largest account is "Cost of Property." This account includes all fixed, or more or less permanent, assets needed in the conduct of the business, such as real estate, plants, machinery, equipment, etc. As it is against part or all of the physical property included in this account that mortgage bonds usually are issued, the makeup of the account obviously is important. In it might be included the original cost of a branch railroad that long had ceased to yield profits or to be kept in good repair, and of which the value in use of the physical property would be hard to discover. Or, in it might be found a factory plant adapted to profitable production only under circumstances of manufacture or of competition that have passed. Or, worse than all, good will may become the basis for the issuance of "mortgage" securities through the purchase of another going concern. The methods of arriving at "Cost of Property" through betterments, additions, depreciation and reserve deserve careful consideration. These all have to do with the future status of the mortgaged fixed property. We should make some reasonable determination that its value in use in the future shall be as much as, if not actually more than, at present.

While the idea underlying a mortgage obligation is the security of a lien on physical property essential to production, a collateral trust bond secured by stock of another corporation immediately introduces directly the element of a lien on good will. This is recognized as a rule by classifying property in securities as "investments." All going concerns enjoy still other assets known as "current assets," consisting of inventories of commodities and goods in current use, bills and accounts receivable and cash on hand. In the nature of things these assets must be flexible and will fluctuate; they must be usable in current operations. Nevertheless, it is customary frequently to borrow money against them, either on the good faith or justified expectation that their total value or their relation to current indebtedness will not be impaired, or by specific provision in an indenture to that effect. The maintenance of the total value of current assets and of a fairly constant relation to current indebtedness is, of course, accomplished by the freest kind of substitution of assets for assets and liabilities for liabilities. There is another class of assets called "deferred assets," which at times seriously affects the condition of a company, but which cannot properly form the basis of borrowings. It consists chiefly of prepayments, which sometimes are profitable and never unsafe when the company runs strong in current assets, of advances to other companies and of discounts on sales of securities which must be amortized before the maturity dates of the securities. A man cannot borrow on money he has spent, nor can he put a lien on his hopes. Neither can a corporation.

Now, with all this analysis of analysis we have not yet said anything more than incidental respecting the kind of investments we started out to find. But is it not possible, having determined along the foregoing lines that a corporation makes, and is likely to continue to make, profits and owns substantial property, that we are better prepared to pick out the security outstanding or to be issued that suits our other investment needs?

The inquiry then becomes: What is the nature of the lien on property and what is the extent of the property mortgaged, pledged or owned? The conception of the value of physical property is ingrained. When defaults occur experience shows that physical property usually yields some recovery of principal to the bondholder, while collateral securities, net quick assets and good will often are illusive and elusive. Hence a first mortgage, a second mortgage, a general mortgage or some other kind of mortgage derives its investment standing from the degree to which is protected, by specific pledge or priority of lien, the payment or the recovery of principal in full. The greater such protection, the higher the market appraisal of the security, and consequently the lower the income yield to the investor. It may be that the physical property, given its fair value in use, would provide probable recovery, in liquidation, only to the extent of the bonds outstanding. In such case stock could represent nothing but good will, franchises, trade marks or some other intangible assets which yield profits and which, according to the extent of the profits, may nevertheless be highly appraised. Other obligations, like debenture bonds, income bonds and notes not specifically secured, enjoy a lien on whatever surplus physical assets may be discovered in case of liquidation. Ingenious and thoughtful, and sometimes thoughtless, conditions and restrictions surrounding particular issues of bonds and stocks frequently contribute something more or less to their values. Investment analysis, to be thorough, must, of course, give careful consideration to these conditions and restrictions; but for the purposes of this study they can be looked upon as properly determinable when the larger questions of analysis have been decided.

Primarily, investment analysis concerns itself with just three things, in the order named, as follows: Profits, the relation of assets to liabilities, physical property; secondarily, with the nature of the specific security and the conditions existing and likely to continue to exist in the market. Under each of these five heads can be taken into account all of the facts that make or unmake security investments. Finally, out of all the answers obtained to the questions put to facts and figures is constructed that projection of opinion—that prophetic vision—which constitutes the only real investment judgment.

To the task of investment analysis should be brought an equipment that consists not merely of a knowledge of accounts; that is useful chiefly to open the gates of knowledge. As much information as possible should be gathered with respect to the nature of the business, its methods and possibilities of operation and the relation of the enterprise to the remainder of the industrial or commercial community. It has been said that the newspaper man should be a Jack-of-all-trades. It might well be said that the dealer in securities—the man who has greatest need for investment analysis—should be a master of all trades. Through all the investment analysis should be applied the horse sense of a sound business experience, for financial miracles ceased with Aladdin and his lamp."

ST. LOUIS LETTER

state banking board has ordered ten banks to increase their capital stock in proportion to their business.

Bank Guaranty Fund

The Texas guaranty fund now amounts to $708,374.82, according to the report of the department of insurance and banking. Of this amount, $177,110.70 is in the state treasury and $531,264.12 is in the banks under the guaranty fund as demand deposits subject to check of the bank guaranty fund. The fund will be decreased by $701,179.62 when nine banks in course of liquidation draw down their funds. Since January 1st, the increase has been $167,474.16 and the net increase for the new guaranty fund year, payments being due before January 1st, was $100,690.80. There are fifty-five bond security banks which have made bonds aggregating $6,436,000.

Minor Cannot be Trust Officer

According to a ruling by the attorney general's department given to Commissioner of Insurance and Banking Gill, a minor cannot become an officer in a trust company. It is pointed out by the attorney-general that before an officer of a trust company enters upon his duties he must give a bond in such sum as may be required by the board of directors and as such a bond would be a contract, it could not be made with a minor. A minor may become the agent of a trust company, and as such agent his acts would become binding upon the company, and as such agent he should execute a bond in favor of the company, his sureties being aware he was a minor, would be binding, but as to the minor, the contract would not be legal: "That is to say," says the attorney-general, "it would be voidable at his option."

Receiver Named For Memphis Bank and Trust Company

Lamar Heiskell has been appointed receiver for the Chickasaw Bank and Trust Company, Memphis, Tenn., whose officers have declared their inability to meet their clearing house obligations. The receiver states that the embarrassment was caused by long loans and overdrafts and inability to realize upon them as soon as expected. He says that the depositors will be paid in full.

C. W. McNEAR & CO.

Announcement is made of the withdrawal of Messrs. G. G. Woodin and C. H. Moore, Jr., from the firm of Woodin, McNear and Moore, dealers in investment bonds, Chicago. C. W. McNear has succeeded to the business and will continue at the present location, 512 American Trust building, under the name of C. W. McNear & Co.

Mr. Moore has organized the firm of C. H. Moore & Co. to deal in investment bonds, with offices at 411 New York Life building.

Charles S. Rose has resigned as cashier of the Wabash (Ind.) County Loan and Trust Company effective February 1st. He will accept a position with the Equitable Life Assurance Society. Mr. Rose has been cashier of the trust company for nearly five years.

CENTRAL WEST LETTER

By EDGAR P. ALLEN

Omaha

Not for many years has there been a banking change in Kansas of such general interest as the merging of the Bank of Topeka and the Prudential State Bank of that city which was announced last week. The Bank of Topeka is the oldest bank in the city and one of the historic financial institutions of the state. It was established half a century ago and John R. Mulvane has been its president practically from the very day of its opening. The Prudential State Bank was organized June 1, 1906, as a savings institution and with it has been affiliated the Prudential Trust Company. Both institutions are included in the merger and the combined institution will continue to bear the name of the Bank of Topeka. It will have the largest capital of any bank in Kansas and combined deposits larger than any other bank in the state, except one in Kansas City, Kan. John R. Mulvane will continue as president of the merged banks, and S. E. Cobb, cashier of the Prudential State Bank, will be vice-president. The combined resources of the two banks are $3,471,000.

Withdraw Opposition to Bank Commissioner

The troubles of Charles M. Sawyer, recently appointed bank commissioner of Kansas by Governor Hodges, have ended happily, and all opposition to him by state bankers has been withdrawn. A meeting was held in Kansas City last week when Governor Hodges, Commissioner Sawyer and P. E. Laughlin, of Marysville, Kas., deputy bank commissioner, met the members of the executive committee of the Kansas Bankers Association to discuss the situation. The objection to Mr. Sawyer was based upon the fact that he is a national banker and the state bankers feared their members would suffer from discrimination. But it has developed that Mr. Sawyer also is interested heavily in state banks and is in favor of the policies and legislative program promulgated by the state bankers. The governor, bank commissioner and the other guests were entertained at luncheon at the Mid-Day Club by W. T. Kemper, president of the Commerce Trust Company. Those present were: Governor Hodges, Commissioner Sawyer, Deputy Laughlin, William Macferran of Topeka; J. E. Gleason of Norton; T. J. Sweeney of Lawrence; M. A. Householder of Columbus; A. R. Wallace of White City; J. D. Josephs of Whitewater; C. C. K. Scoville of Seneca; C. N. Prouty of Kansas City, Kan.; Otto H. Wulfkuhler of Leavenworth; D. F. Callahan of Kingman; F. M. Wilson of Soldier and C. H. Matson of Jewell City.

Bank Swindler Sentenced

Diggs Nolen, bank swindler, wanted in Kansas City for defrauding a number of banks, was sentenced to five years imprisonment following his trial in the federal court at Omaha last week. Nolen is said to have been the leader of a noted gang of bank thieves and the Pinkerton people have been on his trail for more than a year. He was arrested in Memphis, Tenn., December 10th last, and when it was announced that he would be removed to Omaha for trial, the members of his gang plotted to rescue him by killing the officers in charge. This plot failed and one of the members of the rescuing gang was killed; later another plot was hatched which also failed. Nolen is a desperate man and he has been guarded with unusual care, as four or five of his gang are still at large sworn to secure his liberty at any cost.

Governor Favors Legislative Program

The state bankers of Oklahoma have a firm friend in Governor Cruce who has stated publicly that he will stand behind the legislative program prepared by the association. The state bankers want the state laws so changed as to insure stability so that the state banker of Oklahoma can figure with greater certainty upon the amount of his annual contribution to the state guaranty fund. In a recent statement Governor Cruce said: "The guaranty of deposits has become a fixed principle and in my judgment will be maintained in the laws of Oklahoma and will be enacted into the laws of every progressive state. The state bankers of Oklahoma, during the past four years, have undergone the most trying ordeal that business men ever have been called upon to endure, and their fidelity to the underlying principle of affording protection to the funds entrusted to them abundantly has been established. They have contributed hundreds of thousands of dollars to the guaranty fund of the state, thereby saving a corresponding loss to the individual depositors in state banks. That this burden has been a grievous one, no one can deny; that something must be done to curtail the loss and make more certain the obligation imposed upon state bankers is equally patent to every thinking man."

Commissioner Gill Makes Assignments

Banking Commissioner Gill of Texas has made the quarterly assignment of state bank examiners, although he has not yet announced the appointment of the sixteenth examiner. The latest assignments are: Sherman district, J. R. Buchanan; Dallas district, L. P. Kean; Amarillo district, W. C. McFall; San Antonio district, Louie Cohn; Austin district, C. S. Holderness; Houston district, E. F. Gossett; Wichita district, J. O. Jackson; Beaumont district, Paul G. Villaret; Tyler district, W. H. Leftwich; Greenville district, R. R. R. Cook; El Paso district, L. J. Davis; Brownsville district, J. S. Wightman; Fort Worth district, C. E. McCutcheon; Waco district, J. H. Cheatham; Calvert district, J. W. Hayes. Mr. Jackson is a new man succeeding L. V. Myrick, resigned, who has taken the cashiership of the Citizens National of Wolfe City, Texas.

Reduction of Capital Stock

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the American Trust Company of Houston, Tex., it was decided to reduce the capital stock from $500,000 to $250,000 and to change the name of the company to the Security Trust Company of Houston. Most of the members of the directorate are new and all of the officers are elected for the first time. These officers are Edwin B. Parker, president; James D. Anderson, vice-president, and John F. Maddox, cashier.

Agricultural Committee Shows Up Well

The committee appointed by the Missouri Bankers Association to organize county bureaus for the promotion of agricultural development has made a splendid showing. Already a dozen Missouri counties are organized and a number of them have arranged for expert agricultural advisors. A meeting of county bankers and others interested in this matter will be held soon at Independence to organize a bureau for Jackson county (Kansas City) and the state bankers have appointed the following committee to take charge of the work: Locke Sawyer, cashier of the Christman-Sawyer Bank of Independence; E. E. Montgomery, cashier of the Citizens State of Blue Springs, and C. G. Hutcheson, cashier of the First National of Kansas City. A great many Kansas City bankers will attend the meeting unofficially to help along the movement.

Central West Notes

Jay Plumbley, a banker of Checotah, Ok., who was indicted on the charge of making false entries in the books of his bank, has pleaded guilty in the federal court at Muskogee, and sentence will be declared soon. The minimum penalty for the crime is five years in the penitentiary.

The building occupied by the State Bank of Kenedy, Texas, burned last week, but the bank's books and money escaped injury.

Representatives of the six banks of Texarkana, Ark., have organized a local clearing house. J. A. Pondrom of the Texarkana National was elected president; B. H. Kupl of sa," which is in the nature of a draft not subject to acceptance. It is used largely by sugar estate managers to authorize payments by their principals in other localities.

A large amount of foreign exchange is done by cable, and important arbitrage operations are conducted daily with the leading marts abroad. The introduction of foreign goods through banks is effected by means of drafts with bills of lading attached. Items from Europe usually are at long sight, from 60 days to 6 months, while those from the United States are mostly at 30 days' sight or cash on delivery. As special instructions of shippers or correspondents are observed, they should be specific, and any departure therefrom at the instance of local agents must be provided for by a power of attorney showing special authority.

Checks have become an important part of the country's currency. A check in Cuba is an order (mandato) to deliver money deposited with a bank in account current, and it must be preceded by a deposit of funds. The relation of the bank to its customer is that of depositary (as distinguished from debtor,) the use of the money by the bank arising from its character of "fungible" property. Notes or other obligations made payable by a customer at the bank require a specific order in the form of a check, to authorize their payment. To hold endorsers liable (or drawers, in case of the drawee bank's subsequent insolvency) checks must be presented for payment within five days from date, if payable in the place where drawn, and within eight days, if at a different place in the island. Such time is twelve days in the case of checks drawn abroad. Payees of checks are required to sign the words "Received Payment" and date thereof, on collecting checks at a bank, as a voucher to the institution. Duplicate checks cannot be issued, except on cancellation of originals and the consent of the drawee bank. The "crossing" of checks is frequent, to prevent further negotiability, and is effected by writing across the obverse side the name of the "bank or company" who is authorized to collect them. The rules governing bills of exchange as to the liability of endorsers and protest are applicable to checks. Certification of checks has come into use as a modern innovation, the codes making no provision therefor.

Bank deposits are under the following restrictions as to withdrawals:

A married woman is required to obtain a "licencia marital" from her husband, who is the legal administrator of her estate. A minor signs by his father, or, if the latter be dead, by his mother. If neither parent is living a "family council" is appointed which gives specific authority to the tutor (guardian,) and in withdrawals of $1,000 or upwards, the signature of a protutor further is needed.

The disability of infancy may be removed at 18 years by emancipation or marriage, and at 21 by registration as a merchant or trader. Minors under 18 years of age can not withdraw deposits, unless married and under express consent. The age of majority, for males and females, is 23 years.

Children of foreign citizens are not strictly subject to these regulations.

Checks of business corporations and copartnerships are required to be drawn as provided in the constitutions, by-laws or articles of association, and such companies should be inscribed in the Mercantile Registry. Agents and attorneys draw funds from the accounts of principals by virtue of a special power of attorney, made or recorded in the office of a local notary public. Funds of deceased persons are paid to their heirs direct. The term "heir"

Northwest Letter

Banking news from Minneapolis—St. Paul financial center, and surrounding States, compiled by J. Edwards Smith

By an exchange of courtesies concrete example was given in the bank elections of ties being cemented between the Twin Cities. W. H. Dunwoody, chairman of the board of the Northwestern National, was elected director in the St. Paul First National. Louis W. Hill was re-elected director in the Northwestern National, where he has served a few months.

Several changes took place as the result of the bank consolidation which has been going on in St. Paul. Louis W. Hill, who has been on the building committee of the Merchants National, was elected chairman of the board of the First National, now controlled by James J. Hill, after absorption of the Second National. Other officers of the First are: President, E. H. Bailey; vice-president, W. A. Miller; cashier, F. A. Nienhauser; assistants, O. M. Nelson, C. H. Buckley, Edwin Mott. A. L. Ordean, president of the Duluth First National, capital and surplus $2,000,000, was added to the board of the First; also Theodore Schurmeier, president H. Gotzian & Co.; David C. Shepard II; J. J. Toomey, secretary to James J. Hill; W. B. Dean, Walter Butler, A. M. Rose, and Darius Miller, president of the Burlington road. Directors of the First who hold over are: Howard Elliott, E. N. Saunders, L. W. Hill, J. J. Hill, C. W. Ames, T. A. Schulze, C. W. Gordon, H. S. Cole, E. H. Bailey, W. A. Miller, W. P. Davidson.

The combined capital is $3,000,000, capital and surplus $5,630,000 and combined resources $34,000,000. The First has $2,000,000 capital, to increase which a plan has been suggested. The company has $200,000 capital, surplus and undivided profits of $135,000.

Governor A. O. Eberhart of Minnesota made reference to a proposed "Blue Sky" law in his annual message at the recent opening of the legislature. After mentioning the need of protection for the public against worthless stocks and bonds the governor said: "A law should be enacted which will not in any way restrict or even retard legitimate business enterprise, but effectively prevent the issuing and sale of stocks and bonds which have little or no value, by providing for the examination of such securities before issue and sale, and adequate penalties for the violation of the law. It is essential that the law should effectually reach the promoter and solicitor, for without them worthless stocks and bonds could not be placed on the market."

Robert S. Ford, pioneer cattle man of Great Falls, Mont., and founder of the Great Falls National, has retired from the presidency after service of twenty-two years. Lee M. Ford, a son, succeeds to the position. Mr. Ford will remain as chairman of the board. He is considered one of the wealthiest men of the state, where he has lived fifty years. Chase L. Dobner, retiring president of the First State of Thief River Falls, Minn., who is to remove south for his health, was guest of honor at a banquet given by the business and professional men of the city.

The First National, St. Cloud, Minn., has been placed on the honor roll by the raising of surplus to $100,000, equaling the capital.

Mitchell, S. D.—State and private banks and trust companies have made a big gain between the last call in 1911 and the call of Nov. 26, 1912. The statement by the examiner is taken to reflect the general business conditions in the state.

Pacific Northwest Banking News

Spokane, Jan. 14th.—Various changes in Washington banking laws are desired of the coming legislature by the Washington Bankers Association. These are listed in a circular received by Spokane bankers from J. H. Edwards, Seattle, chairman of the association's legislative committee.

In regard to forged indorsements the association argues that an amendment providing time limitations for actions to recover against such forgeries is as necessary for the bank's protection as the law already passed covering forged signatures. On other amendments advocated the association's arguments are offered as follows:

"By making the plaintiff pay costs and a small attorney's fee in garnishments, banks and individuals will be protected against the prevalent custom of garnishments without knowledge as to whether such action is justifiable.

"Placing insolvent banks in the hands of the state examiner rather than under a receiver appointed by the court is a method which has been found more advisable as a saving to creditors and it has been adopted by many states.

"Releasing estates from the expense of furnishing bonds where a trust company is handling them, unless the court considers it wise, according to the amount and kind of estate, to ask for bond beyond the combined capital and surplus of such company, is designed to eliminate useless expense, particularly for small and moderate estates.

"Permitting withdrawal of joint accounts after death up to $1,000, instead of $300 under existing law, likewise is for the benefit of people with small means.

"Regulating securities of deposits of municipal funds amends the present law governing cities and towns of more than 7,500, and is practically the same as the present law governing cities and towns of less than 7,500; it also will enlarge the market for such miscellaneous securities of smaller cities and towns.

"The notary public bill is one that has been approved by the American Bankers Association, and has been passed in many states.

"Permitting banks to hold real estate is an exact copy of the present law, except the permission to carry real estate as an asset for five years instead of three. This change complies with the national banking act and most of the state laws.

"At present 20 per cent reserve of demand liabilities is required, but no definition is made of demand liabilities. After copying the present law time and savings deposits are defined and a reserve against the same of 10 per cent required. In numerous states less than 10 per cent is required, but that figure seemed a fair average."

The bankers also will offer a bill to make uniform the law of warehouse receipts.

At the annual meeting of the Old National Bank Building Company, a satisfactory year's business was reported, with 94 per cent of the big skyscraper occupied, and $90,000 in dividends paid the stockholders during the year. The company paid a 6 per cent dividend on a capitalization of $1,500,000. The following trustees were elected to serve a term of one year, all of them succeeding themselves: Jay P. Graves, P. Welch, R. B. Porter, F. T. McCullough, F. B. Grinnell, W. A. Monroe, T. J. Humbird, D. W. Twohy and W. J. C. Wakefield. The officers elected for the ensuing year are: P. Welch, president; T. J. Humbird, vice-president; D. W. Twohy, treasurer; W. J. C. Wakefield, secretary, and W. J. Kommers, assistant secretary.

Plans for putting water on between 450,000 and 500,000 acres of land in the Quincy valley, west of Spokane, were outlined to the Spokane Realty Board by Professor Henry Landes, state geologist, who has made a thorough investigation of the project and declares its entire feasibility. The coming legislature will be asked to appropriate money for completing the survey, investigation and estimates. It is proposed to finance the project by having the state issue $40,000,000 bonds against the property receiving the water. Water will be taken from the Wenatchee river, and will be piped under the Columbia river by a siphon, two miles long and 100 feet below the water's surface. Another stupendous engineering project will be a tunnel three miles long through the mountains. Plans provide for a canal 64 miles long.

Announcement is made by Harry A. Flood, president of the Trustee Company, of the retirement by the company of a mortgage of $160,000 against the Empire State building, held by the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York. The mortgage originally was given by F. Lewis Clark of the Consolidated Improvement Company, from whom the company bought the property last spring. It makes the fourth large mortgage paid off by the company since it began operations in Spokane, the total amount of the four being $450,000.

Less than seven and a half years after negotiating a twenty-year bond issue of $35,000, the Masonic Temple Association, which owns the Masonic building, retired the entire issue. The money was paid over to the Spokane and Eastern Trust Company, which held the bonds as trustee.

Receiving tellers at the Traders National handled in 1912 $900,000 in silver and, in turn, the paying tellers passed out about two-thirds of a million. Incidentally, other banks, by securing their supply of silver from the Traders National, made a saving of $2,400 in express charges. This bank receives the silver from the two traction companies, from the interstate fair and from the baseball park. Several country banks were supplied with silver by the Traders.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Union Trust and Savings, W. J. Kommers, cashier, was promoted to the third vice-presidency, a newly created position. Frank C. Paine, secretary, was given a position on the board of directors, and W. G. Hall, assistant secretary, was made cashier, and will continue his other duties. The other officers, directors and executive committee were re-elected.

State Bank Examiner J. L. Mohundro has appointed C. P. Hay, former cashier of the Snohomish Commercial Bank, to the position of deputy examiner in eastern Washington, to succeed F. E. Barbour of Spokane, who resigned to enter the employ of the Day and Hansen Security Company. Mr. Hay will live in Spokane.

Deposits at the Spokane postal savings bank continue to increase, $58,028 being on deposit January 1st. Small amounts have been collected at the branch stations which were designated as savings banks to accommodate the public in the outskirts of the city.

George P. Wiley of Waterville, chairman of the agricultural development committee of the Washington State Bankers Association, has made the following report for this committee:

"First of all, our idea is to co-operate with the agencies that have the great state of Washington back of them.

"Development in this country will be arrested unless the boys and girls of the rising generation are given practical education in vocational pursuits, of which agriculture probably is the most far-reaching and profitable. Social balance and home welfare demand that education of women in domestic science and art must keep pace with the vocational education of men, especially of farmers in farming.

"We feel that there is a need and an opportunity for the State College to make itself more reponsible for the needs of the state and to be of wider usefulness. Its extension work should be broadened and the agricultural knowledge of the school more widely disseminated. An exceptional opportunity is afforded for co-operation here. While providing suitable, practical education for coming generations of country children is vital and all-important, economic conditions demand immediate instruction for adult farmers in their field through the location of agricultural experts in rural counties who possess the proper knowledge and personality to discuss practical farming with practical farmers on common ground and in common language.

"Demonstration farms have passed the experimental stage. Whenever properly organized, demonstrators have increased production, stimulated diversification and won the enthusiastic approval of the community. North Dakota, through demonstrators, won the Joseph Chapman cup this year.

"By reason of increased public sentiment, federal appropriations for agricultural extension work are being increased each year. Demonstration agencies, under the partial support and supervision of the United States department of agriculture, will be introduced into our state as soon as we are in a position to do our part. We believe in the adoption of legislation, both national and state, looking to the extension of agricultural education, and especially should we co-operate with vocational educators in extension work.

"The energy and funds of the committee will not be used to aid schools in establishing vocational and agricultural courses, nor in carrying on extension or demonstration work. It will be our duty rather to create public sentiment by publicity set in operation along suggestive lines, to keep in close touch with and assure the interest of members, to consider and look carefully to such legislation as will be advantageous to our cause.

"Bankers can help in this movement by creating favorable sentiment for it and showing its advantages in their particular localities. Our association has committed itself to this course. Let us go forward and help in the work for our own good and the general good of the Northwest." Also reports having written the representatives and senators, urging them to support either the Page or the Smith-Lever bill.

EDMONTON NEWS

Standard Bank of Canada, with a paid-up capital of $2,330,000 and assets of $40,000,000, will establish a branch in Edmonton before the end of next May, taking the quarters now occupied by the Northern Crown bank, which will move to the Canadian Pacific Railway building within 60 days. This was decided recently at a meeting of the directors in Toronto, where the bank has its headquarters. The announcement was made in Edmonton by C. T. de la Plant, manager of the branch at Calgary.

The manager of the Edmonton branch has not yet been appointed, but it is intimated he will be a man from the ranks, selected because of his experience and ability. It is expected that the appointment will be announced formally in February or March when the official will come to Edmonton to acquaint himself with conditions in the capital and central Alberta.

The quarters will be equipped throughout with modern furnishings. There will be some changes made to the interior of the building, but it only will mean moving into a building which has been used for such a purpose the last fifteen years. The ground is well located on the south side of Jasper avenue, between Queens and McDougall avenues and directly opposite the branch of the Bank of Commerce.

The Standard bank has been endeavoring for some time to open a branch in Edmonton, but nothing definite was done until it was learned that the Northern Crown bank had plans to move to a new building. G. M. Schefield, general manager of the bank, came to Edmonton from Toronto several months ago to look over the field. He was so much impressed with the possibilities that he laid the matter before the directors with the foregoing result.

The first efforts to locate in Edmonton were made a year ago by G. C. Perkins, formerly of Calgary, now manager of the branch at Vancouver, B. C., but no suitable location could be secured at that time and negotiations were stopped. The bank, which was organized in 1873, has branches at Calgary, Vancouver and Winnipeg. Its stock is quoted on the stock exchange at 225 points. It pays dividends at the rate of 13 per cent a year to the shareholders.

The telephone department of the city of Edmonton shows a surplus of $5,206 for 1912, making an accumulated surplus of $38,993. Fifteen hundred and eighty-seven instruments, giving a total of 5,060 in operation, were installed. The yearly rental is $20 for residence and $30 for business. The power plant shows an increase of 100 per cent over any previous year. It supplied 6,077,000 kw. to the light department and 5,705,000 kw. to the street railway department in 1912. The water department, which reports a surplus of $8,374, supplied 1,257,496,649 gallons of water during the year. The stores and works, the street cleaning and the parks departments also made substantial improvements. The parks department converted 798 acres of land, acquired by gifts or purchase, into beauty spots for the people. The new departments created during the year are: Industrial commissioner, information bureau and claims agent. The total assessments on ground values only, there being no improvement, business, income or personal tax, was $123,512,590 in 1912, the levy being 12 mills on the dollar. The assessments in 1902 totaled $1,724,420 and $673,694 in 1892. "The single tax and public ownership systems have worked veritable wonders in Edmonton," said Edmund T. Baines, head of the municipal information bureau. "Coupled with these is the fact that Edmonton is the capital of the province of Alberta, the divisional and distributing point of the Canadian Pacific, Grand Trunk Pacific and Canadian Northern transcontinental roads, surrounded by one of the best mixed farming districts in Canada. It is estimated there is more than sixty million tons of coal in the district. Edmonton also is the gateway to the vast Peace River country, which is only awaiting the advent of the settler to add its quota to our progress and prosperity."

SUES STOCKHOLDERS

George C. Van Tuyl, Jr., state superintendent of banks in New York, has instituted suit against 210 stockholders of the Carnegie Trust Company to recover from them by virtue of their stockholders' liability sufficient money to make up in whole or part such deficit as may result to the creditors of the defunct trust company. This action is authorized by a section of the bankruptcy law of New York, which has been approved by the appellate division. The par value of the stock of the Carnegie Trust Company is $1,500,000; the claims against the company amount to $4,500,000. Dividends to the extent of 35 per cent of the amount of the claims filed already have been paid by the superintendent of banks to the creditors.

Word comes from Terre Haute, Indiana, that Bertis McCormick, cashier of the First National of that place for the past twenty-four years, has resigned to become secretary-treasurer of the Acme Roofing Tile Company. CLEARINGS REACH HIGH MARK Clearings for 1912 greatly exceeded those of any preceding year, according to figures compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., which include returns from 128 leading centers amounting to $174,189,507,180. This is an increase of 9.3 per cent over 1911 and 6.6 per cent over 1910. Practically every important city reports a substantial gain for the year.

BANKING CONDITIONS COMPARED

A. Piatt Andrew, formerly of the treasury department at Washington shows that banking power in the U. S. isn't nearly so concentrated as in European centers. The total number of banks in the United States is 25,176; in 1900 there was as reported, a separate bank to every 7,357 of population; in 1912 there was a separate bank to every 3,788 of population. In Great Britian there is a separate bank to every 388,003 of population. In 1900 New York City's proportion of the country's banking resources was, in per cent, 23.2; in 1912 this proportion had fallen in per cent to 18.9. In 1908 ten London banks held 63 per cent of England's total commercial deposits. Four Paris banks held 85 per cent of France's total deposits as reported. In New York today the ten largest financial institutions hold only 7.6 per cent of the country's deposits. The members of the London Clearing House number 18; the members of the Paris Clearing House number 11; the members of the Berlin Clearing House number 19; the members of the New York City Clearing House number 64.

Accounts of Iowa banks invited. Reserve agents for national banks

A. J. Fawcett has sold his interests in the Peoples State at Maxwell to O. W. Parker and M. H Trupe.

William Roberts has been chosen cashier of the German Farmers Savings at Clarksville to succeed G. A. Stewart, resigned.

Des Moines, Jan. 17th.—Numerous changes were made in Des Moines state and savings banks at the annual meetings this year. The national banks held their meetings January 1st and their proceedings will be given later. One of the important bank actions was the declaring of a special dividend of 100 per cent by the stockholders of the State Savings. This, in addition to the annual 5 per cent declared a few days prior, makes practically a 105 per cent dividend, which sets a new record for the season. The capital stock was increased from $50,000 to $100,000. Officers and directors were re-elected.

At the meeting of the German Savings, John Cavanaugh was elected president, succeeding Jesse O. Wells. Charles H. Weitz and Louis C. Kurtz were elected new vice-presidents. John Hogan was re-elected cashier and made director to succeed Mr. Wells on the board. A semiannual dividend of 4 per cent was declared. All directors were re-elected.

A. O. Hauge was advanced from cashier to vice-president, at the meeting of the Iowa Trust and Savings. L. M. Barlow, for six years assistant cashier, was made cashier. W. B. Martin was re-elected president and G. S. Gilberton re-elected vice-president. The bank paid its usual 12 per cent dividend and added $5,000 to the surplus.

The Century Savings added two new directors, C. C. Taft and B. B. Vorse, to its board. L. E. Stevens was re-elected president and there were no changes in other officials. Ten thousand dollars were transferred to the surplus fund and the remainder of the earnings were placed in the undivided profit account.

Gilger E. Mackinnon was re-elected president of the Mechanics Savings and there were no changes in the remainder of the officials. The usual semiannual dividend was declared and a healthy sum was added to the surplus.

Officers and directors of the Peoples Savings were re-elected and Carl Mesmer was made assistant cashier. The quarterly dividend of 3 per cent was declared as usual.

The Central State held its first annual meeting in the new building. The present officers were re-elected. A 5 per cent semiannual dividend was declared.

There are other annual meetings to be held later by savings banks in Des Moines, but the month of January will see them all out of the way.

To Fight Loan Sharks

The Des Moines Commercial Club has taken up the fight on loan sharks. At a meeting given legislators, plans were made for backing a bill which will permit the exaction of interest at the rate of three per cent a month on chattel loans of less than $300. The Industrial Corporation of Dubuque also has a club out for the loan sharks. Letters have been sent out asking commercial bodies to unite in a movement which will put an end to usurious collection of interest and suggesting a law permitting municipal loan bureaus. It is probable that several different forms of anti-loan shark measures will be presented to the legislature.

Postal Savings Deposits

Postmaster Louis Kurtz states that the deposits in the Des Moines postal savings banks for the year 1912 were $75,365. The withdrawals were $39,383. At the end of the year the balance in the local branch was $50,733. The amount of money transferred to government bonds was $6,800.

Soldiers to be Paid Through Des Moines Banks

Arrangements have been made whereby the men at Fort Des Moines hereafter will be paid through Des Moines banks. Paymaster Major Waterman now is located at the fort. The pay-roll will total $20,000 per month for the Sixth cavalry. Heretofore, the officers and troopers have been paid through the banks at the nearest division point.

Leslie M. Shaw, ex-secretary of the treasury, has disposed of his banking interests at Denison to C. L. Voss, and his land interests approaching 2,040 acres of Woodbury county land to the same party. Shaw was president of the Bank of Denison for thirty years and he now is not connected with Iowa finance. Carl Kuehnle becomes president of the Denison Bank and Mr. Voss remains as cashier, with A. B. Lorenzen assistant cashier.

Daring Attempt to Escape

A daring effort to secure the freedom of Harvey Lee, alias Charles McBride, who is held in jail at Marion for complicity in the attempt to loot the Bank of Alburnett some weeks ago, resulted in the death of Officer Charles P. Gillin of the Cedar Rapids police force. It seems that someone smuggled some nitroglycerin to Lee. The latter was using the explosive in an attempt to blow a hole in the jail through which he might escape. Sheriff Loftus became apprised of the attempt and summoned the police from Cedar Rapids. In the attempt to quell the riot which ensued Officer Gillin was shot, presumably by one of his fellow officers, as Lee denies he had a gun and none could be found when he was searched. Lee did not escape. Officer Gillin leaves a family in straitened circumstances and the Coggon State Bank started a fund for their relief with a $25 contribution. At this writing the fund is growing and should reach good proportions. Lee is 27 years of age and a bad actor. Efforts to ascertain where he got the nitroglycerin have availed nothing.

Insurance Company Absorbed

Iowa fire insurance companies are having hard sledding. One by one they are being taken over or reinsured by eastern concerns. The Sioux Fire was taken over by the Hartford last week, after trying for three years to make money without success. F. A. McCornack, vice-president of the First National at Sioux City, was president of the Sioux Fire. Iowa statutes are said to be adverse to successful conducting of the business in Iowa. Moreover the office expense and the increased losses on farm risks have made the business poor investment.

Annual Message of Governor

Governor Carroll in his final annual message before retirement to make way for Governor Clarke deals lightly with bank conditions. The governor asserts that conditions in this respect have been very satisfactory during the past two years. There are now 1,049 banks and trust companies reporting to the state department, as against 950 two years ago. Deposits have increased from $247,000,000 to $285,000,000 in the biennial period. In another section of his message the governor recommends a state sheriff to hunt down such guilty parties as those who killed the Moore family at Villisca. Doubtless Secretary Hall could keep the official busy chasing bank robbers if the legislature follows the advice of the governor. In dealing with the question of taxation the governor lays special stress upon the importance of changing the method of assessing bank stocks as recommended by the state tax commission. The governor says the commission hopes not only to reach a more equitable basis of assessment, but likewise to encourage banks in building up a strong surplus.

Iowa Notes

David H. McKee, who has come to Des Moines from Davenport to become manager of the Iowa Loan and Trust Company, was the guest of the Commercial Club directory board upon arriving in the city last week. Mr. McKee, it is expected, will become a prominent factor in Des Moines business circles.

J. V. Arney, formerly assistant cashier of the Valley Bank at Davis City, has been made deputy clerk of the Iowa supreme court, succeeding the late Charles C. Heer, who died suddenly New Year's Day.

The Boone State directors considered a new building at the annual meeting last week, but did not take definite action.

Kenneth Silliman, son of H. N. Silliman, well known banker at Cedar Falls, has decided to locate in Sioux City for the practice of law. He has completed his course at Ann Arbor.

The new Swisher Savings has opened for business at Swisher, near Iowa City, on the Cedar Rapids interurban. The capital stock is $15,000. John P. Marak is president, Louis Womoun, cashier of the American Savings and Trust of Cedar Rapids, is vice-president and Steven Pudil, long with the Cedars Rapids National, is cashier.

George F. Tine, a well-known and wealthy farmer near Oskaloosa, has disposed of his farm and will become an Oskaloosa banker. He is superintendent of the swine department at the state fair.

The Bank of Malvern has changed its title to the Iowa State Savings, with capital stock of $25,000. Charles S. Royce is president; Thomas W. Gidley is vice-president; Perry B. Hendricks is cashier.

The four banks of Iowa Falls are delighted that they are able to show total deposits at the beginning of the new year of $1,146,000. the First National shows $416,000, the State National has $410,000, the Peoples Trust and Savings $230,000, and the Security Savings $90,000.

The new State Bank at Blairsburg is ready to move into its handsome and commodious new building. The material for the structure was delayed and the bank was not able to get into its new home as soon as had been anticipated. The building is said to be a beauty.

South Dakota Notes

South Dakota is in line for a "Blue Sky" law as are the other states in the Middle West. It is anticipated that legislation along this line is a certainty at the hands of the legislature.

Depositors in the Meade County Bank which closed its doors a year ago at Sturgis, have received dividend checks of 10 per cent on their holdings. The total deposits were $750,000, and it is said this is the second 10 per cent dividend since the bank closed.

State Treasurer Johnson, who has just given over that office to his successor, A. W. Ewert, collected a total of $57,369.71 as interest on the public funds during his term of office, four years.

The city of Yankton has sold $60,000 bonds for water works improvements to a Chicago bank. The issue is taken at par with a premium of $1,128.

in Cuban jurisprudence, appies to beneficiaries of both real and personal property in lawful order of succession, there being no administrator for personal effects, as in other jurisdictions, in the case of persons dying intestate.

If a depositor dies leaving a will, the executor (if there be one) signs with the heirs for the amount of the deposit, the executor not being usually considered as vested with such power, unless the will provides otherwise. Where no will is left by a depositor, it is necessary to submit to the bank a "declaration of heirship," issued by the court, showing who are the heirs and next of kin entitled to the funds. Such "heirs" are, in cases of intestacy, first, legitimate descendants. If there be none, then the parents and other ancestors of the deceased; and in default of children or ancestors, the collaterals and other relatives. The deposits of deceased aliens are (pursuant to Article 10 of the Civil Code) distributed according to the laws of their respective nationalities.

Unclaimed deposits are not affected by the Statute of Limitations until after the lapse of fifteen years. The period of prescription is three years for bills of exchange, drafts, commercial notes, checks, dividends, coupons, redeemed bonds and other mercantile obligations not otherwise provided for. Civil promissory notes (as distinguished from those of a mercantile nature) are barred by limitation after 15 years.

To supply the want of savings banks, which disappeared from Cuba after the disastrous failure of the Caja de Ahorros (Institution of Savings) of Havana in the year 1884, the National Bank of Cuba and other banks of deposit have maintained for over ten years savings departments, which have met with popular favor and success. The interest paid on savings deposits is 3 per cent per annum, compounded quarterly, under rules somewhat similar to those of savings banks of the state of New York.

Banking credits on the whole are safe and satisfactory, the standing of merchants being readily ascertainable through the branch bank system in vogue, aided by the mercantile agencies.

While the commercial laws of Cuba are technical in many respects, the system of codification which the code of commerce represents appeals favorably to those familiar with the need of uniform rules in regard to negotiable instruments, bills of lading, common carriers, insurance, bankruptcy and other subjects which constitute live issues among bankers and business men in other communities.

MORE BANKS IN IOWA THAN ANY OTHER STATE

Iowa enjoys the distinction of containing more banks than any other state in the Union, according to figures set forth in the report of the state banking department for the year. The report shows that there is a total of 1,706 financial institutions in the state. There are 309 private banks. It is expected that a bill placing all private banks under state supervision and inspection will be introduced at the next session of the legislature, probably by Senator Webber of Ottumwa. Iowa, like Illinois, is one of the few states in the Union where unsupervised banking is permitted to exist. An effort also will be made to increase the working force of the bank examiner's office so that more effective examinations may be made of the affairs of the institutions already under the supervision and inspection of the state. At present there are only six examiners employed, which makes it impossible to examine the banks more than once a year. Indeed, it is said that there are two banks in the state which were not examined at all during the past year. Many of the other states provide forces sufficiently large to permit of the banks being examined at least twice a year.

Auditor Bleakly shows that two more examiners, at least, could be added without loss to the state. At present the fees from bank supervision bring the state $21,000 per year. The state pays its examiners out of this the sum of $10,800, and in addition $5,000 for the maintenance of offices in Des Moines. This leaves $5,200 profit, which would pay two inspecators, at least. Moreover, if the 309 private banks are placed under state supervision there will be $6,180 more in fees. This additional $11,000 would double the present force of examiners and add much to the efficiency of their work.

CHICAGO'S VISITORS

Among the Illinois bankers who visited Chicago recently are B. M. Mead, cashier of the State Trust and Savings, Peoria; J. S. Gridley, cashier of the First National, Libertyville; Stewart L. Crebs, vice-president of the National Bank of Carmi (Mr. Crebs is a member of the good roads committee of the Illinois Bankers Association); W. A. Armstrong, cashier of the Peoples Trust and Savings, Galesburg; George W. Telling, cashier of the Commercial Trust and Savings, Danville. Richard S. Hawes, vice-president of the Third National of St. Louis, was seen in the financial district recently.

"BLUE SKY" LAW FOR MAINE

A bill based on the Kansas "Blue Sky" law has been introduced in the legislature of Maine, requiring investment companies to furnish full information concerning their business before being permitted to offer securities for sale.

An Open Forum Dedicated to the American Institute of Banking in Which to Advance the Great Movement for Systematic Education and Universal Membership

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF BANKING COMMITTEE ON CORRESPONDENCE INSTRUCTION

The American Institute of Banking, which has a membership of over 12,000 in the city chapters located in all of the principal cities of the country, has for some time realized the need for reaching in some way the banker and bank man situated in the smaller towns where local chapters are impracticable.

To accomplish this end a course in Correspondence Instruction was prepared some time ago by Educational Director George E. Allen and his assistants. This course covers the same subjects as the one pursued by the city chapters, taking up practical banking and banking law with their allied topics.

J. L. Hartman

Portland, Ore., January 13th.—J. L. Hartman of this city, a well known banker and secretary of the Oregon Bankers Association, has just been reappointed for the twenty-fourth consecutive year manager of the Portland Clearing House. He hopes to round out his quarter century of service in 1914. Quite a record! Under his twenty-four terms Mr. Hartman has seen the clearings grow from fifty-six to six hundred millions. Can any city or any manager beat this for service?

WILLIAM C. POTTER MADE DIRECTOR

New York, January 16th.—William C. Potter, vice-president Guaranty Trust Company of New York, has been elected a director of that institution. Mr. Potter is a former Chicagoan and is a son of E. A. Potter, formerly president of the American Trust and Savings Bank.

ADDRESSES BOND MEN

David R. Forgan, president of the National City of Chicago, addressed the Chicago Bond Men's Club Thursday on "The Elimination of Panics," the address being a discussion of the Aldrich currency plan.

DEBATE BANKING REFORM

Debating team of Northwestern University met that of the University of Michigan last night at Fisk Hall, Evanston. The subject was:

"Resolved, That the plan of banking reform proposed by the national monetary commission on January 8, 1912, should be adopted by congress."

The presiding officer was J. S. Broeksmit, cashier of the Harris Trust and Savings, and the three judges were Judge Edward O. Brown, of the Appellate court; Professor Charles A. Tuttle, Wabash college, Crawfordsville, Ind., and Dr. Richard C. Hughes of Madison, Wis.

MONEY RATES LOWER IN BOSTON

First National, Boston, telegraphs that since three weeks ago money rates have undergone a very remarkable change. Demand money, which was firm at 7 and 8 per cent over the turn of the year, is now quoted in plentiful supply at 5 per cent.

values constantly are increasing, notwithstanding the shortness of the cotton crop. Other industries in this section of Georgia have been very prosperous, particularly the cotton mill interests, and every one seems to be hopeful for 1913, believing Mr. Wilson will be conservative and make a most excellent president.

SECRETARIES of state associations are getting after their convention speakers early this year. The good ones are getting more wary each season. Promises made in January will hold good.

THE official line-up in the Nebraska association would be hard to beat. Geo. F. Sawyer of Western, the president, is a self-made man, modest but active and able.

HENRY W. YATES, of Omaha, chairman of the council, is of national renown. They seem to get along without a vice-president, probably because of the unusual efficiency of the secretary, Wm. B. Hughes.

ALL of the officers and committeemen are working together and the present year is to be one of progress.

HATS off to two of our sparklingly new vice-presidents, J. S. Pomeroy of Minneapolis, and H. R. Kent of Chicago.

ST. LOUIS UNION TRUST landed a big fish when it elected Jackson Johnson, head of the $25,000,000 International Shoe Company, to be a director. Pretty hard to beat the Union's list of big names.

A SIGNIFICANT event in connection with the inauguration of President Wilson will be the publication by Houghton Mifflin Co. of a limited edition in one volume of three of his essays: "Mere Literature," "The Author Himself" and "On an Author's Choice of Company." When the papers first appeared several years ago, their authority and distinction of style won for them an immediate and permanent position and their republication in a special Riverside Press edition is a tribute no more to the distinguished author than to the intrinsic value of the essays.

C. S. LEMONS, treasurer of the Arkansas Bankers Association, has retired from the cashiership of the Bank of Wynne & Trust Co., at Wynne, but will finish his term as an association official. Future plans have not been announced.

THERE will be aldermen in Chicago always who are lawbreakers, and other aldermen to go upon their bonds as well as upon the bonds of convicted persons of still lower degree.

SOUTH PARK board gave notice that overhead signs and awnings on Jackson and Michigan boulevards must come down and they began coming down at once.

CITY OF CHICAGO gave notice that overhead signs and awnings on streets intersecting with the boulevards must come down and they began staying up at once.

THERE is a difference—obedience and disobedience.

SOME of our "best" citizens are said to have "seen" their aldermen when their signs and awnings went up (contrary to law) and, again, when they remained up in face of orders to pull them down.

IN other words, the city regulates the sign and awning nuisance just as Theodore regulated the trusts—by "hollerin' at 'em" and "doing nothing else during the night."

SAME way that some states abolish private banking.

SAME way that Frame's wonderland lamplighters' committee is going to abolish forever politics from the good old A. B. A.

A DISTINGUISHED Kansas City banker spoke eloquently at one of the last Texas group meetings. Hoopes was paying unusual attention.

"SAY," said he, "isn't that the same address you gave us last year?"

"SAME one four years now, not a word changed, didn't you like it?"

"YES, I liked it," replied the Ever Hopeful Hoopes, "but we'll quitclaim on it to some other state for a few summers." Then there was a buzzing sound as of a new name going down on the Texas oratorical black list.

WM. ROCKEFELLER really must be carrying around with him some secret he doesn't want to see on the front pages.

A CHICAGO banker, spending the winter in Florida is using the parcel post in sending reminders to his friends.

HE has a cocoanut orchard, and each morning some Chicagoan gets a fine specimen, in its natural husk, the address being written on with ink. The postage is four cents.

USED to cost him 75 cents and he had to box and tag the nuts. Now he only writes the address and sticks a stamp right on the shell and there you are.

LET us be thankful the "express company" senators are dead or deposed.

E. E. CRABTREE and family, Jacksonville, are at the Hotel Galvez, Galveston, Tex., for Mrs. Crabtree's health.

SECRETARY HOOPES, who is a Galveston banker, writes that he is sure of a call from every northern banker who comes there, for like Crabtree, they all want to read his copy of THE CHICAGO BANKER.

"GALVESTON has the finest surf bathing in the world." (Signed)—Crabtree and Hoopes. CASHIER.

WM. L. MOYER'S NEWEST BANK

Steel plate announcements are out stating that "The Garfield National Trust Co.," of which Wm. L. Moyer, "formerly president of the National Shoe and Leather Bank, New York," is the president, was opened for business "in their new quarters" at 105 S. LaSalle Street, this city, on January 6, 1913. Mr. Moyer has had a world of experience in opening up new banks and in conducting or closing up old ones.

BANK OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

The stockholders of the Italian-American Bank of San Francisco yesterday re-elected officers and directors: A. Sbarboro, president; C. H. Crocker, vice-president; Alfred E. Sbarboro, cashier; R. A. Sbarboro, assistant cashier. Directors: A. Sbarboro, M. J. Fontana, G. Garibaldi, C. H. Crocker, A. J. Merle, Luigi Demartini, E. A. Rossi, Luigi Boitano and C. A. Malm. A dividend at the rate of 6 per cent per annum was declared and the surplus account was increased to $250,000.

ADOPTS FINGER PRINT SYSTEM

First National of Canton, Ill., has adopted the finger print system of identification. The system has been in use in local banks heretofore, but the improved methods now employed admit of greater facility in obtaining the finger marks.

widely advertised securities. One banker has a customer who received more than seven hundred pieces of literature from a New York concern recently closed up by the government.

CHICAGO has had her share of wireless companies and one egregious swindle called the "New York Air Line," a company which sold stocks to citizens even on Sunday all day long. Each purchaser of one share received a life pass over the railroad which is not built yet.

A WELL-KNOWN writer in an eastern publication points out that stocks which are advertised showing excessive dividends, guaranteeing their value or promising an advancing price by the board of directors are all bad.

ANY institution which starts out by abusing conservative savings banks, and offering six per cent stock below par is a fit subject for the black list. Directors who offer liberal commissions for the sale of stocks ought to be included in the "blue sky" list.

IT is said to be spurious when only a limited number of shares are to be sold to each purchaser. This form of swindle usually is accompanied by other "hurry-up" devices intended to get the money quickly.

IT is paving the way for a swindle when you receive a long circular pointing out how similar shares in the past have increased a thousand fold in value. Recently insurance companies organized in St. Louis, Kansas City and the Southwest were very much in favor of this form of trickery.

THEY had a scheme for getting bankers into their net which worked in a great number of cases. The banker was allowed to purchase a certain amount of stock on a certificate of deposit which the promoter promised not to use nor to allow to pass from his hands. The banker's name was to be used for selling other shares to other people in the same county, upon which sales he was to be allowed a commission. When the commission should reach a sufficient sum to pay for his own stock, the certificate of deposit was to be returned to him.

THUS the "honest" banker was to become the owner of several thousand dollars worth of "very valuable" stock for nothing beyond the mere joint use of his name and a certificate of deposite for a few months. It looked easy, but it never panned out that way.

THE certificates of deposit were cashed in at the first bank which would take them even at a discount. It is said that one state not very far from the Mississippi River, had four hundred bankers beaten by this sort of a swindle.

"FINANCING THE FARMER," by B. F. Harris, is the leading article in "The Country Gentleman" for January 11th. Comment by bankers has been most favorable. Mr. Harris always is orthodox.

WARE & LELAND say: "Money is working towards a lower level, and its cost now will depend to a great extent on the speedy ending of the European and Balkan troubles. As soon as this has been successfully accomplished, we will have sufficient funds for the necessary financing and refunding that will have to be done this year."

RUSSELL, BREWSTER & Co., Chicago, will send you the "Dividend Record for 1912" on request. It is pocket size, complete and reliable.

THE FIRST NATIONAL of Princeton has had reprinted in booklet style "A Little Savings Account," a magazine story by Parker Filmore. It is good "savings and thrift" literature.

WINNESHIEK CO. STATE BANK at Decorah, Ia., is to erect a fine new building. The bank is a pioneer in that section of the great state and has had a prosperous career.

TO-DAY this "country bank" has $1,600,000 in assets with future growth in sight. E. J. Weiser is the genius behind the guns.

A HANDSOME street clock, with four four-foot dials, is being installed by the American Trust Company at its place of business, on the northwest corner of Michigan Street and Washington Avenue, South Bend, Ind. The clock supplements a set of chimes recently installed by the financial institution.

THE clock was a "New Year's gift" to the town by the bank and is like the one at the corner of Marshall Field & Co.'s store, Chicago.

GEORGE E. ALLEN has cut a pretty wide swath (3 cols.) in the annual financial review of "The New York Times." He wrote on Bankers and Agriculture, as a member of the agricultural committee of the New York State Bankers Association.

COL. ALLEN is the educational director of the A. I. B. and knows lots of things aside from farming. See his piece in another column.

D. ARTHUR BOWMAN & CO., St. Louis, will send you a special offering on gas securities if you ask for it.

NEW YORK CHAPTER A. I. B. "Announcements" is out in booklet form for 1912-13 courses of study and entertainments.

"WE" are "members of the Iowa Bankers Association and protected by the Wm. J. Burns National Detective Agency to January first, 1914," according to a beautiful etched sign hung up on the sanctum desk by Secretary P. W. Hall.

COULDN'T get into a more congenial association nor be protected by an abler Sherlocko than William J. They are the goods!

G. A. RYTHER, out at the Livestock Exchange National, got country-wide notoriety in a single day by his booklet advising farmers to get into the livestock business. Even the Wall Street Journal gave him "top-o'-col." front page. It was a clever booklet. If you didn't get yours, write in for it.

WESTERN bankers, having been requested by the editors of the New York Times to furnish their opinions for print in the annual financial review number, responded promptly and clearly to the point. In brief, what some of them said about the prospects for the new year will be found in the following paragraphs.

ROBERT WARDROP of Pittsburgh: "The outlook for the first half of 1913 appears reasonably clear from the standpoint of a business man in the Pittsburgh district. The Steel Corporation has approximately 8,000,000 tons of unfilled orders on its books, which is practically a record total."

F. M. PRINCE of Minneapolis: "The underlying conditions for credit and future business in Minnesota, Montana, North Dakota, and South Dakota appear to be the best we have had for many years. We have raised and harvested a very large crop of all cereals, hay, potatoes, etc., and our dairy interests are increasing and are on a very profitable basis. We believe this section has been particularly favored, and only serious outside disturbance which cannot be foreseen will prevent substantial growth."

LUTHER DRAKE of Omaha: "In the territory tributary to Omaha there was a marked diminution of rainfall during the years 1910 and 1911, with a resulting decrease in the volume of agricultural products. These unfavorable conditions did not prevail during 1912, and our section of the country has produced the largest crop we have had for several years. This naturally has stimulated business, and to-day it can be said trade conditions in our territory are of a very favorable character. The situation in our territory can be summarized briefly as of a most encouraging nature."

E. F. SWINNEY of Kansas City: "We find general business conditions throughout the territory contiguous to Kansas City fairly satisfactory; better, we might say, than at the end of the harvest season one year ago. We see nothing especially discouraging in the outlook for the coming year."

J. C. MITCHELL of Denver: "In addition to her sunshine and beautiful climate, Colorado has been blessed during the last year with a more than plentiful supply of water for irrigation purposes, thus giving assurance to her people of unusually abundant crops. The effect of these good crops is just beginning to be felt, and the business community is looking forward to a prosperous future. Deposits in our banks are greater than ever before, and on the whole I believe we have cause to congratulate ourselves upon present conditions, and to view the future with a feeling of confidence."

STODDARD JESS of Los Angeles: "Los Angeles and Southern California have been favored during the past year with a degree of prosperity never before experienced. Statistics will show that Los Angeles issued more building permits in 1912 than did any other city in the United States, and that in the total value of new buildings erected during the year Los Angeles ranks fifth. Increased bank deposits, bank clearings, volume of post office business and number of building permits issued all bear evidence of a rapid increase in population. There is every reason to feel that the growth and prosperity being experienced will continue for an indefinite period."

WILLIAM H. CROCKER of San Francisco: "The conditions of San Francisco and the regions near and far which contribute to its general activities are, I think, entirely stable and wholesome. I think I am voicing an opinion universal among financial and commercial men when I say that the general conditions in San Francisco and California are prosperous, and that prospects were never more hopeful."

C. H. DODD of Seattle: "Prospects for the coming year are bright. With the improved conditions in the lumber trade, the fact that crops in this section practically are assured year in and year out, increased activity in all lines, the gradual settlement of logged-off lands, and therefore larger production of food stuffs, together with the approach of the long looked for opening of the Canal all should result in material progress and sound business development."

MILLS B. LANE of Savannah: "The state's cotton crop has grown from 700,000 bales per annum in 1896 to 2,800,000 bales in 1911, and this increase in production has been largely in the southern counties, where the marked increase in population has been. Conditions generally are very good, and real estate

A Weekly Paper Devoted to the Banking and Financial Interests of the Middle West

JANUARY 25, 1913

Entered as Second-Class Matter January 15, 1903, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March 3, 1879

Edmund D. Hulbert

It was rumored in Chicago on Friday that President-elect Woodrow Wilson seriously is considering Edmund D. Hulbert, vice-president of the Merchants Loan and Trust Company, for the position of secretary of the treasury in his cabinet. The universal opinion among bankers is that Mr. Wilson could not secure a better man for the place than Mr. Hulbert.

TWO NEW ASSISTANT CASHIERS ELECTED

At the regular annual meeting of the directors of the National Bank of the Republic of Chicago, Thomas D. Allin and Louis J. Meahl were added to the list of assistant cashiers, the promotion in both cases being the reward of merit and faithful service. Both have been with the bank for many years, Mr. Allin latterly in the capacity of discount clerk. He was formerly branch manager for one of the Canadian banks at New Hamburg, Ontario. Mr. Meahl entered the bank's employ as a messenger in 1898 and rose through the various departments.

NEW VICE-PRESIDENTS FOR NEW YORK BANK

Two new vice-presidents of the National City Bank of New York have been elected by the directors of that institution. They are C. V. Rich, formerly head of the bond department of the bank, and H. R. Eldridge, formerly vice-president of the First National of Houston, Texas. A. V. Cann was chosen manager of the foreign exchange department and James Matthews was made manager of the credit department.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM PANIC

New York, January 23d.—"We have just passed through sixty days of the tightest money we have had since 1907 and if anything had blown up, if anything had happened to frighten the people, we would have had another panic," declared David R. Forgan, president of the National City Bank of Chicago, at a dinner of the New York Credit Men's Association to-night. Mr. Forgan, who was talking on "How to Avoid Another Panic," added:

"In the last sixty days there has been hardly a bank that has held a lawful reserve, and the comptroller of the currency has wisely said nothing about it, for he is a broad-minded, sensible fellow.

"A central bank," declared Mr. Forgan, "such as we have looked for for a century, would forever quiet the fears of the people, for it would be backed by the government."

PRESIDENT REYNOLDS LEAVES FOR CALIFORNIA

George M. Reynolds, president of the Continental and Commercial National, left Chicago this week for California, where he will remain until spring. Mr. Reynolds will spend most of his time at Pasadena.

Important Bank Changes in Minneapolis

J. S. POMEROY
MINNEAPOLIS

FRED SPAFFORD
MINNEAPOLIS

SECURITY National, Minneapolis, is growing at a pace entirely satisfactory to its president and board of directors. In large part they have given credit to J. S. Pomeroy and Fred Spafford. Accordingly the former now is a dignified vice-president and the latter has succeeded to the cashiership. Mr. Pomeroy has been honored, also, by the Minnesota Bankers Association and stands well with the fraternity in his own city. He has many friends in Chicago, made during his banking activities here. Mr. Spafford has discovered the secret of perpetual youth, and few would guess him to be as old in years as he is in actual banking experience. He has been with the Security 26 years, and the portrait is a "late" one.

COMMERCE STAFF ALL RE-ELECTED

St. Louis, January 23d.—The entire official staff of the National Bank of Commerce in St. Louis was re-elected at the organization meeting of the directors Wednesday. In addition the two committees provided for recently in the by-laws—the executive and discount—were selected by the board. The executive committee includes W. K. Bixby, James Campbell, George O. Carpenter, Samuel C. Davis and Harry Elliot. The discount committee includes E. T. Campbell, John A. Holmes, H. P. Knapp, E. C. Simmons, Charles Rebstock, Thomas H. McKittrick and W. S. Thompson. The president, the three vice-presidents and the cashier are ex-officio members of these committees. The committees have not yet met to select their chairmen.

The officers re-elected are: Ben F. Edwards, president; Tom Randolph, W. B. Cowen and W. L. McDonald, vice-presidents; J. A. Lewis, cashier; C. L. Merrill, F. W. Wrieden, G. N. Hitchcock, A. L. Weissenborn, George R. Baker, H. C. Burnett and W. M. Chandler, assistant cashiers.

J. FLETCHER FARRELL IN NEW YORK

J. Fletcher Farrell, vice-president of the Fort Dearborn National and treasurer of the American Bankers Association, was in New York this week. Mr. Farrell is a member of the A. B. A. committee having in charge the preparation of a set of forms used by national banks in the administration of their business. The committee met at the association offices.

DES MOINES BANK'S NEW QUARTERS

Simon Casady, president of the Central State of Des Moines, which has but recently occupied its beautiful new home, expects all Iowa bank visitors to inspect the new home of the bank when in Des Moines. The Central State now has one of the finest banking rooms in Iowa, if not in the middle west.

Minneapolis.—The directors of the Merchants and Manufacturers State Bank held a meeting recently, at which C. I. Stroin's resignation was accepted and John H. Meier was elected to succeed.

Mainly About Banks and Bankers

THE man who is giving it believes it all sound advice. The man who is getting it may think it all sound, but not sound advice.

SAID Mr. Wilson in his famous Chicago address:

"I am not drawing an indictment against the banking system—"

("Hear, hear!" from the bankers.)

"That has already been convicted."

(Thick silence and smiles among the borrowers.)

SEVERAL of the aldermen write it "City Haul" and perhaps it is in certain cases.

THE JACKSONVILLE (ILL.) NATIONAL passed very complimentary resolutions upon the good work done by Miller Weir as cashier. Well they might! He was the "one thing needful" to put that bank where it belongs—"in a prosperous condition."

HAD they made him president Mr. Weir might have been content to remain. Rumor has it that at least two big city banks are dangling opportunities before his eyes and his taste is for city banking, as is well known.

IT would be a lucky bank that could pick up such a "find."

GOOD Col. R. E. James has called his committee on rewriting the constitution to meet in Chicago (the home of reform) February 17th at the Congress.

GOOD Col. W. G. Edens is making the plans and specifications—not for the new constitution, but for the comfort and happiness of the committee while here.

THIS is an important committee with big men in the make-up. Col. James is chairman and then there are Col. Sol Wexler of New Orleans, Col. Dunlap of Waxahatchie, Col. (also "Gov.") Bailey of Kansas—with Col. Frame of Waukesha to furnish the "fusil oil" in the way of initiative.

NO committee ever went to work more earnestly and no constitution ever needed rewriting to a greater certainty.

COL. JAMES has polled the council on their notion of what ought to be done. He doesn't quite share Col. Frame's idea of ventilating things classed as abuses or objectionable, but is for true systematic reform and advances upon present methods.

CHICAGO is the natural center for A. B. A. reforms. It was this center which broke up the old Branch régime and started the association upon a period of growth and prosperity, which under Col. Farnsworth hasn't had even a momentary halt.

SEVENTY per cent of the membership is in territory contiguous to Chicago and being central it was the obvious thing for the reform committee to come here.

JUST to get an idea fixed in your mind as to Illinois being right in the center of official influence in the big organization, place before you on the desk an outline map of the United States.

TAKE a ruler and draw a line from St. Louis to Des Moines, from Des Moines to Cincinnati, and from Cincinnati back to St. Louis. It will leave a very small triangle of which Illinois occupies the greater part. In these three cities live the president, vice-president and chairman of council of the American Bankers Association.

THEN take a different colored pencil and draw a line from Chicago to Atlanta, from Atlanta to St. Louis and from St. Louis back to Chicago. These three points give the residence of the president, vice-president and chairman of council for the Clearing House Association.

NEXT draw a line from South Bend, Ind., to New York, from New York (if your ruler is long enough) draw a line all the way to Los Angeles, and from Los Angeles back to South Bend. This will give you another triangle locating the residences of the president, vice-president and chairman of council for the Savings Bank Section. All of these triangle cross Illinois in their widest parts as well as taking in sections of the adjoining states, but particularly centers the official authority of the organization as above suggested.

THE Trust Company Section is a little bit more exclusive perhaps and has drifted from its former moorings. When Oliver C. Fuller surrendered the gavel the Middle West lost its hold upon that organization so far as official residence is concerned. A line drawn from Cleveland to New York, from New York to Hartford and from Hartford back to Cleveland will include the territory between the towns which give residence to the president, vice-president and chairman of council.

WHEN you look on the lines so drawn upon the map you will find that the entire Northwest and a greater part of the South at the present time are entirely without representation except upon the membership roll of the Big Council. At the Boston meeting it is expected that Joseph Chapman of Minneapolis probably will be selected for vice-president and it is not at all unlikely that A. D. Graham of Baltimore will be the new treasurer. This will distribute matters a little better geographicaly. If the sections will observe the map after marking it as above directed, it will be seen that some of the new offices should come from the Northwest and some from the Southeast to give better balance to the official list.

Touches upon proposed banking and financial legislation by congress

WASHINGTON LETTER

By R. A. ALBERTSEN

Relates to administrative and department matters interesting to our readers

Washington, D. C., January 23d.—One of the ablest presentations of a new monetary plan yet heard by the committee was made on Tuesday last. On that day Charles N. Fowler of New Jersey, former representative, outlined to the house currency reform committee his suggestions for revision of the monetary system. He proposed that all national banks be authorized to do commercial, savings and trust company business and make note issues, as Canadian banks do; that "holding companies" of banks be prohibited and that banks be compelled to carry the same amount of reserve, always in gold.

All banks should be under federal control, he contended, as banking was interstate business, and clearing houses should be established at all financial centers to be designated as "commercial zones," under the management of boards of control elected by the banks. He also proposed a bankers' council to act as a court of appeals for each zone, composed of business men and bankers. A deputy United States comptroller would preside over each board.

By having all banks in the United States contribute from 7 to 10 per cent of their deposits to a central reserve, Mr. Fowler estimated a gold reserve of upward of $1,250,000 would be established, to be held in trust for all commercial zones, and its distribution in times of need would be controlled by a board chosen from all the zones.

Such a plan, Mr. Fowler told the committee, would enable such an organization as he outlined to control the movement of gold to and from the United States and enforce a discount rate for gold transactions. Its chief results, he said, would be to make each bank independent; to make each zone independent of every other and completely to decentralize bank credit in the United States.

Dr. Vincent and the Pujo Committee

From New York comes an interesting report of a talk by President George E. Vincent of the University of Minnesota before a banquet given by Group 8, New York State Bankers Association. Dr. Vincent said that three important truths were learned from the investigation of the Pujo committee.

"First, there is no money trust. Second, even if there is a money trust it must always be in the hands of pure and noble men, and no longer do we fear that we are not in the hands of the pious; and, third, if there is a money trust, we have it on the best authority" —here the speaker faced George F. Baker, president of the First National Bank—"that it is absolute perfection."

Chairman Glass Wants Currency Reform

Chairman Carter Glass of the House committee on banking, said in a talk before the meeting of the National Chamber of Commerce that "I would not commit myself to any definite prediction as to a recurrence of the trouble in 1907, but I do say that it would be the height of folly for us to defer action until it is forced upon us by the imminence of panic."

Representative Glass ridiculed the idea that the Aldrich-Vreeland currency act, which expires on June 30, 1914, is a preventive of panics. He declared that although "we have just passed through a situation almost as critical as that of 1907, not a single national bank in the country was willing to hoist the signal of distress that would be involved in making application for the sort of currency which the Aldrich-Vreeland act authorizes."

The speaker insisted that currency reform is urgent and the time ripe for action.

"Postponement can result only in embarrassment," said he, "perhaps in actual disaster."

Funds in British Savings Banks

From the latest consular reports it is learned that there were 8,453,178 active and 3,917,468 dormant accounts in the British Post Office Savings Bank at the end of 1911. The accounts which are regarded as dormant are those with balances of less than $4.86 which have been neglected by the depositors for more than five years. Of the total dormant accounts 3,531,800 were in England and Wales, while of the active accounts 7,610,384 belonged to the same countries. The Irish depositors had the highest average deposits in 1911 and the Scotch depositors the lowest.

The total number of accounts open in the Trustees Savings Bank on November 20, 1911, was 1,849,043, of which 1,187,656 were in England, 590,398 in Scotland, 56,495 in Ireland, and 14,494 in Wales. As in the case of the Post Office Savings Bank the highest average amount was due to Irish depositors, the Welsh depositors being second and the Scotch third. —Consular Report.

Tariff Revision To Be Conservative

It is reassuring to have it announced upon what seems to be good authority that the work of tariff revision, when it is seriously taken up at the special session of the new congress, is to be conducted on "conservative" lines, using the term in its true sense as the opposite of destructive. It apparently does not mean, and certainly ought not to mean, any concession of the fundamental principle of a tariff for revenue only as the ultimate policy. That is obviously not to be attained at a single bound or in a hurry, but the principle should be kept steadily in view while due regard is paid to the stability of industries and of trade which have been built up by protection and are still more or less dependent upon it. There will be inevitable differences of opinion as to what industries are still dependent and how far they are dependent. These differences will have to be reconciled by such reasonable compromises as may be necessary to the agreement of a legislative majority.

Farwell Urges Banking Reform

J. V. Farwell of Chicago, president of the National Business League, told the Glass sub-committee on banking and currency today what reforms the average business man would like to see made in the financial system of the country. His suggestions, however, were individual, he said, and not the official views of the organization he heads.

"Speculative bankers like Heinze and others they have in New York," said Mr. Farwell, "could not exist in Chicago. Before they could get started they would be discovered and they would find themselves unable to make any money."

The merchant said the Chicago safeguard against speculative banking is the clearing house examination system. He added that the inauguration of that system was precipitated by the collapse of the Walsh banks.

Principles He Indorses.

The fundamental principles which Mr. Farwell said ought to be embodied in any sound banking system are:

First—A discount market where short time commercial paper can be made liquid by transforming it into a demand credit or into currency notes.

Second—A co-operative control of a large proportion of the dead cash reserves of banks so as to produce the effect of common ownership and prevent the present struggle between banks to grab reserves from one another in times of stress.

Third—An elastic currency, based not on government bonds but on the assets of all the banks co-operating, which would originate, as far as expansion is concerned, from the process of discounting in the discount market and would be issued not by individual banks but by a common agency.

Fourth—A provision for international banking.

Fifth—The institutions organized for these purposes should not be money making institutions, but should act as trustees of prosperity for all the people.

District Leagues Help

"The first of these principles could be put into action by the establishment of district discount associations, similar in a general way to those created by the monetary commission bill," said Mr. Farwell.

"The second by a common agency similar in some respects only to the national reserve association. In the monetary commission bill, however, the district associations were, through the managers, the agents and servants of the national reserve association. In a modified plan the co-operative association could be the agent and servant of the district association, controlling each for the common good of the whole country; that control however, to be exercised by the common consent of all the district associations. It would also differ from the national reserve association in that it would have no capital stock.

"In my judgment it would be dangerous to allow all the banks in the country to accept drafts as provided in the monetary commission bill.

Merchants To Join Bankers

"The district association should be governed by a board of which one-half should be bankers and one-half business men.

"All the profits above 5 per cent on the capital stock, after allowing for the accumulation of a 20 per cent surplus, should go to the government."

Andrew J. Frame, of Waukesha, Wis., opposed the Aldrich plan, which he said "spells monopoly, inflation, and overexpansion of credit." He asserted that it would not prevent but would breed panics.

As a substitute Mr. Frame proposed a central bank with limited powers, or enlargement of the Aldrich-Vreeland act by extending the right to issue uniform elastic currency, not only to national but to state and savings banks and trust companies doing commercial banking.

Bankers who know the irresistible A. B. MacCaughey, who has been western manager for the J. S. and W. S. Rumor credits "Mack" with the placing of not less than one third of the ten millions of new stock sold by the American Waterworks and Guaranty Company, a Kuhn concern. James S. Kuhn, formerly president, has been elected to the chairmanship of the board; L. L. McClelland moves up from vice-president to the position of president; W. S. Kuhn, vice-president, retains his present title; W. G. Audenried, Jr., manager of the Philadelphia office, has been made vice-president, in charge of all foreign business, with offices in Paris. James K. Duff and H. C. Ward retain their titles of treasurer and secretary, respectively. Le Roy Herron of the Chicago office and H. L. Jackson of the Philadelphia office become assistant managers of the Chicago office.

CHICAGO CLEARING HOUSE ELECTS

Chicago Clearing House Association held its annual meeting Tuesday and elected F. H. Rawson, president of the Union Trust, president succeeding L. A. Goddard, president of the State Bank. David R. Forgan, president of the National City, succeeds Mr. Rawson as vice-president. Manager W. D. C. Street and Assistant Manager T. C. Stibbs were re-elected. The permanent clearing house committee consisting of John J. Mitchell, president of the Illinois Trust and Savings, Orson Smith, president of the Merchants Loan and Trust, Ernest A. Hamill, president of the Corn Exchange National, George M. Reynolds, president of the Continental and Commercial National and James B. Forgan, president of the First National, also were re-elected.

AGRICULTURAL CREDIT COMPANY

New York and Chicago bankers have organized the Agricultural Credit company, with an authorized capital of $4,000,000. The founders of the company are, in reality, Hallgarden and Company and William Salomon and Company, of New York City. On the board of directors are bankers of several cities.

The company proposes to purchase the bills receivable of farm machinery manufacturing companies, the receivables in this instance being designated as "farmers' notes." Against these notes it is proposed to issue the debentures of the purchasing company, such debentures being designated, in this instance, as "collateral trust gold notes."

Several Chicago banks announced they had agreed to purchase a part of the first issue of $6,000,000 of the collateral trust notes.

The capital of the Agricultural Credit company consists of $2,000,000 7 per cent cumulative preferred full-paid nonassessable participating certificates or stock and $2,000,000 common. The preferred has been paid in full at par and 10 per cent has been paid in on the $2,000,000 common, making total paid in capital $2,200,000. The remaining $1,800,000 of common is callable as the needs of the company may require.

The collateral trust notes are secured by the farmers' notes purchased from the manufacturing companies. The Credit company pays in cash 95 per cent of the par value of the farmers' notes, and then puts up as security for its own collateral trust notes 120 per cent of the par value of the debentures in par value of the farmers' notes.

The collateral trust notes run from one to three years, the $6,000,000 of such notes being divided into classes A, B, and C. Series A is for $3,000,000, maturing in December, 1913. Series B is for $1,800,000, maturing one year later, and series C $1,200,000, maturing December 1, 1915. The notes running one year bear 5 per cent, those running two years 5½ per cent, and those running three years 6 per cent.

The object of the company is to afford a market for the bills receivable of the manufacturing company. The latter guarantees the payment of farmers' notes, and if not paid following the period of maturity the manufacturing company takes back the paper, relieving the Agricultural Credit company.

This field of operation has been canvassed for some time, and the Agricultural Credit company is the first pretentious concern to be organized. The president is Stephen S. Strattan of Chicago. David R. Forgan, president of the National City Bank of Chicago, is another local director. Besides representatives of William Salomon and Hallgarden and Company of New York, St. Louis banking interests are represented, and one London firm.

It is announced in the prospectus, which was received in Chicago this week, that the Agricultural Credit company is not authorized to do a banking business.

Illinois Bankers Association Holds Meetings

Members of executive council and committees hold meetings in Chicago. Annual fellowship dinner at the Congress Hotel

The midwinter meeting of the executive council of the Illinois Bankers Association and the annual good fellowship dinner of the members of the council and committeemen attracted the largest attendance of down-state bankers that have attended one of these meetings and dinners in recent years. This fact is cause for congratulation on behalf of President John D. Phillips, vice-president of the Bank of Green Valley and president of the state association, Judge S. B. Montgomery, vice-president of the State Savings Loan and Trust, Quincy, vice-president of the association, and particularly Col. J. S. Aisthorpe, president of the First Bank and Trust Company, Cairo, chairman of the executive council, who had charge of the arrangements for the meeting and for the dinner. Many of the bankers arrived on Tuesday and others were in on the early morning trains Wednesday.

Promptly at 9 o'clock the administrative committee, consisting of the above named executive officers, got into action at the association headquarters in the Rookery and continued their deliberations until nearly noon. The committee on savings and thrift of the American Bankers Association for Illinois, under the leadership of Dr. Joseph R. Noel, president of the North West State Bank, met at 9:30 at the Congress Hotel. Among those who participated in this meeting were Miller Weir, who recently resigned from the Jacksonville National; Lucius Teter, president of the Chicago Savings Bank and Trust Company; D. A. Wyckoff, cashier of the First Trust and Savings, Alton; J. L. Miller, cashier of the State Bank of West Point and W. G. Edens, assistant secretary of the Central Trust Company of Illinois. It is the purpose of Chairman Noel and of the committee to make careful investigation of the various savings bank systems of the country and in the end work out a plan suitable for Illinois and for Chicago.

The committee on good roads, consisting of Chairman S. E. Bradt, vice-president of the First National of DeKalb; Secretary Thomas Sudduth, vice-president of the Farmers National of Springfield; O. P. Bourland, president of the National Bank of Pontiac; Stewart L. Crebs, vice-president of the National Bank of Carmi; George M. Stimson, cashier A. G. Danforth and Company, Washington, and M. O. Williamson, president of the Peoples Trust and Savings of Galesburg, met at association headquarters at 10:30 and gave careful consideration to the plans of Chairman Bradt with respect to the proposed good roads bill of the bankers, which shortly is to be introduced in the Illinois legislature.

At 11 o'clock members of the committee on agriculture and vocational education, consisting of Chairman B. F. Harris, vice-president of the First National of Champaign and an ex-president of the Illinois Bankers Association; Irving Shuman, cashier of the First National of Sullivan; Robert R. Ward, vice-president of the Benton State Bank; William G. Edens, assistant secretary of the Central Trust Company of Illinois and G. C. Gridley, assistant cashier of the First National of Libertyville, met at the Congress Hotel and heard Chairman Harris' report of the proposed educational bill as well as the bill providing for farm demonstration work in all Illinois counties. At noon the members of the good roads committee joined the members of this committee in a joint session which lasted until 1:30 and which was attended by President John D. Phillips, vice-president of the Bank of Green Valley. President Phillips is interested in the work of every committee of the association, and being a successful farmer himself, of course is interested greatly in the work of the committee on agriculture and vocational education and also the work of the committee on good roads. President Phillips set forth very strongly his views as to the policies to be pursued by the various committees of the state association.

Group chairmen and other group officers met at 11 o'clock in the Francis I room of the Congress Hotel and Chairman Asher R. Cox, president of the Orchard City Bank of Xenia, president of the group officers state association, introduced F. E. Burkhelter, department manager of Baker-Vawter Company, Chicago, system supply house, who gave an interesting and instructive address on the subject of bank systems of auditing and accounting. This was a try-out on this subject with the idea of introducing the feature at all of the group meetings to be held in Illinois this year, for the purpose of doing some practical educational work along these lines that will be of benefit to the younger bank officers and bank employees. The following group chairmen and other officers participated in this meeting: Group 1: Chairman V. A. Wigren, cashier of the First National of Galva; Group 2: Chairman Charles H. Ireland, cashier of the Washburn Bank, and Secretary William C. White, president of the Illinois National, Peoria; Group 3; Chairman A. B. Sheadle, cashier of the Rochelle National; Group 4; Chairman Charles N. Stevens, cashier of the City National, Evanston, and Secretary Charles B. Wright, cashier of the Citizens State, Crystal Lake; Group 5: Chairman John J. Doherty, cashier of the First National of Dwight and Secretary James P. Hackett, cashier of the McLean County Bank, Bloomington; Group 7: Chairman J. E. Reese, vice-president of the H. N. Schuyler State Bank, Pana; Group 8: Chairman J. L. Miller, cashier of the State Bank of West Point; Group 9: Chairman Asher R. Cox, president of the Orchard City Bank of Xenia; Group 10: Chairman Stewart L. Crebs, vice-president of the National Bank of Carmi.

Chairman Cox and Secretary Ireland remained over until Thursday and had a further conference concerning other subjects which will be recommended to the various groups for consideration when planning their respective programs. It is their desire to assist in getting all of the subjects on their programs which appeal to the interest of the various sections of the state. In addition to the sub-

Yocum and Company, Galva, all were present but it is understood that there were no matters of importance to come before this committee and that therefore no formal meeting of the committee was held. C. H. Condit, cashier of Neat, Condit and Grout, Winchester; W. E. Colburn of W. E. Colburn and Company, Chicago; John S. Little, cashier of the Bank of Rushville, and other influential private bankers of the city and state who have been actively identified with private bankers' committee work, were present and participated in the meeting of the executive council.

The meeting of the members of the executive council occurred promptly at 2:30 in the Francis I room of the Congress Hotel, being called to order by Col. J. S. Aisthorpe, president of the First Bank and Trust Company, Cairo. It is estimated that 100 bankers were present in addition to the members of council. The following ex-presidents of the Illinois Bankers Association were in attendance: John L. Hamilton of Hoopeston, Phil Mitchell, president of the State Bank of Rock Island; Andrew Russel, of Dunlap, Russel and Co., Jacksonville, vice-president of the Ayers National, Jacksonville, and ex-state treasurer of Illinois; William George, president of the Old Second National, Aurora; E. D. Durham, of the Onarga Bank (Durham Brothers), Onarga; Nelson H. Greene, vice-president of the Peoples Savings Bank and Trust Company, Moline; August Blum, vice-president of the First National, Chicago; Oscar G. Foreman, vice-president of Foreman Brothers Banking Company, Chicago; and B. F. Harris, vice-president of the First National, Champaign. The last named took a seat in the rear of the room, yet did not hesitate to take an active part in the proceedings, while the other ex-presidents operated from the front row.

The work of the protective committee was presented to the council, and, as was the case in nearly every other matter which was presented to the attention of the council, was referred back to the administrative committee for final disposition. The insurance question bobbed up prominently and afforded some discussion, but found its way way back to the administrative committee.

President Phillips made a statement to the council in which he indicated his earnest desire that every member of the association assist in the work laid out for this year, appealing especially to the members of council and to the group officers to get busy on the matter of perfecting the county organization and enrolling the non-member banks. President Phillips presented the following figures with respect to the situation in all of the groups: Group 1: all of the counties are organized into the county federation with but six non-members in the group; Group 2: all counties are organized; 15 non-members; Group 3: 2 counties organized; 6 not organized; one non-member; Group 4: 4 counties organized; 3 not organized; 28 non-members; Group 5: 6 counties organized; 5 not organized; 20 non-members; Group 6: 4 counties organized; 6 not organized; 22 non-members; Group 7: 2 counties organized; 5 not organized and 6 non-members; Group 8: 4 counties organized; 8 not organized; 10 non-members; Group 9: 9 counties organized; 9 not organized; 29 non-members; Group 10: 3 counties organized; 11 not organized; 14 non-members, which is a total of 139 non-members; total banks in the state, 1,600.

President Phillips urged the members of the council and the group officers to begin immediately in their respective groups on the work of securing these non-member applications. He further indicated his desire of having a feeling of harmony prevail throughout his administration among all classes of bankers and also to make membership in the association of the bankers in the state unanimous. He received assurances of support from every quarter.

The application of Jesse Binga, a colored private banker in Chicago, at 3633 South State street, had been referred to the executive council by the administrative committee and upon motion, and after discussion, it was unanimously agreed to admit the applicant to membership, his qualifications being found satisfactory. Ex-president E. D. Durham of Onarga spoke feelingly of the hard road the colored man has had to travel in this country since the Civil War and said that he did not believe the Illinois Bankers Association should throw any rocks in the way of the progress of the colored race.

The administrative committee announced that copies of the convention proceedings book were on hand and in sufficient quantity to supply each member with a bound copy, and such distribution was made. The convention met in Peoria September 25th and 26th. President Phillips reported that the Peoria convention having failed to elect a legislative committee as provided for in the constitution, he had taken the liberty to appoint such a committee and asked for approval of his official action. There was some spirited debate as to the propriety of keeping the names of the members of this committee secret. The council finally voted to adhere to the custom observed in the past, although President Phillips expressed his willingness to make public the names of the members who had been appointed, expressing the opinion that the council and membership would indorse the personnel of the committee. Ex-president B. F. Harris led the opposition to continuing the practice of secrecy.

Our experience is of value to you because it is gained in the successful building of 78 dams to date (August 1, 1912), of all heights up to 150 feet and having an aggregate length of over 4½ miles. We have inauguarated a system of bimonthly bulletins on pungent engineering topics as viewed from the Bankers' standpoint. Send us your name for our mailing list.

The administrative committee to which had been referred the request for an increase in salary of Secretary Crampton of the association recommended an increase of $600 per year; an amendment was offered to increase it to $1,000, but this amendment was laid on the table; behind the action of the administrative committee was the approval of the council, after which an increase of $400 per anum was voted to Mrs. Jennings, assistant secretary of the Illinois Bankers Association.

An atmosphere of unusual good feeling prevailed throughout the entire session of the executive council. It was six o'clock when the meeting finally adjourned and preparations immediately were made for the fourth annual good fellowship meeting of officers and guests of the Illinois Bankers Association, which was held in the Florentine Room of the Congress Hotel. The administrative committee used excellent taste in looking after the arrangements for the evening, and "Made in Germany" was the trade mark on everything but the principal address of the evening delivered by James B. Forgan, president of the First National of Chicago, who stuck pretty close to his Scottish training and characteristics. The German stein with appropriate contents and the German long-stemmed pipe and the fine smoking tobacco provided were the first things to greet the eyes of the dinner guests. Pretty young German girls attired in the costumes of the misses of the Fatherland decorated each of the guests with a carnation and a ribbon of red silk bearing the imperial German coat of arms, reminding many of the decorations worn by members of the diplomatic and military corps at the national capital. A bronze bust of the kaiser was a part of the decorations. An immense cake was placed in the center of the room from which each guest was served with a piece in a dainty little box, one of the slices of cake containing a silver coin; the remainder of the cake was to be given to the guest so fortunate as to secure the piece containing the coin. This fell to August Blum, vice-president of the First National of Chicago, who made a graceful speech in acknowledgment. Mr. Blum appreciated the German atmosphere which prevailed and said that he was tempted to indulge in language "Made in Germany," but he spoke in the usual good English for which he is noted in public speaking. Each of the guests was fortunate in possessing a copy of "A Message to the Thinking American," by Conrad von Seelhorst, ord. Off. professor of University of Gottingen and director of the Gottingen Agricultural Institute, in which this great authority tells of the important part agriculture plays in the life of the German nation.

Members of the German Singing Society furnished the music. The songs were printed on the menu card and all present joined in singing "Die Wacht Am Rhein" and "Illinois." Splendid service was given by the Congress Hotel people. After dinner all present greatly enjoyed the able address of President James B. Forgan of the First National, who spoke forcefully of the honest, capable banker's point of view with respect to the traditions of banking and business in the United States, and while generously endorsing much of President-elect Wilson's address before the members of the Commercial Club of Chicago, which Mr. Forgan heard, yet he regretted that our President-elect—scholar and statesman that he is recognized to be—should by his expression with respect to the business men of the country disturb possibly the confidence of the thrifty, industrious class of leaders in business and banking. Mr. Forgan's remarks were well received. Following his address Harry Rubens, a Chicago attorney, who was accompanied by the Hon. A. Geissler, imperial German counsul at Chicago, as a guest of the evening, was introduced and pleased the audience greatly with his remarks.

George W. French, cartoonist for the Chicago Record-Herald, furnished splendid entertainment with his cartoonoscope. President J. D. Phillips, Judge S. B. Montgomery, Col. J. S. Aisthorpe, George Woodruff, president of the First National of Joliet; Omar Wright, Smith Walker, cashier of the Millikin National, Decatur; S. Y. Whitlock, cashier of the First National of Tuscola; William G. Edens, assistant secretary of the Central Trust Company of Illinois; O. L. Hiser, treasurer of the Illinois Bankers Association and cashier of the State Bank of Lexington; Robert R. Ward, vice-president of the Benton State, Irving Shuman, cashier of the First National of Sullivan; C. H. Condit, cashier of Neat, Condit and Grout, Winchester; and others were depicted in their favorite pastimes. Some excellent music was furnished by vocalists from MacBurney's studio.

Notes

It was nearly midnight when the jolly party broke up.

Practically all of the Chicago banks were represented at the good-fellowship dinner.

The present custom permits of the invitation of bankers who are not members of the council or active committeemen; thus the evening was made far pleasanter because the city banker was enabled to visit with his down-state friend and customer.

J. P. Hackett, cashier of the McLean County Bank at Bloomington, is one of the coming youngsters in group and state organization work.

By C. C. Burford

The University of Illinois has interested the farmers of the state in an unusual way during the past two weeks with what is termed as "the short course in agriculture." The gathering of 800 farmers and 200 women from all parts of the state to study en masse the most recent ideas in agriculture, stock raising, dairying, home economics, road construction and rural life problems is significant of a far cry for a more intensive agriculture and a better country life which is being heard throughout the land to-day as never before.

While not primarily a banking subject, "the short course" is of interest to bankers throughout the state, inasmuch as most of them are either directly or indirectly farmers or have customers by the hundred who are farmers and stock-raisers or who are interested in the "banker-farmer" movement as a practical study in practical present-day economics. No more important subject has been brought before the bankers of the Central West than the agricultural question and bankers everywhere are becoming interested, treating the subject seriously and without calling it a fad or a passing fancy.

The farmers assembled at the University were enthusiastic over their work and doubtless received great and lasting good and inspiration and have returned to their homes with a higher conception of their great calling. They enjoyed the two weeks, as the best of programs and entertainment were provided for them. Many of them seemed to have received as much real benefit as the most serious student and as much genuine enjoyment as the giddiest "rah-rah" dashing his father's money away in high glee. The "short course" has become established as a real part of University instruction and will increase in numbers and influence with the coming years.

W. G. Edens Talks Good Roads at U. of I.

The members of the "short course in agriculture," the two weeks' course offered to the farmers of the state by the University of Illinois, numbering over one thousand farmers from all over Illinois, as well as regular university students and townspeople, had the opportunity of hearing William G. Edens, assistant secretary of the Central Trust Company of Illinois and president of the Illinois Highway Improvement Association, discuss the road questions of the commonwealth. Mr. Edens spoke Tuesday, January 21st, the day being known as the "Good Roads Day" of the short course.

Mr. Edens followed A. N. Johnson, state highway engineer, and discussed the road question from the social, economic and agricultural viewpoints. He outlined the work of the Illinois Highway Improvement Association and the legislation which it will recommend to the present session of the general assembly. He told of the good roads round-up which is to be held in Springfield, January 31st, and spoke especially of the Good Roads Day which has been designated by the state superintendent of instruction for the people of the state and especially for the teachers and pupils in the public schools.

Mr. Edens and Dean David Kinley, the latter director of the courses in commerce in the University of Illinois, were the speakers Tuesday noon at the luncheon of the Champaign Chamber of Commerce. It was planned to have had F. C. Enright of the Chicago Association of Commerce, who spoke to university students at the luncheon that evening on South American trade conditions but delayed trains prevented. While in Champaign Mr. Edens was entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Harris and made his headquarters at the First National of that city.

Name of Isaac Funk Honored

The memory of the late Isaac Funk of McLean County has been honored by being placed in the Illinois Farmers Hall of Fame in the University of Illinois, the ceremonies being held Wednesday afternoon, January 22d.

Isaac Funk was the founder of the wealthy Funk family who have been prominent in the agricultural and banking interests of McLean County and Bloomington for three generations. Bloomington banks officered by Funks are the First National with A. B. Funk as president and Isaac G. Funk director, the State National with Jacob Funk president and LaFayette Funk director, and the State Trust and Savings with LaFayette Funk as vice-president. These three men are the only surviving sons of Isaac Funk, as six others, George W., Benjamin F., Adam, Duncan M., Francis M., and Isaac, have followed their father in death. Frank H. Funk, Progressive candidate for governor of Illinois in 1912, is a grandson of Isaac Funk.

Isaac Funk was a true pioneer. Locating in McLean County, then a wilderness, in 1824, he began the raising of live stock and the acquisition of virgin Illinois land. He died in Bloomington in 1865 owning 25,000 acres of land in McLean County, 20,000 acres being in one tract around Funk's Grove. This land practically is all in the control of the family to-day and is one of the largest, if not the largest, landed inheritances in Illinois. The Funks always have been live stock raisers

WE own and offer for January investment, First Mortgage Bonds in denominations of $500 and $1,000, secured by absolute direct first liens on the highest class of improved, income-producing, centrally located Chicago real estate, netting the investor 5½ to 6%. Our recommendation of these bonds for investment is based on experience of thirty-one years. ¶ These bonds are so thoroughly secured, and we protect the interests of investors with such care that no client has ever lost a dollar of principal or interest on any security purchased of us since this House was founded. ¶ Each bond issue is distinct and separate, is the obligation of distinct and separate mortgagors, and is secured by distinct and separate property. The total loan is never more than 50 % of the value of the security. ¶ For thirty-one years we have maintained a market for these securities through our custom of repurchasing bonds or mortgages from clients when requested, at par and accrued interest, less only the handling charge of 1%, thus giving reasonable assurance of their convertibility.

since the days when Isaac Funk drove hogs and cattle to Chicago through the wilderness of Illinois mud and sloughs.

Mr. Funk was a patriotic man, bitterly denouncing Southern tendencies in the Illinois legislature during the Civil War, as he was then a member of that body. He was unusually prompt in paying debts and always could borrow money even in the unsettled financial conditions preceding and during the Civil War. At one time he owed the Ridgeley bank of Springfield $3,000. He was in Chicago selling cattle and realized just about that amount. He sent his son Jacob on horseback with the money in gold on a flying trip to Springfield. At Funk's Grove Jacob was relieved by his brother George W., with another fleet horse and the money was in the Ridgeley bank when the note matured.

Isaac Funk is buried beside his wife in the family burying ground near Funk's Grove and his deceased sons and daughter and other members of the family sleep in the same plot in the midst of an almost priceless landed inheritance and almost within sight of the spot where Isaac Funk built his lonely cabin in the Illinois wilderness almost one hundred years ago. The vast inheritance was settled without administrative papers or lawsuits, the oldest son, George W., taking charge and the heirs quitclaiming their rights each to the other and each heir receiving about 2,500 acres of land.

F. C. Enright on South America

F. C. Enright, representative of the Chicago Association of Commerce in South America for several years and an authority upon American trade conditions in the southern continent, addressed an audience at the University of Illinois Tuesday evening, January 21st. Mr. Enright made a most careful and concise address upon the lack of American trade in the South American countries and brought out in a clear manner the immense resources of those countries, which, practically undeveloped now, will mean markets of increasing importance for the United States in the next half-century, provided especially, if American business men intelligently take advantage of these growing commercial possibilities.

Mr. Enright urged young men students in commercial courses in universities to develop themselves by a study of Spanish and Portuguese and South American history, politics and economic conditions, so that they may become trained men for American business houses to send to South America. He said that the untrained young man landing in South America "looking for a job" will be a pitiable failure, while the trained young man will carry himself and his house to a commercial success of high value. Mr. Enright created a good impression among Illinois men, and as this was the first university audience which he has addressed it was a privilege to the speaker as well as to the hearers.

Illinois Notes

Livingston county farmers have made arrangements for a soil expert to do similar work to that now being done by Wm. G. Eckhardt in DeKalb county. Champaign county farmers and bankers are making preparations for employing an agricultural advisor. Tazewell county farmers also are interested in this work.

The Champaign high school will have classes in agriculture twice a week for the second semester to be taught by Professor A. W. Nolan of the University of Illinois. Similar courses will be taught at Saybrook and are being urged in many other places. One of the strong and telling points brought out at the recent agricultural "short course" of the University of Illinois attended by over 1,000 farmers of the state and their wives was the need of agricultural courses in all the public schools. Superintendent Kern of Winnebago county was prominent in such discussion.

W. G. Eckhardt, agricultural advisor for DeKalb county, who addressed the last convention of the Illinois Bankers Association at Peoria, made an address at the "short course" of the University of Illinois. Mr. Eckhardt urged the replacing of the soil minerals, better seed corn, cultivation of alfalfa and other practical measures. "No line of work at the University has made so much progress in the last ten or twelve years as agriculture," said Mr. Eckhardt.

Lauren D. Burt has resigned his position in the state auditor's office and will take up a business course in the University of Illinois.

J. E. Hoblit, cashier of the Lincoln State Bank, has been named secretary of the Lincoln Cemetery Association to succeed the late Harry Houser, a former Lincoln banker.

James J. Brady, state auditor-elect is mourning the death of his brother, Thomas Brady, who died after a brief illness with pneumonia. The deceased was to have had a prominent part in the dministration of the auditor's office.

George E. Koehn has been named assistant cashier of the First National of Springfield, after serving the institution for some time as teller. This is another promotion because of merit. No other changes were made among the officers or directors.

MILWAUKEE NEWS LETTER BY CHALMER B. TRAVER WISCONSIN

The organization of a bankers' mutual casualty company by members of the Wisconsin Bankers Association has been deferred until the annual meeting in June. This disposition of a matter that has been before the organization several months followed the midwinter meeting of the association's executive board in the office of Secretary George D. Bartlett last week. Although 265 banks agreed to enter the proposed company and made provisional aplications for insurance the percentage of members who made no reply to the queries of the board was so large that it was thought best to defer perfecting the organization until the annual meeting. Pending further action the applications already received have been returned to the senders.

Forger Sentenced

Through the efforts of the Wisconsin Bankers Association R. W. Norton, confessed forger of many checks which he succeeded in passing in the southern portion of the state a year ago, was apprehended and sentenced this week to a term in the Green Bay reformatory. He was arrested in Albuquerque county, New Mexico, upon descriptions furnished by the association and returned to Janesville, Wis., for trial.

Prize Essay Contest

Secretary George D. Bartlett of the W. B. A. is working out the details of a prize essay contest for school children to be conducted by the association as a branch of its educational work. Contestants will be given a choice of several subjects dealing with banking, agriculture or industry in Wisconsin.

Fuller of the Wisconsin Trust Company and Vice-President William Bigelow of the First National were elected vice-presidents of the Wisconsin Securities Company at the annual meeting in Milwaukee this week. Among the directors are the following Milwaukee bankers: Robert Camp, president of the First Savings and Trust Company; J. W. P. Lombard, president of the National Exchange; L. J. Strohmeyer; directing committee, Frederick Kasten, William Bigelow, C. C. Schmidt, Arthur Lindsay, and A. J. Schultz. The matter of securing new quarters for the association was deferred and the old quarters in the building formerly occupied in the Milwaukee National at East Water and Michigan streets will be retained.

Wisconsin Notes

H. J. Diehr, manager of the bond department of the Marshall and Ilsley Bank was elected assistant cashier at the annual meeting last week. He will continue as head of the bond department.

Torney of the Fifth Street school, former head of the institution. Other officers are: vice-president, Dr. L. Smithylan; second vice-president, Dr. G. H. Kriz; secretary, Emil Lenicheck; treasurer, S. C. Kriz; directors, Dr. W. C. Koch, Edward A. Wittig, Harmon Wesle, Charles Stuhlman, James Towondra, Erns Grappe, and Joseph L. Mutzbauer.

Chicago Chapter Holds Annual Banquet

Interesting speakers and high class entertainment provided for the occasion. Prominent men in banking world present

The twelfth annual banquet of the Chicago Chapter, American Institute of Banking, held in the Red Room of the La Salle Hotel, Saturday evening, January 18th, was largely and enthusiastically attended. The excellent program provided, the delightful entertainment, the attractive menu and the spirit of good fellowship which prevailed all combined to make the affair highly enjoyable to those who were so fortunate as to be present.

The program and menu were in the form of a bond, on one side of which appeared a list of the speakers for the evening, entertainment features, officers for 1912-13, executive committee, banquet committee and past presidents of Chicago Chapter. The different courses of the dinner were printed on the coupons of the bond. This is not the first time the chapter boys have adopted an unique manner of presenting their program and menu, on former occasions having used a pass book, check book, copy of clearing house checks used during the panic and a facsimile of the chapter pin. At each place at the tables was a song book containing the words of various popular songs, which were sung by the banqueters with much enthusiasm at frequent intervals during the course of the evening's entertainment.

John W. Rubecamp of the Corn Exchange National, president of Chicago Chapter, presided as toastmaster, his efforts in that behalf reflecting great credit, not only to himself, but to the chapter as well. The speakers were A. C. Bartlett, president Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Company, who chose "Good Citizenship" as his topic; the Hon. John E. W. Wayman, ex-state's attorney Cook county who talked on partisanship; Charles H. Wacker, chairman Chicago Plan Commission, on "A Phase of the Chicago Plan;" Douglas Hawley Cornell, pastor Glencoe Union Church, on "Margins" and Byron W. Moser of the St. Louis Union Trust Company, president of the American Institute of Banking, who talked on "The Institute."

President Rubecamp in his preliminary remarks stated that the membership of Chicago Chapter at the present time numbers 1,100, the largest in its history. Much interest and enthusiasm are being manifested by the members in the course of study presented by the Institute. Effective work is being done by the class in commercial law under the guidance and direction of Prof. James I. Ennis. The chapter also conducts a class in public speaking in co-operation with the debating society. He also spoke of the post graduate course which enables graduates of the Institute to pursue their studies further after having completed the regular course and called attention to the large number of chapter men figuring in recent bank promotions. Mr. Rubecamp paid his respects to past administrations and expressed the hope that the chapter in the future will continue to expand and grow as it has in the past and now is doing.

Mr. Bartlett, the first speaker of the evening, believes that Jane Addams and George Cole are Chicago's leading citizens, with Julius Rosenwald well up in the front ranks. The duty of good citizenship is a duty incumbent upon all of us and no man can plead lack of opportunity to be a good citizen, no matter what his station in life may be, said Mr. Bartlett. Rich men as a rule are not our best citizens; there are, however, a great many entitled to much credit for their donations to colleges, libraries, etc. A great opportunity is presented to the young men of to-day for the development and display of good citizenship. Mr. Bartlett made some comments on the recent presidential campaign, stating it as his opinion that neither the democrats, republicans nor progressives have adjusted themselves to national conditions, and that it is the duty of every good citizen to assist in effecting this adjustment. He declared that William J. Bryan was the first to advocate the rights of citizens as relating to illegal trusts and monopolistic combinations and that later Theodore Roosevelt appropriated Bryan's ideas in respect thereto. There has been a change in moral alignment, said Mr. Bartlett; things which thirty years ago were tolerated, now are illegal as the result of legislative enactment. Thirty years ago the exaction of 15 per cent interest on a loan would not excite any comment; to-day if such a thing were attempted the lender would be prosecuted for usury; thirty years ago no one thought anything of interstate travel by means of passes; to-day such a thing is not tolerated; the same thing also is true in the case of rebates. The tendency to-day is to prohibit the granting of special privileges to a few, and those who seek to gain them hardly can be classed as good citizens. "We have reached a crisis in the affairs of the country," said the speaker, "and the old régime under which politicians ran the government is at an end." Mr. Bartlett, quoting from a recent address of President-elect Wilson, stated that the government is a business proposition and that we must get the people in the right frame of mind to deal with the momentous problems with which the nation is confronted; we are very reluctant to disturb established forms and methods, which necessarily will hinder our progress and development as a great country. "The road to success runs along the open highway of clean business, the only road which can be traveled by the good citizen," said Mr. Bartlett in concluding his address.

The next speaker of the evening was Charles H. Wacker, who illustrated his remarks with splendid stereopticon views of various features of the proposed Chicago plan, and also views of various cities in Europe, contrasting their condition with that of Chicago. "The Chicago Plan for the Glory of Chicago. Live Work for Live Men," was the sentiment contained in the first slide exhibited to the banqueters. Mr. Wacker pointed out the urgent need of the development of Chicago as a city. Our city population constantly is increasing; it therefore is incumbent upon us to advance civically to such a degree as shall be consistent with our growth and size. The importance of this proposition is brought more forcibly to one's attention when it is stated that the urban population of the nation is increasing very rapidly; indeed, at the present time 12 per cent of the population of the United States live in the three leading cities, New York, Chicago and Philadelphia. Our country is the most wasteful of all nations. The movement for better civic conditions is being taken up all over the world and our country ought not to be content with standing still in this most important matter. The growth of a city lies in making the city convenient, healthful and attractive for its citizens. It therefore is our duty to plan for its development; Chicago has been somewhat backward in this respect, said Mr. Wacker. New York's indebtedness is $213 per capita, Chicago's is $25; yet New York has just appropriated a large sum of money to be used in civic development. The various features embodied in the Chicago plan as set forth by Mr. Wacker are to stimulate the growth of the city in an orderly, systematic and symmetrical way; to impress upon the people the importance of systematic planning in that behalf; to adopt a scientifically and carefully elaborated plan which is not to be changed in any of its essentials; to provide a plan for all the people; to reclaim for the people the beautiful shores of Lake Michigan and to provide more convenient transportation thereto; to rearrange the streets and highways where this is made necessary by congested conditions; to provide more park space, playgrounds and bathing beaches for the comfort and enjoyment of the citizens and generally to impress upon the people that development along the lines suggested will prove of incalcuable value, not only from an aesthetic and hygienic standpoint, but as a commercial asset.

Mr. Wacker exhibited numerous views of European cities showing how they have developed under systematic, scientific city planning. He showed what London could have done at the time of the great London fire. A city plan was adopted at that time, it seems, but certain councilmen allowed the measure to go by default, with the result that London, the most congested city in the world, now expends millions for small improvements which could have been effected with an outlay of a few thousands had the city plan been adopted and carried into effect at that time. Views were shown from London, Paris, Stockholm, Berlin, Dresden, Budapest, Hamburg, Munich, Dusseldorf, Vienna; also Harrisburg, Pa., and Cleveland, Ohio. The difference between a freight terminal as shown by a comparison with one of Chicago really is quite appalling; another comparison which caused much laughter was the comparison of the Rush street bridge of Chicago with London bridge and Alexander, III bridge. Statistics show that the traffic over the Rush street bridge of Chicago is 16 per cent greater than that over London bridge, popularly supposed to be the most congested bridge in the world. Mr. Wacker also flashed on the screen the new double deck bascule that will replace Rush street bridge and make a connecting link for the lake front boulevard. He explained the various features of the plan in regard to widening streets, the development of park areas, bathing beaches, etc.

The next speaker was John E. W. Wayman, who believes that citizens ought not to vote for a candidate for office as an individual but rather that the candidate should have back of him some party standing for and advocating certain principles. Mr. Wayman said that Lincoln is best known because of his partisanship and that Douglas is remembered because of the principles which he stood for. When one makes a deposit in a bank he does not make it because he likes the teller who receives the money but because he likes the bank and the manner in which it conducts its business—the principles which it represents. The speaker declared that since 1880 the republican party has had no more insipid platform that that adopted at the Chicago convention in 1912. In 1880 there was a heated contest between Blaine and Conklin for the nomination. So bitter was the fight that party principles were lost sight of in framing the platform. The same conditions prevailed in 1912, an intense rivalary existing between Theodore Roosevelt and William H. Taft.

The Rev. Mr. Cornell chose "Margins" as his topic—(not financial margins, however). "What profiteth it a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own life," said the speaker. "The man who finds his own life is the man who can use his margin of time." Many men are so intent upon making money in this world and so engrossed in business affairs that they think only of the material things and do not take time to help their fellow men, to train their children to become good citizens, etc. A man of this character, said the speaker, is a man who is not exercising his margin of time. He also discussed the margin of morality and pointed out that business men ought to be leaders in the campaign in that respect.

The last speaker of the evening was Byron W. Moser, who spoke briefly of the Institute

NEW YORK PRIVATE BANKING LAW

The great state of New York, with the best of state banking laws, did not put private banking under supervision until September 10, 1910. She had quite as many "horrible examples" of what an unlicensed private banker can do to a guileless depositor as we have had in Illinois and Iowa. She also had so many old established private banks in New York City, creditable and useful to both state and nation, that her legislators hesitated. The yellow journals hinted at other causes of inaction and continued to print the damning details every time a "private" absconded and the depositors "lost all." The bill passed in 1910 was a compromise but it helped greatly to stop robbery in the guise of banking.

A private banking bureau was established as a part of the office of the state comptroller and a competent head was named. Even the comptroller himself, William Sohmer, took a deep interest in the work and in his published report to the legislature in 1911 discussed wisely "the causes leading up to the necessity for the passage of the law for the protection of citizens and aliens of the state from loss due to the failure and absconding of so-called private bankers and the operation of the law." This report has become an authority on such subjects and can be had on request by those interested.

The private banking law of New York now has been in force two years and while in the main it has worked well certain defects have been developed. For one thing, "there is not definite and specific provision governing the winding up of a private banker's affairs," in case of death. The license dies with him and his heirs must wind up the business and pay out the moneys on deposit. Securities held on deposit must be held until disposed of by an order of court. These things Mr. Sohmer holds to be serious defects in the law and he therefore recommends:

That subdivision 3 of section 29e be repealed and a new section inserted similar to section 19 of article 2 of Chapter 2 of the Consolidated Laws of 1909 and, as proposed by Senate Bill No. 1217, introduced at the last session of the Legislature by T. D. Sullivan, which provided, among other things, that whenever it shall appear that any private banker is insolvent or that the condition of the business conducted by him is such as to render its continuance hazardous, or that he has failed to comply with any of the provisions of the act, or shall refuse to submit his books, papers and securities to the inspection of an examiner, or shall refuse to be examined upon oath touching his business, his assets and liabilities, or shall suspend payment of his obligations or shall neglect or refuse to observe any order of the Comptroller, the Comptroller may forthwith take possession of his property and business and retain such possession until he shall resume business or his affairs be finally liquidated as herein provided, etc., etc., and this section should be further amplified so as to govern the winding up of the affairs of a deceased licensed private banker by the Comptroller.

A further serious defect in the law is that it does not say how a private banker may invest his funds. Every examination shows that private bankers loan on real estate, already incumbered, at higher than going rates for safe loans. In time of stress these loans cannot be realized and thus are not good banking in the eyes of the law. Mr. Sohmer has asked the legislature to amend the law providing:

That the Private Banking Law be amended so as to prescribe definitely in what manner and in what securities the funds may be invested, to define the limits of investment in unencumbered real property and to require a lawful money reserve of at least 20 per cent of the deposits. This proposed amendment might wisely follow the provisions of the State Banking Law so far as they can be made to apply to private banking conditions.

Private bankers who are not exempt give $100,000 bond in New York City and $50,000 in Buffalo or Rochester. Elsewhere the bond is based upon deposits, running in actual practice at about 47 per cent. Deposits in licensed banks outside of the special cases are less than three millions, the average individual deposit being fifty dollars. The big banks in New York come in under a special section of the law and do not report to the state. There is great responsibility and much work in conducting the private banking bureau and the wonder is that New York does not abolish private banking altogether.

RETIREMENT OF CAPT. NEELY

For the first time in fifty years, Capt. John C. Neely is to be a man of leisure. He has given up his desk at the Corn Exchange National and expects to devote much of his time in the years to come to travel. Capt. Neely is seventy-three years of age and a veteran of the Civil War. He served with Sherman and Grant and it will be his pleasure to revisit the battle fields, now turned into beautiful national parks. In banking he has been just as careful and just as methodical as he learned to be in war. It may be said to his credit that neither of the banks which he has served through fifty years suffered any loss through any act of his.

Next month Capt. Neely expects to take the West Indies trip and devote at least six weeks to that famous sight-seeing tour. The Panama canal is to be one objective point, and as Capt, Neely observes, "See it now, for no living man may ever see its bottom again." The Corn Exchange was loth to see him go, but he wished to quit while he could be remembered as an effective man and not "to wear out at his desk."

INDORSES THE LEVER BILL

Enoch A. Bryan, president of the State College of Washington, has written to W. D. Vincent of Spokane, as a member of the A. B. A. agricultural committee, indorsing the Lever bill as follows:

"I am in receipt of yours of January 7th with enclosure and notice Mr. Wiley's statement on the last page of the bulletin. I shall be very glad to give the matter as much publicity as possible. I am very hopeful indeed that the Lever bill will become a law during this month. If so, it will be necessary for the state of Washington to put up an amount equal to that contributed by the Lever bill. The legislature will be fairly likely to do this out of the mill tax bill. If the bankers association carries out the plan adopted at the Tacoma convention and until they get this additional amount perhaps it should be done in the way of meeting the demands of the Lever bill.

"You perhaps may be interested in knowing that during the last summer we gave special instruction to more than 250 teachers of the state in agriculture, horticulture, domestic economy and manual training. I think you will further be interested in knowing that the number of high school students engaged in studying agriculture has increased from about 860 last year to over 2,000 this year. I think you would be further interested in the information coming from the office of the department of public instruction that at the present time there are about 10,000 children of 8th grade or under in the state of Washington that are studying these subjects.

GEORGIA CONVENTION

Secretary Haynes McFadden announces that the 1913 convention of the Georgia Bankers Association will be held in Macon, May 16th-17th. The dates were set by the executive council, which met in Macon, Monday, January 20th. At the same time the following schedule of group meeting dates was determined upon: Group 1, Valdosta, Monday, April 7th; Group 4, Albany, Tuesday, April 8th; Group 5, Macon, Wednesday, April 9th; Group 2, Washington, Thursday, April 10th; Group 3, Marietta, Friday, April 11th.

A number of prominent speakers are expected to address the state convention. President Woodrow Wilson, who is expected to be in Atlanta May 15th, at the National Assembly of Presbyterian Churches, is among those who are sought by the Georgia bankers. Charles H. Huttig, president of the American Bankers Association, and William J. Burns, head of the protective service of the A. B. A., also are expected to attend the Macon convention. It also is proposed to have a demonstration of the currency washing machine recently adopted by the United States government.

A determined and definite movement will be undertaken at the state convention to line Georgia up with the most progressive states in the matter of agricultural development and financial education. President B. W. Hunt of Eatonton, who is not only a prominent banker but also a leading cattle breeder, horticulturist and cotton factor, will arrange the agricultural portion of the program, with the idea of making farm life more attractive and profitable, and the tilling of the soil more effective.

An innovation at the 22d annual convention will be the plan of having a group dinner the evening before the general convention opens. An orator from each group will address this preliminary meeting and a feature of particular interest will be the opening of the question box, in which banks in all portions of the state will deposit questions during the group meetings in April to be studied out and answered at the state convention in May. The group chairmen will preside over the group tables and President Hunt will preside over the entire assemblage.

The Macon convention committee is composed of L. P. Hillyer, vice-president of the American National; C. B. Lewis, vice-president of the Fourth National, and Flynn R. Nisbet, assistant cashier of the Citizens National.

The association's convention committee is composed of President B. W. Hunt, Vice-president L. P. Hillyer, Chairman Frank S. Jones of the executive council and Secretary Haynes McFadden.

On the day of the council meeting, the Macon Clearing House Association entertained the visiting bankers at luncheon, which was a most pleasant affair, the officers of all the Macon banks being present and a general discussion of plans for the convention taking place.

Deposit National, admitted that the Congress Hotel still could compete with the New England Inn at the Yards when it comes to putting on a "Made in Germany" brand of dinner. Assistant Manager of the Hotel Edward M. Burke kept a close eye on the progress of events.

H. S. Cable, president of the Rock Island Savings, is a newcomer on the council. He comes from a distinguished railroad family, his father having been the man who built up and developed the Rock Island Railroad system and was its president for many years.

B. A. Turner, banker, Edinburg, who is a brother of W. E. Turner, cashier of the Farmers National of Taylorville, was an interested onlooker.

W. C. Ludwig, assistant cashier of the State Bank of Benton, was accompanied by Robert R. Ward, vice-president of the bank. Mr. Ward now is so busy with the work of the committee on agriculture, acting as secretary during the absence of Chairman B. F. Harris, that Mr. Ludwig is obliged to do the Chicago shopping.

When the cartoonoscope presented a likeness of Irving Shuman seated in his bank at Sullivan, in an expectant attitude, with telephone at ear and talking with the White House in Washington, every banker could see the comptrollership smile that adorned Shuman's countenance. The bankers evidently appreciated that Mr. Shuman has a status in this connection and gave generous applause to the artist's picture.

L. L. Emmerson, president of the Third National, of Mt. Vernon, attended the committee meetings, as well as the council meetings and the fellowship dinner. These two Egyptians have the happy convention habit.

John B. Jackson, cashier of the Anna National at Anna, confessed that he had no office, but just couldn't stay away—too much good fellowship on tap. Mr. Jackson always is at home with the Illinois bankers and a most welcome guest.

John M. Herbert, president of the Citizens Trust and Savings, and Willard Wall, president of the First National, Murphysboro, were other Egyptians who arrived in time for the fellowship dinner.

Chairman Bradt of the good roads committee brought a draft of an agricultural bill from DeKalb county where they have practical farm demonstration work, which he turned over to Chairman Harris of the agricultural committee for the consideration of the members of that committee.

T. F. McCartney, cashier of the National State of Metropolis, probably covered more mileage than any other member present, as a part of his journey was made on the Ohio River and part by rail, going Col. Aisthorpe one better in the matter of traveling to get to the Chicago meeting.

L. A. Goddard, member of the council from Group 4 and president of the State Bank of Chicago, beamed with good nature over the evening's arrangements and program. The presence of so many bankers from the extreme southern part of the state reminded Mr. Goddard of the days he spent in Egypt, when he taught school five days in the week and spent the remaining two in the study necessary to prepare him for the successful banking career which awaited him in Chicago.

O. B. Gorin, president of the Millikin National of Decatur, accompanied by Smith Walker, cashier of the same bank, who is a member of the council, got a line on the market for Spanish onions.

The cartoonist pictured C. H. Condit of Winchester as using a smooth bore mortar in the marketing of his numerous issues of drainage bonds that this old established and reliable banking firm of Neat, Condit and Grout are noted for and the imputation further that the same sort of fire arms might be used in the defense of the brothers of the private banks of Illinois, if pressed too far.

O. F. Anderson, cashier of the Moline Trust and Savings and Nelson H. Greene, vice-president of the Peoples Savings Bank and Trust Company of Moline, were both active participants in the proceedings of the council.

BLUE SKY LAW FOR MICHIGAN

Detroit, January 23d.—The Michigan Bankers Association by its authorized committee has prepared a proposed "Blue Sky" law for that state. It will be presented at Lansing and vigorously pushed for passage by the association. A full copy of the proposed law reads:

A BILL to regulate the sale of stocks, bonds and other corporation securities, to define dealers therein, and to provide for the licensing of such dealers.

The People of the State of Michigan enact:

Section 1. On and after the first day of September, 1913, no dealer in stocks, bonds, or other corporation securities shall do business in this state unless registered under the provisions of this act with the Securities Commission.

Section 2. Under this act the term "dealer" shall mean any individual, partnership, partnership association, association or corporation whether resident in Michigan or not, which is engaged or shall hereafter engage in this state in selling stocks, bonds or other securities excepting securities approved by the Railroad Commission or the Public Utilities Commission of this or any other state, or municipal bonds or the stock of any national or state bank or trust company; offering such securities for sale by circular, advertising or personal solicitation, directly or through agents, will be dealing in such securities within the meaning of this act.

Section 3. A corporation or unincorporated association offering its own securities generally for sale by circular, advertising or personal solicitation through agents to others than its own shareholders or members, shall be considered a dealer under the terms of this act.

Section 4. Under this act a sale shall be held to mean the transfer of title for any valuable consideration.

Section 5. The term stocks, bonds and other corporation securities shall not be held to include commercial paper or other evidences of debt not running more than nine months.

Section 6. Any party described in Section 2 of this act, desiring to be registered and have the privileges of a dealer in stocks, bonds and securities under this act shall file with the Securities Commission in such form as it shall prescribe, an application in writing for license to engage in the business of dealing in securities in this state, etc., which application shall state:

(a) The name and place of business of the applicant; the names and residences and business addresses of all persons directly interested as principals, officers, directors and managing agents of applicant and the nature and interest of each.

(b) The financial condition of applicant.

(c) That the applicant will conduct the business in a fair and honest manner in all respects.

Whereupon when the Securities Commission shall be satisfied of the good faith, character and financial responsibility of applicant, on payment of $100 (one hundred dollars) it shall register the dealer as authorized to sell stocks, bonds and other corporation securities in the state, and shall thereupon advertise the fact of registration in a newspaper of general circulation in the state, once a week for two weeks.

The dealer shall thereupon and thereafter mail to the Securities Commission a copy of all printed or otherwise re-duplicated circulars of securities it shall offer for sale in the state.

The Securities Commission shall print a list of registered dealers, revised each six months, and mail it to any inquirer upon request, and shall also at any time, upon request by mail or in person, inform any inquirer as to whether or not any individual, partnership association or corporation is a registered dealer.

Section 7. If not satisfied as to the integrity of the applicant as a dealer the Securities Commission may refuse to register the applicant. The Commission may also, at any time, either on complaint or in its own initiative, revoke or suspend a permission to do business under this act on ascertaining that a dealer is insolvent, has violated any provision of this act, engages in any fraudulent of otherwise improper transaction.

Section 8. On refusing to register a dealer or on suspending or revoking a permit to a dealer to do business, the Commission must give notice to the dealer in writing, of the reason of its refusal.

Section 9. Any dealer on the refusal of registration by the Securities Commission, or on the suspension or revocation of permission to do business in the state, may file in the circuit court in chancery in the county in which the dealer's principal place of business is located, or if the dealer has no principal place of business in the state, then may file in the circuit court for Ingham county, in chancery, a petition against the Commission alleging therein the petitioner's qualifications to be registered, and praying for a reversal of the official action complained of. Upon service of subpoena on the Commission as defendant as provided in the chancery rules, it shall enter its appearance and file an answer in which it shall allege the grounds previously assigned in its notice to the dealer and thereupon without further pleading the cause shall be heard. The court's decision shall consider the rights of the petitioner and the protection of the public. Judgment against the petitioner shall not bar the dealer from making a new application to the Commission for registration under this act, and judgment in favor of the petitioner shall not prevent the Commission from thereafter suspending or revoking the dealer's license to do business in the state for any cause which may thereafter accrue or be discovered.

Section 10. The Securities Commission may at any time, on its own motion or at the suggestion or request of any interested party, require a registered dealer to file with it information about assets, liabilities and earnings of any corporation whose securities the dealer is offering for sale, sufficient to satisfy the commission of the propriety of the offering. If not satisfied that the offering is proper, the commission may suspend the right of the dealer to sell the security in this state and notify the dealer thereof.

LOUISVILLE BANK IS CLOSED

Louisville, Ky., January 22d.—Affairs of the Commercial Bank and Trust Company of Louisville, a state institution capitalized at $300,000, to-day were turned over to the state banking commissioner at his suggestion by the bank's board of directors. The doors were closed at noon. Ben L. Bruner, president of the bank, is named as deputy commissioner. He will liquidate the bank's affairs after he has given bond. Nonproductive assets and doubtful paper are assigned as the cause of the bank's closing.

DURATION OF "BANK" ONE DAY

"Chicago Bank," started by Benjamin Carson, lasted just one day. Offices, directors' rooms and vaults consisted of a single mail box at the post office. There was not a single depositor before the mail authorities arrested Carson. An investigation of his sanity will be made.

A charter has been issued to the State Bank of Clinton, Wis., capital listed at $35,000.

NEW STOCK OF MONTGOMERY WARD

Word comes from New York that a syndicate of bankers headed by the First National has purchased $5,000,000 of the 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock of Montgomery Ward & Company. A few Chicagoans, it is said, have been let in on the underwriting. This $5,000,000 is half of an authorized issue of $10,000,000 of preferred stock of the company. The other $5,000,000 will be retained in the treasury for future use. The company has authorized common stock of thirty millions, all of which will be retained by the Ward and Thorne interests which own the company, except such portions as may be awarded to employees. It is understood that public offerings of the preferred stock sold will be made in the near future.

CROWELL'S LIST OF NEW BOOKS

Books for all classes of readers are found on the list announced for early spring publication by the Thomas Y. Crowell Company. Fiction is represented by a strong novel of unusual plot entitled "A Superman in Being," by Litchfield Woods; "The Debt," a lively and thoroughly enjoyable story of South African life, by William Westrupp; and by Samuel W. Odell's "Princess Athura," a brilliant historical romance dealing with events in ancient Persia. Kate F. Kimball's "English Cathedral Journey" is a notable addition to the Crowell Travel Series. For boys there is an informing work on "How to Play Baseball." Dr. Orison Swett Marden has written a new optimistic book, "The Joys of Living," and two attractive volumes on efficiency lines, "The Progressive Business Man" and "the Exceptional Employee." New Thought is summed up in enlightening and convincing fashion by Charles Brodie Patterson in his "What is New Thought?" The list closes with a translation of Karl Mortensen's "Handbook of Norse Mythology," which has gone through many editions in the Danish original and should prove equally popular among students on this side of the ocean.

SUPREME COURT APPROVES GOOD ROADS LAW

The Elwell good roads law of Minnesota has been approved by the Minnesota supreme court. This law provides for 50 per cent state aid, 25 per cent county aid and 25 per cent by private enterprise or public support.

Winona county has some 8 or 10 miles of concrete road, 8 feet in width, with a macadam shoulder of 6 feet on either side. Some 25 or 30 miles are to be contracted for shortly. This is the first county in the state to take up actively the matter of making its county trunk lines of other material than earth roads.

MEDIA MAN GROWER OF EXCELLENT SEED CORN

C. R. Pendarvis, cashier of the Media (Ill.) State Bank and a former member of the committee on agriculture of the Illinois Bankers Association, says that bankers who are interested in the matter of offering seed corn as prizes for boys' corn clubs and other agricultural organizations should get in touch with E. G. Lewis of Media, a grower of pure breed seed corn, as the Lewis people certainly have made good and have some fine testimonials of splendid results coming from the use of their seed corn.

Citizens of Elderon, Wis., are taking steps to establish a state bank in that place. It is said that stockholders of the Citizens State of Wittenberg will support the enterprise.

Interior of Harris Trust & Savings Bank of Chicago

The Harris Trust & Savings Bank makes a specialty of handling inactive reserve accounts for banks and bankers, and of supplying carefully selected bonds for investment or circulation purposes. ¶ During the past thirty years its officers and directors selected and purchased, after careful investigations, over one thousand, two hundred and fifty million dollars of bonds, which have been sold to a constantly growing list of conservative clients. ¶ In buying bonds of this institution the investor secures the benefit of the extensive experience and trained judgment gained through the selection of this large amount of safe investments. ¶ The special character of the bank's business permits of liberal interest terms on inactive or reserve accounts of banks, bankers, corporations and individuals.

and its activities. Membership at the present time is around 14,000. Mr. Moser congratulated Chicago Chapter for the splendid work which it is doing and the excellent results which have been achieved, and told of the efforts of the American Institute of Banking to train and equip young men the better to discharge the duties and obligations incumbent upon them as bankers. He urged individual co-operation on the part of the members of the Institute and expressed the hope that they would "carry their banners high up in the air and not hide them in the crowd marching in the procession" as did the man who was prevailed upon to march in a suffragette parade. His little son who had witnesed the parade asked his father afterwards why he had not carried his banner up in the air like the rest of the marchers. The father being of a very truthful nature, replied that the reason was because the following was inscribed on the banner: "Men can vote; why can't I?"

By EDGAR P. ALLEN

Omaha

Bankers of St. Joseph, Mo., have been receiving felicitations from their customers and bankers in neighboring cities because of the marked increase in bank clearings for the past few weeks. While most of the other towns and cities of the Central West have been content with holding their own, St. Joseph has broken its own records in an astonishing way. On Saturday, January 16th, the clearings of St. Joseph amounted to $2,982,003, the largest single day's clearings in the history of the city, breaking the previous record of $2,231,071, made March 3, 1910. Rarely have the day's clearings in St. Joseph exceeded the two-million mark. They exceeded two millions January 18 and March 2, 1911, and January 17 and March 2, 1912. The clearings for the week ending January 17th last aggregated $9,984,468, an increase over the corresponding week of 1912 of 9 per cent. These increases are not due to any special activity in business but indicate the firm and steady tone of prosperity in the big river town.

Severe Penalties for Bank Robbers

The Oklahoma state senate has passed a bill which provides a penalty of not less than twenty years or more than fifty, imprisonment for persons convicted of robbery or burglary of any kind with the aid of explosives. This bill had been amended by the committee on banks and banking so as to include train robberies. This measure is in accordance with the desires of the bankers of Oklahoma, who have been exceedingly anxious that their state should follow the example of Kansas and other neighboring states in providing severe penalties for bank and express robberies. There is little doubt but that the bill will pass the house of representatives, as it was agreed upon by all concerned. A bill also was introduced in the Oklahoma senate making it a crime to draw a check upon any bank without first making arrangements for its payment. The latter bill was referred to the committee on banks and banking. It may be said in this connection that a similar bill to the one relating to checks has been introduced in the Missouri legislature.

State Interested in "Blue Sky" Law

The Kansas department of banking has been flooded with requests for copies of the famous "Blue Sky" law of that state, coming from scores of legislators in other states. From all appearances it seems likely that many other states will adopt "Blue Sky" laws this winter. In Missouri a bill has been introduced containing the salient features of the Kansas law, but going a little further in some of its provisions. The Missouri bill provides that all companies for investment purposes in Missouri must be incorporated and must be under the supervision of the bank examiner in the same manner as state banks. A heavy penalty is imposed for floating or attempting to float securities in wildcat enterprises and for other forms of "Blue Sky" enterprises and the act is so drawn as to apply to both foreign and domestic concerns.

Changes Necessary in Guaranty Plan

In several of the western states where the bank deposit guaranty system has been adopted, it has been found necessary to make some changes from the original plan. In Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas various recommendations are pending looking toward remedying the omissions of their bank guaranty laws. Secretary Royse, of the Nebraska banking board, has just completed his annual report to the governor and in it he points out some changes he deems desirable in the Nebraska law. The report sets forth that there has been no indication of high financing, speculation or dangerous innovations among the state banks of Nebraska during the past year and that since the banks have been operating under the guaranty plan no failures have occured and the guaranty fund has reached the sum of $447,414. While there was some friction between the bank board and some of the banks when the law first went into effect, this has disappeared. Secretary Royse says that no law is perfect and that this especially is true of a new law with many untried features. In order to correct some of the defects of the Nebraska law the secretary recommends the following amendments: Clearer interpretation of the law affecting reports of deposits of public funds; clearing up of the law relative to paying back to new banks any part of capital stock, should the full 4 per cent not be necessary in making the required 1 per cent of the average daily deposits; designation of what shall be done with the guaranty deposit where bank voluntarily liquidates; giving the state board the right to use discretion in issuing charter in fields which appear adequately filled. The last recommendation is based upon the Kansas law over which there has been considerable litigation, as it places in the hands of the charter board absolute power to say when and where new banks shall be established.

Kansas City Man Convicted

Among a number of bankers tried and sentenced at Memphis, Tenn., a month ago was C. A. Bonds, of Kansas City, president of the defunct All Night And Day Bank of Memphis. Mr. Bonds was convicted of using the mails to defraud in connection with the operations of a string of similiar banks in Memphis, Oklahoma City and Little Rock. At the time Bonds was convicted in Memphis he was out on bond and was said to be ill at his home in Kansas City. Inquiry at his home elicited the information that the banker was in a hospital, but it was not stated where this hospital was situated. Last week the federal authorities received letters from Bonds dated at Saskatoon, Canada, in which he said that he had taken up his residence there and defied the United States authorities to get him. However, Mr. Bonds was not well informed. Defrauding by means of the mails is not an extraditable offense, but even a better way of getting him was open. The federal authorities communicated with the Canadian immigration officials and requested that Bonds be expelled from that country as an "undesirable citizen." The answer came that Bonds had been arrested and that he would be escorted to the boundary line where an officer of the United States could have him. Bonds will be brought back and in all liklihood will be forced to serve his term in the federal prison at Leavenworth.

Propose to Amend Oklahoma Guaranty Law

For many months various committees and groups of state bankers in Oklahoma have been considering what amendments shall be recommended to the state legislature to remedy the deficiencies of the Oklahoma state guaranty law. The text of the proposed amendments now has been presented to the legislative committees on banks and banking and there is every indication that these amendments will be adopted. The new bill and amendments provides for a board of three state bankers, to be nominated by the state bankers and appointed by the governor from a list of six candidates; for a fixed tax of one-fifth of one per cent premium on the individual deposits to make up the guaranty fund; and for the issuance of banking board certificates wherever the guaranty fund might not be sufficient to pay off depositors of a failed bank. The state bankers of Oklahoma urge that they have supervision of the guaranty fund, as in reality it is a "pool" contributed to and maintained by them. They point out that the whole burden of the guaranty system falls upon them and that it is only the state banks who suffer when one of their number goes to the wall. They say, also, that they have contributed more than $1,600,000 to the guaranty fund during the past four years, which has been a heavy tax upon both business and capital.

Nebraska Bank Deposits

The total average daily deposits in all state banks of Nebraska for the past six months, according to the last report of the secretary of the Nebraska banking board, was $82,891,604. The total assessment of the banks for the guaranty fund, after adjustments were made, was $201,730. This makes the Nebraska guaranty fund on hand to date $776,275. The last assessment made completes the one-fourth of one per cent assessment under the law, and from now on the assessment will be only one-twentieth of one per cent, unless the fund should be depleted and drop below the amount required. So far there has been no demand on the fund since the law went into effect.

Banks Interested in Agriculture

All over the Central West the banks are evincing a strong interest in bettering agricultural conditions. In many counties banks have pledged themselves to donate certain sums each year to go toward the support of experts to instruct the farmers upon crop rotation, planting and cultivating and in other matters that will benefit them and increase the agricultural acreage and harvests. The banks in Jackson county, Mo., in which Kansas City is situated, have taken up the work with great enthusiasm and enough money has been pledged to secure the services of a farm expert who will be hired just as soon as a committee finds the right man. In fact, so much money is available in this one county that it is planned to have a regular county agricultural department maintained by business men and which will have a number of employes skilled in the work required of them. The movement is making rapid progress in Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Nebraska and in all of these states county organizations have been perfected. The demand for farm experts has arisen so suddenly and unexpectedly that graduates of agricultural colleges are finding a most promising field for their talents and this field will develop and widen in the Central West during the next few years. The movement has had the effect of bringing the farmers and bankers and business men generally closer together to the obvious advantage of all concerned.

Stockyards Company Changes Hands

The Kansas City Stock Yards Comany has passed from its old owners to the control of the packers in which it is said Edward Morris of Chicago is the leading factor. At the annual meeting of the company last week all of the old officers were retired and a new list named. These are the new officers: President, Eugene V. R. Thayer, of Boston; vice-president and general manager, George R. Collett, recently general manager of the National Stock Yards, of St. Louis; secretary and treasurer, F. H. Damon, of Boston; assistant general manager, W. H. Weeks, recently in charge of the yards at Wichita, Kan. The new directors are: E. V. R. Thayer, Boston; William A. Gaston, Boston; E. F. Swinney, president of the First National, Kansas City; Peter W. Gobel, president of the Commercial National, Kansas City, Kan.; P. R. Wornall, Liberty, Mo.; G. R. Collett, W. H. Weeks and O. M. Waite, Kansas City. Colonel C. F. Morse, the retiring president of the company, has been at the head of the Kansas City stock yards since its organization in 1878.

Texas Bank Gives Banquet

To mark the end of what has been a most prosperous year, the officers of the Guaranty State Bank and Trust Company of Dallas, Tex., gave a banquet to the directors and employees of that institution the night of January 17th at the Oriental Hotel in Dallas. Some time before the banquet the officers of the bank requested the employees each to write a paper embodying suggestions as to how the business of the concern could be increased during the year 1913 and prizes of $15, $10 and $5 were offered. Fourteen employees tried for the prizes and a committee made the awards as follows: First, Miss Irene Chenoweth, head stenographer; second, Dan D. Rogers, assistant cashier and third, Robert Williams, assistant cashier. The three prize winning papers were read and discussed at the banquet. Addresses were delivered as follows: "Prize Papers," by W. T. Henry; "Bank Advertising," by Clarence E. Linz; "The Growth of Our Institution and City," by M. H. Wolfe and "Our Employees," by R. B. Stitcher, vice-president.

Bank Elections

Last week ten national banks in Kansas City held their annual stockholders meetings for the election of directors for the ensuing year. In most instances the old boards were retained. At the Southwest National Bank of Commerce twenty-eight old directors were re-elected and W. L. Buechle and James T. Bradley, vice-president and cashier respectively, were named to fill vacancies caused by the deaths of A. W. Byers and George D. Ford. The Commonwealth National increased its directorate to fourteen members. The new members are Herbert S. Hadley, former governor and F. E. Tyler, president of the Dewey-Portland Cement Company. At the National Reverse one new man was added to the directorate. He is B. C. Mossman, a capitalist. B. H. Smith was elected a director of the Security National. A. Newman, formerly a national bank examiner for Kansas, was elected a director of the Drovers National in the place of Charles E. Waite, who recently took the presidency of the Stock Yards Bank of Commerce. Several of the boards of the banks gave dinners last week at clubs and hotels.

Central West Notes

John A. Flack, formerly cashier of the Abilene, Kan., State, who was arrested in New York after a shortage of nearly $80,000 was discovered in his accounts, pleaded guilty last week to three counts of alteration in the bank's books. He was given an indeterminate sentence of three to nineteen years in the state penitentiary and has begun his term.

Charles W. Green, president of the First State of Kansas City, Kan., and president of the Kansas City, Kan., Clearing House Association, is a candidate for mayor of that city. He has the backing of most of the business organizations and stands an excellent chance of election.

H. R. Eldridge, vice-president of the First National of Houston, Tex., has resigned and will go with the National City of New York.

The stockholders of the Columbia Bank and Trust Company of Oklahoma City, Okla., which failed in 1909, are liable for double the amount of their stock, according to a ruling of the state supreme court last week. This disposes of one of the most stubbornly contested bank cases in the history of the state.

The First National of Warner, Okla., has liquidated and reopened as the First State of Warner and operating under the state guaranty law. A. E. Ramsay, president of the Oklahoma State Bankers Association and of the First National of Muskogee, will be vice-president of the Warner bank.

The stockholders of the First National of Paris, Tex., celebrated the end of a prosperous year by voting to erect a bank building which will cost about $150,000.

AFTER IOWA PRIVATE BANKS

Des Moines, Ia., January 24th.—No institution in Iowa can do business under the name of "bank" unless it is under either federal or state inspection, if the bill which Senator Webber of Ottumwa has introduced into the Iowa legislature, becomes a law.

His measure is aimed at the 400 private banks now existing in Iowa and promises to raise a lively commotion. These banks are now subject to no inspection whatever.

"A study of bank failures the past few years in Iowa," said Senator Webber, "will show that most of them have been private institutions where depositors had no protection whatever and no recourse."

MISSOURI BUILDING SOCIETIES SOLID

Jefferson City, Mo., January 24th.—Building and loan associations in Missouri are in a prosperous condition, according to the 1912 report of the state supervisor, Sherman T. Gresham, which will soon be issued. There has been no failure during the last seven or eight years and those companies which liquidated did so without the loss of a dollar to anybody.

Banking news from Minneapolis—St. Paul financial center, and surrounding States, compiled by J. Edwards Smith

Farm loan investigations following the appointment of a committee a year ago by the Tri-State Grain Growers Association are summarized as to results in a report just delivered at the last meeting. The report is considered timely because of the interest of the American Bankers Association in the subject and the presidential indorsement of Ambassador Myron T. Herrick's report from France on foreign systems of farm loans. The committee covered Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa and Wisconsin. It found where country is long settled, farms well tilled and agriculture a stable occupation, interest rates are lowest; where country is newer, farms less developed, settlers inclined to shift about and agriculture less stable, interest rates are highest; interest rates to farmers on short time, unsecured notes, range from 1.29 to 2.84 per cent more than interest rates on first mortgage loans; North Dakota farmers have to pay 6 per cent on first mortgages in the western portion and this is true of South Dakota; in no instances are rates higher than 8 per cent reported east of the Missouri river.

The report of the committee recommends:

Reform of national and state banking laws to suit agricultural conditions; investigations of farm conditions by department of agriculture; warns against adoption of European systems in the United States without mature investigation; finds no great demand for more land on part of farmers and sees no need for co-operative credit societies; says agriculture no longer is a mining but a manufacturing proposition.

Frank L. McVey, former chairman of the Minnesota tax commission, now the head of the University of North Dakota, is chairman of the Tri-State committee, and other members are Hugh J. Hughes, Minneapolis; Carl W. Rakow, Wheatland; Anthony Stonehouse, Larimore, and J. G. Mills, Hannaford, N. D.

The report reads as follows: "It is well known to careful observers of agricultural conditions that a revolution is going on in the methods and processes of farming; that, in fact, the business of farming rapidly is changing in its character from a mining to a manufacturing process. This change has necessitated an immense amount of new capital, for the purpose of furnishing better machinery, permanent buildings, fences, livestock, home improvements and good drainage; and with this demand for more capital has come a considerable interest in methods of securing it.

"In the area of well-developed farming, of dairy herds and beef cattle, of pork and poultry, of creameries and cheese factories, of corn, clover and the feeding grains,—the farmers in these sections for two or more generations have established a strong line of moral credit.

Higher Rate in Dakotas

"'The interest rate on first mortgage loans in Wisconsin averages 5.56 per cent and the unsecured loan rate is 7.12 per cent; in Iowa the first mortgage interest is 5.5 per cent and the unsecured rate of 7.4 per cent; in South Dakota, taking the entire state, the interest is given as 5.7 per cent and the unsecured loans stand at 8.3 per cent. In other words, the average farmer in Wisconsin pays a margin of 1.29 per cent on his plain note over a first mortgage note, while a man in South Dakota pays a margin of 2.84 per cent. The commissioners think the rate of interest in this section bears a direct relation to the type of farming followed and that it compares favorably with the rate charged to small business enterprises.

Elect Officers

At the annual meeting of shareholders of St. Paul Cattle Loan Company, held at the Merchants National bank, the following directors were elected: Kenneth Clark, E. H. Bailey, J. W. Lusk, George H. Prince, J. S. Bangs, J. J. Flanagan and W. E. Briggs. Officers were re-elected as follows: Kenneth Clark, president; J. J. Flanagan, vice-president; W. E. Briggs, secretary and treasurer. The semi-annual dividend of 5 per cent was declared and $20,000 was added to the surplus. The capital now is $100,000 and the surplus $100,000. Loans at present total more than $1,100,000.

"Blue Sky" Law for North Dakota

One of four bits of important legislation prepared by the Grand Forks Commercial Club for passage by the state legislature at Bismark, N. D., is a "blue sky" law entitled "an act for the regulation of investment companies and providing penalties for the violation thereof." Generally speaking, the investment company is one which "shall sell or negotiate for the sale of any stocks, bonds or other securities of any kind or character other than bonds of the United States or of the state or of some municipality and notes secured by mortgages on real estate located in the state of North Dakota to any person or persons in the state of North Dakota."

The proposed law provides that such concerns desiring to do business in the state shall be required to file in the office of the bank examiner, together with a filing fee of $3, the documents which will give that department the information it needs to determine whether or not the concern is a bona fide one, a statement showing in full detail the plan upon which the company proposes to transact business, a copy of the contract bond or other instrument that it proposes to sell to its contributors, a statement showing he location of the investment company and an itemized account of its properties and liabilities and such other information as the examiner may require.

The law provides that the examiner shall examine the documents and make thorough examination of the company if he deems it advisible. The company must have his sanction before it begins business. Its agents must register with the bank examiner and the company must file an annual statement of assets and liabilities. The measure provides for heavy penalties for false statements and for selling stocks, bonds or securities of companies that have not complied with the provisions of the act.

M. B. A. Executive Council Meets

Shivering in a sub-zero temperature the members of the executive council of the Minnesota Bankers Association at a session in the Twin Cities displayed their faith in the cycle of the seasons by deciding to have the next state convention in Duluth, but sometime when the Duluth bankers decide that it is summer in the Zenith City. E. L. Mattson, Scandinavian-American National, is chairman of the committee to settle the date question.

University to Offer Lectures for Bankers

Correlating with the Minneapolis Chapter of the American Institute of Banking, the economics department of the University of Minnesota through the extension division will offer to bankers and bank clerks a series of lectures, beginning with the second semester, February 3. The lectures cover a number of features in which bankers are interested and the course will be open to all persons connected with banking, though not members of the Institute. Professor Arthur G. Balcome will have charge of the class and the lectures will cover the following topics: Organization of production, process of valuation, money and banking, international trade, distribution and factors and forces tending to determine wages, interest and rents. The class will meet one night a week at the library.

Dakota Notes

Fifteen and one-half million more deposits by individuals in North Dakota banks than a year ago is indicated by state banking department figures. The special statement is based on the last call and the one of November 26, 1911.

At the time of the 1911 call, $68,352,963 was deposited in the banks of the state in individual banks. That amount had been increased to $83,899,035.38, according to the last statement. The increase in the year is $15,546,072.38. Of this increase, the national banks showed $4,883,884.01, while the remainder $10,662,188.37, was made in the state banks. In 1911 there were 147 national banks and 572 state banks reporting, while in 1912 there were 145 national banks and 600 state banks, the decrease in national banks being brought about by consolidations. In the national banks, the deposits are divided as follows: Subject to check, $17,963,717.88; demand certificates, $1,272,178.92; time certificates, $14,135,667.73. The state banks reported the deposits as follows: Subject to check, $25,389,348.27; demand certificates, $956,356.17; time certificates, $21,364,590.13; savings deposits, $1,471,121.01.

Veteran Banker Dead

Denis Follett, 73 years old president of the First National of Hastings, Minn., died this week in St. Paul. He had been an official of the bank more than 50 years. He was born in Devonshire and came to the United States when 21 and became assistant cashier in the First National, when his brother, L. S. Follett was president. Many years ago he had become president. He was considered the best known banker in the state. The First was the second national bank chartered in the state. The St. Paul First National won by a few lengths—several weeks.

Serial Redemption Bonds Planned

Serial redemption bonds, new to Minnesota, are planned by St. Paul's water board for a $500,000 issue. The plan is being studied of redeeming them out of revenue, doing away with complicated features of the sinking fund scheme. The reason for the change is that the sinking fund must earn interest at least equal to what the bonds carry. Cumbersome computations are involved at the compound interest rate. A bill introduced in the legislature empowers the council to issue $500,000 bonds optional as to being serial or whether the sinking fund plan shall be utilized.

James Manahan, Minnesota's first congressman-at-large, told the Minneapolis bank clerks at their meeting last week, attended by 175, that it now has come to be that practically every necessity of life is controlled by a trust. Monopolies have been built up under cover of the law. The trusts have millions of people paying them tribute. Some of them are able to increase their prices at will and they are not slow about doing it, and it is becoming increasingly more difficult for the working man to earn enough to live decently. Judge E. F. Waite of the juvenile court discussed the work of the bench upon which he sits, tracing the care of a deliquent child from the court to and through the institutions to which it may be committed.

Stockholders of practically all Spokane banks and trust companies held annual meetings January 14th and selected directors and officers. Few changes were made, nearly all returning their directorates intact.

Probably the most important change came at the meeting of the stockholders of the Exchange National in the election of J. M. Fitzpatrick and Ramsey M. Walker to the board of directors, succeeding Louis I. Ostroski and the late Lillis F. Smith. In their organization the directors elected J. D. Finley vice-president, succeeding William Huntley, who remains on the directorate.

The Old National, the National Bank of Commerce, the Traders National and the Fidelity National made no changes.

According to the report of A. W. Lindsay, cashier, the Fidelity National made 5,139 loans during 1912, aggregating $7,000,000. The total cash deposits through the window handling commercial accounts was $25,315,000, an average of $83,000 daily.

Stockholders of the Northwest Loan and Trust Company declared the annual 8 per cent dividend, amounting to $8,000, afterwards adjourning indefinitely.

Slight changes were made at the meeting of the Washington Trust Company stockholders; I. W. Bedle, cashier, being made a director, succeeding F. B. Gregg. R. Hall was made assistant secretary, a new position.

The Spokane State elected a new vice-president and a new cashier, also adding the latter to the board of seven directors. G. W. Peddycoya, former cashier, succeeds H. A. Steinke as vice-president, and in turn is succeeded as cashier by O. W. Tupper, who has been acting cashier since last summer. The bank had a prosperous year, paying a 10 per cent dividend of $5,000 and adding $1,200 to its surplus.

Reposing in the vaults of the Equitable Trust Company of New York is $10,600, representing the principal and interest of Spokane water bonds that matured 15 months ago, the owner of which is missing. The bonds amount to $10,000 and the accrued interest to $600, but as the bond issue was refunded and retired by the city over a year ago this money at that time ceased to draw further interest. The city carries the bond issue on its books as not being finally closed because of the absence of the block of $10,000, and from present indications the missing bonds may remain lost for years. The Equitable Trust Company has written that every possible means has been taken to locate the owner of the bonds, but the last heard of him he had gone to India, where further trace of him was lost.

By patient nursing the Spokane sinking fund, to aid in payment of the bonded debt of the city, has grown from an insignificant beginning, six years ago, until to-day, after weathering many storms of opposition, it has attained the respectable proportion of $119,200.72, with every penny save 6 cents invested in municipal 6 per cent water and crematory warrants. Auditor J. Anthony Smith estimates that if the fund is added to by a reasonable contribution each year, by 1918, when an issue of $300,000 of funding bonds falls due, the city will be able to pay them off instead of renewing the debt, as has been the custom in the past. The only bond indebtedness that falls due before 1918 is an issue of $50,000 of water funding bonds, falling due in 1914, which will be met from the water funds.

The annual banquet and election of officers of the Spokane Clearing House Association will be held February 4th, according to the announcement of Samuel Galland, president. The election of officers will be held in the afternoon, to be followed in the evening by the annual banquet.

A new president and a new vice-president are to be elected this year, according to the regular custom, each serving one year and the former being succeeded by the latter. W. D. Vincent, cashier of the Old National, is almost certain of re-election as secretary and manager, a position he has held for several years.

One hundred members of the Spokane Chapter of the American Institute of Banking and officials of local banks enjoyed a pleasant innovation at the last meeting when they attended an informal dinner at the Inland Club. The idea was pronounced a success and the meeting was one of the most largely attended and most enthusiastic the chapter has held. V. T. Tustin, local attorney, discussed the question, "The Tariff and its Relation to the People." W. H. Button of the Walter J. Nicholls brokerage firm discussed the question, "The Stock Exchange and Its Service to Commerce."

Banking by parcel post is the latest departure brought about by Uncle Sam's entrance into the express field. One Spokane bank has received by parcel post a score of small savings banks, each containing money for deposit. Local bankers say the new system is destined to prove an important adjunct of the savings department, as the parcel post provides an expeditious method of sending deposits.

The Spokane Chamber of Commerce has endorsed the national budget advocated by President Taft as a non-partisan financial system designed to give better business methods for operating the finances of the government. Copies of the resolution have been sent to 300 commercial clubs in all parts of the United States.

At the annual meeting of the First National of Hillyard, Wash., all present directors were re-elected. The Hillyard State continued its present directors, adding W. W. Cooper in place of Dr. H. J. Emery, deceased. The state bank declared a dividend of 22 per cent.

Announcement of a dividend of $1.50 per share on the issued preferred capital stock of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company has been announced by F. W. Eaton, secretary of the company. The dividend has been declared to stockholders on record at the close of business December 31, 1912, payable January 15, 1913.

EDMONTON NEWS

What is looked upon as the most ambitious scenic highway project yet conceived in the West is the plan suggested by Mayor William Short of Edmonton to connect the capital of Alberta with the Jasper Park reservation by a road along the Saskatchewan river from the eastern boundary of the province to the Rocky mountains, about 350 miles, thence southeasterly to the National park at Banff, approximately 230 miles.

Mayor Short submitted his plans at the last meeting of the Edmonton park commission, which body appointed the chief executive, ex-Mayor George S. Armstrong, R. B. Chadwick and Alderman J. G. Tipton to select alternative routes for the proposed highways and prepare a report. The city council and the board of trade of Edmonton will be invited to assist, and the provincial government is to be approached with a view to setting aside as much land as will be required for the highway. The dominion government will also be requested to reserve land in unsurveyed portions of the province from Jasper Park to Banff.

"I would like to have some comprehensive plan that will make Edmonton really the capital of Alberta in more ways than legislative," Mayor Short said. "My first suggestion in working out this idea would be radiating roads, province wide. There are two natural routes for such highways—the river and the mountains. I would ask the provincial and dominion governments to make grants of land for a roadway along the river from the eastern boundary of the province to the mountains, and from Jasper Park to Banff. Then we ought to try to work out a scheme of utility roads along the lines of railways.

"If the provincial government views the scheme with approval, it could lay aside the river road, while the dominion government could give unsurveyed lands for the mountain road."

These roads would be made main arteries.

independent of the surveys of record. The idea is that eventually these roads be put in such condition by surface hardening that they will attract tourists and automobilists. Mayor Short said that if there were such high class highways the business from tourists alone would amount to millions of dollars a year. Stopping places would be built at intervals and towns and communities along the routes would flourish.

Greene's bouquet handed to the lady assistant was adopted unanimously.

M. O. Williamson, president of the Peoples Trust and Savings of Galesburg, has the fever and now talks good roads with O. P. Bourland, president of the National Bank of Pontiac; S. E. Bradt, vice-president of the First National of DeKalb; George M. Stimson of A. G. Danforth & Co. of Washington. Stewart L. Crebs, vice-president of the National Bank of Carmi, of the good roads committee, expects to bring all of the southeastern section of the state to the support of the bankers' program.

G. C. Gridley, assistant cashier of the First National of Libertyville, the "baby" member of the committee on agriculture, wants to see Illinois take a front rank in the dairying business and proposes to direct his energies as a member of the agricultural committee with a view to developing this important industry in the state.

John McCabe, cashier of the Union Bank of South Chicago, shows little concern about the incorporation of private bankers, as now that the Irish home rule bill has passed the house of commons, this sage of banking is too happy to worry about future legislation affecting the business of banking.

Ex-president of the Association Oscar G. Foreman, vice-president of Foreman Brothers Banking Company, Chicago, got into the discussion on surety and fidelity insurance propositions, and as usual displayed the intimate knowledge he has of association contracts covering these items and an intimate knowledge of the contracts and business followed by the important concerns.

Ex-presidents John L. Hamilton of Hoopeston. Phil Mitchell, president of the State Bank of Rock Island, Andrew Russel, vice-president of the Ayres National of Jacksonville; William George, president of the Old Second National, Aurora, E. D. Durham of the Onarga Bank, formed an old familiar group, wise and full of knowledge of the history of the past and not disinclined to indulge in prophecy with respect to the future. Past presidents of the state association also were included in the council meeting and in the fellowship dinner which followed.

William G. Schroeder, vice-president of the big Continental and Commercial National of Chicago, accompanied by Assistant Cashier George B. Smith, strolled into the meeting and stayed for the fellowship dinner.

B. F. Harnish, cashier of the Peoples Bank of Belvidere, R. T. Hicks, cashier of the First National of Pittsfield, O. T. Jones, cashier of the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Sumner, John A. Cathcart, cashier of the First National of Sidell, were vice-presidents of the various groups who seemed to enjoy the meetings. The last named is a brother of W. G. Cathcart, president of the First National of Sidell and a former treasurer of the association.

Edward P. Keshner, cashier of the Union Trust and Savings, East St. Louis, did the honors for the growing city at the end of the big bridge.

Former President E. E. Crabtree, of F. G. Farrell and Company of Jacksonville, was missed by all. This was the first meeting Mr. Crabtree has failed to attend for many years, and his absence was due to the recent death of his wife's mother.

Ex-president B. F. Harris, vice-president of the First National of Champaign, divided his time between the fellowship dinner of the bankers and the Bull Moose banquet held in the Hotel Sherman. At the last named place he appeared in fast company, his colleagues on the speaking list including A. J. Beveridge of Indiana and Dr. Woods Hutchinson and other progressive leaders. After the fellowship dinner Mr. Harris left for St. Luke's hospital where he will remain for several weeks to undergo treatment for stomach trouble.

Among the Chicago bankers in attendance were W. F. Van Buskirk, vice-president, and James M. Miles, cashier of the Standard Trust and Savings; Vice-president B. C. Sammons and Cashier J. E. Maass of the Corn Exchange National; John F. Hagey, assistant cashier of the First National; Nelson N. Lampert, vice-president, and Thomas E. Newcomer, assistant cashier of the Fort Dearborn National; A. W. Axtell and H. E. Herrick, assistant cashiers of the Live Stock Exchange National; John W. Gorby of the Peoples Trust and Savings; C. H. Fox, traveling representative of the Chicago Savings Bank and Trust Company. Mr. Fox was on hand for the sessions and circulated among members of the council. He is a candidate for treasurer of the Illinois

The Waterloo Savings has been authorized to take the deposits in a savings proposition started by the pupils in the West Waterloo schools.

John T. Williams, president of a Douglas (Wyoming) Bank was in Des Moines on business last week.

Des Moines, January 23d.—The Iowa Legislature now is in full blast. The session began officially last week and already there have been enough bills introduced to supply laws for the entire country. There are several bankers in the legislature this year and there is no reason to believe that any measure inimical to the best interests of the state are going to "get by." In the senate, the directory shows the following bankers: Joseph H. Allen, Pocahontas; Wallace H. Arney, Marshalltown; Frank F. Jones, Villisca; Joseph Mattes, Odebolt; Thomas J. B. Robinson, Hampton; Arthur C. Savage, Adair; Nicholas J. Schrup, Dubuque; Charles H. Thomas, Kent.

In the house of representatives are found the following bankers: W. W. Anderson, Scranton; John W. Blackford, Hillsboro; George F. Carson, Floris; Chris Erickson, Inwood; Thomas W. Griggs, Davenport; Joseph Kelso, Jr., Bellevue; M. F. LeRoy, Manchester; Milo A. Manning, Ames; Harry C. White, Garrison.

Lieutenant-Governor Harding in naming his committees selected the following senators who will make up the committee on banking: Anthony M. McColl, Woodward, chairman; Senators Jones, Mattes, Savage, Cowles, Robinson, Arney, Crist, McManus, Webber, Schrup, DeWolf, Balluff, Quigley, White, Sheean. This is regarded as a very good committee. The house committees were not named by Speaker Cunningham until this week. The names of the committee on banking will appear in these columns next week.

Banks Hold Annual Meeting.

As was expected two big increases in capital stock were voted by the national banks of Des Moines at the annual meetings. The Des Moines National increased its capitalization from $500,000 to $750,000 and the Citizens National went up from $200,000 to $300,000. A dividend of 12 1-2 per cent was declared by the Des Moines National. C. S. Walker was elected director to succeed O. G. Edmundson. Gardner Cowles was elected director to succeed C. W. Pitcairn. W. W. Sears and A. E. Hollingsworth were added to the directory board. The Citizens National declared a 5 per cent semiannual dividend but made no changes in officiary. The Iowa National made no changes in its officiary at the annual meeting and as it declares a monthly dividend of one per cent, no action was taken in this respect. The Valley National elected W. E. Barrett, cashier, as director. This institution paid its annual dividend January 31st.

The Home Savings elected W. B. Lutz president to succeed A. C. Miller, who retired from the institution. M. H. Cohen succeeds Lutz as vice-president; Bert McKee was made cashier and Grover Hubbell and C. J. Engleen were made directors. The Iowa State declared a 6 per cent dividend without changes in the officials and the Commercial Savings did likewise.

Bank Changes

It is not possible for your correspondent to get the hundreds of changes that take place in the banks of Iowa at annual meeting time. But a few of those which have been heard about in Des Moines are as follows: The Security Trust and Savings of Charles City voted to increase its capital stock from $100,000 to $150,000; Morton Wilbur was advanced from cashier to vice-president and M. W. Ellis from assistant cashier to cashier.

The German Savings at Davenport failed to select a successor as vice-president to D. H. McKee, who has removed to Des Moines. Otto Rieche was advanced from teller to assistant cashier.

The Black Hawk at Waterloo made Harold E. Rugg assistant cashier.

J. J. Johnson was elected president of the State of Dows to succeed the late J. H. Carleton; John J. Carleton was named vice-president.

W. A. Pollock was elected president of the Farmers at Zearing to succeed the late T. J. Pollock.

Only one change occurred at Fort Dodge where T. H. Wright was elected vice-president of the Fort Dodge Savings to succeed J. T. Cheney. The Iowa Savings decided to postpone action on a new building for two years.

The Security National at Sioux City elected James P. Newton and C. W. Britton directors. C. G. Cummins was made an additional assistant cashier. E. C. Peters and L. G. Everist were made new directors of the Northwestern National of Sioux City. John L. Mitchell was made director of the Live Stock National at Sioux City when it was decided to have a directory board of six instead of five. Mitchell is vice-president of the institution.

Bank Swindled

The First National of Ceylon was flimflamed out of $6,000 by a smooth swindler who gave his name as Joe Cadd of Fairbanks, Alaska. It seems that Cadd purchased a grocery store and deposited with the bank a certificate of deposit for $6,000. He received

$1,000 cash and the remainder in a certificate of deposit. Not long afterwards he appeared with a telegram stating that his wife had been mortally injured in a railroad accident near Fairbanks. He cashed the $5,000 certificate and disappeared. Since then he has not been heard from and the bank has discovered, so it is said, that the certificate for $6,000 is bogus.

May Charge Small Depositors

The Des Moines Clearing House Association will take up the proposition of charging small depositors for the privilege of writing checks on the banks of Des Moines. It is proposed to require a payment from all customers whose monthly balance is less than $50. The custom is said to have worked out quite successfully in the East and Des Moines bankers are considering taking a chance. They say that they lose money on an account that amounts to less than $50 per month. The proposition to charge $1 per month for each account under that sum would just about break even, so say those who are talking the plan over.

"Blue Sky" Laws Proposed

Although the Iowa Legislature has been in progress only ten days, there have been approximately a half dozen "Blue Sky" laws proposed by various members of the two houses. In the senate, it was the first bill offered, although Senator C. H. Thomas had to run a race in order to win out over Senator Clarkson who was bent upon getting in a workman's compensation act as Senate Bill No. 1. Senator Thomas also introduced a bill placing private banks under state supervision. Senator Thomas explains that he has no desire to attack private banks or force them to change to state or savings banks but he proposes that they be put under the same supervision as the latter. He holds that the public is entitled to the same protection from a private bank that it expects from a national bank or a state or savings institution.

Yeggs Busy Again

Yeggs began working in northeast Iowa last week. They started at Stanley, where they dynamited the safe but could not get past the outer door. Three shots were heard and the people arising, frightened the men away. They secured $200 in stamps and $50 in currency. Waterloo sent her bloodhounds to the scene but up to this writing the burglars have not been apprehended.

Forfeits Initial Payment

Leslie M. Shaw dropped $69,000 on the Atlantic North and South Railroad but whether it was his own or belonged to some one else Iowans have not been able to learn. Shaw paid this amount on the railroad, which he purchased at receiver's sale for over $400,000. However, he was unable to dispose of the bonds he expected to sell and after the courts had granted numerous extensions, the sale was declared off. The road will be sold in thirty days. Although Shaw forfeited his $69,000 it is anticipated that if he puts up the $400,000 before the date of resale, his original offer will be accepted. It is suspected that the $69,000 had been contributed by capitalists who lost money originally in the line and thought it would be possible for them to recoup. Mr. Shaw's affairs, including his replacement as president of the First Mortgage Guarantee and Trust Co., at Philadelphia, have caused much Iowa comment.

Would Abolish School Treasurership

Governor Clarke of Iowa has raised the question of abolition of the office of school treasurership, a point that comes up each session of the legislature. The governor in his inaugural address states that Iowa now pays school treasurers $175,000 annually. He declares that this could be saved by abolishing the office and putting the school funds in the banks as public funds in charge of the county treasurer at a rate of interest to be paid the county or school district. The school treasurers now are largely bankers.

Iowa Notes

The city of Marshalltown has taken up $24,000 in water works bonds issued for twenty years at 4½ per cent. Ten thousand more of the bonds have been called in.

A new bank at St. Lucas, known as the Bank of St. Lucas, has been opened by J. Greteman, a well known business man. His son, Nick Greteman, will be in charge of the bank as cashier. The latter has been in the Bank of Waucoma for some months.

The cashier of the Iowa National at Davenport, suspecting that a youth of 17 was a forger, quietly detained the young man one afternoon last week and turned in a burglar alarm. In a few minutes the police arrived and the lad was taken into custody. It is stated that he had passed one worthless check for $50 and was getting ready to spring another one for $80.

F. F. Swale, for many years a resident of New Hampton and who has removed to Everett, Wash., is one of the organizers of a new bank in that city. He sent the first check drawn back to a New Hampton editor to pay for the old home paper.

South Dakota Bank Notes

The new Bear Butte Valley will open its doors at Sturgis, February 1st. The bank will occupy the quarters formerly occupied by the Meade County Savings, which closed its doors a year ago. N. E. Franklin of Deadwood is president of the new institution, Joseph A. Poznansky of Deadwood is cashier and Roy D. Hart of Omaha is bookkeeper. Poznansky has been assistant cashier of the First National at Deadwood and Hart has been with the Bankers Reserve Company at Omaha.

The Lake County Bank at Madison has decided to increase the capital stock from $50,000 to $75,000. The bank commenced business in 1899 with a capitalizaton of $10,000.

F. G. Kurtz of Spencer, formerly a banker at Witten, has gone to the Sioux Falls penitentiary to serve a year and a day for irregularities as manager of the Witten institution. Kurtz repaid the depositors in full and showed that his mismanagement was not intentional. He was permitted to go to the penitentiary unattended and with a letter of introduction from the judge of the district court.

NATIONAL BANKS INCREASE EXCESSIVE LOANS

According to figures given out by Comptroller Murray, national banks as shown by statements made pursuant to the last call have made increases in excessive loans of nearly half a million dollars, as compared with the figures exhibited by the September call. The excess on the last call amounted to $3,284,166 as compared with $2,874,877 on the September call. This increase was reported by country banks, principally in the South and West. The reserve cities reported a reduction in the number of excessive loans. This increase has been attributed by the comptroller to the movement of fall crops.

Average capital and surplus of the 7,405 national banks is estimated by the comptroller to be $250,000. Excessive loans in banks total 843.

NEW YORK BANKER ADVOCATES MONETARY COMMISSION BILL

Philadelphia Chapter of the American Institute of Banking had as its guests Friday evening January 10th, Alexander Gilbert, president of the Market and Fulton National of New York, and Alba B. Johnson, president of Baldwin Locomotive Works.

Mr. Gilbert addressed the Chapter on the subject of the "Currency Question," speaking in terms of praise of our present national bank act, but said it was fifty years old and that those who had drafted it had not gone quite far enough to enable it to serve the needs of the present time of great corporations and wonderful expansion. Clearly and succinctly he pointed out how the bill now before Congress would, if put into operation, allay the fear which is always subconscious in the mind of the business and banking world, and by automatically meeting the commercial needs of expanding and contracting business would do away with the recurring stress and fluctuating values in commodities and securities which are now so prevalent and inexcusable in a country the size and importance of the United States. He also laid great stress on the part played in our financial problems and general welfare by the superabundant extravagance of those in high and low places, as well as the evils of excessive speculation and over expansion in business. He ended his address by a simple and impressive plea to the bankers and community at large to become actively interested in the currency bill to the extent of advocating it to their senators and representatives.

Mr. Johnson spoke on the subject of the National Board of Trade of the United States, and effectively set forth the purpose and scope of its organization, the large influence for enlightenment it would be, and the force it would become in meeting the many problems of this mercantile nation.

NEW YORK CHAPTER

By Harold S. Schultz, Secy.

New York Chapter of the American Institute of Banking Section of the American Bankers Association is situated in the Packard School Building at 138 East 35th street, New York City. The rooms consist of a large lecture hall seating in the neighborhood of three hundred people, furnished with complete paraphernalia for the use of lectures in all courses, a library filled with the best books on financial and kindred subjects, and an office in which all records are kept and from which all communications to members go out. We number among our two thousand members some of the most influential bankers in the city and the keen interest taken in the work is evinced by the attendance, which averages over 150 for each of the three main nights of the week.

Courses of Study

The three courses which are given on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday nights respectively during the whole season from September to June are English and Public Speaking under the direction of a committee of Chapter men of experience, and Fundamentals Business Conditions and Commercial Law, the various divisions of which latter course have been given by the following men: Dr. John Franklin Crowell of the Wall Street Journal, Howard S. Mott of the Bankers Trust Company and Professor L. J. Tompkins of the New York University Law School. Lectures on special subjects, such as "Credits and Savings Banks," are held on Wednesday evenings. Friday evenings are devoted to graduate work. The course follows the plans laid down by the educational committee of the Institute.

Social Features

In addition to the educational work, New York Chapter devotes a certain amount of its time to social diversion. Chapter night is held each month and smokers are given at different times. The crowning event of the year is the annual banquet which will take place on February 6th, at the Hotel Astor. An annual dance is given early in the spring and a boat ride in the fall. Thus every effort is made to bring members into close fellowship with each other and gain the advantages of association and friendship.

Not only in Manhattan and Brooklyn is the influence of our work felt but also in Hoboken, Jersey City, Newark, Plainfield, Englewood, Paterson, New Rochelle, Yonkers and many other near-by towns. The name "New York Chapter" stands for the highest ideals of the banking profession, for there are regular members in the banks of all these towns. It is not difficult therefore to forecast not only a bright future for the organization itself but a general increase in efficiency and interest as well in those men of the city and vicinity who have chosen banking to be their life's work.

The Chapter is incorporated.

Five alleged "wire trappers" and confidence men involved in the defense of the Kirby Savings bank scandal were indicted Thursday by the Cook county grand jury.

RECORD PRICE ILLINOIS BANK STOCK

Pekin, Ills., January 23d.—That the stock of the Farmers' National is enjoying a gigantic boom is shown by a sale made yesterday when J. M. James purchased 68 shares from George Herget at $300 a share. Mr. James, who is president of the Farmers', bought the stock for other Pekin parties.

"Uncle" George Herget, who disposed of his stock, was at one time a heavy stockholder in the bank, and is now president of the Herget National. The transaction is the subject of much discussion in financial circles, and the record price is held to be a criterion of the high standing of Perkin's financial institution.

Vermont as well as in Illinois and South Dakota.

IN 1909 it cost $23 an acre to raise wheat in Vermont, against $12.50 an acre in Illinois. Vermont raised 36 bushels to the acre, while in Illinois they raised less than 20 bushels to the acre. Vermont's net profit was 54c a bushel. Illinois' net profit was 33c a bushel. Out here in the Northwest we never think of Vermont as a wheat state—and it isn't. But 36 bushels to the acre sounds mighty good to any farmer.

FERTILIZER made the difference. Vermont spent $6.75 an acre for fertlizing while Illinois spent just 27c an acre. But the fertilizer money all came back with added profit.

THEN Craddick shows how advertising (fertilizer) made a particular Vermont bank grow in one year more than in the previous four. Look up the Craddick service.

TIME was when the Chicago banks were as afraid to advertise as are those of St. Paul. They feared some one might suspect that they were going after business.

THEN George M. Reynolds came along. He began to attend conventions and to advertise in every medium with prestige and influence. Some of his "interlocking directors" began to kick.

THEY told him of other respectable banks that had been in business here for forty years and "never advertised."

"ALL RIGHT," said the courageous and hopeful one, "in the end they'll pay our advertising bills;" and history says it did.

ALL has been changed. Every (nearly) good bank advertises in some way. Some by employing a publicity man who "knows every avenue of free publicity" in the country.

BUT the best method is to go into the legitimate, influential banking papers and at an honest price.

OLD methods of paying a hypnotizing solicitor sixty per cent of the gross are dying out. Young bankers of to-day are too smart.

ONE paper has adopted the "zone" methods of the parcel post. It meets the rates of local papers, sometimes not ten per cent of its own card rates, and less than the actual cost of type setting.

PRESIDENT J. N. FISHER of the Tennessee Bankers is taking a lively interest in the coming session of the legislature, which it is hoped will give the state an up-to-date bank supervision bill.

PRESIDENT FISHER says: "Our state is one of the only three states without this kind of protection at this time. The state bank section of our association, two years ago, prepared a very conservative and yet comprehensive bill, but it failed of passage on account of active objection on the part of a few influential men and a pecular political complication.

"WE are very hopeful of better success during this session of our law makers. The necessity and almost criminal lack of proper bank supervision of our state banks has been strongly emphasized by a few bank failures in our state during the past two years, and these failures, in my opinion, will very materially aid in bringing about the desired authority for state bank examinations."

ANDREW J. FRAME, Wm. R. Hamby, Henry W. Yates, Jos. H. Ingwerson et al to the number of a dozen other bankers are out in a sort of round robin attack upon the late Aldrich bill. They should have attended the obsequies at Detroit, then they would have known the Aldrich bill is dead.

WE have just received our copy of E. St. Elmo Lewis' address before the Indiana bankers last year. The Saint probably waited for the parcel post?

EVERY one will be sorry to learn that B. F. Harris, the strenuous one, is booked for a three weeks' stay in St. Luke's hospital, sentence to begin the morning of January 23d.

IT all shows that a fellow's stomach can get out of whack however much he may know about soil preservation, crop rotation and bank supervision.

IT comes to this. Health preservation, food rotation and out-door exercise supervision should be on every banker's list. He who will take no vacation often has one thrust upon him.

RALPH C. OTIS has been spoken of as republican candidate for city treasurer. Chicago could present no more acceptable name.

COLONEL ROOSEVELT has testified that he was not "fooled" by Messrs. Frick and Gary when he consented to their gobble of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company in 1907.

SUCH has been our contention all along. The Colonel was just as keenly looking out for his own interests as was either one of the other two "conferees."

THE steel trust made millions but T. R. has had "millions" to spend in his three subsequent political campaigns. No, he wasn't "fooled."

THE municipal court has appointed Mrs. Joseph Bucko to be a "private banker" to her husband. Mr. Bucko's weekly pay is all the "deposit" the court authorized her to accept.

ON Friday evening of last week, after banking hours, the members of the Friday Evening Bowling Club of Davenport, Ia., as is their custom, gathered at Turner Hall for their usual bowling stunts.

ON this occasion substantial interest attached because of the members' desire to congratulate and celebrate with Otto Reicke, one of their number, who had just been elected to the important position of assistant cashier of the German Savings Bank.

WILLIAM HEWER, cashier of the Union Savings, is one of the big score bowlers of the club. All of the Davenport banks are represented in this lively group.

PROSPERITY has come to the Illinois Bankers Association in such measure that its council decided at Wednesday's meeting to increase the pay of the secretaries by $1,000 per year.

PERSISTENT effort had been expended, even a resignation filed, in an attempt to divert all of the increase to the secretary himself.

THOSE wise ex-presidents, knowing by whom the really effective work is done, voluntarily divided the increase, giving but six hundred to Secretary Crampton and four hundred to Assistant Secretary Jennings.

IF another "resignation" shall be the result, a pre-dated withdrawal or "crawl" is not likely to prove effective.

ROBERT FULTON LYTLE, for forty years with the First National of Pueblo, is dead. He served for twenty-five as cashier and was one of the best known bankers in the state.

TEN years of faithful service were forgotten by an Evanston bank clerk, when a combination cigaret, girl and gasoline "bug" got him.

AFTER nobly paying for a house for his mother and sister to live in he began to go the "pace that kills," even in Evanston. Debts piled up and he manipulated the books to cover shortages of eight or nine thousand dollars.

HIS two cars will be sold but the perfumed, monogrammed cigarets are gone up in smoke.

EDITOR and "Dean of Journalism" James Keeley of this city has been a power in the creation of public sentiment in this state for state-wide supervision and inspection.

HIS attention was called to the fact that Sol. Lewinsohn had embarked in the private banking field and his comment on the situation invited. Said Editor Keeley:

"WE trust that the Hon. Sol. A. Lewinsohn will understand that among the duties and responsibilities he assumes in entering the private banking field is that of going to Springfield to lobby against the bill which will be introduced to bring private banks under state supervision.

"AS a private banker Mr. Lewinsohn will feel keenly on this subject, and we have no doubt he already has in mind several trips to Springfield. Certainly the private bank lobby will be elated, thus recruiting and gaining an ally self-described as the 'million dollar surety man.'

"IN spite of any opinions Judge Landis or any one else may have on the subject the Hon. Sol.'s right to enter the banking business is incontestable and his right to run his bank as he, and he alone, sees fit is beyond challenge —at present.

"THE state welcomes Sol. to a new field of activity. It welcomes any one who wants to write the word 'bank' on a glass door.

"MANY private bankers of the state will be in Springfield when the bill for regulation of an establishment using the word 'bank' is up for committee consideration. We trust Mr. Lewinsohn will be one of them."

"COL. J. D. AISTHORPE of Green Valley" is a composite title discovered by the Inter-Ocean for two very distinguished Illinois bankers high up in the I. B. A.

HERE'S another one. In a leading Chicago club, the day of the council meeting, a life member was paged as:

"Mister Onarga-p-l-e-a-s-e."

IT was to come to the "long distance" booth and can you guess his right name?

CASHIER.

his city and enable it to divide prestige with her ambitions neighbor to the north.

"OVER in Minneapolis," said Mr. Humason "the banks join without jealousy or envy and with conspicuous ability to go after business for the city. When they hear of a firm at Crookston, Superior, Mankato or Stillwater which has prospered and is seeking a more central point with larger financial advantages they go right after it. Not singly but as a booster team.

"THEY get it, too, and they share alike in the new accounts thus obtained. We are expecting St. Paul to jump in now, having shaken off some of her conservatism."

MR. HUMASON has diagnosed the case of the Twin Cities much as it might have been done by an impartial outsider. Takes a big man to see (and acknowledge) the faults of his own city and institutions.

WRITE to him when you want to know about things in St. Paul. He'll tell you and do it promptly.

W. D. VINCENT writes: "The straw vote THE CHICAGO BANKER took, of itself, deciding upon Briarcliff suits me to a dot as the place for the May meeting of the Big Council."

MERCHANTS NATIONAL, Cedar Rapids, now has capital and surplus of $500,000. All old officers have been re-elected and two new directors named.

SOUTH CHICAGO SAVINGS made some big changes. Ralph Van Vechten retired as president and Warren W. Smith, cashier, was elected to succeed him.

EDWIN L. WAGNER remains vice-president and Herbert Jones is the new cashier. James G. Collins is the assistant.

CHICAGO Chapter boys are tickled to death that Byron L. Smith and E. O. Hamill attended their annual banquet.

IT is said that both joined in every feature of the entertainment, even to the singing.

PRESIDENT SMITH seemed to be the more familiar with "Oh, You Beautiful Doll," while President Hamill excelled in the rendition of "My Wife's Gone to the Count-r-r-e-e."

DIRECT appeal for the class of business for which it is equipped is made by the Stock Yards Bank of Commerce, Kansas City. This is truly effective and stockmen like a bank where stockyards' business and stockmen's accounts are understood.

JOHN E. SWANGER, bank commissioner for Missouri, announces that he will on the 3d of February go with the Mercantile Trust Company of St. Louis as its general representative. The position Mr. Swanger is to assume with the Mercantile Trust Company will be entirely familiar to him. In fact, he will be "Bank Commissioner" for the Mercantile, having charge of all its out-of-town accounts.

NOW who's big enough to grab off J. N. Dolley?

MR. SWANGER was a newspaper man at St. Joseph before he went to Jefferson City where he has made an enviable eight years' record.

KNAUTH, NACHAD & KUHNE have warmed the financial interests of "threatened" legislation at Albany "having to do with the regulation of the stock exchanges, the imposition of interest rates by the banks and the elimination of short selling, washed sales, etc."

JONES & BAKER, 39 South LaSalle, are issuing an informing market letter, sent free on application. It doesn't handle promotions but "established" stocks only.

JOHN BURIANEK (Cedar Rapids) passed through Chicago just ahead of the big snow storm "en route" (he says it's so) for a four months' trip around the world.

HE had his "40 changes" convention wardrobe along and a copy of the C. R. telephone directory to be used in sending picture postals.

THE young typewriter ladies at the hotels will do the addressing and at odd times teach John (bachelor) the language and customs of the country.

MR. BURIANEK hopes in travel to forget that funny bank building he let the architects build in his home town.

JUST a word about this young bank builder's successors. A few years ago they were delivering papers in C. R. but all the while making good.

BURIANEK took them into the bank and now Frank C. Welch is cashier and Frank O. Mekato (emphasis on the Mek') is his assistant. They've been well instructed and the future of the Peoples is safe in their charge.

THE PEOPLES gave Burianek a four months' tour and elected him vice-president. Rumor has it that at least one other Cedar Rapids bank was willing to do as much. He's a card in that rich banking field.

OF course you remember those poems that the redoubtable W. O. Jones has been "dashing off" for this column?

WELL, the National Park, New York, saw the point and has made him a vice-president. It pays to have "us" advertise your strong points.

MR. JONES, truly, is one of the best known bankers in the country. He's self made from the time he worked his way through colledge, just as some of the rest of us did.

HE was a railroader (Bro. Edens will note) for a time and then became a Kansas banker. That's where he wrote the poetry (so we say) and earned his honorary title of "Poet Laureate."

THEN he went to the Chase in New York as assistant to President Henry W. Cannon. In 1903 he went over to the National Park which has so greatly honored him.

MR. JONES is a director in the Broadway Trust Company of Manhattan, as well as in the Flatbush Branch of the same institution, secretary and director of the Manor Realty Company of Flatbush and director in the American Law Book Company of New York.

"EVERYBODY'S DOIN' IT." A friend dropped in on Comptroller Murray the other morning, in his Washington sanctum, and found him reading this column with apparent pleasure.

NO, it wasn't anything about himself. Says he "likes to see the wires working" and to know who's who in the gossip.

FRANK W. ROLLINS, Boston, was in Chicago during the week. A luncheon, attended by the principal bond men of the city, was given in his honor by George B. Caldwell of the Continental.

"OUT-OF-DOOR Sleeping in Winter" in Home Progress magazine for January is the last word on the subject. Fully illustrated in an instructive way. Ever try it? If not you ought to read up on the subject. Houghton Mifflin Company publishes the magazine.

HANOVER NATIONAL, N. Y., has jumped its surplus to $14,000,000 and the capital is $3,000,000. The deposits are $123,000,000.

THIS is the "Donald Bank" and time was when every country banker in the United States greeted its builder-up as "Jim" Donald. Now he is "James M. Donald, chairman of the board."

IN those days he could call nearly every banker he met by his front name. For years he kept a scrap book and every portrait was cut and pasted from THE CHICAGO BANKER.

THE other papers did not then "run pictures" except at "double advertising rates." Think of that!

WHEN Mr. Donald learned a western banker was in town he looked him up in the scrap book and "called him" when he showed up at the Hanover.

THIS often surprised the country banker and added immensely to Mr. D.'s popularity with his kind. Try it yourself.

GETTING back to that big surplus, built up largely on country balances, do you wonder that Campbell can afford to buy those big eats for his correspondents at the conventions? "A man," said the professor "who professes to be a professor is a professor, and, conversely, a man who professes to be a private banker is a "banker" (note quotation marks), unless—well—unless he happens to get up before Judge Landis.

NOW there's Sol. Lewinsohn, profession bail bond man until Judge Landis kicked him out of the federal courts. He's opened a bank, "Traders Bank" and there isn't any "supervision," not unless it's Judge Landis.

THE February Lippincott's is a well rounded, ripe, and rich magazine, full of varied fiction and papers adjusted to the season. As usual, every feature in it is complete, there being nothing continued but the entertainment, which never flags. The novel, "Miss Phœnix," is by a new writer, Albert Lee.

PRESIDENT JOHN D. PHILLIPS of the Illinois Bankers has been in Chicago this week—corn all in the crib—attending the Mid-year meeting of the executive council. If "J. D." was a grouch he'd get even with the "resigned" secretary for leaving out of the proceedings book the annual report which Mr. Phillips made as chairman of the council.

IN the same proceedings book is a four-mile report of what the secretary was dreaming at the time. Honestly, can you beat it?

PRESIDENT PHILLIPS is of a tolerant nature, as was Harris and Crabtree, or such egregious things couldn't go on.

THE president hopes to hold the state convention before the Boston convention. He doesn't care to "attend as president" and the wearing of the Holliday badge doesn't mean much to him.

OUR hope is, too, that Illinois will get back to holding her convention in the season and have group meetings in the winter.

NO good can come to the helter-skelter method of holding them as in the past for years. The worst managed association in the country couldn't do worse.

"CRADDICK SERVICE," a service along publicity lines furnished by H. B. Craddick of Minneapolis, is said to be back of the growth of many banks in the Northwest. Several conspicuous cases have been noted.

CRADDICK is an analyst. Here's an illustration he uses. He serves banks in

NEW YORK BUSINESS AND FINANCIAL CONDITIONS

Edmund D. Hulbert, vice-president of the Merchants Loan and Trust of Chicago, who recently returned from a trip to New York, in commenting upon business and financial conditions in New York and in the country at large, said:

"From all I have observed, I believe that people who are curtailing their business through fear that some vague thing or other is going to happen are making a mistake.

"I have knocked around the financial district of New York for a week. Many people there are pessimistic and talk that way. That is due probably in very large part to the fact that the speculative crowd is short in the stock market. And when they are short in the market, they can see no good in anything.

"I believe, however, that many of the shorts realize the precariousness of their position and that they would run like deer if they saw the market turning against them. It appears to me that many of the best class of stocks are now selling on a very attractive basis.

"Financially I think conditions are as firm and sound in New York as they are in Chicago and the West generally. In fact, I believe the country is in an excellent position and there is no reason that I can see why we should not have a continuance of prosperous business."

Mr. Hulbert took occasion to deny a rumor which has been gaining currency of late to the effect that he is to be secretary of the treasury under President-elect Wilson.

GEORGE M. REYNOLDS ON THE OUTLOOK

A Pasadena dispatch quotes George M. Reynolds, president of the Continental and Commercial National, as saying that there will be a general slowing down in business throughout the country, but there is no apparent reason to expect any hard times during the next administration.

"I took the West's, rather than Wall Street's, viewpoint of the Pujo committee inquiry. The hearings were somewhat one-sided, but I was given more latitude than others in answering questions. Statements by some were very much limited, and restricted largely to answers, without permission to vouchsafe anything further," said Mr. Reynolds.

NEW TREASURY ORDERS

Recent orders issued by the secretary of the treasury, it is believed, will have a far-reaching effect upon all branches of the government. The banks also will be affected by the changes as a result of the new orders, which, it is thought, practically will revolutionize the disbursement plans of the treasury department. In substance the orders are that in the future all warrants and checks will be drawn on the treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C. (Heretofore they have been drawn on the assistant treasurers in the various subtreasuries and the United States depositories. Checks and warrants will be paid by any bank designated as an United States depository or any subtreasury. Previously drafts or vouchers could be cashed only at the subtreasury specified. The new order goes into effect February 1st. The deposits in the banks which are United States depositories will be increased substantially so as to provide them with sufficient funds to pay all checks.

Four Chicago banks, which have government deposits and which will be affected by the changes, are the First National, Continental and Commercial, Corn Exchange National and National City. It is said that the secretary will increase deposits in the Chicago banks a million or more. In all 1,340 banks are affected; there are 12,000 disbursing officers in the United States who have been drawing their checks on the subtreasuries.

CHARACTER GETS CREDIT, FORGAN TELLS Y. M. C. A.

David R. Forgan, president of the National City Bank of Chicago, addressed the credit managers' class at the Y. M. C. A. on "Bank Credits." The address was followed by a session of questions and answers, with the students in the rôle of interrogators and Mr. Forgan answering the queries. "The first requisite of credit is character," said Mr. Forgan. "Without character a man cannot get credit."

JOHN E. BUCKINGHAM is president of the Kentucky Bankers Association. His administration has been marked by the accomplishment of much effective work and the material advancement of the interests of the members of the association.

Arch B. Davis, secretary of the Kentucky bankers, is well known to bankers all over the country, having distinguished himself by his initiative, aggressiveness and efficiency. There is complete co-operation between Messrs Buckingham and Davis in their efforts to maintain the present high standing of the Kentucky Bankers Association.

DENEEN RECOMMENDS "BLUE SKY" LAW

Governor Deneen in his message to the legislature recommends the enactment in Illinois of a "Blue Sky" law, and also renews his recommendation for a revision of the banking law contained in his message in 1907 relative to private banks. Legislation of such a character is badly needed in Illinois and it is to be hoped that the legislature will see fit to carry into effect the suggestions of the retiring governor.

LEAVES FOR PANAMA

L. A. Goddard, president of the State Bank of Chicago, left on Wednesday of this week for Panama.

NATIONAL BANK CALL EXPECTED SOON

A call for the condition of national banks by the comptroller of the currency is expected soon. The last call came on November 26th, and of late years a November call generally has been followed by a call late in January. About two months intervene between calls at this time of the year, as a rule.

Mainly About Banks and Bankers

TWO Detroit banks, the Peninsular State and the Peoples State, have adopted the finger print system of identification, by which they are eliminating possibility of fraud, and at the same time perfecting a method which will determine absolutely the identity of savings depositors who are unable to write.

THE system was inaugurated and is supervised by Henry P. Borgman, cashier of the savings department of the Peoples, and Walter G. Toepel, cashier of the Peninsular.

BOTH banks now have several hundred accounts with depositors, the majority of whom are foreigners, who never have touched a pen in the bank, either when opening accounts or when subsequently drawing small amounts from their savings.

H. P. BECKWITH has a pretty fine memory. He wrote in from Fargo to say that he thought he soon should be getting a bill for his CHICAGO BANKER subscription and that he didn't want to miss a copy.

INVESTIGATION shows that he had paid up to Feb. 17, 1913, and thus his guess was very nearly accurate. The reader who doesn't wish to miss a copy is what encourages.

NOTICE our Milwaukee story of her four new bank buildings. You can't keep a good town down. Banking in the Cream City has been very prosperous in recent years.

SECRETARY W. B. HUGHES has cut out the detailed reports on protective cases. The department keeps hard at it just the same with fine results.

"GEORGE M. REYNOLDS, 408 South Orange Grove Ave., Pasadena, Cal.," will reach him. Sounds good even to read the address.

EVERYONE was pleased that the I. B. A. executive council meeting came off so smoothly and much credit was given Col. Aisthorpe, chairman.

PRESIDENT JOHN D. PHILLIPS (next governor) made a fine impression and he appeared to be in real earnest in his appeal for a 100 per cent membership list.

YOU know they give "linen showers" and "sich like" to young brides. The southern bankers gave Frank K. Houston a check shower upon his arrival at St. Louis.

THEY came in shape of balances at the Third National, as a tribute to the former "fidus achates" of Frank O. Watts at Nashville. These two Nashvillians are a tie in the affections of the people back home.

MAKING good? Forget it! They were good when they came. Watts, most people think, is one of the coming big ones. Houston is only one lock-step behind. They like them down at St. Louis.

"IF YOU are not sending Lewis E. Pierson THE CHICAGO BANKER, send it to him for life and send me the bill," writes one of his Western friends and admirers.

THE letter went on to say that the writer didn't want L. E. to forget the "boys out west."

WELL, Mr. Pierson gets it and we happen to know that he reads it and the man who ran "a western bank in New York," isn't likely to forget anyone he cares for as he does his western friends and former co-workers in the A. B. A.

SOL. WEXLER, here's a line for you. A banker friend went south to investigate cotton-growing conditions and market—and after visiting two centers he met Mr. Wexler.

"I WENT no further," said he, "for Sol. is the best posted man alive on that subject. It's a pleasure to hear him on it. He knows it from the back bayou to Liverpool and home again. You can't beat him."

JUST as soon as the Big Council votes on the place for holding the May meeting a special train for members and committeemen will be organized direct from Chicago by the shortest, best route.

THESE trains are among the most prized social events of the year in banking circles. Will be about like it was last year to Briarcliff—the best there is.

BEAR BUTTE VALLEY BANK of Sturgis, S. D., is one of the newcomers in the field. N. E. Franklin of Deadwood is interested and the list of names for directors and stockholders is of exceptional strength.

THE Bear Butte Valley institution means business. Subscribed for THE CHICAGO BANKER before it opened for business.

MERCHANTS & MANUFACTURERS Bank, Milwaukee, has two new directors which will add great strength to the board. They are Gustave J. A. Trostel, president of Albert Trostel & Sons Company and George W. Ogden, a well-known capitalist.

THE M. & M. has a strong line of staff officers, also. L. M. Alexander, the president, is one of the best-known business men in Wisconsin.

W. F. MEYERS AND W. S. PADDOCK are the vice-presidents and E. C. Knoernschild is the cashier. All of those named are directors in the bank and have helped to bring an unusual growth to a young institution.

SEWARD PROSSER, the new president of the Liberty National, hasn't been long in discovering that the West is the greatest field-of-new-acounts open to conservative, long-established banks.

HE'S a big, manly, six-footer who acts upon his own initiative chiefly and does it vigorously.

WHEN he set out to find a western business puller he didn't try to find him among the unemployed. He got what many agree is "the best in the district."

Milwaukee's Four New Bank Buildings

Our Milwaukee Correspondent, Chalmer B. Traver, writes the story of the new financial district.

First National -	$1,600,000
Merchants and Manufacturers - -	250,000
Marshall and Ilsley	250,000
Second Ward Savings	250,000

The completion of four new bank buildings in Milwaukee's business district within a year sets a new record for building improvements in any one line of business. The institutions named in the heading of this article are the ones which will have new homes. The $2,300,000 investment represented is only an index for the larger, more far reaching investment in city pride which can not be measured in intrinsic terms.

The Merchants and Manufacturers bank building on West Water Street north of Grand Avenue is completed and has been occupied by the bank since last September. The Second Ward Savings building on the triangle bounded by West Water, Third, and Cedar streets will be ready for occupancy early in February. The Marshall and Ilsley building on East Water, north of Wisconsin Street, while complete as to structural work, will not be ready for occupancy for some thirty days, the interior finishing having been only commenced. The steel girders of the First National skyscraper at East Water and Mason streets made their first appearance above the street level last week and officers of this institution do not expect to occupy the sixteen-story structure until next September, approximately a year from the date of the completion of the Merchants and Manufacturers Bank building.

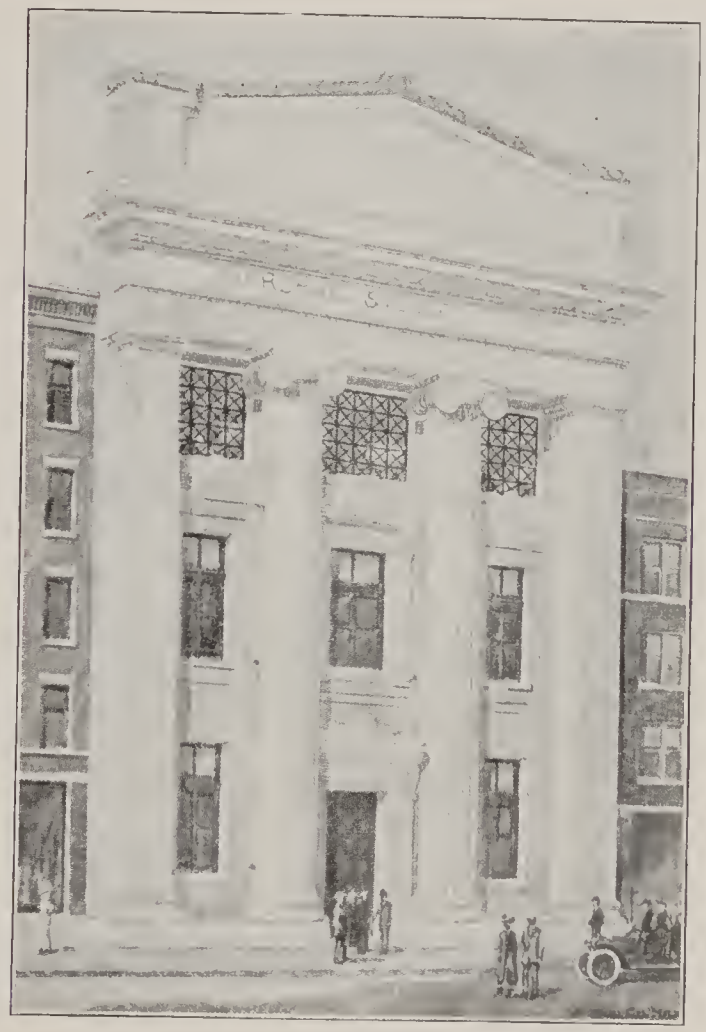
First National's New Bank and Office Building. Largest in Milwaukee

In point of size and cost the First National's building is or will be the most pretentious of the group, standing sixteen stories high at the south end of the triangular city hall park, and constituting the northern outpost of what Milwaukee likes to call its financial district, which comprises the vicinity between East Water and Broadway and Michigan and Mason streets. In this district already are included the Chamber of Commerce, Marine National, National Exchange, Marshall & Ilsley Bank, First National, First Savings & Trust Company, Wisconsin National and Wisconsin Trust Company.

D. H. Burnham & Sons, Chicago architects, are responsible for the plans of the First National building and are in direct supervision of its construction. A steel and concrete framework, mounted on concrete caissons reaching far below the river bottom level, will give the building the stability that its size requires. Limestone and white glazed tile will be used in the exterior finishing, while marble, white tile, and bronze are specified in the lobbies and entrance rotunda. The first two floors will be occupied by the First National and First Savings and Trust Company. Upper floors will be devoted to offices, with reservations on the top floor for club rooms. Elevator facilities, heating plant, lighting and plumbing, will be adequate to all the purposes of Milwaukee's largest office building.

The development of the First National in the last year has been no less striking than the physical manifestations of its new building. Twice during the year the bank has increased its stock $500,000 until its capital now is $3,000,000. The surplus of $500,000 also was doubled last June, making the institution one of the largest financed in the Northwest outside of Chicago. On July 27th the First National purchased the assets and good will of the Milwaukee National of Wisconsin, one of the oldest banking houses in the state. This is the last of three concerns absorbed by the First in two years, the other two being the Fidelity Trust and the Milwaukee Trust companies now combined under the name of the First Savings and Trust Company, and allied with the bank.

The eight-story white glazed tile structure of the Merchants and Manufacturers Bank on West Water Street is an important acquisition to the West Side business district. White marble furnishes the theme of the entrance corridor and banking room decoration, while the scheme is carried out in the white mosaic floors and ivory tinted walls and ceilings. The big banking room occupies the rear half of the first floor and is approached through a spacious entrance rotunda flanked on one side by the bronze elevator grill and on the other by a sheer white marble wall extending from floor to ceiling. The elaborate system of indirect lighting installed in the banking quarters is made almost unnecessary by the arrangement of the rooms themselves, which receive all the benefit of the large windows on the river side through which the east light enters direct and unobstructed.



Marshall & Ilsley's Monumental New Bank Building Milwaukee

The front portion of the first floor is arranged for stores and the upper floors are devoted to offices. The building is finished throughout in white tile, marble, and African mahogany.

The growth of the Merchants and Manufacturers bank in the six years of its history has been nothing less than phenomenal. Established on July 20, 1906, with a capital of $100,000, the bank now has a capital of $400,000 and surplus of $56,000. The deposits, as shown in the last statement, are $1,443,157.36. The increase of $150,000 in capital and $22,500 in surplus was voted at the annual meeting of directors last week.

The Marshall and Ilsley and Second Ward Savings banks both planned their new buildings for exclusive banking purposes. The Marshall and Ilsley building which will be completed in a few weeks stands on East Water Street between the Wisconsin National building and the First National building now in course of construction. The four huge Doric columns which form the front façade reach from the sidewalk level to the eaves above the third floor. Gray limestone is used throughout in the construction of this façade, while the same architectural design is carried out in pressed brick on the river frontage. Heavy bronze grills will be an imposing feature of the entrance and the idea of massiveness implied in the exterior will be sustained by the huge marble columns inside. The general offices will occupy the first floor and the other two floors will be devoted to the clerical force.

Merchants and Manufacturers New Bank and Office Building Milwaukee

The Marshall and Ilsley Bank is a pioneer among Milwaukee banking institutions, being founded in 1847. Following out the conservative policy that has made it one of the strongest banking houses in the middle west, it has occupied its present quarters on Broadway, south of Wisconsin Street, for many years, until fast increasing business made a change imperative. Its capital is $500,000 and its deposits average more than $10,000,000.

The new Second Ward Savings bank building, which officials hope to occupy shortly, is triangular in shape with frontage on West Water, Third, and Cedar streets. The exquisite lines and hand decoration of its three limestone façades make it one of the handsomest buildings devoted exclusively to banking purposes in the Middle West. There are two main entrances situated approximately in the centers of the West Water and the Third Street sides. The main banking room is unbroken from floor to roof, conveying an impression of roominess attained in few buildings of its class. The officers will ocupy an enclosure at the south end in front of the security vault. A mezzanine floor extending part way around the interior will furnish quarters for the clerks, transit department, and the book vaults. The huge safety deposit vault, weighing 400,000 pounds, with a door alone weighing 40,000 pounds, will be located in the basement. Adjacent to the vault, thirty-three electric lighted compartments have been installed for the use of patrons.

The Second Ward Savings Bank was founded in 1855 under the name of the Second Ward Bank, with a capital of $25,000. The original location was at Third and Chestnut streets. In 1861 the bank moved into quarters on the present site which were razed in 1911 to make room for the new building, the bank in the meantime occupying temporary quarters opposite on Third Street. In 1866 the bank was reorganized and given its present name. The capital was increased to $100,000 in July, 1872; to $200,000 in 1877; and to $1,000,000, its present capitalization, in 1908.

The institution has a surplus of $400,000 and average deposits of $13,000,000, or approximately one-fifth of all the savings in the state of Wisconsin. It recently has installed a bond department said to be one of the most complete in the Northwest.

Austin, Minn.—The Citizens National Bank which recently ceased doing business will be succeeded by the new Farmers and Merchants State Bank, with a capital stock of $25,000.

CHICAGO BANKERS ATTEND DENVER STOCK SHOW

William R. Dawes, vice-president and cashier of the Central Trust Company of Illinois, John Fletcher, vice-president of the Drovers Deposit National, and G. F. Emery, cashier of the Live Stock Exchange National, recently have returned from the 8th National Western Stock Show held at Denver. These gentlemen went on a special train via the Rock Island lines in company with a large party of bankers and stockmen from Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Missouri. They greatly enjoyed the Denver show and speak of its success in the highest terms.

with the men interested in this important industry and also to become acquainted with the kind of stock which is being developed for marketing purposes.

John Fletcher piloted the party through the state of Iowa, his native heath, and the Rock Island lines did the rest.

GARY (IND.) TRUST AND SAVINGS

At the annual meeting of the Gary Trust and Savings held recently, William A. Martin of LaPorte was elected president of the bank in place of J. F. Hartwell, who sold his interest some months ago. J. B. Green, well known in the banking world, was re-elected secretary and treasurer and Robert Bogarte, assistant secretary. The position of cashier was created and will be filled by D. D. Kleder. The directors chosen are W. A. Martin, Samuel Miller, R. H. Bogarte, D. D. Kleder, A. F. Knotts and J. B. Green.

WOMAN IS BANK PRESIDENT

Miss Tressa McElhinney enjoys the distinction of being the only woman bank president in Iowa. She recently was re-elected to head the Citizens State of Goldfield. Miss McElhinney is a heavy stockholder in the First National of Waterloo and has large holdings in the Blackhawk National.

Touches upon proposed banking and financial legislation by congress

WASHINGTON LETTER

By R. A. ALBERTSEN

Relates to administrative and department matters interesting to our readers

Washington, January 29th.—It is impossible to read the reply of Secretary Knox to Great Britain's protest against the free toll provision of the Panama canal act without getting the impression that the controversy will be adjusted in a satisfactory manner. The effort of Mr. Knox is to frame the issues in such a way as to make arbitration possible. On the main point it will have to be admitted that Sir Edward Grey gave away part of his case when he agreed that possibly the United States would have the right to grant toll exemptions to its coastwise trade as a matter of principle, but argued that no regulations could be made that would limit that exemption to the coastwise trade.

Mr. Knox makes the most of this concession. Assuming that the principle is established, he assures the British government that when we say coastwise trade, we mean coastwise trade—that foreign shipping will not be affected, and that it is not proposed to lay an additional burden on British commerce in order to compensate for the free toll concessions. This issue is not, it is insisted, one for arbitration at the present time since it is based merely on the assumption that this government will at some future time do something which, under the treaty, it has no right to do. "It is sufficient," says the secretary, "to say that obviously the United States is not to be denied the power to remit tolls to its own coastwise trade because of a suspicion of possibility that the regulations yet to be framed may not restrict this exemption to bona fide coastwise traffic." The strength of this argument is drawn wholly from the concession that was made by the British.

Pujo Will Ask Curb on High Finance

Important legislative results are likely to follow the first part of the Pujo committee's investigation. The conservatives in congress contend that the testimony has established the fact that there is no money trust, but that there has been, as everybody realized before the inquiry began, a notable tendency toward concentration of credit and banking resources in recent years.

The most radical of the democrats even are willing to concede that the evidence adduced by the committee does not warrant the assertion that there is a money trust in the commonly accepted meaning of that term. Where the radicals and conservatives differ over the results of the inquiry is on the question of the causes that have led to this centralization of banking interests.

Laws to Curb Already Planned

The radicals ascribe it to the selfishness and arbitration of a small group of powerful bankers who have sought to eliminate competition, and through a system of co-operation to monopolize flotations of big security issues throughout the country. This probably is the view that the democratic investigators will take in seeking to justify their efforts and in making recommendations for legislation.

That some legislation aimed at existing practices is bound to follow the inquiries is certain. J. P. Morgan, Jacob H. Schiff, and other important witnesses have agreed readily as to the advisability of certain reforms, and congress undoubtedly will accept the views of these bankers.

The reforms to which they have subscribed, however, relate chiefly to the application of the publicity idea as a preventive against wrongdoing, and are among the less radical of the suggestions that have been thrown out by the committee.

Probable Action Urged

From the suggestions that have been made in the course of the inquiry it seems certain that the committee will include the following among its recommendations:

Compulsory incorporation of stock exchanges and adoption of regulations against manipulation of securities. This to be accomplished by the federal government through the exercise of its power over the mails and over the transmission of quotations over the telegraph lines.

Incorporation of the clearing houses of the country with regulations which will make any solvent bank eligible to membership and which will give the state and federal banking authorities power to pass upon the action of the clearing houses.

A prohibition of the practice of the New York clearing house in charging commissions on out-of-town checks.

A law compelling a complete disclosure by promoters of all profits made by them on securities listed on the New York stock exchange.

Full publicity to assets of national banks, with the exception of loans.

Full publicity also of the stock ownership of national banks.

Prohibition against the participation by bank officers and directors in underwriting syndicates.

Prohibition against officers and directors of national banks borrowing money from their own institutions.

The application of the cumulative voting idea so as to give minority stockholders the legal right of representation on the boards of directors of banks and interstate corporations.

The prohibition of the present close connections between national banks and security companies.

A prohibition against national banks buying securities from any banking house which has members upon its board of directors.

Plans for the Special Session

Although the scope of the legislation to be taken up at the approaching extra session of congress has not yet been outlined, congressional committees are rapidly pushing their preliminary work to a point where recommendations can be made to President-elect Wilson and plans laid before him for the early work of his administration.

Work on tariff bills will soon be started, the hearings reaching an end this week. The "money trust" end of the house banking and currency committee is already working on a report, while the "currency" branch of the same committee will push its investigation this week into other branches of the currency question, in an effort to secure comprehensive suggestions for currency reform.

Senate and house leaders do not yet know what legislation, if any, in addition to the work of tariff revision, will be taken up at the extra session. Several of those who have talked with Gov. Wilson express the confident belief that the currency question and the question of liberating the Philippines will be included in the new president's scheme of action for his first congressional session.

It is the general opinion in democratic circles in Washington that Wilson will at least not "foreclose" congress against acting on everything but the tariff in the special session. A majority of the democrats in the senate expect little legislation other than the tariff to be taken up, but they believe Wilson, in calling the special session, will not specifically limit its work.

Washington, D. C., January 29th.—The Page vocational education bill, authorizing maximum appropriations of over $14,000,000 for agricultural and trade educational work, was adopted by the senate to-day as a substitute for the Lever-Smith bill which has passed the house.

A fight extending over many days, in which both sides of the senate had been divided, ended when a motion by Senator Page to substitute his original for the Lever bill was carried by a vote of 31 to 30.

The measure will go to the house and ultimately into a conference committee. The original house bill appropriated the maximum sum of approximately $3,500,000 for the establishment of extension departments in the state agricultural colleges through which instruction in agriculture and home economics would be carried into the homes of the farmers.

The Page bill would establish courses of instruction in trades and industries, home economics, and agriculture in the various public schools of secondary grade; provide for state agricultural schools, testing, and plant breeding stations, the education of teachers, and general extension work.

Senators Page and Hoke Smith became involved in sharp controversy during the debate, Senator Page intimating that Senator Smith had given assurances that he would support Senator Page's bill in revised form. This Senator Smith denied. Senator Page finally withdrew an amended form of his bill, which included practically all of the house bill, and the senate then adopted the original Page bill.

It is believed the agricultural education measure may remain in controversy between the two houses when the present session ends.

COMMENTS ON WILSON'S ANTI-TRUST POLICY

L. A. Goddard, president of the State Bank of Chicago, in discussing the activity of President-elect Wilson in his endeavor to secure anti-trust legislation, said:

"In so far as Governor Wilson seeks to hold individuals responsible for violations of the anti-trust laws and to punish them rather than inflict loss on innocent investors, I am quite in sympathy with his program of anti-trust legislation. Some of the provisions of the bills introduced in the New Jersey legislature appear to me, however, to be unnecessarily drastic and to place undue burdens and restrictions on the natural and normal course of business.

"The effect of these restrictions would be far-reaching, and in some cases harmful without corresponding benefits to anyone. It is proposed for instance, to make it unlawful and indictable to have any agreement or understanding in the sale or transportation of any article whereby it is withheld from the market. In some regards such a law might work very well, and in others not. If Michigan fruit growers were denied the right to have an understanding as to market days, the Chicago market would be glutted with fruit one day and there would be a scarcity the next. Fruit would spoil for lack of purchasers at one time, while at another the demand could not be supplied and prices would rise exorbitantly."

D. R. FORGAN ADDRESSES NEW YORK CREDIT MEN

David R. Forgan, president of the National City Bank of Chicago, addressed the New York Credit Men's Association last week at the Hotel Astor, his topic being "How to Avoid Another Panic." Mr. Forgan declared that "centralization of reserves" is an effective preventive against panics.

"Speaking financially," declared Mr. Forgan, "the national disgrace of this country is that, containing the greatest natural resources of any of the civilized countries, and numbering among its people the ablest business men in the world, blessed with a prosperity the like of which history has never known, and fortified by the possession of more gold than all of its chief competitors combined—I say, the national disgrace is that, in spite of all of these advantages, it is the only country visited by periodical financial panics. No other civilized country within the memory of living man has had a panic causing general suspension on the part of its banks, while this country has had about a half-dozen. Four years ago financial stringency existed all over the world. Only in the United States was there suspension of specie payments on the part of the banks. Our panics are always limited sharply by our national borders. In 1893 and 1907 I could have taken you to some places in this country, separated from Canada only by a bridge, where at one end of the bridge there was panic and suspension, and at the other end, confidence and normal conditions. Even our southern neighbor, Mexico, knew no panic.

"Now we have talked about this thing for many years, but as a nation we have done nothing. We have been like the farmer, the hole in whose barn roof was never mended because when it was raining he couldn't mend it and when it was fair it required no mending."

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Arthur S. Somers was elected president of the Sumner Savings Bank, to succeed Nathan S. Jonas.

RETURNS FROM NEW YORK

Joseph E. Otis, vice-president of the Central Trust Company of Illinois, who recently returned from a trip to New York, said:

"Money in New York is abnormally easy, due to the fact of a sentimental situation which has arisen. This has resulted in the banks running unusually strong while letting out their surplus funds on call. They appear to be anticipating something, the nature of which is not clear, and while in this attitude they seek to have their resources available. The street is flooded with call money lending around 2 per cent. The bulk of loanable funds is held back.

"Two lines of thought are distinctly represented in the situation.

"Those who may be called old-timers, who have large means amassed under former conditions, cannot understand the change in sentiment toward capital which for some years has been growing. They know things are not now as they were and are not in the frame of mind to understand why this is the case. They appear to be waiting for a return of conditions under which they prospered and consider the present as holding or presaging something to come for which they wish to be prepared.

"Holding a different view is a younger element, more nearly in touch, it would appear, with the trend of national sentiment. These younger financial interests are full of confidence and see nothing to suggest undue caution. They are prepared to go ahead with a clear appreciation of conditions. But they are necessarily influenced by the attitude of the older element, which latter, controlling as it does the direction of so much capital, really commands the consideration of its views by the younger financiers.

"I might be more specific, but those who have followed the testimony given the Pujo committee will have a fair insight to the situation as furnished by the different representatives of Wall street appearing before the committee."

By C. C. Burford

F. E. Farrell, president, and E. E. Crabtree, vice-president of the banking firm of F. G. Farrell & Co., H. J. Rodgers, vice-president of the Jacksonville National, and M. F. Dunlap, president of the Ayers National, all of Jacksonville, are the banker-members of the directorate of the Jacksonville Business Men's Association. This association is one of the most efficient commercial organizations in the state and it is doing much in a publicity way to advance the commercial, industrial and social life of the city. The secretary, a salaried man who gives his entire time to the work, is Paul B. Fritchey, a graduate of the University of Illinois, and he is working hard upon the tasks assigned to him. Jacksonville has many things of which to be proud, but no recent undertaking demands more enthusiasm than the new building of the Ayers National which was opened to the public January 1st and which is one of the best equipped banking rooms in the Central West.

Few Changes in Peoria Banks

The majority of the banks of Peoria have held their annual elections during the month of January and but few changes were noted except here and there a change in directors. The First National and the Savings Bank of Peoria, allied institutions, will not hold their annual meetings until February 11th. All of the banks in Peoria report most excellent business for the year 1912 and there is a feeling of general optimism about the institutions. "The city's financial institutions join in a grand harmony of prosperity without a discordant note. Not one has lost ground during 1912 and the increased business is shown in the Peoria clearing house statement for 1912 which shows a total of over $175,000,000, an increase of $14,000,000 over the report for 1911."

New State Banks

LaSalle, one of the growing business cities in LaSalle county, soon is to have its third bank, a permit having been issued by the state auditor for the incorporation of the LaSalle Savings Bank and Trust Company. The capital will be $100,000 and the permit was issued to Louis Diesterweg, Francis Kilduff and J. E. Malone, Jr. The LaSalle National and the LaSalle State are the present banks occupying the field and both are doing a thriving business. Peru, the sister city of LaSalle, has two banks, the Peru National and the Peru State, so that five banks soon will be operating in those twin cities.

The State Bank of Donnellson, near Litchfield, will be opened for business soon, C. C. Mansfield, W. A. Allen and C. L. Laws having secured a permit from the auditor. The capital will be $25,000.

The First State Bank of Greenview, Menard county, has been organized with capital of $25,000. John Behrens is the president, John A. Petrie, vice-president and T. A. Tomship cashier.

A new state bank to be known as the Algonquin State, located at Algonquin, Henry county, will begin business with capital of $25,000.

Business Conditions in Peoria Territory

A prominent Peoria banker has made the following comment on business conditions in his locality to the Illinois correspondent of THE CHICAGO BANKER:

"Conditions here are very good. The year 1912 was a most prosperous one for Peoria banks and also for business houses generally. Throughout the greater part of the year deposits were high with good rates of interest prevailing for the loans.

"As a consequence of the tight money market during the early winter, country bank balances were materially decreased but the banks were able to take care of borrowing customers. Grain throughout this section is moving freely wherever cars can be obtained and bank deposits are consequently increasing in volume. Farmers generally in this part of the country are so prosperous that many of them will continue to hold corn for higher prices, making general liquidation more gradual."

WISCONSIN BANKERS IN MUTUAL INSURANCE PLAN

Wisconsin bankers contemplate the organization of a mutual insurance company to be known as the Bankers Limited Mutual Indemnity Company, designed to give them mutual insurance against loss by burglary at a much lower rate than they now are paying. Applications have been filed by 265 members of the state association, but owing to incomplete organization, the applications were returned and the matter deferred until the annual convention of the association in June.

It is said that the project is the result of refusal on the part of the companies in which the bankers are insured at present to give information as to the amount carried by them. It also is believed that the rate is excessive. Until such time as incorporation of the new company is effected the association will continue the present arrangement of placing its policies.

RIPON BANK IN NEW BUILDING

German National of Ripon, Wis., recently opened for business in its remodeled building. The new home of the bank includes both its original building and that formerly occupied by the First National, giving to the German National a banking house which is second to none in the state in beauty, convenience, safety and sanitation.

The German National was organized in 1890. Since the time of its organization it has enjoyed a steady, consistent growth. Deposits in 1902 were $259,000; at the end of 1912 they were nearly a million. In two instances the bank enjoyed the distinction of holding first position among banks in the state in the matter of yearly percentage increase in business. The bank is now affiliated with the German National Mortgage Company, which affords its customers all the additional service of a trust company, and there is every reason to believe that a continuing increase of business is in store for the institution.

The present officers and directors are: Chas. Cowan, president; H. J. Faustman, vice-president; J. L. Stone, cashier; A. B. Carter, assistant cashier; Albert Wilson, David Thomas, C. J. Haas, Frank Corliss, L. W. Thayer, W. B. Foster.

PHILADELPHIA BANKERS DINE

It is estimated that nearly one-quarter of the banking resources of the United States was represented at the annual banquet of the Philadelphia Bankers Association, held in that city Wednesday night. Many of the principal witnesses before the Pujo committee were in attendance. There were more than 600 present at the banquet.

RUMELY'S ATTRACTIVE BOOKLET

An attractive well-illustrated booklet describing the organization, growth and development of the Rumely interests, whose principal place of business is at La Porte, Indiana, recently has been sent out to the public. Rumely farm machinery is used all over the world and is so well and favorably known as to make any description of its merits unnecessary.

Meinard Rumely, who built up this great industrial business, came to this country in 1849 from Germany. His great ambition was to invent and build machines which would do the slow, monotonous work that the farmers were obliged to do by hand. That his efforts in that behalf were successful is well known, and the foundation stones for the enormous business of to-day were laid. As time went on the business expanded, new and more modern types of machinery were manufactured and the demand therefor increased to a corresponding degree.

After the death of Meinard Rumely the work was carried on by his sons and grandsons. As business increased at such a rapid rate, the necessity of a larger company became apparent. A plan was evolved to add new implements to the Rumely list. A comprehensive expert staff also was planned and organized, and the plants and patents of several companies were purchased. Branches have been established at numerous points and thus the distribution of farming implements has been greatly facilitated.

The greater Rumely company has accomplished much. At La Porte, the center of the industry, 450 people are working in the offices alone; six years ago there were but seventeen. From two employees in 1853, the number has grown to more than six thousand.

Rumely Products Co., Inc., relieves M. Rumely & Co., Inc., and Canadian Rumely Co., Ltd., of all sales work, besides selling part or all of the products of a dozen other companies. Rumely territory is divided into five great sections: Canadian, foreign, eastern, western and northern. Forty-seven branches dot this country, Canada, Russia and South America.

TO ASCERTAIN VALUE OF BANK BUILDNGS

Instructions have been issued to national bank examiners by Comptroller Murray, requesting them to make a report on the value of buildings owned by national banks and carried by them on their books. Banks carry the value of their real estate in various ways and it is desired by the comptroller to establish a uniform method of report.

INDIANA CASHIER RESIGNS

John C. Perkins has resigned as cashier of the Boone County State Bank of Lebanon, Ind. He will be succeeded by George Adams, formerly county clerk. Mr. Perkins will engage in the furniture business, having formerly been identified with that industry before taking up banking.

UNITED STATES BANK CLEARINGS

Total bank clearings of the United States for the week ending January 25, 1913 (one day estimated, according to the Financial Chronicle, were $3,469,677,170, which compares with $3,865,099,588 last week, and $3,245,019,708 in the week ended January 27, 1912.

Compared with last year total bank clearings have increased 6.9 per cent. Boston shows an increase of 8 per cent, Philadelphia of 9.1 per cent, New York of 0.2 per cent, and Chicago of 14.5 per cent.

C. F. ENRIGHT

C. F. Enright, for many years connected actively with the banking interests of St. Joseph, Mo., and now engaged in developing the interurban railroad line connecting St. Joseph with Kansas City and Excelsior Springs, Mo., recently presided at a meeting of the officers and station agents of the Chicago Great Western Railroad at St. Joseph, at their semiannual get-together meeting and luncheon.

St. Louis and Southwest Banking Letter

By R. L. ROBINSON

St. Louis, January 29th.—Bank clearings during the past week have been considerably larger than those of the corresponding period last year, and the volume of business transacted at the financial institutions has been quite large. The demand for money has been fair, while the supply of loanable funds has been of fair proportions. Rates held steady at 4¾ to 6 per cent on call and on time loans.

Fill Commonwealth Board

At a recent meeting of the stockholders of the Commonwealth Trust Company, S. Burk Burnett, a capitalist of Fort Worth, Tex.; W. C. Nixon, vice-president of the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad Company; Jesse D. Dana, treasurer, and W. V. Delahunt, trust officer, were added to the board of directors. These new directors fill three vacancies which had existed on the board. The complete board includes: S. Burk Burnett, George O. Carpenter, Jesse D. Dana, Samuel C. Davis, W. V. Delahunt, J. L. Green, Elias Michael, W. C. Nixon, Lawrence B. Pierce, and Edward L. Preetorius.

Fail To Sell Capitol Bonds

The trip to New York of three members of the State Fund Commission was apparently without results for the reason that after a meeting of the full board on Monday the state capital bonds were again advertised for sale on January 30th. The advertisement provides for no commission to be paid. There are still $3,215,000 of the bonds to be sold, and the commission needs the money to prosecute its work. Edward P. Deal, state treasurer, is opposed to the Wilson bill to abolish the State Capitol Commission and to vest the power of supervising the construction of the new state house upon the state officers.

Finds Bank Loot On Farm

Notes and road orders amounting to over $200,000 taken at the robbery of the bank at Perry, Ill., several weeks ago, were found last week in a shock of corn on a farm near Perry by Robert Belford, who received $100 reward for the return of the papers. It is believed that the robbers remained in the cornfield the entire night and divided the spoils there. Nearly $2,000 in cash was stolen.

Urges Way To Lower Living

Representative Thomas L. Rubey of Missouri, who has been requested by the house committee on agriculture of which he is a member to prepare a report on the senate bill creating a division of markets in the department of agriculture, says that nearly a billion and half dollars' worth of farm products go to waste every year for want of a market, that if we would stop only a considerable part of this economic loss the cost of living would be noticeably reduced. "It is an absolute fact," says Mr. Rubey, "that thousands of tons of various products go to waste because farmers do not know where to market them. The local market with which they are familiar may be glutted with the products which they have to sell, while at another market within reach these same products may be in great demand at fancy prices. For example, potatoes may be selling for as little as 20 cents in one market, while the same quality would bring $2 in another. This identical thing has happened many times. One duty of a division of markets would be to keep farmers all over the country advised as to market conditions anywhere within reach of them. When there was a glut in one place and a scarcity in another, farmers would be advised of the fact and would act accordingly. With the losses from this source reduced to a minimum, the farmers in general would receive more for their products, all told, and at the same time the consumer would pay less. It is not to be expected, of course, that the new office could do much for the farmers this year, when it will not be established until July 1st. A great deal of preliminary work and investigation will be required to make the office valuable to farmers and to consumers—and it promises to be of substantial benefit to those who buy from the farmers. Friends of the bill expect great things from its operation and predict a new era in the marketing of crops after it becomes thoroughly organized and reaches into all sections of the country."

Promotions at Houston First National

At a meeting of the directorate of the First National, Houston, Tex,. on Friday, J. W. Hazard and H. B. Bringhurst, employees of that institution for the past fifteen years, were elevated to the positions of assistant cashiers. Mr. Hazard has been head teller for a number of years while Mr. Bringhurst has been in the bookkeeping department.

OLDEST TRUST COMPANY IN MISSOURI

Snelson Chesney, representing the Liberty National of New York, called on Chicago banking acquaintances on Saturday last. Mr. Chesney was for many years connected with the Tootle-Lemon National of St. Joe, Mo., and with South Omaha banking interests, after which he spent several years with the Stockyards National of East St. Louis, Ill. He enjoys a wide acquaintance among western bankers and will prove to be a strong influence for the Liberty National in pulling western business.

HAVE INVESTMENT PRICES COME?

Both the bond and the stock markets have been halting in volume, each for a reason of its own. The price of direct loans outrivaled the return upon standard issues of the best bonds. When money can command six per cent in the open market, with high grade collateral bonds at less than five per cent, sales are restricted to a special market. So far as the demand for stocks is concerned the reason has been well stated by Edward F. Leland of this city, an expert in stocks and grain. Mr. Leland puts it plainly:

It is evident that stocks are being quietly absorbed in a small way, and unless further liquidation will bring out a considerable amount of stocks, which is now being permanently held for investment, the floating supply of securities will gradually become less as the market declines and a basis for a good bull market will undoubtedly be made sooner or later. In general, however, we have not altered our opinion as to the ultimate course of the market. The constant agitation against the stock exchanges, the efforts to dissolve the large corporations—which have been, in a great measure, the basis of our prosperity for the past decade—all do not tend to cause a feeling of elation or to influence investors to put their money into securities. However, intrinsic values must count in the long run. A great many railroads are selling to-day on a level as low, if not lower, than 1907, taking into account the amounts that have been reinvested in the properties and in capitalization in the past five to seven years; and there are investors who have the courage of their convictions—and sufficiently long pocketbooks—to believe in the ultimate prosperity of the country, no matter what may be done, politically or otherwise.

The firm with which Mr. Leland is connected—Messrs. Ware & Leland—is one of the conservative forces in the financial district, and advises "the greatest caution" and that "securities will be purchased at still lower prices." Such advice from a firm which would profit from stimulated buying must be credited as unselfish at least, and thus additionally trustworthy. The time must be near when safe investment buying can begin.

NEW PLANS FOR MONEY REFORM

William H. Berry, a former state treasurer for Pennsylvania, gave testimony before the Pujo committee in which he outlined a plan for a paper legal tender based on state and government bonds. He blamed most of our financial ills upon a faulty banking system which does not provide a sufficient supply of legal tender reserve to support our extended and ever increasing line of credits. Mr. Berry said the "money trust" is the result of our central reserve plan of operation which masses the money in the centers and allows discrimination in credits. A chart produced by Mr. Berry purported to show that panics follow an expansion of credit to a point where it is beyond the support of the available cash reserves.

"That is the situation now," he continued. "The credits granted have been extended to a point where the reserves are but 8.2 per cent of the outstanding obligations of the banks. Unless these reserves are extended in some way a panic inevitably will follow. That 8.2 per cent was about the breaking point of 1907, and a panic is now threatened. We have too much credit for the cash in hand and too little credit for the needs of the country." Mr. Berry proposed making the bank note circulation legal tender and forcing banks to surrender bonds upon which they issued these notes. Under examination by the committee he said he believed that a gold reserve of at least 20 per cent of the current legal tender would support the issue. The members of the committee were deeply interested in the charts, said to be authentic, and other witnesses will be questioned upon the stated relation between reserves and liabilities. W. T. Creasy, master of the Pennsylvania State Grange, corroborated Mr. Berry by saying that all farmers saw nothing good in the "Aldrich plan" and that "they had helped to kill it off by agitating against it." The whole currency matter likely will go over to the special session of congress with a choice of remedial plans. Bankers should keep posted and work for the best of the bills presented.

COMING OF "BLUE SKY" BILL

In varying forms the "Blue Sky" bill, an invention of J. N. Dolley, the famous banking commissioner and statesman of Kansas, is up before seven legislatures. Many state banking associations indorsed the measure in the past season and bills will come out in time, as in Illinois and Iowa. In Missouri the new measure, as introduced, provides for examination by the banking commissioner. Full power is given that official to stop the selling of any security under the ban. No state has suffered more in actual money loss and in loss of prestige than Missouri owing to promotions—mainly insurance companies—by a dangerous band operating out of St. Louis and Kansas City. Peculiar part of it all is that most of the victims were bankers. The new measure as introduced in the legislature at Jefferson provides that before any corporation licensed by the state can begin the sale of stock it must file a statement with the bank commissioner setting forth in detail the amount and character of its property, its location, its total assets and liabilities and its objects and purposes.

If the bank commissioner finds that the company is solvent and was organized in good faith, he will furnish its officers with a statement setting out such fact, but explicitly stating that he does not recommend its securities to the public. On the other hand, if he finds the concern insolvent he will serve it with notice and it will be unlawful for it to sell any bonds or stocks.

This puts a double check upon corporations organized for business purposes in Missouri. The secretary of state must first be satisfied that any company has complied with all the laws relating to the issuance of charters or licenses before he will issue his certificate of incorporation.

The agents who sell the stock of an insurance, mining or any other kind of a corporation, except banks, trust companies, building and loans and a few other excepted concerns, must take out a license to do so. These are issued upon the payment of a fee of $1. If any officer shall file a false affidavit relating to his company with the bank commissioner he will be punished, if convicted, by a fine of from $200 to $20,000, or by imprisonment in jail one year, or imprisonment in the penitentiary from two to ten years.

The proposed law has been indorsed in advance by political parties, associations and clubs all over the state and is certain to pass in some form. It has been predicted that "Blue Sky" supervision will be provided by law in the majority of states within the year.

A. B. A. CURRENCY COMMISSION

It is expected that a meeting of the currency commission of the American Bankers Association will be called in the near future, the purpose of which will be the consideration of banking and currency legislation. A. Barton Hepburn, the chairman of the commission, is on his way to Africa on a hunting trip, but the meeting will be called by Vice-Chairman James B. Forgan, president of the First National of Chicago.

The committee is made up of the following well-known bankers:

A. B. Hepburn, chairman of board, Chase National, New York City, chairman; Jas. B. Forgan, president First National, Chicago; vice-chairman; Myron T. Herrick, president Society for Savings, Cleveland, Ohio; Festus J. Wade, president Mercantile Trust Company, St. Louis, Mo.; Joseph T. Talbert, vice-president National City, New York City; George M. COUNTY IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATIONS IN ILLINOIS

Thursday afternoon E. F. Adams, president of the Du Page County Bankers Association, spoke at the meeting of the Farmers' Institute at Wheaton, Ill., on the subject of county improvement associations. He told what has been accomplished in other counties by such organizations and urged the farmers of Du Page county to take advantage of opportunities which await them. He said in part:

"The crop improvement committee of the Council of Grain Exchangers will pay $1,000 into the local fund of any county which organizes a county farm bureau and raises sufficient money to hire a county advisor whose business it will be to wait on the farmers of the county and to act as a general advisor to any farmer in the county requiring his services; organizing farmers' clubs; conducting corn clubs and other agricultural contests; to arrange for exhibitions of agricultural products; to give practical demonstrations and instructions in crop rotation, soil building, farm management, live stock, dairying, etc., and to co-operate with the superintendent, of county and city schools, in teaching rudiments of agriculture.

"It shall also be the duty of the county advisor to establish seed plots both on the county farm and on various private farms to bring up to the highest efficiency the variety of seed which may be best adapted to the soil and climate of the county, so that eventually a uniform variety of each product may be established free from the mixture of other grains and weed seeds.

"If all the farmers in Du Page county would pay 1 cent for every acre of land which they till they could raise over $2,000. This would give them $3,000 a year which would be plenty to cover all expenses to carry on the work.

"Twenty-six counties have qualified to receive $1,000 from the Council of Grain Exchangers, and if the farmers of this county desire to keep pace with her neighboring counties the Du Page County Bankers Association will be more than glad to assist the farmers of Du Page county by calling a meeting and lending their support in any way possible to organize such an association, which is sure to bring more wealth and prosperity to the farmers of Du Page county, for there are no two professions that are more dependent upon each other than those of the farmer and the banker."

WARNS AGAINST TIMBER BONDS

State Banking Commissioner Doyle of Michigan devotes a special paragraph of his annual report to the subject of timber bonds, which is as follows:

"I desire particularly at this time to caution the officers and directors of state banks to be extremely careful in their investigations before investing in timber bonds. It is true that there are good issues of timber bonds on the market, but it is also true that there are timber issues where the amounts are altogether out of proportion to the actual value of standing timber and to the land on which it stands. Cut-over lands, lands with thin fringes or edges of standing timber, with possibly an out-of-date saw mill and second-hand logging equipments included, or perhaps a railroad that exists only in the imagination of some expert prospectus writer, are not proper assets for savings deposits as contemplated by the framers of the banking law. The course pursued by promoters and venders of issues on this class of property will surely result in drastic legislation in the future; and it is to be deplored that firms or corporations handling timber bonds of unquestionable value are to be hampered on account of the nefarious operations of unscrupulous competitors."

CLEVELAND CHAPTER

By C. W. Stansbury.

Cleveland Chapter A. I. B. formally opened the second half of the year in the Chapter rooms, on Tuesday evening January 14th. The weekly Law class which preceded this meeting was well attended and the best results are being obtained through quizzing rather than by regular lectures.

W. R. Green, chairman of the Program committee, announced that the management of the new Y. M. C. A. has invited the Chapter to hold a meeting in its new building at an early date. This new building which has just been dedicated is one of the finest in the country and the banking fraternity are much interested, as a large number of our members were subscribers to the building fund.

Formal announcement was made of the musical extravaganza which the Chapter is planning for, to be held in one of the local theaters probably the first week in April. Chairman W. H. Kinsey, of the Show committee wishes it plainly understood that this is a "musical extravaganza" and not a minstrel show, but we do not deny that we can give minstrel shows too.

The third of a series of lectures on the Negotiable Instrument Law was delivered by W. J. O'Neill, assistant attorney of the Citizens Savings and Trust Company. This had to do with the rights of the holder and liabilities of parties. E. B. Merrell, paying teller of the Cleveland Trust Company, delivered an address on the "Paying Teller's Department."

Cleveland Chapter Men Promoted

Cleveland Chapter as usual had at least a part of its membership rewarded at the annual meetings of Cleveland banks. W. H. Kinsey, chairman of our Show committee, was appointed to the position of assistant secretary of the Citizens Savings and Trust Company to fill the vacancy caused by the promotion of George Lomnitz, formerly assistant treasurer. Wilbur H. Baldwin was promoted from assistant treasurer to treasurer of the same bank. E. V. Hale, formerly treasurer, and J. R. Nutt, formerly secretary, were both made vice-presidents. We are proud to state that all of the above are Institute men. Our popular president, P. J. Slach, was promoted from the position of cashiership of the Broadway Savings and Trust Company to the treasurership of the same bank. He was also further honored by the stockholders increasing the board of directors from fifteen to sixteen in order to make Mr. Slach an active director. Mr. Slach has been a thorough Institute man ever since the formation of Cleveland Chapter and always will be, no matter how high he may climb in his profession, and he surely has the good will and admiration of every man in the Chapter.

We are advised that invitations will be issued shortly to Chapter members and their friends to a dancing party to be given by Fred S. Crane, sales agent of the Burroughs Adding Machine Company. We are further advised that this party will be held on February twentieth. All the boys are looking forward to this event, as they know that anything planned by Mr. Crane will be as lively and up to date as anything planned by the organization which he represents.

CINCINNATI CHAPTERGRAM

By Wm. Beiser.

Prof. Frederick C. Hicks, dean of Cincinnati Night University, delivered a very interesting lecture on "Some Causes Effecting High Prices" at the meeting of January 17th. The Professor stated that since 1896 prices have risen 50 per cent. Students of business and social conditions are giving their best thought to the problems that arise in connection with rising prices. In a discussion of the high prices, the main thought should be given not so much to the causes of high prices as to a remedy for stability. Economists, bankers and business men are giving their best thoughts to this. Among some of the ideas advanced by some people as a cause for high prices, are—the trust situation, which through the elimination of competition, has kept up prices—the tariff, which on account of high duty, prevents competition with world commodities—and the high plane of living. This was expressed in the thought that the high cost of living may be due to the cost of high living. In connection with this latter idea the change in productive energy from the development of necessities to the development of luxuries is an important factor, which has its influence on prices. All the foregoing influences bear upon commodities—rising prices may be due to influences which do not affect commodities. Here the Professor reverted to some elementary principles and to the standard of value. He explained that where the price of a bushel of wheat had increased from a dollar to a dollar and a half, this may be due to a decrease in the supply of wheat or conversely an increase in the demand for wheat, or it may be due to a change in the measuring standard, especially where the measuring standard is subject to fluctuations in value. Value depends upon relation between supply and demand—not only respecting the value in the commodity but also respecting value contained in the unfit measure. Gold in the last analysis is a commodity. It is contained in our unit of value. Our measuring unit of value is different from other measuring units in so far that it is subject to changes on account of supply and demand. We now got the view of looking at prices from two sides, that is that a change may be due to conditions affecting the commodity and also to conditions affecting the measure of value. The Professor then told of the unique program which has been advanced for the stability of prices. He also referred to the great increase in the gold supply, estimating it for 1912 at $465,000,000.00. The increase in the gold supply during the last twenty-five years is greater than the production of gold for the preceding 500 years. Practically all the gold heretofore produced continues to exist and is not like the supply of wheat which is consumed from year to year. Undoubtedly, said the Professor, a principal factor in high prices is the great increase in the production of gold which has caused a decrease in the value of it. The program for stability as advanced assumes that something can be done with the measuring unit of gold to make the prices more stable.

Professor Fisher of Yale has advanced a theory which is given serious thought by able minds in the United States and Europe. His theory provides that when the value of gold is down there be some method through which the decrease in value be provided for in the unit of measure, so as to provide for stability in prices—and vice versa that when the value of gold goes up that there be a decrease of the commodity in the measuring unit for the same purpose. In discussing this theory, two points are to be borne in mind: Is it practical and is it scientifically sound? How are we going to determine the movement in the value of gold, up and down? The theory is based upon the assumption that the general level of prices indicates the value of gold. Is it not possible that conditions affecting commodities will affect the general level of prices? If an average level of prices exists on five articles, and if there is an increase in the value of them, due to influence affecting the commodity, it can be said that an increase in this general price level indicates a change in the value of gold. The same result is obvious whether five or 257 commodities are averaged. The problem of providing stability in prices is so far an unsolved one, and by some is thought to be unsolvable. In conclusion the professor stated that the tremendous increase in the gold supply is the greatest factor for increased prices.

SAN FRANCISCO CHAPTER

By Wm. A. Marcus.

January has been a busy month for our members. Afternoon classes have met twice a week and the public speaking class has held its regular evening meeting. A smoker on the sixteenth brought out a hundred and sixty members and it is gratifying to say that nearly as many attended the address of F. L. Lipman, vice-president of the Wells Fargo Nevada National on "The Value of History to the Banker," given on the twenty-first.

The following paragraph is an extract from Mr. Lipman's talk:

"The banker's safeguard is a knowledge of the history of banking. There he will find that in the development of the modern business world there has been a constant antagonism between the desirable improvement and the ways and means of accomplishing it; between progress and conservation; between fixed assets and liquid capital. He will learn that the business man has been the pathfinder, the progressive one, the promoter of projects, the designer, inventor, and builder; while on the other hand the banker has had to counsel prudence, conservation, to count the cost, to foresee difficulties and provide for them, to maintain the liquid capital of the community. An excess of caution might indeed produce dry rot; but a lack of the foresight has often brought a breaking down of the business machine, with tremendous losses and wastes. The office of the conservative has generally been a thankless one, especially when prosperity and confidence have prevailed; it has therefore been the more difficult to fill. It is herein that the banker must recognize a demand upon his professional experience and ability, and it is of first importance that he should realize that his responsibility is limited to this function. To accomplish this he must understand what is his place among economic activities and this understanding he is unlikely to acquire without a knowledge of the growth and development of his profession, together with the leading instances in modern times, at least, of good and bad banking.

CENTRAL WEST LETTER

By EDGAR P. ALLEN

Omaha

Bank Commissioner J. N. Dolley of Kansas, who is about to retire from office following a change of administration in the state, prides himself upon being the originator of the "Blue Sky" theory of state protection of investors. It was early in his experience as bank commissioner that the "Blue Sky" idea came to him and the entire plan was worked out in his mind before he drew up the now famous "Blue Sky" bill which was passed by the Kansas legislature twenty-one months ago. It was a radical departure from anything before known in the way of legislative paternalism. Even the most radical members of the former legislature were not sure that it would work. But on Mr. Dolley's earnest plea the bill was passed. Immediately it began to attract attention all over the country and in foreign lands. Mr. Dolley had printed copies of the law to send to the anxious inquirers. To-day in a dozen legislatures "Blue Sky" bills now are under consideration and, doubtless, many other states will accept the idea in some form or other before the winter is over. Before leaving office Commissioner Dolley has asked the Kansas legislature to make two changes in the law. He asks for an amendment that will allow investment brokers to sell the stocks and bonds of companies without making an examination of the different concerns. Under the law at present the brokers have to secure an examination of every company they represent. The second change Mr. Dolley would bring about would be to prohibit the advertising of the stocks and bonds of any company in a Kansas newspaper until the company first has obtained a permit to transact business in Kansas and a certificate under the "Blue Sky" law.

Missouri Bank Commissioner

Governor Major of Missouri announced last week the appointment of John T. Mitchell of Columbia, Mo., to be state bank commissioner, succeeding John E. Swanger. Mr. Mitchell is president of the Bank of Centralia, Boone county, and has had thirty-three years' experience in the banking business. The salary of the Missouri commissioner is $3,500 a year and traveling expenses. He has an office force of three men and eight state examiners under his supervision. His chief deputy will be George Hammell of DeSoto. Of the eight examiners three have been named. They are: Hal Woodside of West Plains, Paul D. Gibbons of Edina and Claude Eaton of Irondale. The change in bank administration will take place Monday, February 3rd.

Missouri Bank Report

Before relinquishing his office February 1st, State Bank Commissioner John E. Swanger of Missouri made his annual report with recommendations to the present legislature that the bank laws of the state be changed to conform to more modern banking methods. The report shows that there are at present 1,217 incorporated and private banks and fifty-three trust companies in Missouri. In the past two years 110 banks and three trust companies have been organized and five banks have liquidated without any loss to the depositors in spite of the fact that Missouri has no deposit guaranty law. Within the two years covered by the report, banking capital in the Missouri state banks has increased from $51,239,570 to $53,846,295; the surplus from $44,928,745 to $48,278,455; demand deposits from $201,764,839 to $226,452,768; time deposits from $62,977,955 to $77,999,566; savings deposits from $27,643,257 to $35,601,860. In his recommendations touching bank supervision, the commissioner says: "Bank supervision has come to stay and is a part of our government policy. Banks have come to be recognized as quasi-public service institutions, in which the public has a vital interest and upon whose safety and stability depends our whole commercial and business fabric. The laws now upon our statute books have been of great benefit to the people, but after eight years of experience as bank examiner and bank commissioner, charged with the duty of administering these laws, a few of the most important changes which I deem it advisable to make are stated here. The present law should be amended, giving the bank commissioner the right to pass upon the personal character and qualifications of men desiring to organize banks, and the right to exercise discretion concerning the advisability of establishing a bank in any locality in the state, having reference to the banking needs of such locality. The commissioner should have more authority to enforce the legal demands which he finds it necessary to make on banks at times, to correct irregular, unsafe and illegal practices. I have found myself unable at times, to do the things which I felt ought to be done, because of the limited authority given to the commissioner by law. I recommend the passage of a law providing for establishing savings banks or the segregation of savings deposits from the other deposits of the banks and trust companies of the state." The commissioner adds: "The banking institutions of the state never have been in a more satisfactory condition during the past eight years than they are to-day."

Bankers to Attend Texas Group Meetings

Some of the most prominent bankers of Texas together with a number of prominent financiers from northern and eastern cities will make a tour of the Lone Star state during the month of February to attend the various group meetings. The party will have a special train. Beginning at Dallas, February 11th, the train will visit seven cities, ending at Fort Worth the morning of February 23d. Following is a list of the intermediate stops: Houston, February 13th; Corpus Christi, February 15th; Austin, February 17th; Waco, February 18th; Ballinger, February 20th and Cleburn, February 22nd.

Daring Robbery

When C. T. Brown, assistant cashier of the Bank of Mounds, Okla., answered a back door knock in the bank the morning of January 24th, he was confronted by three masked men who commanded him to walk into the bank and open the safe. As there was no help in sight, Mr. Brown delivered over about $3,500 in currency and the robbers fled. Oddly enough at the time that this news reached Oklahoma City, the capital, the bank robbery bill was being considered by the legislature. The report was read to the lawmakers and the stringent bank robber bill was passed and sent to the governor for his approval.

Prominent Financier Dead

A cable message came from Paris last week announcing the death of J. C. O'Connor, a pioneer Texan, early day railroad constructor and important financial figure in the South. Although he had resided in Paris for nine years he called Dallas his home and much of his property is located there. He was interested in a number of banks in Texas and one of his properties was the private bank of O'Connor and Kahler of New York City. Mr. O'Connor was born in Fort Wayne, Ind., 67 years ago. He started in business as a telegraph operator, being associated with Thomas A. Edison. Before coming of age O'Connor went to Idaho and Montana to work. Finding other fields more attractive than telegraphy he engaged in mining and in running a stage line. He left Idaho at the age of 21 years with $10,000 and went to Texas where he entered into partnership with his father and a brother in constructing the Houston and Texas Central railroad. Finishing this work he went to Paris, where he rested for three years and indulged his love for art. He returned to Dallas in 1870 and purchased the City Bank, afterward the City National Bank. He was interested with J. B. Wilson in large cattle and land holdings and later secured holdings in many banks throughout Texas. When the Galveston jetties were constructed Mr. O'Connor and his brother secured the contract and did the work. One of the notable characteristics of Mr. O'Connor was his constant desire to help young

Dallas Chapter A. I. B.

The Dallas, Tex. Chapter of the American Institute of Banking now is quartered in its new club rooms and its affairs are in a thriving condition. The Dallas chapter is the largest in the South, having 125 members with a special correspondence department for the benefit of bank employees in other Texas towns that are too small to maintain chapters. This chapter was established in 1909 and since then chapters have been formed in Houston, San Antonio and Fort Worth. The officers of the Dallas chapter for the year 1913 are: President, Stewart D. Beckley; vice-president, A. B. Kendrick; secretary, C. T. Dean; treasurer, Robert Williams; executive committee, W. G. O'Connel, George L. Hern, W. P. Metcalf, W. H. Burch, W. Roy Breg, J. W. Massie and J. L. Crosthwait. During the past winter the chapter has conducted its most successful series of educational lectures, the course as it has been carried out being briefly outlined as follows: "Wealth and Money," three lectures covering wealth, exchange and money, money and currency, bank evolution and foreign and American banking; "Banks and Banking," three lectures covering bank organization and bank administration (national and state). Law, "contracts," two lectures covering agency trusteeship, and two lectures covering sales and bailments. The chapter meets every Tuesday night for instruction and practically all the members are enrolled in the classes. The bankers of Dallas have taken a keen interest in the work of the chapter and have been very liberal in their moral and financial support of the enterprise.

PROSPEROUS ARIZONA BANK

Among the prosperous, up-to-date banking institutions of the Southwest, a prominent position is occupied by the First National of Douglas, Arizona. This bank was purchased by B. A. Packard and T. E. Pollock in May, 1908. In May, 1909, the capital was increased from $50,000 to $100,000 and people largely interested in the Calumet and Arizona Mining Co. became interested; November, 1909, E. W. Graves became cashier, resigning the assistant cashiership of the Consolidated National of Tucson, Arizona, to assume the office. Directors and officers are as follows: B. A. Packard, president, one of the most successful stockmen in that section; L. W. Powell, vice-president, formerly vice-president and manager of the Calumet and Arizona Mining Co., now located in Los Angeles, Cal.; T. E. Pollock, director, is president of the Arizona Central Bank of Flagstaff, and is one of the foremost bankers of the state; James Wood, superintendent of the Calumet and Arizona Smelter in Douglas; Geo. Dawe, Chief Clerk of Calumet and Arizona Smelter in Douglas; E. W. Graves, cashier.

The bank has enjoyed a steady growth. Deposits on June 30, 1910, were $400,442; at the last call of the comptroller they were $759,588, The conservative policy pursued in the management of the bank has gained for it the confidence of the general public and its customers, which has been an important factor in its growth and development.

KANSAS BANKERS ASSOCIATION

The end of 1912 found the Kansas Bankers Association with 1,118 members, of which 1,043 are Kansas banks—833 state and 210 national. The other 75 members consist of St. Joe and Kansas City, Mo., banks, Kansas building and loan associations and other financial institutions.

There are 903 state banks in Kansas, 833 of which are members of the association. Nearly all of the national banks in the state are members (210 out of 211).

He still is connected with the Security State of Rockwell, Iowa, and the First National of Marcus, Iowa. He is still associated with Greenfield and Crumpton, grain.

Otto E. Naegele Retires

Difference of opinion as to policy is said to be one reason for the retirement of Otto E. Naegele as vice-president of the Metropolitan National. He was president of the Germania and cashier when it was united in April, 1911, with the Metropolitan. He organized the Germania in 1892, and for twenty-seven years was connected with the banking business before he resigned. Mr. Naegele has worked without much vacation for thirty-seven years and expects to take a rest. From 1876 to 1886 he was superintendent of the money order division of the post office. He was born in New Ulm and when only four years old passed through the Indian massacres of southern Minnesota.

Would Have Bankers Take Examination

Kelsey S. Chase, state superintendent of banks in Minnesota, wants men who wish to become state bankers to qualify by examination, as lawyers or physicians who want diplomas. He has prepared a legislative bill to create a state board of five bankers to examine candidates. The state superintendent and the public examiners are to be two, the other three to be named by the governor. The house committee on banking has recommended for passage a uniform negotiable instrument law.

President C. P. DeLaittre of the State Bankers Association and G. H. Richards, secretary, appeared before the committee, and urged the passage of the uniform negotiable instrument law and other uniform laws affecting banking. Mr. DeLaittre, who is an Aitkin banker, formally was invited to appear before the committee at any time.

Mr. Chase also has drawn a bill calling for bonds from every bank employee, and the designation by the bank superintendent of depositories for state banks' surplus funds. The bill was to be examined by a subcommittee of the house on banks and banking.

last two calls just prepared by the state bank examiner at Mitchell. In both classes of banks the increase in all figures is regarded a good one. The amount due from banks has been decreased to a marked extent, the figures reaching the sum of $3,047,346.25 for all the banks. The loans and discounts, embracing all kinds of securities for state and private banks, amount to $55,957,438.68, and for national banks, $27,028,368.03, making a total increase of $3,473,357.39 for the former and $1,777,786.02 for the latter. The state and private banks show an increased expense of $515,303.76, while the national banks show none. The bills payable for state banks show a decrease of $596,014.57, and the national banks, $268,500. Undivided profits make a fine showing, $1,212,034.65 for the state and private banks, and $304,118.75 for the nationals. Deposits subject to check, savings deposits and cashiers' checks indicate a large increase over the September call. For the state and private banks they amount to $24,104,170.67, and for the national banks the same items show $13,553,773.23, showing an increase of $700,544.09 for the state and private banks and $996,602.21 for the national banks. The combined figures of the state, private and national banks and the trust companies, show loans and discounts amounting to $71,816,294.50, an increase of $4,272,479.87; undivided profits of $4,686,839.88, an increase of $1,544,793.46; deposits subject to check, savings deposits and certified checks of $41,500,686, showing an increase og $1,823,575. The time certificates of deposit in all banks amount to $38,215,863.42. The total due banks amounts to $7,414,650.80, a decrease of $139,857.68. The report shows there are 497 state banks, fourteen private banks, twelve trust companies and 104 national banks, the nationals having increased one and the state banks having lost three since the September call.

Co-operative Banking

Co-operative banking as practiced abroad may get a footing in Minnesota as the result of a bill introduced in the legislature by a senator for an appropriation of $5,000 to send two representatives of the state board who will join the commission appointed by the Southern Commercial Congress. Every state is to send delegates, it is expected. Half the states have provided for the trip.

"In Minnesota we have the co-operative creamery, the co-operative store, the co-operative elevator and similar industries," said J. C. Caldwell, head of the great co-operative system in operation at Lakefield, Minn. "But we have no way of extending the co-operative banking system. Our present laws will not permit the incorporation of a co-operative bank.

"We know that in the old country the co-operative banks have proved a success. But we do not know in just what manner they are operated.

"For this reason the Southern Commercial Congress proposed sending a commission to the old countries to investigate their system. This American commission will sail form New York on the Saxonia of the Cunard line April 26th. Eight days will be spent in Italy, five in Austria, five in Hungary, ten in Germany, ten in Denmark and Sweden, ten in Belgium and Holland, eight in France and eight in England."

Bankers in the South

Basking, pronounced "bahsking," is what some Minneapolis bankers are reported from Kingsville, Texas, to have been doing lately. Edwin Chamberlain, brother of Mrs. Henrietta M. King, took the bankers to his sister's ranch. As the estate is 1,200,000 acres there was room for several "bahsks" apiece in the broiling sun for the bankers. Manager Robert J. Kleberg showed the financiers from the chilly north how to handle 500,000 head of livestock. It was different from handling depositors. The bankers chased wolves, also, which is different from chasing the elusive dollar, say the Minneapolis men. They have been shooting ducks and hunting wild pigs. On an automobile tour through other parts of southern Texas the party became interested especially in a new town, Mission, established three years ago by John Conway, Minneapolis. C. T. Jaffray, vice-president of the First National; E. W. Decker, president of the Northwestern National; John Birkholz, string banker in North Dakota, home on the wing most of the time, and T. F. Baxter, Boston, completed the party.

In 1911, 1,011 policies were written and $26,109 was collected in premiums. Losses for 1912 were $57,936.69. The state company paid 55 cents on the dollar. It was a hard year for hail companies. The office has had recommendation that the rate be as low as 5 cents an acre. Nearly every acre would have to be insured to make the rate practical, the commissioner said.

The Lake County of Madison, S. D., has increased capital from $50,000 to $75,000.

George P. Wiley, a banker of Waterville, Wash., will try to have the present legislature enact a bill suggested by the United States department of agriculture to unite national, state and county agencies in agricultural field demonstration and extension work. Mr. Wiley is chairman of the agricultural and vocational education committee of the Washington Bankers Association.

The bill would permit counties to employ men known as county agents to carry on demonstrations and aim at social improvement on the farms, the amount which any county may appropriate to this work being limited to $1,200 per annum. The agents are to be supervised by the state agricultural college and the United States department of agriculture. Adjoining counties may co-operate. When a county appropriates funds for this purpose the state of Washington will pay into that county a sum equal to the amount paid by the county. The plan calls for organization of the county agents into groups of 10 or more, and for the employment of a state leader by the state to supervise the work of every group so formed. In case less than 10 such agents are appointed their work may be supervised by the head of the extension department of the state college or by an official furnished by the department of agriculture.

A bill to be presented to the present session of the Washington legislature provides that tax assessments against banking stock be paid by the bank, and not by the holders of the stock as individuals. The bill will be presented by the joint committees on banks and banking of the house and senate. It has the indorsement of bankers and banking associations all over the state. "The practice of banks paying the tax assessments and charging the amount against maintenance is one that has been in use for years," said Thomas H. Brewer, president of the Fidelity National of Spokane. "It was not introduced to reduce the corporation tax, as it was in force long before there was any corporation tax; nor will the new bill legalize an illegal practice. The practice has been legalized for the last 50 years by being accepted by the comptroller of currency as the correct method of procedure. The object of the present bill is simply a formal recognition of the practice as correct. The method has been in use not only in Washington, but all over the country."

In preparing his report for the clearing house section of the American Bankers Association on total bank transactions, Jerome Thralls, manager of the Kansas City Clearing House Association, has written W. D. Vincent, manager of the Spokane clearing house and cashier of the Old National, asking for copies of the form used locally in submitting the figures and other information pertaining to the local association. The Spokane association has adopted the system of entering the amounts handled in the clearing house on one side only as the checks come in, and the manager makes affidavit that the figures sent out are correct. This is an innovation that is attracting the attention of bankers all over the country to Spokane.

A first mortgage 6 per cent bond issue of $36,500 has been negotiated by the Spokane Amateur Athletic Club with the Spokane and Eastern Trust Company. The bonds will be issued under deed of trust, dated January 15, 1913, and will be due on January 1, 1933, with option of prior payment on any semiannual interest date. They will bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum, payable semiannually. To provide for the gradual retirement of the bonds a sinking fund of 5 per cent of the club's gross earnings will be set aside monthly. It is estimated that $2,000 will be retired annually under this provision.

Not a single failure among any of the Spokane retail firms, represented by its members, and good reports of the year's business and optimistic prophecies for the future were features of the annual banquet and business meeting of the Retail Credit Men's Association in the Stone room at the Silver Grill recently. D. F. Hallahan was elected president.

Stockholders of the Spokane Interstate Fair have increased the capital stock from $30,000 to $100,000 and the additional stock will be bought by Spokane capital. Present stockholders will take most of the issue.

More than a million dollars in domestic money orders were taken in at the Spokane postoffice and almost two million dollars were paid out for domestic money orders in 1912. The office issued 124,993 domestic and 10,265 foreign money orders and paid 181,091 domestic orders and 669 international money orders.

Manufacturing has begun in the big $1,250,000 plant of the International Portland Cement Company at Trent, six miles east of the Spokane city limits. In the next few weeks shipments will be made, a number of contracts having been closed for cement at an early date, in addition to special orders from local contractors and builders. The plant has a capacity of 1,800 barrels daily.

EDMONTON NEWS

French capitalists, including Mr. Charles Decroix of the Banque Verne-Decroix, Lille, and Count Louis G. DeKermor of Paris, now a resident of Edmonton, are organizing a company with a stated capitalization of $1,000,000, to operate building material plants, such as a brickyard, glassworks and woodworking factory, also engaging in contracting and building. The field of operation will be the province of Alberta and eastern British Columbia.

It is officially announced by Count De Kermor that the company will erect apartment houses for the accommodation of tenants who do not intend to become permanent residents. In addition the corporation will engage in other financial enterprises and it is expected that a large amount of French capital will be invested in western securities.

"We have closed a contract with a wealthy insurance company by which we will be able to give absolute protection to our customers," Count De Kermor said. "We will be in a position to do this without increasing the rate of interest quoted at present by other house-building concerns. The company will not exact any initial cash payments and in no event will the home-builder be required to make monthly payments in excess of the amount of rent he is paying. Every installment will be applied in payment of the property bought until the entire debt is cleared. The rate of interest on deferred payments will not be more than 8 per cent."

Mr. Decroix, who is assisting in organizing the company, the directorate of which is to be composed of men who have made successes of their own business, expressed himself as much impressed with the advantages and opportunities afforded in Edmonton and the surrounding district for carrying out the plan briefly outlined in the foregoing, saying:

"The rapid growth of western Canada has created abnormal conditions in the cities and towns. The builders have not been able to supply the demand for stores and residences. When one recalls that Edmonton, to-day a metropolitan city of 60,000 souls, had a population of about 8,000 eight years ago, it becomes apparent that house building must continue for years to provide homes for the people to say nothing about the increases we naturally may expect in the meantime.

"It is hardly conceivable that within sixteen years what was then a bald prairie, with a few log houses here and there, these densely populated districts with modern conveniences and municipal improvements have come into being in the province of Alberta. What it will be in the next 16 years the mind fails to grasp. In fact, no one is in position to say what might come to pass within the next five years."

Mr. Decroix predicted that the opening of the Panama canal will bring the most desirable immigrants of European countries to the Pacific coast, from southern California north to British Columbia, and that the completion of the transcontinental railroads through the Yellowhead Pass of the Canadian Rockies will afford means of distributing them over the prairie provinces.

"I am looking forward to a far more important movement of immigration to the western country than is recorded in the history of previous periods in the last fifty years. While the cities will receive many, I am of the belief that the large majority will go into the farming districts, where land may be acquired by homesteading, pre-emption or purchase. Agriculture is the backbone of this or any other country. We all depend upon the farmer and we should see to it that he receives fair compensation for his labor and investment."

A PRECEDENT FOR HIGH PRICES

In a paper entitled "The Investor and the Gold Supply," published in the February Lippincott's, Edward Sherwood Mead, the financial expert, points out that this is not the first experience the world has had with high prices.

"The prices of 1911, measured by the quotations of forty years ago, are extremely moderate," he tells us. "The highest prices ever reached since accurate records have been kept were in 1873, when the average of 45 staple articles of commerce stood at 111 per cent, of the average from 1867 to 1877, which was taken as the standard. From this point, during the next twenty years, prices rapidly declined, until in 1896, when the lowest point was reached, they stood at only 61 per cent of the standard, a decline of 50 points in twenty-three years. This fall of prices was primarily due to a marked falling off in the production of gold, which began in 1865 and continued until the lowest point was reached in 1883. While the output of gold mines was declining, industry and trade continued to advance, and the result was a very large increase in the demand for gold, falling upon a stationary or declining supply, with the result that prices suffered the unparalleled decline already indicated.

"This fall of prices coincided with a series of disastrous commercial panics, followed by periods of long depression, in which bankruptcies were numerous, the number of unemployed large, prices declining, and trade stagnant and depressed. During this period the question of the fall of prices agitated the world even more seriously than the difficulties connected with the rise of prices perplex it to-day."

In conclusion we are reminded that "the past ten years have been years of world-wide and abounding prosperity, in which every class has participated. It is true that real wages—that is, the purchasing power of money wages over the necessities of life—have declined; but, on the other hand, the aggregate of wages received owing to the abundant opportunities for employment has been far greater than it was during the low-priced years which preceded. The producing classes have prospered everywhere. The value of land has advanced greatly, and the farmer in every country in the world has established his financial position on a basis of prosperity."

GARDEN AND FARM ALMANAC

All of the back-to-the-farm fellows should send at once for a copy of "Garden and Farm Almanac," published by Doubleday, Page & Co., Garden City, N. Y. It covers everything that could happen in the country about which one could want advice, from raising ducks to killing wireworms. It covers new farm legislation, dogs, poultry, seed testing and sings the new gospel of forward (not back) to the land. It costs but 25 cents and contains 250 well illustrated, well written pages. The advertisements are worth many times the cost. It is a practical handbook for everyday use.

The Horse-Cost of Farming

The next cost to be cut down is Horse Cost. To feed our 25,000,000 horses requires one-fifth of all our farm land.

120,000,000 tons of food a year go to feed Horses and Mules. All told, the annual Horse-and-Mule cost is more than

$2,000,000,000

This vast expense, which has become excessive, is now being reduced by the use of the

RUMELY OILPULL TRACTOR LA PORTE IND.

One of these tractors, while burning 2 to 4 gallons of kerosene, can plow one acre of ground. It can plow from 25 to 50 acres in a day and night. It gives cheap power for a hundred uses.

Accounts of Iowa banks invited. Reserve agents for national banks

Governor Clarke in his inaugural address commended highly the report of the state tax commission. The governor declares he is in sympathy with the recommendations. This should be pleasing to Iowa bankers, for the taxation committee of the Iowa Bankers Association has declared its approval of this report and its hopes that the legislature will adopt the report as submitted.

Des Moines, Jasuary 30th.—It already is apparent that the present session of the Iowa legislature is going to break all reeords in point of number of bills introduced. It is to be expeeted that the bills relating to banks and their regulation will be numerous. A number of these measures have been introdueed. The most important up to this time is the measure putting the private banks under state supervision. Senator Thomas introdueed this bill in the senate and Representative MeHose in the house. Probably by the time this is in print, others will be ready for committee aetion.

However, the private bankers are not going to submit to a measure of this sort without protest—at least some of them are not. The latter held a meeting at Des Moines last week. M. W. Fritz of the Farmers of Manson was a leading spirit in declaring that the legislature has no more business to be supervising banks than to be putting groeery stores under state supervision. The private bankers voted to oppose the enactment of the proposed law at all opportunities. There are in Iowa, however, some of the private bankers who believe state supervision would serve to help them. Among these is Grant MePherrin of the Drake Park Bank of Des Moines, one of the best known finaneiers in Iowa, who says he is for the bills if they are drawn properly.

Among the other bank bills thus far introdueed may be mentioned one by Wilson of Clinton in the senate providing that offieers and directors of banks may draw salaries not to exceed $10 per diem; one by Clarkson of Monroe to prohibit any bank officers from signing individual bonds; one by Malmberg of Jasper in the senate providing that treasurers of the first and seeond elass eities may place city money on deposit in any bank that files eertified bond; by Heald in the senate abolishing the offiee of school treasurer.

Committee on Banks and Banking

The eommittee on banks and banking in the Iowa house of representatives is declared to be a good one. W. J. Dixon of Sac, a retail lumberman, is ehairman. The other members are Representatives Manning of Story, banker; Erickson of Lyon, bank cashier; Grout of Blaek Hawk, real estate; Carson of Davis, bank eashier; Brady of Dallas, farmer; Thayer of Franklin, farmer; Jones of Diekinson, ex-sheriff; Halgrims of Humboldt, real estate; Buston of Warren, farmer and banker; LeRoy of Delaware, banker; Anderson of Greene, banker; Elwood of Howard, attorney; Blackford of Henry, banker; Rone of Worth, farmer and insuranee; Kelso of Jaekson, banker; Koontz of Johnson, banker; Rohwer of Ida, merehant; Hazen of Pottawattamie, real estate; Trumbauer of Keokuk, physician; Griggs of Seott, seeretary and treasurer Seeurity Investment Co.; Workman of Mills, ex-county reeorder.

Bankers Visit Des Moines

The legislative opening has resulted in the visit to Des Moines of many Iowa bankers. It is not possible to give all of them but some of those who have ealled upon Des Moines bankers reeently are as follows: Cashier H. P. Lanphere, Citizens National, Grinnell; President W. J. Beans, Oskaloosa National; President M. M. Head, First National, Jefferson; Cashier P. K. Holbrook, Savings and Trust, Omaha; Cashier M. H. Johnson, Farmers Savings, Alleman; President W. H. Unique Contest

The Leavitt and Johnson National has been eondueting a unique contest in and about its home at Waterloo. About the middle of Deeember, Mrs. E. O. Roberts of LaPorte City sent the bank a deposit of $1 to be put in the name of —— Franeis Roberts, the first name to be supplied by the bank. The offieers of the bank found themselves unable to agree upon a name so they submitted it to popular choiee via a eontest. Prizes from $10 down were offered for the best name, the same to be aecompanied by a statement of 500 words on why the name should be chosen. This contest attraeted wide attention and brought in many suggestions. Even then, however, the bankers were unable to decide upon any given name but deeided that the first name should begin with G sinee that seemed the most popular. Aeeordingly these names were submitted to the mother, following the eontest: Gerald,

Garth, Gordon, Greeley, Gabriel, Gwenn, Grant, Gladon. From this list the mother must make her selection as the bank is entirely unable to agree upon any one of them.

New Building for Fort Dodge Bank

The directors of the Fort Dodge National have taken preliminary steps towards the construction of a handsome six-story bank building to be constructed probably in 1914. At the annual meeting last week, the bank officials were instructed to purchase the Cheney and Seymour property on Central Avenue for $50,000. The new structure will be one of the finest in Fort Dodge and will prove a first-class investment, so all indications point out.

Bank at Osage Reopens

The David Bank at Osage opened last week after the state bank examiners had been in charge for a brief interval. Cashier Hammond took his departure rather unexpectedly one day and the state department was called in to make an investigation. However, Mr. Hammond returned, made his accounts correct and the bank examiner permitted the institution to reopen. President George Grossmann is looking for another cashier, however.

Supreme Court Upholds Bank

The supreme court in a decision last week sustained the First National of Chariton in a case growing out of the failure of the institution some years ago. George C. Rankin, the receiver of the bank, secured a judgment against the city of Chariton for $13,499.76 in 1908 as the amount owing the bank from the city. The city was short of funds and the bank secured an order compelling the spreading of a tax levy sufficient to make up the judgment. The lower court sustained the action but the case was appealed and the supreme court now affirms the lower court.

Cedar Rapids Banker Visits Des Moines

E. R. Moore of the American Trust and Savings of Cedar Rapids was in Des Moines last week renewing acquaintances with the members of the Iowa legislature with whom he was for two or three sessions actively associated. Mr. Moore was chairman of the committee on appropriations at the last session. He is convinced that the state should enlarge the capitol grounds and believes that the present session of the legislature should take steps in that direction.

Iowa Notes

The Farmers Savings at Morrison has commenced an action for $50,000 damages against W. R. Jameson, well-known Waterloo banker. It is alleged that Jameson gave E. A. Boggs a letter of credit and that the plaintiff, acting in accordance with its terms, loaned the said Boggs $50,000. Afterwards Boggs failed to pay up and in fact some rather unusual proceedings resulted from the effort of the bank to recover. Now the bank lays its misfortune to the author of the letter of credit.

Aubrey Reynolds, nephew of George M. of Chicago and Arthur of Des Moines, has resigned as assistant cashier of the Des Moines National to become assistant cashier of the Security Loan and Savings at Los Angeles. Mr. Reynolds will go west early in February.

Joseph Sartori, veteran banker and philanthropist at Cedar Falls, died last week at the home of his son, Joseph Sartori, Jr., well-known banker at Los Angeles. He had been ill for weeks and was taken to Los Angeles in hopes that the change might afford relief. Although he stood the trip nicely, the sufferer failed to improve. The body was brought to Cedar Falls for burial.

Herman Pierce, assistant cashier of the Mechanicsville Savings at Mechanicsville, has been elected assistant cashier of the First National at Champaign, Ill. Mr. Pierce formerly was with the Cedar Rapids National and the Merchants National of that same city.

Francis Gilkey has been made assistant cashier of the Cedar Falls National at Cedar Falls.

The officials and directors of the Northboro National enjoyed a banquet at the Northboro hotel one night recently. Twenty-one attended and the turkey and trimmings soon disappeared. Cashier F. T. Nye was the happiest one present for he had just received notice of a handsome increase in salary.

The German Savings, Des Moines, seriously is considering a new structure so that it may more adequately handle its increasing business. One property on Fifth Street is being mentioned favorably. This street now contains the new Central State, the new Mechanics Savings, the Century Savings and the Commercial Savings.

Arthur Reynolds, president of the Des Moines National, has taken his family and departed as usual to spend the winter at Pasadena.

Cashier L. H. Van Alstine of Gilmore City was a Des Moines visitor this past week.

The State Savings at Chariton has increased its capital stock from $35,000 to $50,000.

President W. N. Gilbert of State Center called at the Iowa National, Des Moines, Friday.

The First National and the Gilmore City Savings at Gilmore City have merged and will be conducted under the name of the former.

R. A. Countryman has succeeded George Bartholomew as vice-president of First National at Preston.

"The Backbone of the Transit System"

84-2 (First National Bank of Shreveport, La.) purchased a Burroughs Transit Machine nearly two years ago. This is what they say about the Numerical System and the Burroughs:

"We could not devise a plan whereby our remittance forms would be improved in neatness or the work more accurate.

"We feel safe in saying that our operating expenses are cut in half.

"The system as a whole is the height of our ambition and the Burroughs Transit Machine is the Backbone of that system."

The American Bankers' Association has approved the numerical way as the best way. And individual bankers find it best and cheapest.

Depressing six keys on a Burroughs Transit Machine writes the longest numerical bank name and address in the United States.

On a Burroughs Transit Machine only 12 strokes were required to write a certain transit item in full; on a typewriter the same item, abbreviated to the bone and with punctuation left out, required 44 strokes.

On a typewriter you have to write ciphers and spaces—on a Burroughs both are automatic.

Time costs money and the Burroughs Transit Machine will cut in half the time spent in handling Transit work in your bank.

And the same machine will handle 44 other kinds of bank figure work—it's a regular Burroughs plus a Transit machine.

Just figure up one day's cost of handling Transit work in your bank; then multiply half the cost of that time by three hundred banking days; you will know, then, how much a Burroughs Transit Machine would save you in a year.

You know what your present Burroughs will do—let us send a man to show you what this Burroughs will do—without cost or risk or obligation.

MICHIGAN PUSHING AGRICULTURAL WORK

The committee on agriculture of the Michigan Bankers Association—George E. Lawson, chairman, R. D. Graham and F. H. Williams—has sent out a circular calling for volunteer bankers to work in the good cause. The circular cites the fine results already had in North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana, and urges action. It is said that a list of strong names already has been enrolled and that a general forward-to-the-soil movement soon will be in progress.

ADDRESSES MEMBERS OF CINCINNATI CLEARING HOUSE

Jerome Thralls, manager of the Kansas City Clearing House Association, spoke before about 50 members of the Cincinnati Clearing House at the Business Men's Club on Saturday last on the same topic which he discussed before the clearing house section of the American Bankers Association at the meeting last summer in Detroit, and which attracted widespread attention in banking circles.

The subject of his address was the consecration of effort on the part of the banks of the country in the collection of out-of-town items. He suggested the association of banks in various communities for this purpose, pointing out that if the collections were made through a central agency it would mean minimum labor and expense with greater efficiency.

Practically all of the banks of the city had one or more representatives at the meeting. Considerable interest was manifested in Mr. Thrall's suggestions. W. W. Brown, president of the Cincinnati Clearing House Association, presided.

DAVENPORT CLEARING HOUSE ASSOCIATION ELECTS

At the annual meeting of the Davenport Clearing House association, J. H. Hass was re-elected president and Ed. Kaufman vice-president. W. T. Brownlie of the Citizens Trust and Savings Bank was elected manager.

Victor A. Palmer on Analysis of Incoming Transit Letter

This is the prize paper read at the national convention of the American Institute of Banking and will be of interest to bankers in all parts of the country

There are a great many points to be considered in analyzing an account, such as the amount of coin received, amount of "clearing checks deposited," "number of clearing checks deposited," "number of transit checks deposited," value and number of own checks paid, premium or discount on central reserve cities checks deposited, exchange costs on transit checks deposited.

The points affected, however, by the adoption of the American Bankers Association's numerical system are the listing of the transit and clearing checks, but it does not materially affect the latter, with the exception that the analysis clerk necessarily must know the clearing house numbers on the banks in his own city to distinguish these checks from out-of-town items. We may therefore eliminate everything except transit items deposited, which leaves two points to be discussed.

First the number of days the item will be outstanding, and second the exchange cost if any. If one looks over the American Bankers Association's system of recording a transit check, it at first appears somewhat complicated, but a few minutes' study and everything is very simple. The United States has been divided into five groups as follows:

Eastern States	50	to	59
Southeastern States	60	to	69
Central States	70	to	79
Southwestern States	80	to	89
Western States	90	to	99

The numbers from one to forty-nine inclusive were given to the forty-nine large cities in order of size. So we see that each state has been given a distinctive number and then with the exception of the reserve cities already accounted for the banks in the towns were numbered according to size.

For some years before the American Bankers Association decided to give every bank in the United States a definite number, an increasing proportion of large banks throughout the country, finding that their transit items were growing almost daily, and consequently the expense of handling these checks was becoming greater, decided that some simpler means of recording the items must be discovered. And it was here that the adding machine made its début in the transit department.

Each bank had its own particular number for other banks it did business with, as of course it was easier to record the number "802" on the adding machine as the drawee bank, and the number "7" as the depositor, than write out "the Citizens National Bank of Roseburg, Oregon, and William Jones and Company." The numerical way required less time and produced a neater letter.

The banks throughout the country who were watching for up-to-date methods were quick to see the advantage of this new way. But what was the result? The more banks that started using the system, the more complicated it became, for a bank had a hundred different numbers given it by a hundred different correspondents. Something had to be done and so it was that the American Bankers Association appointed a committee to look into the matter with the result that the present system was adopted.

The clerk analyzing the account of a bank using its own arbitrary number had no way of telling what the items were without receiving the letter before it was assorted by the incoming mail department, for a great many banks did not supply their correspondents with a "key" and so it became more and more difficult to analyze under such conditions.

To banks not located in reserve cities, the numerical system will, to no great extent, affect their analyzing department. Their "transit items" generally are handled by their reserve agent at par, and of course can be charged as reserve on the day forwarded.

The reserve city banks who send items to their reserve agents in central reserve cities invariably have their items handled at par, and they are, of course, charged as reserve the day on which sent out. For instance, we will take a bank in San Francisco: almost all of the items collected on eastern, southeastern, central and southwestern states are handled through some large eastern city where an account is carried.

VICTOR A. PALMER
Transit Manager First National, San Francisco, California

This eliminates the necessity of watching for prefix numbers from 50 to 89; and so, in reality, to any Pacific Coast bank the only prefix numbers necessary to watch are from 90 to 99, and a few of the cities that are included in the 49 numbers. However, in case of one or two exceptional accounts it is somewhat desirable to bear in mind the fact that the eastern banks give a par agreement merely because a sufficient balance is maintained. Therefore in analyzing an account, to be absolutely correct, the clerk should really know if the item deposited on Jackson, Missouri, cost his St. Louis correspondent exchange. The St. Louis bank will take this into consideration when analyzing this account. Of course it is not only extremely difficult, but almost impossible, for a clerk in the West to know all the charges of the eastern banks, and vice versa. For this reason a great many analysis departments do not consider this question, unless for exceptionally large items.

The majority of the banks have certain cities through which they clear towns in that state at a fixed rate of exchange. This system is getting more popular every day, and in a great measure does away with the exchange problem of trying to discover what a certain town, say one in Texas, charges. The clerk knows that any check with prefix "SS" is sent to El Paso, or Houston, or some other definite city, and that the items are handled through this point at a fixed charge rate. In some states the number of towns that charge exceed the number of par points. In this case the points to remember are the par points, and in the other states only a few towns charge, in which case it is easier to remember the number of charge points. Under any circumstances, it will be necessary to remember, even in the most active states, the more active numbers.

When a clerk has looked up a certain number, say, four or five times, he will get familiar with it. There is no questioning the fact, that, for say a couple of weeks, it will take a clerk longer to analyze an account, but after a little study the time spent will not be any more than heretofore. But this condition will prevail under any circumstances. The clerk has been used to analyzing a certain way, and changing from one system to another is bound to cause some confusion at first.

In breaking in a new man on the work, however, it is just as easy for a new clerk to be taught that 92-116 charges exchange, as it is for him to learn the name of the town.

It repeatedly occurs that a clerk registering transit items on bank letters, or a depositor in filling in deposit tags, will leave out the state in which the drawee bank is located. This causes the analysis department more or less trouble. It may be a very small town and its whereabouts not known, or perhaps a name something like Springfield or Pittsburg. Consequently this will necessitate a good deal of extra work, for many states have towns bearing names like these. The American Bankers Association's system does away with this trouble as the number gives the name of the bank, the town and the state. It only requires a few hours to learn the forty-eight numbers of all the states, and the forty-nine numbers alloted to the large cities. Items in a very small town say, in a neighboring state, come far and few between, and even if the name of the town were written it is questionable if the analysis clerk would know what the exchange charge cost. Then again, it is quicker to look up a number than it is a name. The percentage of business that a bank handles outside of its own state is small, and constant working on the numerical system will make it easier.

Necessity is the mother of invention. The analysis clerk will have the opportunity to discover new ways and means for the quickest method of analyzing an account. For the beginner a numerical list of the states can be posted on a card and set up in front of him, and following the name of the bank should appear the exchange cost, if any.

NEBRASKA'S 1913 GROUP MEETINGS

Secretary Wm. B. Hughes of Nebraska has this to say on the 1913 group meetings in his state:

"Group meeting season will soon be upon us and we are making an effort to help the group officers make things move.

"The present plan is for a meeting of the presidents and secretaries of each group along about the end of February, the expenses to be borne by the association.

"One proposition that might be considered with profit is to arrange three or more meetings upon consecutive days, making possible a special Pullman and a large attendance of visitors, and possibly the engagement of one or more speakers to address each of the groups and thus help in the preparation of group programs.

"One word about expenses of the association—in other years we have refrained from doing things like this that we knew would quicken things, for fear of depleting our funds; but now the organization is of such a size, and its work has so increased that these matters cannot be allowed to drag on account of trying to handle them by correspondence, and we are approaching them in the proper, even if more expensive, way, being sure that what the members want most in their association is LIFE."

HOW GOVERNMENT COULD INSURE DEPOSITS

Editor CHICAGO BANKER: A. F. Peeples, an expert in the treasury department, before the house committee on expenditures, has declared that if the government had been charging 2 per cent interest since 1886 on all money in goverment depositaries, the interest would have amounted to $100,000,000. Just imagine one hundred million dollars, and this during only about twenty-five years, one-half the period of the existence of our national banking system. If we estimate the interest during the first half of that period at only $50,000,000, and add this, we have a total of $150,000,000, lost to the government, and why?

The government now is investigating every conceivable financial institution for the purpose of determining where lies the money power; who are the manipulators of a financial system, by which some derive an enormous benefit at the expense of the people. These investigations are praiseworthy, but why does the government not investigate itself, to discover the great wrong that has existed right under our noses for half a century. Let them ask the following questions:

First—How much was lost to the people owing to the neglect of charging the banks two per cent interest on government deposits from the time these banks were organized?

Second—Who is responsible for this neglect?

Third—Who had the benefit of these deposits?

Fourth—In what banks and localities were these deposits made?

Fifth—Were they made mostly in large banks, or were they distributed over the whole country, and in what proportions?

Sixth—Were the U. S. depositories chosen and favored owing to their political pull, or how were they designated?

To sift these questions to the bottom will bring better results than all other investigations now or hereafter. When the banks are scrambling for deposits at from 2 to 4 per cent interest, no one can make the excuse that the banks would refuse the U. S. deposit at 2 per cent interest. All would be glad to pay it if given the chance. Some banks consider the prestige of the advertisement "U. S. Depository" alone worth 2 per cent.

For years, time has been wasted and millions spent to devise a plan under which bank panics would be prevented. All so far proposed was to grind out more currency, of a kind not as sound as that of the present, and which only would create more distrust. The root of the evil is found in unsecured deposits. If these were insured there would be no more fear of the deposits than there now is of the national bank notes. Every bank panic was precipitated, not by a lack of currency, but by the lack of the insurance of the depositors. In the 1907 bank panic, there was more money in banks as well as in the hands of the people than ever before. And yet we had a panic, owing to the failure of a half-dozen New York banks. Even then the people outside of New York were hardly affected, but the banks of New York and those outside got into a panic, held the lid down for fear the depositors would get into a panic and draw out their money.

If the government had charged the national banks from the time of their existence 2 per cent interest on U. S. deposits, and had secured their deposits, as it did its notes, it could have paid all losses to depositors—which were only about $50,000,000—during this time, and would now have a fund of $100,000,000 kept as a reserve. In this manner we would never have had a bank panic, and the safest banking system on earth.

JOHN SCHUETTE.
Manitowoc (Wis.) Savings Bank, Jan. 30, 1913.

COL. LOWRY'S REMODELED BANKING ROOM

The Lowry National, at Atlanta, has occupied its handsomely remodeled and enlarged banking rooms in the Equitable building.

In line with its purpose to keep the pace of modern progress in the matter of banking facilities, the officers of the Lowry National Bank in 1912 underwent a process of remodeling at an expense of $55,000, with the result that it is to-day one of the most modern and best-equipped banking plants, not only in the South, but in the country.

The modern banking plan of placing the lobby in the center, surrounded by the different departments and with the officers at their desks in plain view and easy access, has wonderfully increased the facilities for the transaction of business. All departments of the bank are in plain view of the officers, and all the officers may be easily reached by anyone desiring to transact business.

The furnishings of the new offices are all of marble, bronze and steel. The floors, wainscotings and customers' desks are of Georgia marble; the fixtures and upper grill work are of bronze, and the furnishings throughout—desks, file cases and all—are of steel, while cork floors contribute to comfort and absence of noise in the offices.

Col. Robert J. Lowry is a far-outstanding figure in southern financial circles. He has been in Atlanta "since before the war" and is a recognized leader. He has been president of the American Bankers Association, the highest position of honor in banking life.

WOULD AMEND CALIFORNIA BANK ACT

A bill making many amendments to the California bank act has been introduced by Senator Newton W. Thompson of Los Angeles. It fixes the minimum capitalization of commercial and savings banks as follows: Cities of from 5,000 to 25,000 population, $50,000; cities of 100,000, $200,000; cities of 200,000 or more, $300,000. The bill provides that the aggregate paid-up capital and surplus of savings banks or the reserve fund of savings banks not having a capital stock must equal the following percentages of their deposit liabilities: Ten per cent up to and including $10,000,000. An additional 5 per cent of any excess over $10,000,000 up to and including $15,000,000; an additional 2½ per cent of any excess over $15,000,000 up to and including $20,000,000; an additional 1 per cent of any excess over $20,000,000. The bill provides that the deposits shall not be increased if the proportion is not maintained.

Senator Hewett of Los Angeles introduced a measure providing that no public official shall deposit more than 20 per cent of the state funds which are to be banked in any one bank.

SNELSON CHESNEY was his first choice and he succeeded where others had failed. Chesney has an enviable record and a strong acquaintance in Illinois, Missouri and Iowa.

NO use going into his record nor telling of the bank-building he's done, for being a young man his "past" insistently protrudes into the foreground.

ILLINOISANS particularly will recall the jump the "National Stock Yards National of National Stock Yards," (Gee! what a title-address) took under his presidency.

THERE was the "call-of-the-wild" in his blood and he quit banking for business, believing it to be more profitable. That's worn off, however, and he's now back in the field.

WHEN Chesney calls, put up your hands. He's out after western business in a business-like way for a bank with a business policy and a president who knows his business.

THEY have a brand new bank down in Washington, D. C. It is the result of a kind of a bull moose movement.

JOHN POOLE, cashier of the Commercial National, and near a dozen employees and stockholders, crossed the street and, in a new location, had the Federal National, with Poole as president, going in less than a week.

CAPITAL is $500,000, all paid in promptly. Now two banks grow where one grew before.

W. B. HARRISON of Oklahoma and McLane Tilton had their portraits "top-o'-col." in the same issue of Leslie's, recently. The two top-notcher secretaries were in the right place.

WHEN you get your copy of "Savings Union Service," an entertaining monthly put out by the Savings Union Bank & Trust Co., San Francisco, you will find a neat postal enclosed on which you can send in a friend's name. The "Service" is free.

CHICAGO has the largest postal bank and does twice the largest parcel post business of any other city. Little wonder her banks are prosperous.

R. L. GURNEY, who bosses the savings department of the big Commonwealth Trust in St. Louis, has had valuable experience of the finger print system in a practical way. Hear him tell it thus:

"A FOREIGNER came in some weeks ago who spoke English with much difficulty, but we finally discovered that he wanted to draw his money from Cincinnati. He then exhibited a passbook showing a credit of several hundred dollars, but the following was stamped right across the page: 'Transactions on this account to be cash only. Not subject to check except at our counter.'

"WE wrote the Cincinnati bank asking how the man could get his money, and they replied that he would be paid provided the man's finger print agreed with the impression given when the account was opened. We then filled out a draft, had him put on his thumb print (with the aid of an ordinary rubber stamp pad), sent it to Cincinnati,—and the money came back by return mail.

"WE are sending you this information because we thought the adoption of the finger print system might interest you, especially as it is being taken up so rapidly all over the country, and also because ours was the first bank in St. Louis to use the system, as well as the first bank in the state."

DULUTH is the place of meeting for the Minnesota Bankers Association this year, probably about July 10th.

SESSIONS will be held in the Lyceum Theater and the exact date will be fixed by the council. Attendance indicated will be about 400.

THE "resident manager" of the Virginia Hot Springs hotel takes exception to what was said in this department about the railroad facilities.

"AS to the railroad connections, I beg to state that the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway is running a direct through train from New York, Philadelphia and Washington, to Hot Springs, and the service on this line is and has always been, considered good," is the way Mr. Albert disposes of that issue.

OF course, if the council members all lived in New York or even in Philadelphia, that would do, but they don't.

AS to the "two in a room," Col. Albert referred to "married folk," which is O. K., also. Further, they can come any time in May, and we thus disclaim any intention to lead the innocents astray.

THE vote will divide as between Briarcliff, Atlantic City, and Hot Springs. The information upon which previous paragraphs were based was the best in sight at the time, and most of it still is intact.

C. J. DOYLE, the new secretary of state, could have made a hit with the dear people had he sent out the automobile license plates by mail instead of express.

AVERAGE express rate is 35 cents and the average postal rate is 14 cents—a clear saving of 21 cents per set. Quite an item, Mr. Doyle.

FROM running about with Harry Paulman and other automobile good road advocates, W. G. Edens has turned serious, and at Litchfield on Wednesday, and at Springfield on Thursday, he spoke from a scriptural text.

"LUKE 3:4," it was (no need to quote for bankers, for they all read it), and relates to making "the paths straight" so that "the valley shall be filled.

THE meetings were held to further good roads, and Mr. Edens is president of the "Illinois Highway Improvement Association," hence his activity.

WE hear the New York show girls are after Rollin P. Grant, not in any naughty way, but for permits to climb the forty-five story stairway in the new bank building to reduce weight.

LEWISTON (Ida.) National directors at their annual meeting promoted Cashier William Thomson to be president and J. M. Bonner to be cashier. Mr. Bonner has been assistant cashier for three years.

J. K. McCORNACK of Spokane has been the president—a sort of non-resident president. His own business is growing and he and the directors decided to reward the two men who do the work.

THE LEWISTON NATIONAL has been growing and Mr. McCornack is very optimistic about the future of Lewiston itself. He wanted to put the bank in a position to keep up with local developments.

THE new president also is the vice-president of the Idaho Bankers Association, having been unanimously chosen at the Cœur d'Alene meeting last year. He has been a valued association worker.

FESTUS J. WADE has been elected president of the St. Louis Clearing House with A. C. F. Meyer of the South Side Bank as vice-president.

WM. W. HOXTON, the able manager, was re-elected. The committee on management contains the names of Walker Hill, Edwards Whitaker and Frank O. Watts.

THE Committee on Arbitration consists of George T. Riddle, president Franklin Bank; A. O. Wilson, vice-president State National; Breckinridge Jones, president Mississippi Valley Trust; Nelson W. McLeod, president German Savings Institution, and George A. Meyer, president International Bank.

WITH never wearying persistence, the affairs of Mexico every now and again claim space in our daily papers, and readers interested in the welfare or warfare of our neighbor country, pore over maps to find certain places, usually wishing that they knew more about them. For such people who are interested in the subject, whether or not they ever expect to travel in Mexico, there can be no better volume than "Terry's Mexico," written by T. Philip Terry, and published by Houghton, Mifflin Company. There are colored maps, and in plain, succinct, readable style, the book gives valuable information about the life and interests of the people, the natural resources of the country, and the chief events of its history. It also tells how to pronounce the Mexican names.

AN out-of-town banker, after attending a local theater where the "hero" is none other than "Col. Roosevelt," gives it as his opinion that—

A CERTAIN well-known Illinois banker (from Champaign) spends his days at St. Luke's only that he may go to the show each evening to worship "at his master's feet."

OF course this is a slander on B. F., and will be disbelieved promptly. CASHIER.

NEBRASKA GUARANTY FUND SUFFICIENT SURETY

Lincoln, Neb., January 29th.—The supreme court of this state has handed down an opinion in the case of the Farmers State Bank of Pickrell, in which the bank sought to compel the county treasurer of Gage county to deposit with the bank a pro rata share of the county's funds, without the necessity of putting up a special bond to cover the deposit, was decided in favor of the bank. The opinion of Attorney General Martin was that the state guaranty law was sufficient to cover all risk where state or county funds were deposited, the supreme court upholding the opinion of the attorney general. The State Bankers Association will pay the court expenses of getting the decision, which is quite a feather in the caps of the guaranty advocates.

JOHN W. WEEKS TO RETIRE FROM FIRM

John W. Weeks will retire from the firm of Hornblower and Weeks shortly and Ralph Hornblower will be admitted to partnership. Firm name will remain unchanged. The firm then will consist of Henry Hornblower, James J. Phelan, James H. Wainwright, John W. Prentiss, Edward L. Geary, Henry N. Sweet, Charles T. Lovering, Jr., Ralph Hornblower and Andrew S. Woods.

Atlanta, Ga.—It is reported that the Union Trust Company is the title of a new banking enterprise organizing with a capital stock of $300,000, E. J. Sprathing, George Gardon, H. W. Dillin and C. F. Stone are reported among the promoters.

The CHICAGO BANKER

A Weekly Paper Devoted to the Banking and Financial Interests of the Middle West

FEBRUARY 8, 1913

Entered as Second-Class Matter January 15, 1903, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March 3, 1879

ABOLITION OF WASH SALES

Albany, N. Y., February 6th.—Governor Sulzer and the legislature will not be dissuaded from passing the bills directed at the New York Stock Exchange, simply because that institution, in fright, has passed a resolution abolishing what are known as "wash sales." "Wash sales" is the process by which prices are run up or run down, and never operate in favor of the legitimate investor. Governor Sulzer sticks by his seven bills to curb illegitimate stock transactions on exchanges.

The provisions of the bills fathered by Governor Sulzer and offered in the senate to-day include the following:

A maximum rate of 15 per cent for call loans is established; the reporting of fictitious transactions in securities or the publishing of false representations concerning securities is made a felony; manipulation of securities for the purpose of inflating or depressing the price is forbidden and a pretended purchase or sale is made presumptive evidence of intent to defraud.

One of the bills would prohibit a broker from trading in stocks against his customers' orders, the object being to prevent a broker from taking advantage of his confidential relation with his customer for his own profit. The bill would prevent a broker misleading his customers into making purchases contrary to the broker's idea of the market and thus enabling the broker to profit by his illegitimate advice.

Another measure deals with hypothecation of the customers' securities and would prohibit a broker from receiving from a customer, ignorant of the broker's insolvency, moneys or securities except in liquidation of a debt, if the customer loses as a result of such transaction. This is designed to prevent an unscrupulous broker from continuing in business after he knows he is insolvent. The measure also would prohibit a broker from pledging a customer's stock for more than the amount due him thereon, the object being to prevent a broker from using a customer's stock as his own in the borrowing of money.

WIRE YOUR CONGRESSMAN AT ONCE

The following telegram from Joseph Chapman, chairman of the American Bankers Association Committee on Agriculture, to William G. Edens, Chicago member of the committee, was repeated to bankers all over the state by Mr. Edens.

Lever bill as amended by substitution of Page bill in senate is now before house. Urge you to wire at once and have your committee wire all congressmen from your state to support any legislation tending to enact at this session the essential features of Page and Lever bills. Also especially wire Congressmen John Lamb and Asbury F. Lever, chairman and banking member respectively of house committee on agriculture. You and your committee have the opportunity now to do most effective work for cause of agricultural development and vocational training through your influence with your members of congress.

Mr. Edens, speaking for Chairman B. F. Harris, at present an in-patient at St. Luke's, advises every banker in Illinois to get busy and wire or write congressmen and senators urging the importance of the present opportunity.

Let every member of the Illinois Bankers Association do his duty and prosperity will get such an impetus that the good effect will be felt for all time. It will put agriculture on a higher plane and more remunerative basis than ever before. Wire your congressman, Senator Cullom and the two members of congress named by Mr. Chapman. Do it now!

Mr. Cody is president of the Union Bank and Trust Company of Montgomery and vice-president of the Alabama Bankers Association. He is a zealous association worker and has attained prominence in that connection as well as in a banking way.

CHICAGO NATIONALS GAIN THIRTY-FIVE MILLION

Contrary to general expectation the Chicago Nationals, at Tuesday's call, are up nearly thirty-five millions in deposits. This was between November 26th and February 4th. In the same period they expanded their loans less than $8,500,000 and added $25,000,000 to their total cash resources.

The cash means February 4th were equal to a little more than 41 per cent of the total deposits, compared with about 38¾ per cent in November. The increase in deposits was due principally to the return of country bank balances that were drawn out during the fall to move the crops.

Deposit gains were made by the Continental and Commercial, which is up $13,000,000, and the First National, which is up $10,000,000. The Corn Exchange increased its deposits $5,500,000, the National City gained $2,500,000 and the National Bank of the Republic $1,600,000.

The same banks show the principal additions to cash means. The Continental and Commercial added $11,000,000, the First National $5,700,000, the Corn Exchange $5,000,000, the National City $1,300,000 and the Republic $1,000,000. The only noteworthy expansion in loans was in the First National—about $5,000,000.

GEORGE F. HARDIE

At the regular meeting of the board of directors of the Merchants Loan and Trust Company, held on Tuesday, George F. Hardie was elected manager of the bond department. Mr. Hardie has been with the bank for twenty-five years, and for the last eight years has been connected with the bond department.

A drastic "Blue Sky" law has been introduced in the Missouri legislature at Jefferson.

GARRARD COMLY, well known and well liked in the West, has gone with the Citizens-Central National, New York. He had been doing star work for the Eliot in Boston when it went over with the Shawmut. He was not provided for in the new line-up.

GOVERNOR SULZER hasn't pleased Wall Street by his restrictions upon stock exchange firms which "trade against customers' orders." It isn't likely to help business, already none too good.

HENRY BISCHOFF & CO., 287 Broadway, N. Y., an old private banking firm, has incorporated with $200,000 capital.

THE Detroit proceedings book has been sent out to A. B. A. members by Col. Farnsworth. It is a beautiful volume of 764 pages, well printed and carefully bound.

MEMBERS of council have congratulated its editors on the ability and promptness with which such an elaborate volume has been gotten out.

IT is a very valuable reference book for all interested in A. B. A. matters and has stenographic reports of the section meetings as well as of the main body. The membership list is correct to September 30th.

PRIVATE bankers of Ohio have asked two years to comply with the new supervisional provisions of the recently adopted constitution.

THE privates of Ohio made the usual mistake of hotly contending the whole issue —and losing all. Far better plan would have been to recognize the inevitable and to seek fair conditions. A term of from two to five years could have been obtained.

THE situation in Illinois is almost like it was in Ohio. Many want to fight the general issue and thus court drastic provisions in a new law.

THE privates would be better advised to try to control the conditions and thus get time to convert their real estate and other investments into securities and money which will pass requirements under supervision.

THIS is just one more of a long list of examples of what not to try to do in face of public opinion.

THE new Munsey Trust, at Baltimore, hasn't used the bull moose on its drafts as many expected. It is to be a real bank with a real banker—Ellicott H. Worthington—as president.

EVERY fake has a little fake
Upon its back a-clingin',
And these in turn have lesser ones
And so on ad infinitum.

A BIG New York daily had a choice Chicago fake upon an imminent meeting in this city of the old A. B. A. currency commission. It was so amateurish that the wonder is that even the banking papers which are edited with a shovel didn't pass it up.

LOGAN C. MURRAY of Louisville, head of the American National, also is head of the Louisville Board of Trade. In the latter capacity he has been very active in raising and distributing funds for the relief of the flood sufferers.

OKLAHOMA has passed a bill providing state rewards for the capture of bank robbers. Also fixing the penalty for such offenders at from twenty to fifty years.

WE haven't seen any pictures of "J. Medill McCormick enters the hospital" out where B. F. Harris is as when the head of the herd was laid up in this city. True, B. F. wasn't "shot" and to have indigestion even from an overzealous moosemeat diet isn't of the heroic type.

EVERY banker in Illinois will be glad to hear that Mr. Harris is reported to be doing well, down at St. Lukes', and that he is to come out quite as good as new.

THE agricultural, educational and good roads movement is coming on after a lively fashion. J. L. Edwards, president of the Merchants National of Burlington, Ia., announces a meeting to be held at Burlington February 12th, Lincoln's birthday, for the purpose of organizing the county in an agricultural and good roads way. Bert Ball of the National Grange Exchanges and W. G. Edens, of the Central Trust, Chicago, will be on the program.

HARVEY G. RIGGS, of the Mercantile Trust and Savings of Quincy, and other good roads enthusiasts, held a meeting at Princeton February 5th for the purpose of completing arrangements for the marking of the old cannon-ball trail from Quincy to Chicago.

GALESBURG, Aurora, Mendota, Chicago and many other points between Galesburg and Quincy were represented in this conference. Mr. Riggs is a pioneer advocate of the use of the split log road drag, which is working wonders in Adams county in the matter of road improvement.

A MEETING of good roads enthusiasts will be held at Elgin February 14th. Messrs. Bradt and Edens of the bankers committee are on the program.

BANKERS and others at Towanda, McLean county, Ill., are greatly interested in completing the stretch of hard roads from Bloomington south to Towanda along the line of the Chicago and Alton Railway, and expect shortly to hold a meeting at Towanda for the promotion of that project. Senator Franklin of Lexington and Former Senator Frank H. Funk of Bloomington are co-operating in the matter of securing speakers.

JOSEPH R. NOEL, president of North West State Bank, Chicago, will sail from New York next Saturday, for a five weeks trip to Panama, South America and the West Indies.

J. N. Dolley Prepares Re-Draft of "Blue Sky" Law

Contains changes recommended after two years administration of the law. Law comprehensive in its scope

J. N. Dolley, the most efficient banking commissioner of Kansas, has prepared a redraft of the "Blue Sky" law of that state containing such amendments as he recommends after administering the law for two years.

The first four sections define "Investment Company;" "Stock Broker;" "Domestic;" "Foreign;" and "Agent." Investment companies are defined to be companies which sell any stocks, bonds or securities other than bonds of the United States, state or municipal bonds, stock of state or national banks, building and loan associations or corporations not organized for profit, and notes secured by mortgages on real estate; also contracts for deed, bonds for deed and other papers providing that when certain payments are made or certain conditions fulfilled, deed or title to land will be delivered; it also includes companies doing an investment, loan, benefit, co-operative, home, trust or guaranty business not covered by the above and for which there is no law in the state relative to supervision of the same.

False statements under the act are punishable by a fine of from $200 to $10,000 and imprisonment of from one to ten years; violation of provisions of the act are punishable by a fine of from $100 to $10,000, or by imprisonment of from 90 days to a year.

Among other things the law provides:

It shall be unlawful for any investment company or stock broker, or any representative thereof, to sell, offer for sale, take subscriptions for or negotiate for the sale in any manner whatsoever, of any stocks, bonds or other securities of any kind or character, other than those exempted from the provisions hereof by the definitions herein provided, without a permit from the state bank commissioner as hereinafter provided.

Before securing such permit it shall be necessary for each and every investment company to file in the office of the bank commissioner, together with a filing fee of $25, the following papers, documents, etc., together with such other information and documents as said bank commissioner shall deem necessary in each case, to wit:

1. An itemized statement of its actual financial condition and the amount of its properties and liabilities.

2. A copy of all contracts, bonds or other securities which it proposes to make with or sell to its contributors.

3. Sample copies of all literature or advertising matter used or to be used by such investment company.

4. A copy of its constitution and by-laws, or articles of copartnership or association.

5. If it shall be an incorporated investment company, it shall also file a copy of its charter, and if it be a foreign investment company, such copy shall bear the certificate of the secretary of state, or other state officer having custody of such records, that it is a true, complete and correct copy.

All of the above-described papers shall be verified by the oath of a duly authorized member of a copartnership or association, if it be a copartnership or association, and by the oath of the president and secretary, if it be incorporated, provided that the bank commissioner shall have the power to require such officers to make affidavit to such other reports or information as he may call for.

Every foreign investment company shall also file its written consent, in such form as may be approved by the bank commissioner, that actions may be commenced against it, in the proper court of any county in this state in which a cause of action may arise or in which the plaintiff may reside, by the service of process on the bank commissioner, agreeing that such service of process on the bank commissioner shall be taken and held, in all courts, to be as valid and binding as if due service had been made upon the company itself, according to the laws of this or any other state, and such written consent for service of process shall be irrevocable. Such written consent shall be accompanied by a certified copy of an order or resolution of the board of directors, trustees, owners or managers of such investment company authorizing the execution of same. When a case shall be brought, the summons shall be directed to the bank commissioner, and shall require the defendant to answer by a certain day, not less than forty days nor more than sixty days from the date thereof. Said summons shall be forthwith forwarded by the clerk of the court to the bank commissioner, who shall immediately forward a copy thereof to the secretary of the corporation sued, by registered mail, and thereupon the bank commissioner shall make return of said summons to the court whence it issued, showing the date of its receipt by him, the date of forwarding such copy, the name and address of the person to whom he forwarded said copy, and the costs of service and return thereof, which in each case shall be $2.50. Such return shall be under his hand and seal of office, and shall have the same force and effect as a due and sufficient return made by the sheriff on process directed to him. The bank commissioner shall keep a suitable record book, in which he shall docket each action commenced against a foreign investment company as aforesaid. This record shall show the court in which the suit is brought, the title of case, the time when commenced, the date and manner of service, and the date of payment of fee taxed as costs in the case.

It shall be the duty of the bank commissioner to examine the statements and documents so filed, and if said bank commissioner shall deem it advisable, he shall make or have made a detailed examination, audit, and investigation of such investment company's affairs, providing that such investment company may at its option, in writing, refuse to have such investigation made, in which event said bank commissioner shall reject its application. If he finds that such investment company is solvent, that its articles of incorporation or association, its constitution and by-laws, its proposed plan of business and proposed contracts contain and provide for a fair, just and equitable plan for the transaction of business, and in his judgment promises a fair return on the stocks, bonds, or other securities by it offered for sale, the bank commissioner shall issue to such investment company a statement, entitling it to sell such securities in the state of Kansas, and reciting that such company has complied with the provisions of this act, that detailed information in regard to the company and its securities is on file in the bank commissioner's office, that such investment company is permitted to do business in this state; and such statement shall also recite in bold type that the bank commissioner in no wise recommends the securities to be offered for sale by such investment company. Such permit, however, shall be subject to revocation at any time by the bank commissioner for cause to him sufficient. But if said bank commissioner finds that such articles of incorporation or association, charter, constitution and by-laws, plan of business, or proposed contract contains any provision that is unfair, unjust, inequitable or oppressive to any class of contributors, or if he decides from his investigation or examination of its affairs that said investment company is not solvent, or does not intend to do a fair and honest business, or in his judgment does not promise a fair return on the stocks, bonds or other securities by it offered for sale, then he shall not grant such company a permit as herein provided and shall notify said company in writing of his decision.

The four foregoing sections shall apply to stock brokers, providing that stock brokers shall not be required to file a copy of each stock, bond or other security it shall handle, and that said bank commissioner shall make special investigation and ascertain the reputation of such stock broker, especially as to the class of stocks, bonds and other securities handled by such stock broker, and that the granting of a permit to such stock broker shall be further contingent upon such stock broker having the reputation of handling such stocks, bonds and other securities as said bank commissioner shall decide to be good legitimate investments. Such permit shall entitle such stock broker to handle such stocks, bonds and other securities in the state of Kansas as are not objected to by the bank commissioner, providing that such stock broker shall file on the 1st day of each month a list of the stocks, bonds and other securities on hand for sale, and handled by it during the preceding month; and providing further, that said bank commissioner shall have authority to prohibit said stock broker from handling any of such issues at any time, or to cancel said broker's permit at any time he decides that said broker is not handling such securities as he deems good legitimate investments.

An appeal may be taken from the decision of the bank commissioner, refusing to grant a license to any investment company or stock broker, to the Public Utilities Commission of this state. Such appeal shall be taken by filing with such Public Utilities Commission an application for a hearing on its case. When such hearing is set, it shall be the duty of the bank commissioner to produce for the inspection and consideration of the Public Utilities Commission all papers regarding such company on file in his office and other information, and such Public Utilities Commission shall have authority to call for any additional information it may desire under oath from the company or stock broker under consideration. If said Public Utilities Commission shall reverse the decision of the bank commissioner, it shall so notify him in writing, and it shall then become the duty of the bank commissioner to forthwith issue said applicant a permit.

No amendment of the charter, articles of incorporation, constitution or by-laws of any such investment company shall become operative until a copy of the same has been filed with the bank commissioner as provided in regard to the original filing in section 6 of this act, nor shall it be lawful for such investment company to transact business on any other plan than that set forth in its application, or to make any contracts other than that shown in copy of proposed contract required under section 6 of this act, until a written statement showing in full detail the proposed new contract shall have been filed with the bank commissioner, in like manner as provided in regard to the original plan of business and proposed contract, and the consent of the bank commissioner obtained as to making such proposed new plan or contract.

Any investment company or stock broker may appoint one or more agents, but no such agent shall do any business as provided in this act for said investment company or stock broker in this state until he shall be registered with the bank commissioner as an agent of such investment company or stock broker, and for each of such registration there shall be paid to the bank commissioner the sum of one dollar, and said bank commissioner shall issue to each agent so registered an individual permit, entitling him to represent such investment company or stock broker in the state of Kansas as its agent until the 1st day of March following, when it shall be necessary to re-register such agent. Such permit, however, shall be subject to revocation at any time by the bank commissioner for cause appearing to him sufficient.

Every investment company or stock broker licensed under this act shall file at the close of business December 31st, March 31st, June 30th and August 31st of each year, and such other times as required by the bank commissioner, a statement setting forth, in such form as may be prescribed by said bank commissioner, its financial condition, amount of its properties and liabilities, and such other information concerning its affairs as said bank commissioner may require. Each such statement shall be accompanied by a filing fee of two dollars and fifty cents. Any investment company or stock broker failing to file its report as herein provided within ten days of the dates herein specified, or failing to file any special report within thirty days after request from the bank commissioner thereof, shall forfeit its right to do business in this state by reason thereof.

The general accounts of every investment company, domestic or foreign, doing business in this state shall be kept by double entry, and such investment company, its co-partners or managing officers shall at the close of business each month make a trial balance of such accounts, which shall be recorded in a book provided for that purpose; such trial balances and all other books and accounts of such investment company shall at all times during business hours, except on Sundays and legal holidays, be open to the inspection of stockholders and investors in said investment company's securities and to the bank commissioner or his deputies.

The bank commissioner shall have general supervision and control, as provided by this act, over any and all investment companies and stock brokers, domestic or foreign, licensed under this act, and all such investment companies or stock brokers shall be subject to examination by the bank commissioner or his duly authorized deputies at any time the bank commissioner may deem it advisable, and in the same manner as is now provided for the examination of state banks. The rights, powers and privileges of the bank commissioner in connection with such examinations shall be the same as is now provided with reference to the examination of state banks. Such investment company or stock broker shall pay a fee for each examination made by said bank commissioner or his deputies of not to exceed fifteen dollars for each day or fraction thereof, plus the actual traveling and hotel expenses of said bank commissioner or deputy, that he is absent from the capitol building for the purpose of making such examination, and the failure or refusal of any investment company or stock broker to pay such fees upon the demand of the bank commissioner or deputy while making such examination shall work a forfeiture of its right to do business in this state.

It shall be unlawful for any investment company or stock broker or its agent to issue, circulate or deliver any advertisement, pamphlet, circular or other document in regard to its stocks, bonds or other securities in the state of Kansas until after such investment company or stock broker shall have been licensed to sell its securities in the state of Kansas as provided in this act, and it shall be unlawful for any such licensed investment company or stock broker or its agent to issue, circulate or deliver any such advertisement, pamphlet, circular or other document, unless the same shall be signed and bear a serial number and a copy thereof first filed with the banking department and the approval of the bank commissioner obtained thereto, nor shall it be lawful for such investment company or stock broker or its agent to issue, circulate or deliver such advertisements, etc., after it has been notified of objection thereto by said bank commissioner.

Whenever it shall appear to the bank commissioner that the assets of any investment company or stock broker doing business in this state are impaired to the extent that such assets do not equal its liabilities, or that it is conducting its business in an unsafe, inequitable or unauthorized manner, or is jeopardizing the interests of its stockholders or the investors in stocks, bonds or other securities by it offered for sale, or whenever any investment company or stock broker shall refuse to

WASHINGTON LETTER

By R. A. ALBERTSEN

Relates to administrative and department matters interesting to our readers

The National Citizens League, of which John V. Farwell is president and in which Professor J. Laurence Laughlin of the Chicago University is one of the most active workers, has taken the initiative in a crusade aimed by business men in all parts of the country to prove to President-elect Wilson and to the democratic members of the next Congress that there is a sincere desire among them that the currency laws be revised without delay.

The league presented an urgent appeal to Representative Glass, chairman of the house committee on banking and currency, to-day, asking that he use all possible effort to bring about a revision of the existing currency law at the extra session of congress.

The substance of the appeal is that revision of currency should go hand in hand with revision of the tariff and that it is merely an invitation to business disturbance to postpone currency reform until the tariff is out of the way.

Business men in all parts of the country have awakened, the league asserts, to the fact that the best way to offset any danger of business disturbance, resulting from tariff-slashing, is to make the currency more elastic. Mr. Glass intimated that Mr. Wilson has not yet made up his mind as to whether banking and currency reform should be undertaken at the extra session.

The league, in urging immediate action toward a more elastic currency, points out that Mr. Wilson will be inviting a business disturbance unless the currency system is strengthened at the same time the tariff is cut. No special form of currency system is being urged by the National Citizens League.

What the Glass Sub-Committee Wants

It may be stated upon authority that two concrete guaranty plans are under consideration by the Glass sub-committee:

First—To require all national banks to pay a small amount each year for the creation of a fund in the treasury department as a guarantee of safety for depositors in such banks.

Second—To require banks in certain divisions to be responsible for the safety of deposits of one another, a fund to be created for the purpose by assessments levied against each bank.

As to the first plan, democratic leaders say that it would not prove burdensome to the banks. Representative Carter Glass of Virginia, chairman of the sub-committee, has estimated that if a tax of thirty-five one-thousandths of 1 per cent had been levied upon deposits since the organization of the national banking system, a sum more than enough to have afforded protection to all losers would have been collected.

Government Guaranty Wanted

The first plan is government guaranty pure and simple, inasmuch as it is to be administered directly by the government through the medium of a bureau or division in the treasury department.

The second plan represents a compromise conceded to those who balk at government guaranty as advocated by Mr. Bryan.

It is assumed here that President-elect Wilson is in sympathy with one plan or the other. Chairman Glass discussed last week the whole question of banking and currency legislation with the president-elect.

Revision of the currency system hand in hand with the revision of the tariff at the special session of congress is urged by the National Citizens League in a letter from its president, John V. Farwell of Chicago, to Representative Glass, chairman of the house committee on banking and currency.

Rewriting the Entire Tariff Law

Tariff hearings before the ways and means committee have come to a close, and this week the actual work of writing the new law which is to be reported to congress at the extra session, began. It is contemplated that the whole law will be rewritten this month and next and that the only thing remaining for the committee to do is to await the bidding of a democratic caucus before making known the new schedules of duties. After the law is revised a caucus will be held to determine whether the bill will be reported schedule by schedule or the whole in one act.

The closing hearing dealt with miscellaneous features of the bill, including long discussions on the administrative sections by William J. Gibson and James L. Gerry of New York City. Mr. Gibson presented a very complete brief to the committee which evoked so much interest that Chairman Underwood called for a vote of the committee as a special favor to grant the witness additional time in which to outline his opinions.

Shortcomings of Parcel Post Law

The first month of operation of the new parcel post system has brought out at least three defective points, the correction of which merchants regard as of primary importance. First of these, according to complaints filed with Postmaster General Hitchcock, is the charge by domestic shippers of discrimination against business men in this country in favor of those in countries embraced in the International Postal Union in the rate of mailing samples of merchandise to points in the United States. Second, that the limitation under parcel post regulations to 12 ounces in the mailing of liquids, whereas 16 ounces is the standard package for liquids, whether of drugs or other fluids is inequitable. Third, that the law fails to provide means whereby shippers may include invoices in packages.

Conference Vocational Educational Bill

Prepared by a conference of representatives of organizations in Illinois interested in this most important subject. Bankers take prominent part

The draft of a new school bill for Illinois—which follows—was adopted by the first and, so far as is known, the only large and widely representative conference ever called for the purpose in this state. This conference held four meetings during the past year, and committees appointed by the conference held some eight different meetings. Their unselfish and public-spirited purpose was to provide education in agriculture, commercial and industrial and domestic science branches, partly aided by the state, in every school in the state desiring such work. The conference assembled early in 1912 at the invitation of the committee on agriculture and vocational education of the Illinois Bankers Association and its sessions were held respectively in Champaign, Springfield and Chicago. The attendance was made up of officers or committees of the Illinois Bankers Association, Illinois Federation of Commercial Clubs, Illinois State Federation of Labor, Illinois State Farmers Institute, Illinois State Teachers Association, Illinois Manufacturers Association, Institute Commercial Law and Criminology, every university and state normal school in the state, the City Club, Commercial Club, Civic Federation and Association of Commerce and Women's Clubs of Chicago, together with various public and county school superintendents and teachers, and individuals from various sections of the state. B. F. Harris of the First National of Champaign acted as chairman of the conference and W. G. Edens of the Central Trust, Chicago, as secretary, while the committee which followed the direction of the conference in drawing the bill, was made up as follows: Edmund J. James, University of Illinois, Champaign, chairman; Frank I. Mann, Illinois Farmers Institute; O. J. Kern, superintendent of schools; E. R. Wright, Illinois Federation of Labor; F. M. Leavitt, Illinois State Teachers Association; George M. Reynolds, Illinois Bankers Association; F. G. Blair, superintendent of public instruction; Edwin G. Cooley, Julius Rosenwald.

The individuals making up this conference and its committees paid all the expense and served freely and willingly in a self constituted attempt to do a much needed public service for Illinois.

The following interests were represented in drafting the proposed bill: agriculture, banking, business, country school superintendents, federation of labor, federation of commercial clubs, manufacturers, polytechnic schools, public school superintendents, public school teachers, state educational commissioners, state normal schools, state teachers association, universities, various city clubs and women's clubs.

The bill as finally adopted by this conference, January, 1913, is as follows:

A bill for an act to encourage through state aid boards of directors and boards of education to establish and maintain vocational and prevocational courses of instruction and training in agriculture, commerce and in the domestic and industrial arts and to encourage the preparation of teachers to teach such courses and to provide means for inspecting and approving such courses and for apportioning and distributing such state aid.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the people of the state of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly: That any school district establishing and maintaining vocational or prevocational courses of instruction and training in agriculture, commerce, and in the domestic and industrial arts, or in any one or these, shall, so long as such courses are approved under the provisions of this act and the rules of the state education commission, as hereinafter provided, be reimbursed to the extent of one-half of the annual cost of maintaining such courses.

Section 2. In the construction of this act the following meaning shall be given to the following words and phrases:

(a) Prevocational courses of instruction and training are courses established and maintained in connection with the regular program of studies in the elementary and secondary schools, the controlling purpose of which shall be to give such instruction and training in the elementary phases of agriculture, commerce, and of the domestic and industrial arts as will reveal and shape the aptitudes and tastes of the pupil for and toward vocations.

Such courses may be whole time, part time, or evening continuation courses.

Whole time courses are courses which provide school sessions of at least thirty hours (sixty minutes each) a week. Such whole time courses may include instruction given in winter agricultural schools, which schools may be in session during the months of November, December, January, February and March; but the technical or special teachers of subjects pertaining to agriculture may be employed for ten months in each year, of which period five months' service shall be in the schools and five months' service on the farms in the district supporting the school, or department of a school, giving lectures and demonstrations and promoting such other educational measures as the board of education or board of directors shall determine to be for the benefit of the agricultural interests of the community.

Evening continuation courses are courses for persons employed during the working day.

(c) Approved courses or schools are such courses or schools as upon inspection shall be approved under the provisions of this act and the rules of the State Education Commission, as hereinafter provided, as to organization, administration, location, plant, equipment, materials, courses of study, number and qualifications of pupils, methods of teaching, qualifications of teachers, and expenditure of money.

(d) The annual cost of maintaining such courses or schools as are provided for in this act, excepting associated schools and consolidated schools, shall mean the annual cost of the light, heat, janitorship, instruction and materials, used necessarily and solely in connection with such courses or schools. When courses are maintained in connection with the regular program of studies, the annual cost of the light, heat, janitorship, instruction and materials shall be estimated upon the actual time given to instruction in these courses. In associated schools the tuition of pupils coming from associated districts to the associated high school shall be an item in the annual cost of maintenance. In consolidated schools a proportional part of the cost of transporting pupils shall be an item in the annual cost of maintenance.

Section 3. In order to secure state aid as provided in this act, the board of education or board of directors in any district administering schools or departments of schools giving vocational instruction and training in agriculture, commerce, or in the domestic and industrial arts, shall appoint a committee on vocational education to be composed as follows:

The superintendent of schools in such district shall be a member ex officio of said committee and six members, two of whom shall be employers of labor and two of whom shall be skilled industrial, commercial, or agricultural employees, and two of whom shall be experienced in educational work, shall be appointed by the board of education or board of directors in such district, subject to the approval of the state education commission as hereinafter provided. Two of the six members so appointed shall hold their respective offices for the term of two years, two for the term of four years, and two for the term of six years, from the first day of May in the year of their appointment and until their successors are appointed and qualified, and every two years thereafter the board of education or board of directors in such district, subject to the approval of the state education commission, shall appoint as members of said committee on vocational education two persons who shall hold their respective offices for the term of six years from the first of May in the year of their appointment and until their successors are appointed and qualified. All appointments to said committee shall be so made that at al times two members thereof shall be employers of labor and wo members thereof shall be skilled industrial, commercial or agricultural employees and two members thereof shall be persons experienced in educational work. A person to be eligible for appointment must have been a resident of the district more than one year next preceding his appointment.

Section 4. It shall be the duty of the committee on vocational education:

(a) To counsel with and advise, and to co-operate with, the board of education, or board of directors, and other school officials having the management and supervision of schools or departments of schools established under the provisions of this act in all matters pertaining to the needs of the community for vocational instruction in agriculture, commerce, and in the domestic and industrial arts, and to the nature, methods and efficiency of such instruction, to the end that such schools and departments of schools shall realize their dominant purpose.

(b) To report annually to the state education commission as to the efficiency of the vocational instruction given and as to the needs of the community for additional vocational instruction.

ILLINOIS BANKING NEWS

By C. C. Burford

Officers of the La Salle National of La Salle, in their February monthly bulletin, are pleased with the general prospects which the year 1913 offers. "Every community within the La Salle district has enjoyed its share of prosperity." The new boat line from La Salle, known as the Chicago, Peoria and New Orleans Transportation Company, the new La Salle Inn Company and the new federal building are among the general improvements which the city now has in sight.

The natural resources of scenic beauty in the vicinity are noticed in the bulletin, for Starved Rock and Deer Park are near La Salle. "We are just beginning to appreciate the remarkable natural resources of the Illinois Valley and we venture the opinion that in years to come, those who stake their all in this district will reap a rich harvest." The bank also is interested in the topic of soil improvement and especial attention to seed corn for the coming year is urged by the officers of the La Salle National. The bank also calls attention to its safety deposit department and to the savings department. "Our officers give personal attention to the affairs of our customers and no effort is spared to produce the results desired."

Central of Peoria to Build

One of the important bank and office buildings to be erected during 1913 will be that of the Central National of Peoria. This bank will erect a ten-story edifice on its present site at the corner of Main and Adams Streets, one of the best locations in the city and within easy reach of the city's various lines of commercial enterprise. The corner of Main and Adams Streets is one of the busiest corners in Peoria.

Work will be begun about July 1st and the project will cost about $225,000. The capital stock of the Central National has been increased from $200,000 to $300,000 and the surplus has been increased $50,000, making that sum now stand at $225,000.

This new bank building, with that of the new National Bank of Decatur, which is to be erected during the present year, will be representative of the best ideas, both in architectural and banking aspects and will be beautiful and artistic in every detail. Together with the new building of the Ayers National of Jacksonville, which was opened to the public January 1st and which is pronounced one of the best equipped in the Central West, this trio of new bank structures will reflect the growing commercial development of enterprising cities like Peoria, Decatur and Jacksonville.

The Central National of Peoria made no change in the personnel of its officers and directors at the January meeting of the directors.

Death of Bloomington Banker

S. W. Waddle, prominent for fifty years in the business and social life of Bloomington, died Saturday, February 1st, at his home in that city. Mr. Waddle was born in Jessamine county, Kentucky, in 1834 and came to Bloomington in 1860. During the Civil War he was engaged in the wholesale grocery business in Bloomington and later in the manufacturing business. He entered the old Third National in 1885 and continued in active banking business until 1910 when the Third National was absorbed by the First National and he then retired. He also represented the interests of his bank as a stockholder and a director.

Mr. Waddle served Bloomington as a city officer, having been both an alderman and city clerk. He was very active in Masonic circles in his city and had filled the presiding chairs in various Masonic bodies. He was a member of the Oriental chapter of the Scottish Rite of Chicago and was a trustee of the magnificent new Masonic Temple in Bloomington. He was a man of great literary ability and always was a serious student. As a member of the Third National force for twenty-five years and as cashier from 1891 until 1910 he was considered one of the able bankers and leading business men of Bloomington.

Illinois Notes

B. A. Parker, for the past three years with the Second National of Monmouth, has gone to Portland, Oregon, where he has accepted a position with one of the trust companies of that city.

Reports from Hoopeston are to the effect that John L. Hamilton of that city is interested in the organization of a new financial institution in Indianapolis to be known as the Security Trust Company. Mr. Hamilton has served as president of both the Illinois Bankers Association and the American Bankers Association.

Marion county farmers have met at Salem to organize the Marion County Soil Improvement Association. The object of the association is "to employ soil experts and systematically to improve crops and country life." This is one of the first counties in southern Illinois to organize for such work.

tomobile by the cashier, Bert Hutchins. Indications were that Mr. Whiting was stricken with death while inflating a tire.

Horace Russell, for thirty-eight years active in the management of the First National of Milford, Iroquois county, has retired because of ill health. He has sold most of his shares in the bank to the Vennum interests of Milford and will spend his time in the future looking after the farms of the Vennums. Mr. Russell will serve his bank as a director, having retained enough shares to make himself eligible. He has served the twenty-fourth senatorial district in the legislature.

A. E. Swinson has been elected president of the new Citizens State Bank of Durand, near Rockford.

Benjamin Newman has retired from the presidency of the Griggsville National, Pike county, after thirty years service in that capacity. He retires because of advanced age. John Sawdon was elected president in his place. E. S. Hoyt is the cashier. Mr. Newman will continue to serve his bank as a director.

The Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad, which runs entirely across Illinois from near Watseka on the east to Keokuk, Iowa, on the Mississippi River on the west, is interested in soil improvement work in the various counties which it traverses and has taken membership in the Peoria county organization for that purpose.

C. E. McDaniel, formerly a railroad agent with the Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad at Hamilton, Eureka and El Paso, has joined the forces of the First National of El Paso.

Taylorville has voted a bond issue of $50,000 for an addition to the township high school.

Henry county farmers are interested in securing the services of a soil expert for the county.

Charles Cross, giving Chicago as his address, was recently arrested in Danville charged with having attempted to rob the bank of Alexander Pate at Wellington, thirty miles north of Danville.

Representative Buchanan of Illinois has introduced into congress a bill providing for the creation of a land loan credit bureau in the treasury department. The measure is designed to provide for the issuance of at least $100,000,000 in United States notes to be loaned on farm lands at not more than fifty per cent of their valuation at five per cent for not more than twenty years.

Chandler Starr, cashier of the Winnebago National of Rockford, delivered an address to over twelve hundred public school pupils in the Rockford high school auditorium on "Loyalty." Mr. Starr emphasized the value of loyalty to one's country, school, city, business and to oneself. He emphasized the value which loyalty to Rockford by its citizens has played in the upbuilding of that busy city known as the "Forest City."

Rockford bank clearings passed the four million mark during January, the first time that such a figure has been exceeded in the first month of the year. If maintained during 1913, Rockford will pass into the $50,000,000 class of clearing house cities, while in 1912 the clearings totaled $45,000,000. Another "Made-in-Rockford Show" is now proposed, as the first was so successful in exhibiting the manufactures of the city to the public.

Walter L. Plew, cashier of the First National of Desplaines, Ill., was a Chicago caller on Wednesday.

GOOD ROADS ADVOCATES AT SPRINGFIELD

The meeting held in Springfield January 31st under the auspices of the Manufacturers News was presided over by W. G. Edens, assistant secretary of the Central Trust Company of Illinois and president of the Illinois Highway Improvement Association. This is thought to have been the largest and most enthusiastic good roads meeting ever held in the state and resembled somewhat that held in Peoria last September immediately after the convention of the Illinois Bankers Association. Resolutions adopted at the Springfield meeting were the same as those adopted at the Peoria meeting of the Illinois Highway Improvement Association. The program included representatives of the office of the department of public roads at Washington, members of congress and such organizations as the Illinois Manufacturers Association, Charles Pease, their president responding, while Mrs. F. W. Blocki of Chicago spoke for the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. Paul G. Sargent, director of the office of public roads, United States department of agriculture, gave an interesting lecture showing some startling pictures relating to road development. Labor's interest in good roads was handled by James F. Morris, secretary of the Illinois Federation of Labor and a member of the present general assembly. Work of the state highway commission was looked after by President Edmund J. James, president of the University of Illinois and also by A. N. Johnson, state highway engineer under the commission. The farmer's interest in good roads was treated by A. P. Grout, of Neat, Condit & Grout, Bankers, Winchester. Mr. Grout is president of the Illinois Farmers Institute; John M. Stahl, editor of the Illinois Farmer and Farmers Call and a pioneer advocate of rural free delivery service as well as good roads, spoke effectively.

Governor James M. Cox of Ohio was billed to speak on good roads and civilization but was unable to be present on account of pressing business. State Representative Homer J. Tice, chairman of the joint committee on good roads, Illinois general assembly, spoke for nearly an hour explaining to the convention the work that has been accomplished by the joint commission working under the resolutions adopted by the last

A bill giving greater discretionary powers to the state banking commissioner in granting charters to new banks has been introduced in the state legislature this week. The bill, which was introduced by Senator Bosshard of La Crosse, gives to the commissioner the authority to determine whether there be sufficient public necessity in any community to warrant the establishment of a new bank. Another consideration in making the decision is the number of banks already located at the place from which the application is received. Where there is not sufficient business to warrant the establishment of an additional banking institution, in the opinion of the commissioner, he may refuse a charter. The persons making the application may, upon being refused, appeal to a special commission, provided for in the bill, consisting of the governor, secretary of state, and attorney general, the decision of this commission to be final. One paragraph provides that no banks shall be established in Milwaukee unless capitalized at $100,000 or more. Under its terms banks are prohibited from making loans on real estate on which there is a mortgage or other incumbrance.

Concerning the Bosshard bill, the Milwaukee Sentinel has the following editorial opinion to offer:

"Should the fool killer who attends the demise of bad legislative proposals not succeed in preventing the foisting upon this state of that Oklahoma freak, the bank deposit guaranty, the restrictive power proposed by Mr. Bosshard may be of service in checking the crop of mushroom (or rather toadstool) 'banks' sure to spring up should Wisconsin follow the Oklahoma school of finance."

Among other bits of financial legislation introduced at the capital this week is the "Blue Sky" law proposing to bring all investment companies under the supervision of the state banking department to whom detailed statements of condition must be made. Penalty for violations ranges from $1,000 to $5,000.

Returns from Washington

That the action the next congress will take upon tariff revision and banking and currency reform are the chief topics under discussion at Washington is the statement of August H. Vogel upon his return from the first annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States at which he was re-elected director of the organization from the state of Wisconsin.

"Representatives of the 273 organizations of manufacturers and business men which form the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, unanimously favored both tariff revision and banking and currency reform," said Mr. Vogel. "It is the hope of the members that the currency reform bill which a congressional sub-committee is now working on will be reported out from the committee and favorably acted upon by congress.

"One of the reforms strongly favored by the business men present at the convention is the proposal to make commercial paper instead of United States bonds the basis of currency. This would give a much more elastic medium of exchange and would work for the benefit of all concerned. Another thing which is being considered by the committee is the concentration of cash reserves in a large central bank, or in several district banks located in different sections of the country and the creation of an international bank for the handling of foreign securities."

Wisconsin Notes

The Merchants and Manufacturers Bank at its annual meeting last week increased its capital from $250,000 to $400,000. The surplus was increased from $33,500 to $56,000.

The Second Ward Savings opened for business Monday morning of this week in its new home at West Water and Third Streets. The informal reception of the bank's friends on Monday has continued throughout the week and the entrance to the new building was made the occasion of a house warming accorded to few banks.

If one is a banker and an Italian in Milwaukee, one stands in danger of the "black hand." To-wit: What is believed to have been an attempt to blow up the residence of Vito Guardalabene, Italian banker, 164 Detroit Street, was made early Sunday morning, when a terrific explosion shattered many windows in the vicinity and damaged Guardabalene's house extensively. A man was seen to leave a pack-

The quarterly meeting of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company at the Milwaukee home offices this week disclosed a heavy increase in the business for 1912 over that of 1911. Dividends paid to policy holders last year were $12,906,000, an increase of $300,000 over those of 1911. Out-of-town trustees present were: Albert H. Wiggin, New York; Mitchell Johannes, Green Bay; J. M. Olin, Madison; Hovey C. Clark, Minneapolis; A. J. Frame, Waukesha; Homer Millet, Des Moines; J. F. Vaile, Denver; Percy C. Madeira, Philadelphia; William Irvine, Chippewa Falls; Francis F. Prentis, Cleveland, and Henry D. Hartland, Baltimore.

Henry C. Bomhard, alias Roy Clark, ex-convict and forger said to be wanted in various cities of the United States, is held by the Milwaukee police charged with passing a forged check on a West side butcher.

"Co-operative Banking as Applied in Europe and the United States" and "A Co-operative Agricultural Credit System" were the subjects of interesting discourses at the banquet last week in the Hotel Charlotte in honor of the visiting secretaries of the Wisconsin Bankers Association. John Campbell, vice-president of the Marshall and Ilsley Bank, was toastmaster.

The following state banks elected officers recently:

Beloit Savings—President, P. H. Cranan; vice-presidents, F. S. Foster, C. A. Gault; secretary and treasurer, E. F. Hansen.

general assembly requiring that the commission rewrite, codify and amend the Illinois roads and bridges act. Mr. Tice was kept busy answering questions from every section of the convention, and following his address, which was generously applauded, a committee on resolutions was appointed representing the various organizations in the convention. S. E. Bradt, vice-president of the First National of DeKalb, Ill., and chairman of the good roads committee of the Illinois Bankers Association, spoke on how good roads may be financed and created a favorable impression for his accomplishments in road building in DeKalb county and also by his clear-headed, clean-cut explanation as to how good roads can be secured in Illinois. The interest of the schools in highway improvement was represented by Francis J. Blair, state superintendent of public instruction; C. A. Kiler represented the commercial interests. Mr. Kiler is chairman of the good roads committee of the Illinois Commercial Federation.

Prof. H. M. Cotterell of the Rock Island Railway system spoke on better highways and better methods of agriculture; Prof. Wilhelm Miller on "Making the Roadsides Beautiful"; Mr. Miller is assistant professor of landscape and horticulture, University of Illinois. This was one of the interesting numbers of the program, many beautiful pictures being shown depicting Illinois prairie scenes, river views, wild-flower scenery, etc. Henry C. Paulman, manager of the Pierce-Arrow agency in Chicago, presented the subject from the standpoint of the motorists, and described in detail the work of the Illinois Highway Improvement Association with which he has been connected ever since its organization last March as a member of the board of directors. The president of the Cook County Truck Gardners Association and the president of the State Association of Rural Letter Carriers, also residing in Cook County, both were in attendance and took an active part in the convention, as did Marvin A. Farr of the Chicago Real Estate Board.

The meeting commenced at nine o'clock and continued until 12:30, when a recess was taken until two o'clock. The afternoon session lasted until nearly six o'clock. Between six and eight hundred people were in attendance. A E. Clift, general superintendent northern lines, Illinois Central Railroad and many other railroad officials were present at the Springfield meeting. The railroads are doing good work in the matter of stimulating the interest of their employees in the subject of road improvement. The Illinois Central has to the record of its accomplishments the three miles of sample roads built in southern Illinois along its line several years ago.

RETURNS FROM MILWAUKEE

Addison Corneau, assistant cashier of the Central Trust Company of Illinois, attended the opening of the new quarters of the Second Ward Savings of Milwaukee on Monday. Mr. Corneau reports the appointments of the building as in every way attractive and most conveniently arranged for the prompt and efficient handling of the important business of this growing bank.

During the past fifty-seven years the Second Ward Savings has grown from an institution with $25,000 capital to one of the greatest banks in the Middle West, carrying average deposits of over thirteen millions and employing a capital of one million and surplus of $400,000. The savings deposits of the bank aggregate over one fifth of all the savings on deposit in all the state banks of Wisconsin and make it the largest savings bank in the state. Two new departments will be opened in the new building—a bond and a safe deposit department. The immense marble columns and mural decorations of the building make a pleasing effect. All of the things connected with progressive, up-to-date bank buildings are to be found in the new home of the Second Ward Savings, which ranks among the best in the country.

BOOK ON SEED CORN

Funk Brothers Seed Company, Bloomington, Ill., has issued its eleventh annual book on corn, which is replete with interesting data and information relative to the important industry of growing seed corn. Funk Brothers Seed Company are the original and most extensive breeders of highest yielding seed corn in the world. It has been demonstrated on the 8,000 acres of cornfields of Funk Brothers that an average increase yield of fifteen bushels per acre can be had by using seed corn from high yielding strains. The methods employed by Funk Brothers are the most scientific and up-to-date, and splendid results have been attained by their work.

Mr. Eugene Funk is well known to bankers, being a vice-president of the Illinois Highway Improvement Association, an organization composed of many bankers and which is endeavoring to provide for Illinois a better system of highways, thus promoting the social, educational and economic welfare of the people of the state.

St. Louis and Southwest Banking Letter

By R. L. ROBINSON

St. Louis, February 5th.—Bank clearings during the past week have been larger than the corresponding period last year and the volume of business transacted at the financial institutions has been of liberal proportions. The demand for money has been fair, rates holding steady at 4¾ to 6 per cent on call and time loans.

Gain in Laclede Gross Earnings

An increase in gross earnings of 2.4 per cent above 1911 is shown in the annual statement of the Laclede Gas Light Company for 1912, made public yesterday. The gross earnings for 1912 were $4,444,498, and for 1911, $4,342,036. The net earnings, after an allowance of $266,217 for depreciation, and an expenditure of about $1,000,000 in betterments, including the new skyscraper at the northeast corner of Eleventh and Olive Streets, were $2,039,179, an increase over 1911 of $73,661, or 3.7 per cent. This showing was made despite the reduction in the rates last April, by substituting the one-meter system for the former two-meter rating. C. L. Holman, president and general manager, states the number of customers was increased by 4296 in the year.

Banks Fight Revenue

Thirteen banks and trust companies have filed suits in the United States district court against E. B. Allen, United States collector of internal revenue, charging him with excess taxation. The amounts sued for total more than $20,000. The suits, according to Allen and to Stewart, Bryan and Williams, attorneys for the banks, arise out of conflicting interpretations of the law governing the collection of taxes from banks and are based on collections for 1909, 1910 and 1911. The banks in those years paid the state taxes of stockholders on stock owned by them. They then were taxed by the government on those taxes, the government holding such taxes subject to taxation. The banks claim such sums should not be rated as assets. The companies suing are: Merchants-Laclede National, Mercantile Trust, Mercantile National, Boatmens, National Bank of Commerce, St. Louis Union Trust, Mississippi Valley Trust, Franklin, German-American, Third National, German Savings Institution, Commonwealth Trust and Mechanics-American National.

Bonus Booms Bankers Trust

A rise in the last month of $55 a share in the price of the stock of the Bankers Trust, which has mystified investors, has been attributed by J. E. Franklin, president, to a heavy bonus which he said the company had received for taking a bond issue of the San Antonio, Uvalde and Gulf Railroad. He said that the bonus, which amounts to $1,250,000, probably will be added to the surplus. It was paid by ranchmen and others interested in the district served by the railroad. The capital of the Bankers Trust is $1,250,000 and the surplus $1,250,000. It has paid a dividend of 20 per cent a year since 1909.

Increases Board

The Mortgage Trust Company at a recent meeting voted to increase its board of directors from fifteen to nineteen members and re-elected five directors whose terms expire. Those re-elected are: Moses Shoenberg, Richard T. Shelton, A. L. Shapleigh, Rolla Wells and Edward L. Preetorius. An auditing committee, composed of Fred G. Zeibig, Charles Rebstock and Emil S. Strauss was elected to audit the accounts. Lloyd P. Wells and Eugene F. Williams were elected to fill two of the four new directorships and the other two places were left vacant. At the election of officers Lloyd P. Wells, who was formerly treasurer, was chosen vice-president; Eugene F. Williams, formerly assistant treasurer, was chosen treasurer, and H. H. Hodgdon was made an assistant secretary. The officers re-elected are: Tom W. Bennett, president; James H. Grover, Fred G. Zeibig and J. D. P. Francis, vice-presidents; Lawrence Kinnaird, secretary, and Osmund O'Mara, assistant secretary.

George F. Powell was elected president of the St. Louis Grain Club at its annual meeting last week in the Mercantile Club. George C. Martin was named vice-president and Thomas K. Martin, secretary and treasurer. The latter has been secretary since the club was organized five years ago. He was presented with a pearl and gold pin and silver service set by members. The executive committee elected is: B. S. Lang, John L. Wright, W. J. Edwards, George Harsh and M. J. Mullally. It was announced that the club is endeavoring to establish a credit bureau for the grain trade of St. Louis. CHAPTER BOY KILLED

Members of Chicago Chapter, A. I. B., were deeply shocked to hear of the sudden death on Sunday last of H. E. Ellefson of the Continental and Commercial National. Mr. Ellefson was struck by an automobile truck up on the North Side and died a short while afterwards as a result of the injuries sustained. He was an enthusiastic chapter worker and well liked by all who knew him.

CHATHAM AND PHENIX NATIONAL

Capital and surplus of the Chatham and Phenix National of New York now are three and one-half millions and total resources amount to twenty-eight millions. Deposits have increased greatly and the figures this week run as high as twenty-four millions.

PROMINENT MEN "BACK TO THE FARM"

Men prominent in business and finance gathered this week for a genuine, old-fashioned picnic on the ranch of Lawrence Newman, a Chicago broker, at Monrovia, Cal. Among those included were George W. Perkins, George M. Reynolds, Charles A. Read, a New York broker, and Col. Frank Ray, a former tobacco magnate. All thoughts of business were forgotten.

NATIONAL BANKS

On January 31st, according to figures made public by the comptroller of the currency, there were in existence in the United States 7,438 national banks with aggregate capital of $1,055,328,175. During the month of January, 33 applications to organize were received. Of the applications pending 23 were approved and none rejected. In the same month sixteen banks with total capital of $1,455,000 were authorized to begin business, of which number eight with combined capital of $205,000 had individual capital of less than $50,000, and eight with total capital of $1,250,000, had individual capital of $50,000 or over.

SCOTT PRESIDENT OF BOND MEN'S CLUB

Donald Scott of William A. Read & Co. was elected president of the Bond Men's Club of Chicago at the meeting on Thursday. Charles F. Glore of A. B. Leach & Co. was elected vice-president, Frank F. Winans of the Northern Trust Company, secretary, and Logan A. Gridley of E. H. Hollins & Co., treasurer. The club is an organization of the junior bond men in the city.

MONEY RATES REMAIN FIRM

The consensus of opinion among Chicago bankers is that for the time being money rates will work no easier. There has not been shipped back from the country the amount of currency which the national banks had expected and time rates hold steady to firm at 5 to 5½ per cent. While call money in New York is relatively easy under 3 per cent, time rates display firmness.

In the month of January total receipts of currency by Chicago banks were $17,681,459, against shipments of $7,975,118.

MILD "BLUE SKY" LAW AT ALBANY

New York will have a mild form of "Blue Sky" law if two bills introduced at Albany go upon the statute books. As Seargent Allen would say "they'd never do for" Kansas "but they may do for" New York. One bill provides that "every corporation, company, firm, association or individual engaged in the issuing and selling of profit-sharing savings bonds, purporting to be secured by real estate or without reference to specific security, shall be subject to the supervision and examination of the state superintendent of banks to the same extent as any banking institution." The other bill makes "it a felony to issue or offer for sale such bonds purporting to be secured by real estate of a greater amount than 80 per cent of the owner's equity in the real estate, or to issue or offer for sale any such bonds with reference to any specific security to a greater extent than 80 per cent of the tangible net assets of the obligor, or to issue or sell such bonds purporting to be secured by real estate, or any form of profit-sharing savings bond without reference to specific security, without first obtaining the consent of the state superintendent of banks."

These bills are intended to correct abuses which have become very insistent in New York but which exist in lesser degree in all states.

GOOD ROADS CITIZENSHIP IN ILLINOIS

While bankers, business men, farmers and other enthusiasts are giving of their time liberally for the promotion of good roads in Illinois, the private citizens of the state are showing a conviction and deep interest in the matter commendable in a most unusual degree. Down at Pana, Ill., Captain and Mrs. J. W. Kitchell have donated 1600 acres of coal rights to that city and township for the building of hard roads. The lowest estimate placed upon the gift if sold at the present time is $80,000. If let out upon royalty that amount would be largely increased. Captain Kitchell has shown his good citizenship on former occasions and always in a most admirable way. He has presented to the people of Pana a forty-acre park well improved with roadways, waterways, and a small lake. In the park he has constructed an all steel shelter house and auditorium which will accomodate 4000 persons and which is used for Chautauqua courses and other public entertainments. The Captain served as a soldier at the head of the Ninth Illinois Volunteer Infantry and has erected a splendid bronze statue of Abraham Lincoln in Kitchell Park, his gift to the city. He has paved Kitchell Avenue directly to the park and erected at its entrance a splendid monumental gateway. Captain Kitchell has been a resident of Pana since 1866 and has taken a deep interest at all times in the progress of the city and township. He gave the land for the experimental farm which adjoins the city. In many other ways he has evidenced his interest in public developments.

In writing his letter offering the 1600 acres of coal rights to the city and township for the building of hard roads, Captain Kitchell mentions that he is "in part selfish in the matter," it being his desire to have good hard roads running to the borders of Pana township north, east, south and west where he is a very large owner of farming land and believes that his property will be greatly benefited by the improved roads. In this he furnishes an object lesson to the farmers and land owners of the entire state who may have been slow to realize the immense financial benefit which will come to the land owner with the advent of good, hard roads. He has shown his prudence by stipulating that his gift to the city and township shall be handled by a commission of three citizens whose names shall be subject to his own approval. He also has his own ideas about making the improvements, which are to be made permanent, and in the whole matter Captain Kitchell has given to the state of Illinois an object lesson in good roads citizenship which will be a vast benefit to the movement which rapidly is extending all over the state.

A PROMISE OF BETTER ROADS

At least in one field of endeavor there is harmony of opinion, and that is in the movement for good roads in Illinois. Reformers are sticklers as a rule for their own discovered plans, else we would have no reformers. In the Springfield good roads convention no fixed opposition was found toward the provisions in the main of the Tice bill, now pending in the senate. A strong set of resolutions was adopted favoring state and county cooperation in the building of main roads and bridges, with maintenance by the state; the improvement, maintenance and control of the remaining roads—about 80 per cent in mileage—by local authorities; the use of the state automobile tax for road improvement; the employment of convicts not only in the preparation of materials for roads but also, under proper safeguards, in road construction, and the payment of all road taxes in cash. Most of these provisions have been discussed in detail in meetings of the Illinois Highway Improvement Association under the presidency of Mr. Edens and in the good roads committee meetings of the Ilinois Bankers Association under the chairmanship of Mr. Bradt. The tenets adopted are looked upon as basic for Illinois and fundamental in so far as the possibilities are concerned. There will be those who will favor but one commissioner, as the bill provides, and others who will favor the commission plan with not less than three commissioners. Either way, or almost any possible way, will be a vast improvement upon the present wasteful, improvident system.

The state roads should be improved as a whole and every improvement should be as permanent as road building science will permit. Convict labor is the solution of the problem. The rest is mere detail. It seems so simple that the wonder is that it should not have been done years ago. History of other commonwealths shows that the plan of employing convict labor yields not only good roads but good citizens in many cases. Let the legislature go into the matter deeply, not from the point of view of the materials and supply people but from the public business standpoint.

PHILADELPHIA IN THE "A." CLASS

In many respects Philadelphia is in the "A." Class in the American banking world. The "Public Ledger" of that city has been delving in the archives of history, aided and abetted by the comptroller's office files, and proves up a very strong case. The result of the investigation shows that "Philadelphia occupies a unique position in the banking world, and that its record is inseparable from that of the financial history of the United States. The first bank in the United States was the Bank of North America, located in Philadelphia and chartered by Continental Congress in 1781. The first institution to transact business similar to our trust companies of to-day was the Pennsylania Company for Insurances on Lives and Granting Annuities, chartered in 1812. The first institution to take care of savings was the Philadelphia Savings Fund Society, chartered in 1816. The first national bank chartered under the national bank act in 1803 was the First National Bank of Philadelphia. These institutions have weathered the many panics and are still doing business."

Modern ideas prevail among the bankers of Philadelphia and her reserve banks captured, in the year just past, 189 new accounts. Leaders in this field are naturally the Girard National, Fourth Street National, First, Farmers and Mechanics and the Corn Exchange.

"Philadelphia is the second city of the United States in amount of capital, surplus and undivided profits of its banks, and, unlike New York, Boston, Chicago and several other cities, the Philadelphia Clearing House has no

These liberal polities have benefited Philadelphia banks and have afforded a refuge to those country banks seeking relief from charges, which in some cases are felt to be oppressive. It will do no harm for other cities to study the "Philadelphia plan" which has been found to be both comfortable and profitable.

ATTITUDE OF INVESTMENT BANKERS ASSOCIATION ON "BLUE SKY" LEGISLATION

By George B. Caldwell, vice-president of the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings, and President of the Investment Bankers Association of America

With reference to "Blue Sky" legislation, at the meeting of the board of governors held in Baltimore last week it was reported to us that twenty-four states now are considering legislation of this character, and from all the correspondence that our legislative committee had received and our secretary's office had had with the various state officials, it was apparent that in states of the extreme West where very little trading is done in bonds and stocks, and therefore where investments of this character have few friends, they are in favor of a drastic law similar to the Kansas law, but in most of the other states there is a disposition shown in all of the inquiries to be fair-minded in legislation affecting investment banking. It was made very clear to us in much of the correspondence that there is a great confusion of the public mind with reference to investment banking and also that most of the evils complained of have come from people who sell stocks and not bonds, and because they offer stocks call themselves investment bankers.

The entire membership of the Investment Bankers Association is, according to the qualifications necessary for membership, composed of bond dealers, and therefore there is a very great distinction between them and their business and that done by the broker or stock dealer which the "Blue Sky" law aims to eliminate. We, as investment bankers, are, therefore, in favor of protecting our market by sane legislation on this subject. It was resolved, however, to go slow and not act hastily. Ill-considered legislation in regard to the purchase and sale of stocks and bonds might result in serious harm to the financial supremacy of this, or any state, passing a bad law, as it would have a tendency to drive capital away and disorganize the larger operations of legitimate business, now centered in those states, to the detriment of its citizens and the commonwealth generally.

There also is apparent confusion in the minds of the lawmakers of the various states, which is a condition that few of them realize, and that is, that the Kansas law, so-called, is the result of the work of the only state which has undertaken anything in the form of legislation of this kind, and that Kansas as a state is not a fair sample of the other forty-seven states in the amount of investment business that is done. It has no large cities in the first place, carries on no large stock and bond operations in the second place, and most of its investments are in the form of municipal bonds or mortgage loans, other than perhaps the sale of stock for local enterprises, so that the application of the Kansas law to Kansas where the situation is so simple that any law against fakers if enforced would keep them out has proven to be only partially satisfactory. The best evidence of this is that we had before us a redraft of the Kansas law, made by the author, J. N. Dolley, bank commissioner, which law has many changes in it, besides leaving out entirely some things that were in the act as first passed.

The Investment Bankers Association is seeking to raise investment banking to a higher plane in every way, and desirous of cooperating with legislative bodies to establish such laws as may be fair, if law is necessary, and to that end has prepared and is sending to its membership, as well as to any others interested, copies of a "suggestion" for a law that will protect the good as against the bad. These suggestions are generally not well received, or are given but little consideration at first, the feelings of the average member of the legislature being very radical, he usually alleging that any modification of his ideas is made with an ulterior motive of "queering" the effects of the law. After a more careful consideration, however, and a study of the practical operation, he usually finds that the object aimed at is secured at the expense or sacrifice of much trading in good securities, which he hopes to promote, but retards by restriction and by machinery that makes the business of bond trading, as well as stock trading that is legitimate, almost prohibitive.

Mr. Dolley, the bank commissioner of Kansas, has had his experience with this, even in his state, and comes frankly out and admits it by asking for an amended statute. If his experience has been such as to bring about a change in the period of two legislatures, is it not certainly wise for any legislative body to undertake legislation of this kind in the most open-minded manner? If they do this, then the work of the Investment Bankers Association, through its suggested bill and through its members, will be very helpful to those in the legislature who are desirous of accomplishing good results in the matter of "Blue Sky" legislation.

As investment bankers we realize, what most of the statesmen do not understand (because of the fact that they have followed other lines of business), that the freest opportunity to trade is the most natural and healthy condition, and that there is the most logical connection between the growth of our great modern business undertakings and the financial institutions of our country. Our trust companies, savings banks and individual wealth are important agencies through which the business is conducted and through which it must grow. While it is perhaps wise to regulate, the regulation must not interfere too greatly with the freedom of doing business, and the machinery must not be too cumbersome. Otherwise, the great money centers cannot lend the assistance to the outlying states and municipalities, as well as to various transportation and industrial enterprises, as has been done heretofore.

Another important feature that was prominently brought out in considering the various laws as introduced in the various states was the lack of uniformity, and this easily will lead to a great deal of confusion, unless before the various bills become laws they are to a large extent codified and made to read alike.

It was believed also that the necessity for "Blue Sky" legislation is greatly exaggerated; that is, these various bills are being considered by the various committees of the various states to meet a popular demand not understood and that we, the Investment Bankers Association, would not be doing justice to our membership and to the business of invest-

INDIANA PRIVATE BANK LAW PROVES OF BENEFIT

Joseph R. Sigler, cashier of the Bank of Mount Ayr, Newton county, Ind., visited Chicago on Wednesday. Mr. Sigler reports a strong demand for money in his locality in northern Indiana, and although a private banker, expresses the firm conviction that the Indiana law which became effective in 1905, has been of great benefit to the private bankers in the Hoosier State. The law requires the publication of statements of condition and supervision by the Indiana state banking department. Mr. Sigler says that the operation of this law not only has been of benefit to the public in general, but has brought forth evidence that many of the Indiana private banks are as strong, if not stronger, than some of the state and national banks, and that in his opinion the private bankers of Indiana would not under any circumstances return to the old condition of affairs.

MUNICIPAL BANK FOR SEATTLE

The city council of Seattle has adopted a plan for a municipal bank, which will receive individual deposits and invest them, together with city funds, in state, county and city bonds. The project must be submitted to the voters for approval.

St. Louis.—Articles of incorporation have been filed for the new Southern Missouri Trust Company, formed with a capital stock of $200,000. W. M. Wade has been appointed president and J. A. Tolerton secretary and treasurer.

G. C. GRIDLEY IN TOWN

G. C. Gridley, assistant cashier of the First National of Libertyville, Ill., a member of the committee on agriculture of the Illinois Bankers Association and who is greatly interested in the dairy feature of this committee's work, visited Chicago on Wednesday. Mr. Gridley is arranging for an important conference in order that those who are interested in the dairy industry in Illinois may be brought together for discussion of the best means to put this interest in Illinois on a better basis and one which will produce more profit for the dairyman.

By EDGAR P. ALLEN

Omaha

All over the Central West the "farm expert" idea is growing and bankers are taking the lead in the movement. During the past few weeks many meetings have been held in the larger towns and cities where the bankers and the more enterprising farmers have discussed ways and means for hiring crop and soil specialists for the benefit of the farmers generally. At Olathe, Kas., last week an organization of bankers and farmers was formed and steps were taken to maintain a permanent county agricultural bureau. In response to an inquiry the president of the Kansas state agricultural college at Manhattan said he could get for the county $1,500 to be used toward paying the cost of a farm expert, but the total will be $3,000. Officials of the three Olathe banks have sent letters to the other bankers of the county asking them to attend a meeting to consider guaranteeing the remainder, $1,500. This instance is typical of the awakening interest through the Central West and in many counties the bankers have guaranteed payment for experts to help the farmers.

Prominent Financier Dead

Another pioneer financier of Kansas City died last week, death having come to Colonel Albia Allen Tomlinson after a sudden attack of heart failure in his office in the United States Trust Company, of which institution he was president. Colonel Tomlinson was 75 years old and had been identified with various banking institutions of Kansas City since 1865. After serving with distinction throughout the Civil War and participating in many notable engagements, Colonel Tomlinson settled in Kansas City after the war, becoming attorney for the First National Bank. He was elected vice-president of the United States Trust Company at its organization and within a few years succeeded to the presidency. At various times he was director in other banks and trust companies and always has been identified prominently with every movement for business and municipal advancement in Kansas City. Several boards of directors of local banks passed resolutions of respect upon the announcement of his death and the pall bearers at his funeral were bankers who had been associated with Colonel Tomlinson for many years.

New Kansas City Bank

Announcement was made last week of the organization of a new state bank in Kansas City. It is to be called the Kansas City Savings and a location near the corner of Eighteenth Street and Grand Avenue has been chosen for its business. The new institution will be headed by Charles W. Bartlett, formerly state bank examiner for Missouri, but more recently vice-president of the Stock Yards Bank of Commerce of Kansas City. When recent changes were made among the banks at the stock yards and Charles E. Waite, formerly cashier of the Drovers National, became president of the Stock Yards Bank of Commerce, Mr. Bartlett resigned. The Stock Yards Bank of Commerce was reorganized under a new charter and Mr. Bartlett took the old charter with him and it is under this old charter with a change of name that Mr. Bartlett now is organizing the Kansas City Savings. The bank will have a capital, it is believed, of $100,000.

Bankers Guests of Grain Club

The members of the Kansas City Bankers Club and the Hoof and Horn Club—the latter an organization of live stock commission merchants at the stock yards—were guests of the Kansas City Grain Club at a dinner, Wednesday evening February 5th. The feature of the dinner was an address, with stereopticon pictures, given by Bert Ball, secretary of the crop improvement committee of the council of grain exchanges. Mr. Ball has been employed by the council for several years in the work of spreading the gospel of better farming. The Sears-Roebuck one-million-dollar fund to help this work is being used under his direction. The lecture was received with enthusiasm and the bankers and stock men voted their desire to do all within their power to help the work along.

Convicted Banker Arrested Again

The game of hide and seek between the federal authorities of the United States and C. A. Bonds, formerly president of the Night and Day chain of banks in the Southwest, took a new turn last week when Mr. Bonds was arrested again in Winnipeg, Canada, under instructions from Washington. The warrant was issued under direction of Secretary Knox and was placed in the hands of United States Consul General Jones. Bonds is wanted at Memphis, Tenn., where he was convicted of using the mails to defraud. At the time of his trial he was out under bond and he fled to Canada. The fight to bring him back has been going on for some time but thus far Bonds successfully has resisted all efforts in that direction. He was president of the Night and Day Bank of Kansas City at the time it was taken over by the American Union Trust Company, which now is being liquidated by the Commerce Trust Company of Kansas City.

Missouri Capitol Bonds

After more than a year of effort to dispose of the $3,500,000 bonds to build Missouri's new capitol, it now is believed that this vexing question has been settled on the proposition from the Mississippi Valley Trust Company of St. Louis. The capitol bonds bear only 3½ per cent interest and it was found impossible to place them at that rate without offering a substantial bonus. The state advertised extensively and the bonds were taken East with the hope of disposing of them. But nobody would touch them until it was proposed to offer a "broker's commission" in lieu of a higher rate of interest. The commission given to the Mississippi Valley Trust will be $143,000, which will bring the rate up to 3.84 per cent for the twelve-year period, which is the period covered by the bonds. The legislature of two years ago played politics. Instead of putting the interest rate at 4 per cent or even 3¾ per cent, it made it very low so as to insure the people voting for the bonds. The "broker's commission" is a technical evasion of the original proposal.

Rejects Bids for State Funds

The Missouri board of fund commissioners having charge of state moneys held a meeting the afternoon of February 1st, and rejected most of the bids for state depository, on the ground that they were too low, and it strongly was intimated that a combine existed among the larger bidders. The board will re-advertise for proposals. Meanwhile the Mississippi Valley Trust of St. Louis, which purchased the recent issue of capitol bonds, will continue to be the chief depository of the state. It now has fifteen-twentieths of these funds, the remainder being divided among banks and trust companies in Kansas City and Jefferson City. The state now is receiving from the Mississippi Valley Trust 3.29 per cent on funds deposited there for which the trust company must put up collateral security. There is an earnest effort on the part of the more responsible financial institutions of Missouri, including the Misissippi Valley Trust, to get the state to accept lower rates.

Central West Notes

J. W. McNeal, formerly president of the National Bank of Commerce of Guthrie, Ok., and L. W. Baxter, formerly cashier of that institution, were in Kansas City last week in connection with the organization of a new bank at Tulsa, Ok. It will be called the Liberty National Bank of Tulsa; Mr. McNeal will be president and Mr. Baxter, cashier. The capital stock will be $100,000 and it is expected that business will be begun March 1st.

Upon the recommendation of State Treasurer E. P. Deal, it is proposed to amend the Missouri state depository law so that instead of awarding the state funds in twentieths, as the law now specifies, they can be let in fiftieths. Mr. Deal's idea is that if the allotments are made smaller, country banks throughout the state would bid a higher rate for the money.

Not to be outdone by the older chapter in Dallas, the Fort Worth Chapter of the American Institute of Banking has just equipped handsome quarters at 808½ Houston Street, at a cost of $15,000. The membership of the Fort Worth chapter now is 105 and the officers are: President, William Massie; vice-presidents, H. P. Sandidge and E. P. Williams; secretary, L. L. Manchester; treasurer, J. N. Moon; and S. P. Berry, chairman of the executive committee. It is planned to start various banking and commercial cources within a short time.

J. Fletcher Farrell, vice-president of the Fort Dearborn National of Chicago, with W. L. McKee, traveling representative of that institution, spent one day last week among the Kansas City bankers.

E. F. Swinney, president of the First National of Kansas City, has purchased the F. J. Moss home at 4343 Oak Street, for a town house. Mr. Swinney and his family spend most of their time at their country place near Excelsior Springs, Mo. Mr. Swinney paid $33,000 for the property.

The First Bank and Trust Company of Taylor, Ok., has been organized with $150,000 capital. The Farmers State Bank of Haskell also is a new Oklahoma institution having a capital of $25,000. Two smaller state banks, the Farmers State of Garvin, capital $15,000, and the First State of Strang, capital $10,000, have been chartered by the Oklahoma authorities.

Among the out-of-town bankers in Kansas City this week were: H. R. McCutcheon, president of the Bank of Holden, Holden, Mo.; E. H. Harris, cashier of the Pilot Grove (Mo.) Bank; H. J. Stover, cashier of the Traders State of Salina, Kas.; F. B. Metzgar, president of the German-American State of Topeka, Kas.; D. J. Young, president of the First National, Canadian, Tex.; Peter Ersch, president of the First National, Beloit, Kas.; M. F. Courtney, president of the Farmers State, Chickasha, Ok.; J. W. Bowlby, cashier of the Lost Springs, (Kas.). State; C. W. Snider, cashier of the Manufacturers National, Leavenworth, Kas.; Manley Board, president of the Exchange National, Muskogee, Ok.; J. C. Smock, president of the Eufaula (Ok.) National; J. W. Ingram, president of the Salisbury (Mo.) Savings; Joseph Lamar, president of the First National of Excelsior Springs, Mo.; R. C. Jones, president of the Everest (Kas.) State; A. J. Hewson, president of the State Bank of St. Paul, Kas.; J. S. Hills, vice-president of the Oklahoma State, Enid, Ok.; F. L. Godfrey, cashier of the First National, Oklahoma City, Ok.; C. A. Johnson, cashier of the Hartford (Kan.) National and James T. Duncan, assistant cashier of the Exchange State of Platte City, Mo.

PLAN TO PAVE STATE LINE STREET

An agreement has been reached between the Cook County Highway Commissioners and those of Lake county, Indiana, to pave State Line Street between Hammond, Ind., and West Hammond, Ill., each county to pay one-half of the cost. The new street will divert Chcago automobile traffic south instead of making it necessary to come into Indiana. Thus the first steps toward an Indiana and Illinois interstate highway reaching from Lake Michigan to Vincennes, Ind., on the Wabash river, were taken.

NEW ENGLAND CHECK COLLECTIONS

ment banking, which is now very large, unless we made some "suggestions" that were of a character worthy of consideration. We therefore spent a great deal of time and employed counsel to look into every phase of "Blue Sky" legislation, using some copies of the various bills that have been introduced, and in nearly every instance it is believed that if many of the laws are passed as introduced they would be easily defeated as being unconstitutional. As investment bankers we therefore feel that a modified measure, along the lines of a legal measure that can be enforced with some effect, would be much better than a radical measure that would at once be assailed by some citizens and become ineffective until a court decision was obtained, and would probably then be defeated as unconstitutional. It therefore is apparent that all new legislation of a financial kind must be very carefully considered or it will do a great deal more harm than good to the cause. As an association we are not taking Mr. Dolley's bill for Kansas, even though as modified it may be just what Kansas wants, but as an association we certainly cannot approve the Kansas law for use in Illinois, or in many other states having large commercial interests and now carrying on a very large and legitimate investment business that is so essential to the prosperity of our country, especially the younger states where they have such a large amount of new resources that they desire outside capital to aid in developing them. The faker who has sold a few shares of stock in a company that may be rightly understood to be "Blue Sky" is not an investment banker. He is a "faker" purely, and against such as he the law should be as strong as it can be made and be enforced to the limit, but in punishing the "faker" who sells "Blue Sky" be careful that you do not punish the man who sells a good stock or a good bond on which prosperity is founded.

Banking news from Minneapolis—St. Paul financial center, and surrounding States, compiled by J. Edwards Smith

Dates for the Minnesota Bankers Association convention at Duluth are July 10th-11th. A meeting of the executive committee to arrange details for the convention has been called for February 11th in the office of Secretary G. H. Richards.

"The fact that all the states that are needed to make a national income tax a possibility have come into line is an important development," to-day said E. W. Decker, president of the Northwestern National, discussing the Works income tax bill, now before the Minnesota legislature. "I believe the effect of the practical certainty of the enactment of a national income tax law will be to kill the state proposals along that line; and, if so, it will be a fortunate thing for Minneapolis. When all the states are on a parity, it means a fair show all around; but a Minnesota income tax, under existing conditions, could not fail to drive capital, and investments, and matters relative to the settlement of estates, from Minnesota to other states where there is no such law."

J. S. Pomeroy on Trip East

J. S. Pomeroy, vice-president of the Security National, has gone east on an extended business trip. He will include New York, Baltimore, Cleveland, Washington and Philadelphia on the tour. It will be his first travel as a vice-president, so he may visit his old home at Homer, N. Y., to learn if it has changed since his election.

Conditions Prosperous

Recent bank letters from the Twin City institutions indicate prosperous conditions. The second monthly publication of the St. Paul First National in trade conditions contained a paragraph to the effect that:

"Only once in the past ten years has general business reached its present high level and that was during the month of December, 1909. Only twice during that period has business approached its present high level, once on February 1, 1907, just preceding the financial panic, and again on December 1, 1910, when we were reacting from the business slump which occurred during the summer months of that year."

Security National Bank Letter

"Statistical reports show that the mercantile manufacturing and banking conditions have reached a stage which denotes complete prosperity for the country as a whole," says the monthly financial circular of the Security National of Minneapolis.

"The condition of winter wheat and rye is pronounced slightly above the ten-year average and the crop prospects are given as good up to this date." says the circular. "The present high level of business conditions follows a fluctuating period which began on May 1, 1911, and during the two-year interim a man has had need to be unusually well informed to keep even in reasonably close touch with the ups and downs of business. Since the middle of 1912, a period of prosperity has been pretty well assured us and the improvement since that time has been most remarkable."

Resigns Bank Position

Charles W. Farwell, who has been assistant cashier of the Northwestern National and connected with the institution more than twenty-four years, has resigned because of ill health and he has quit business entirely. He is at San Diego, Calif., where he expects to remain. For eighteen months Mr. Farwell has been little at the bank, except when he was back from trips South.

Large January Clearings

For every business day in January, Minneapolis did a total business averaging $1,515,733.30 more than the daily total of January a year ago, and so the bank clearings for the month were $126,724,462, or $41,024,880 in excess of January, 1912, in which month the total was $85,669,582, a gain of nearly 50 per cent.

It was the heaviest January in the clearing house history of Minneapolis. This was due largely to the fact that the grain movement, which normally subsides after the first of the new year, kept up at an unusual rate this year. The average of $4,693,498 for daily clearings is the heaviest ever shown in Minneapolis, excepting in the crop movement months, September, October and November of each year, when the averages are usually higher.

Back From Texas

E. W. Decker, C. T. Jaffray, John Birkholz have returned from a hunt on a ranch in Texas: "We had good sport and enjoyed the trip greatly," Mr. Decker said. "We witnessed the sport of shooting coyotes from a racing touring car, and it is exciting. Texas is prosperous and progressive and business in general is reported good. In the Brownsville region there are many northern people to be found who have gone into the business of raising vegetables for the northern markets."

Mankato Attaining Prominence as Banking Center

Mankato is getting to be an important banking center for Southwestern Minnesota and also for South Dakota, and as the strength of the Mankato banks is gaining very rapidly the city is to become more and more the banking center of the section. During the past crop season, the National Citizens Bank alone assisted the banks of the smaller towns and individual firms to the extent of $300,000 to $400,000. No doubt other banks in the city assisted their clientage in the same way.

Vice-president George W. Sugden states that the total of the daily deposits of the National Citizens Bank have jumped from $15,733,378.60 in 1908 to $24,950,216.25 in 1911, and to $28,970,983.40 in 1912. The past month showed a greater proportionate gain, the greatest that the bank has experienced. The daily deposits in January a year ago totaled $2,063,548, while those of last month totaled $2,930,217, a gain of 42 per cent. The gain of November over November, 1911, was 35 per cent, and that of December was 40 per cent.

Bank Merger

The First National of Le Sueur and the First State have been consolidated under the first name. The combined banks will have $50,000 capital. This is the largest bank in the county.

New Minnesota Bank

Citizens State Bank of Mahnomen, Mahnomen County, Minn., has filed its articles of incorporation with the secretary of state. The incorporators are: J. C. Jackson, Morgan; Albert Pfaender, New Ulm; Thos. Arnett, Red Wood Falls; C. W. Heimann, Fairfax; Joseph R. Keife, North Redwood.

Northwest Notes

Vice-president George F. Orde of the Minneapolis First National, February 6th-7th, was on the program of the Missouri slope district group of North Dakota bankers, held in Bismarck.

The New Citizens State, Minneapolis, opened for business Thursday morning, at the banking house at Lake Street and Bloomington Avenue. A. C. Stringer, cashier, has spent the last few days getting affairs in order. The bank has 22 by 60 feet floor space. The interior is marble finished and the vault is one of the largest in the city.

Speaking of men marrying at $75 a month, if working in a bank, or for less, President F. M. Prince of the First National said there may be exceptions to the rule that it is not a good thing, but that there are persons who can save money on a pittance, but these are few and far between. Whether the bank would let a man of this type out the president said depends on the man, his mode of life. He gave the opinion that "the average man would not be desirable if he married on such a sum in any business," according to the daily papers.

BANK FOR EVANSTON

A new banking institution, to be known as the Bankers State Bank and Trust Company, will open in Evanston this month. It will be at 919 Chicago Avenue. Incorporation papers were received this week from the state auditor. The organizers of the bank are Charles J. Connor, 1220 Maple Avenue; Sims McGuire, 503 Briar Place, and Jerome Crowley, assistant county attorney.

CHICAGO AS A BOND MARKET

John E. Blunt, Jr., vice-president of the Merchants Loan and Trust, says that Chicago is growing in importance as a bond market, and that if it does not already hold a place second only to New York, it will not be very long before that position is attained.

A new Chicago firm, to be known as the Heitman Bond and Mortgage Company, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $50,000. F. D. Silber and others are interested.

TRADE CONDITIONS GOOD

Northwestern National of Minneapolis in its January review of industrial and commercial conditions said:

"Trade, both wholesale and retail, is holding up well after the passing of the holiday season. Reports of various lines indicate that the figures for January business will show a good increase over those of a year ago, and the local clearing house exchanges show a similar increase.

"Manufacturers generally are busy and feel confidence in the immediate future. Of course the uncertainties of tariff changes in prospect have promoted a spirit of conservatism in industries likely to be affected by them.

"The general feeling may be expressed as a desire to meet the expected action of congress with stocks of raw materials and finished products so well in hand that the least possible embarrassment may occur. It is not anticipated that the changes in tariff will be so extreme as to produce conditions in any industry that cannot be readily met by a readjustment, of buying, selling, and producing costs."

INDIANA BANK INCREASES CAPITAL

Wabash Valley Loan and Trust Company has increased its capital stock from $60,000 to $125,000 as a result of action taken by the board of directors of the institution.

Boston.—At the recent meeting of the directors of the Franklin Savings Bank, Charles H. Baldwin was elected president and J. Homer Pierce, former president since the death of James E. Whitney, was elected vice-president, a position he formerly occupied for many years.

Pacific Northwest Banking News

Work has commenced on the $4,000,000 grade separation project of the Northern Pacific Railway, which is elevating its tracks immediately south of the business district of Spokane. The railroad has secured a long stretch of ground just west of the city from which material will be secured to make the fill between the concrete retaining walls. This immense project, together with the entrance of the Milwaukee and the new line of the O. W. R. & N., the building of a union station, the construction of the $2,000,000 Davenport Hotel and numerous smaller enterprises, serves to make the financial and business outlook generally exceedingly bright in Spokane. The contract for the Davenport Hotel is to be let within a few days, it is announced.

One of the largest financial transactions consummated in Spokane recently was the purchase by the Day and Hansen Security Company of Spokane of a substantial interest in the Commercial Bank and Trust Company of Wenatchee, from Frank W. Schultz. Mr. Schultz also has purchased an interest in the Day and Hansen Security Company, and will become a member of its board of directors. Mr. Schultz is president of the Commercial Bank and Trust Company of Wenatchee, and also is president of the Douglas County Bank of Waterville. He is one of the leading bankers of the Inland Empire, and has large interests in land investments throughout the Pacific Northwest. He will continue as president and manager of the Wenatchee Company, devoting his full time to his banking interests in that locality.

The Day and Hansen Security Company is one of the large investment companies in the Spokane country, with a capital and surplus of over $1,400,000, dealing principally in farm lands and farm loans, and, in addition to the above named bank, is associated with the Waterville Savings Bank of Waterville, the National Bank of Oakesdale, the Moscow State Bank of Moscow, Ida.; Blair & Co., bankers, of Helmville, Mont., and the Castana (Ia.) Savings Bank.

Union Securities Company was host recently to twenty-six visiting bankers with whom it has business dealings, and entertained them at the Spokane Club at luncheon. The bankers, country correspondents of the Spokane company, present at the conference and luncheon came from many points in the Spokane country. Covers at the luncheon were placed for J. K. McCornack, D. W. Twohy, J. P. McGoldrick, T. J. Humbird, S. A. Duncan, J.C. Donnelly and B. L. Jenkins of Spokane; G. D. Snowden, Grandview, Wash.; William Thomson, Lewiston, Ida.; T. Claude Bennett, Wilson Creek, Wash.; J. D. Wilcox, Mullan, Ida.; L. N. Swift, Nez Perce, Ida.; A. B. Chamberlin, Coeur d'Alene, Ida.; T. J. Miller, Ilo, Ida.; R. L. Shepard, Lewiston, Ida.; C. A. Controlling interest in the First National of Pullman, Wash., has been sold by E. S. Burgan and J. J. Rouse to other stockholders and Pullman persons whose names are not made public. The deal involved $52,232. The stock sold at $225 per share, which is $75 per share more than was paid for it when Mr. Burgan and associates bought the bank six years ago. The par value of the stock is $100. Prior to the time Mr. Burgan and associates bought the bank the highest deposits were $176,000. Last December the deposits reached $487,000. During the six years of the retiring management the stock has paid $116 per share in dividends. The bank has a capital of $50,000 with $10,000 surplus and undivided profits. E. S. Burgan retires from the presidency and J. J. Rouse as cashier. At the election of officers, Mark W. Whitlow, wealthy farmer, who has been vice-president of the bank for six years, was elected president; Thomas H. Brewer of Spokane and A. L. Wexler of Pullman, Wash., vice-presidents, and Ross Kennedy, who has been assistant cashier, was made acting cashier.

Spokane bankers have been inoculated with the germs of the rare book fever. Publicity was given the fact that J. O. Tiffany, paying teller of the Traders National, has a volume of an edition issued by the government in 1877, and later suppressed and recalled. Byron N. Rooks, of the government treasury department, while in Spokane recently, told Mr. Tiffany it was one of three copies in existence, the others being held by the government. It is entitled "Heath's Infallible Counterfeit Detector." Since the visit of Mr. Rooks no less than seven books of the same name have been unearthed by Spokane bankers, but none are the same as the volume in the possession of Mr. Tiffany, either as to engravings or text matter. They were issued in different years, also.

Emery Olmstead, vice-president and manager of the New Northwest National and president of the Portland Trust Company of Portland, Ore., and George Kelly, one of his directors, were visitors in Spokane recently. The two bankers are on a trip of building inspection that will take them to New York. Mr. Olmstead is contemplating the erection of a sixteen-story building in Portland, and it is to get ideas for the new structure that the present trip is undertaken. They looked over the Old National Bank building for suggestions for the new skyscraper and were impressed favorably with the many novel features of the Spokane structure.

Construction of a $400,000 modern, fireproof, nine-story building has been started in the business district of Spokane by Patrick Welch, a local railroad contractor. A hotel and several one-story buildings have been removed from the site. The new building has been taken under a long term lease by the Culbertson-Grote-Rankin Company, successors to the Wonder department store and the Grote-Rankin Furniture Company.

Among out-of-town bankers who came to Spokane this week are: W. W. Downie, cashier First National of Harrington, Wash.; G. W. Hamilton, director of the Benton County National, at Prosser, Wash.; W. A. McEachern, president of the Bank of Latah, Wash., and Joel Gates, cashier of the United States National, Superior, Wis. Mr. Gates is on a pleasure trip through the Northwest and stopped in Spokane en route to the Coast cities.

Train service between Spokane and Pateros, on the Columbia river north of Wenatchee, will be established by the Great Northern in June. Less than seven miles of grading remain to be done, and it is expected steel laying will start in a month.

J. P. M. Richards, president of the Spokane and Eastern Trust Company, C. W. Winter and Herbert Witherspoon, vice-presidents of the same institution, are spending the winter in California.

in the western country during the last fifteen years and it is expected that this will continue. The money is used chiefly for development purposes, principally on farms and income property.

Eugene J. de Hart van Neerlich of Haag, and C. van Taack Trackranen of Harlem, where they are connected with prominent families, have called a meeting for February 15th, when the Holland Club of Edmonton will be organized. The objects are to encourage Holland immigration and investments to western Canada and to assist the newcomers in establishing homes. The association will have nothing to sell. It is expected that a large percentage of the immigrants will be drawn from the farming communities. The promoters of the club are bringing Hollanders to this country to show growers the possibilities of close farming.

C. A. B. Brown of Toronto, where he is an official of Bradstreets' Agency, said in an interview in Edmonton a few days ago that money will be easier in a comparatively short time. The Balkan situaation has a lot to do with it. "But," he added. "I am glad to say that I can see relief in sight." He said also that the time for 4 per cent money is about over. The demand for money is so great that municipalities must offer 5 per cent. This applies to the eastern provinces as well as to western Canada. In the East under the present acts the municipalities cannot pay more than 4 per cent, hence they will have to induce the legislatures to amend their acts so that higher rates can be offered. Mr. Brown said there are many opportunities in the West for doing business. Every community is progressing and prospering.

A. F. Ewing, who has just returned to Edmonton from a business trip to Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Buffalo, New York, Scranton and numerous points in the East, said a lively interest is manifested there in western Canada. "The people in the East have an idea that things are being a bit overdone," he added, "but they seek information about the opportunities of the country. When these facts are laid before them they see that definite plans are being worked out in city and country. Business conditions are good throughout the East."

Ralph R. Rickly, president of the Capital City Bank of Columbus, Ohio, has been elected president of the Columbus Clearing House Association. Phillip L. Schneider, cashier of the National Bank of Commerce, vice-president, and J. J. Jennings, cashier of the City National on the managing committee.

William George, president of the Old Second National of Aurora, Ill., was in Des Moines last week inspecting bank structures and getting ideas for a new home for his institution.

P. P. Clark and Wright Clark, his son, are reported to be organizing a new bank at Red Oak.

Des Moines February 5th.—Secretary P. W. Hall of the Iowa Bankers Association conferred at Sioux City last week with John McHugh of that place, chairman of the legislative committee, relative to impending legislation at the present session of the General Assembly. It was decided that the committee will seek legislation along the following lines in addition to plans made at a former meeting and which have not been made public:

First, To make it a felony for a person to draw checks or drafts upon an institution in which he has no money. This takes into account the fact that if a person has established credit at the bank, such circumstances will enter into the violation of the statute.

Second, To provide a punishment for those making false statements to a bank for the purpose of obtaining credit.

Third, Punishment of those who make derogatory statements relative to a bank or a banker. Bills along the line of the last named proposition already have been introduced in the legislature. It is thought such a measure would do much to prevent the breaking down of confidence which often is started by careless and unfounded remarks relative to a financial institution.

Prominent Banker Dead

Ernest E. Hart, president of the First National at Council Bluffs and one of the best known bankers in Iowa, died at Long Beach, Cal., suddenly last Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Hart were in the West on a pleasure trip, and it seems that his death was entirely unexpected. Mrs. Hart called a physician but death had occurred before the doctor reached the stricken man. Mr. Hart was for twelve years one of the republican national committee and was prominent in Iowa political circles. He was 53 years old and a native of Iowa.

Alleged Iowa Bank Robber in Jail

It seems that out of the four men arrested at St. Paul in connection with the robbery of the Goldfield bank some weeks ago, Iowa gets but one. One of the fellows was turned over to the government for a postoffice robbery. The St. Paul police then informed detectives for the Iowa Bankers Association that they would have the other three indicted for Minnesota store burglaries. After that, the men would be turned over to Iowa and if not "stuck" in Iowa, they would be turned back to St. Paul to answer the indictments. The program worked out nicely so far as having the men indicted was concerned. But when two of them, James Simpson and Mike Murray, were arraigned for store burglaries, they surprised the state by promptly pleading guilty. They were sentenced to indeterminate terms with a minimum of seven years and a maximum of forty. Had they been "stuck" in Iowa for bank burglary, they would have been given fifteen years. The fourth member of the gang, Rollin Russell, alias Kid Martin, was brought back to Iowa and placed in the calaboose at Clarion. The Iowa Bankers Association believes it has the goods on the entire gang and regrets that it will not have opportunity to prosecute the entire quartette.

Group Meetings

The season for group meetings has almost arrived. Two of them have been announced in Iowa. Group Ten meets at Bloomfield, February 12th. Group Eleven meets at Keokuk February 22d. Programs will be published later.

Bankers Club

The Des Moines Bankers Club has arranged to have Senator John T. Clarkson of Albia speak at the regular February meeting. Senator Clarkson is chairman of the employers' liability commission which drew up the Workmen's Compensation Act now before the Iowa legislature. This is the subject upon which he will speak to the bankers. The question of employers' liability is one of the most complicated and important before the Iowa General Assembly.

Bankers Interested in Legislation

Bills of interest to bankers continue to roll in upon the Iowa legislature. There have been two bills placing private banks under state supervision and, it is said, there will be two more before the session is much older. A bill which will require a man borrowing an amount of ten per cent or more of the capital stock of a bank to furnish in writing a statement of his financial condition is to be introduced shortly—perhaps before this letter is in print. Bills now before the Iowa legislature in which bankers are interested include the following: By Representative Manning, making it a misdemeanor to circulate slanderous reports concerning banks; by Representative Townsend, to amend Section 1869 of the Code fixing compensation for directors of state and savings banks; by Senator Webber, providing that loan and trust companies may act as receivers, trustees, guardians, and do a general banking business; by Senator DeWolf, to confer additional powers upon trust companies and permit them to do a limited banking business; by Senator Farr, permitting Iowa savings banks to make loans upon property in other states and fixing limits in those outside states beyond which the bank may not go. This limitation, it is explained, makes it impossible to loan money upon land that is not considered of standard commercial value.

The impression seems to be that the bill to abolish the office of school treasurer has a better start this year than ever before, although heretofore it always has been smothered before the session ended. The house of representatives committee has recommended the bill for passage.

"Girl" Forgers Under Arrest

Mason City had two girl forgers under arrest a few days ago. But one of them proved to be a man. When arrested the "girls" gave their names as Olive Bess Pickett and Anna Michael. Olive turned out to be the male partner of Anna who admitted that she furnished him the feminine garb in which he had been appearing. Anna told a hard luck story of having a divorced husband and two children. She said she met the man, who told her his name was Smith and persuaded her to go on a journey with him for the purpose of getting rich via the forged check route.

Banker Favors Fowler Bill in Some Respects

James F. Toy, well-known Sioux City banker, in an interview the other day declared that he is in favor of the Fowler bill, now before congress, in many respects. The general plan he says is satisfactory to him in so far as it relates to clearing houses for bank zones under national supervision. But he says in the interview that he is opposed to the central bank as recommended by the commission and does not believe in centralizing power in any such board or set of men. He asserts that the people in each zone will be more familiar with the needs in that zone than will their representatives in the central bank. Each zone should act independently. He favors the Fowler reserve plan but opposes issuing currency against bank assets excepting only where the same is secured by substantial collateral.

Bank Wins Suit

The Citizens National of Des Moines won an important suit in the Iowa supreme court when that body reversed the lower court in the case brought by the bank against the Western Union Telegraph Company. Some years ago, the Des Moines bank, upon receipt of a telegram presumably sent by the United States National at Omaha, paid one Clarence King $500. Later the telegram proved to be bogus. The bank sued the telegraph company, alleging that it should have verified a telegram of such importance. In the lower court, the Western Union won, but the supreme court rules otherwise and awards the bank a verdict.

Publish List of Stockholders

Under the new Iowa law, the banks of Des Moines have been filing their lists of stockholders with the county assessor. Two years ago, when the law took effect and the newspapers published the lists, the banks in some instances became peeved. But now, the law is accepted without opposition and the lists are filed and printed where the world may see. These lists attract much attention and eagerly are perused by the readers of the Des Moines newspapers who find them valuable for scrap book purposes.

Bank to Enlarge Quarters

The German American Savings at Burlington announces that it will enlarge its present capacity by taking in the store rooms adjoining it and converting them into bank quarters. This will give the institution a frontage of sixty feet with the present depth. The furniture will be modern in every way and the quarters when completed will be among the finest in southeastern Iowa.

Des Moines Visitors

Bankers who visited in Des Moines within recent days and whose names are inscribed upon the registers in the local banks include the following: Cashier H. A. Schoenberger, Varina Savings; Cashier J. Wilcox, Lovillia Exchange; Assistant Cashier T. O. Higgin, State of Renwick; President John McCarthy, First National, Williams; Cashier Charles McDonald, Bayard Savings; Cashier F. L. Des Moines Banker Dead

Des Moines bankers were saddened when they heard of the unexpected death at Pasadena of Moses Strauss, president of the State Savings and a director of the Citizens National of this city. Mr. Strauss was a stockholder in the Citizens National when it was organized in 1872 and was one of the organizers of the State Savings in 1887. He had resided in Des Moines since 1857 and amassed a fortune which placed him in the front rank of Iowa capitalists. Mr. Strauss was 80 years of age. He had been in poor health but his death came as a shock. The remains were brought to Des Moines for burial.

Iowa Notes

The comptroller of the currency has been asked to approve the organization of the First National at Boone. The capital stock is $25,000. The organizers include F. A. Rossing, J. O. Dale, G. P. Lansing, P. S. Knutson and T. H. Berger.

The Security Savings is the name of a new institution at Valley Junction. The capital stock is $50,000. The incorporators include F. D. Hadden, C. H. Ashworth, W. H. Gavin, W. H. Carmody, John Gavin and J. F. Ashworth.

Frank Roberts, formerly with the state banking department and now president of the Citizens State at Newton, was a Des Moines visitor recently. Mr. Roberts reports the institution of which he is head as flourishing.

NEW BANKING BILLS IN MICHIGAN

From Secretary Brown of the Michigan association, comes word that there are "the liviest of times ahead at the state capital on banking legislation." The hearing one day last week on the "Blue Sky" law lasted until two o'clock the next morning. The draft as printed in THE CHICAGO BANKER last week was urged by the legislative committee, M. B. A. On Wednesday of this week hearings began on the following bills:

1. The bill to give the commissioner authority to determine the necessity of establishing a bank in any community.

2. The bill to require bank employees to give bond.

3. The bill in reference to the lien of a bank on its stock.

4. The bill to permit an examination of the bank before it should commence business.

5. The bill requiring the directors to keep always ten shares of stock free from lien.

6. The bill to disqualify a director from acting as a director of any bank for five years if he is absent from three consecutive board meetings without good excuse.

7. The bill to prevent an active officer of a bank acting on an examining committee.

8. The bill in reference to requiring banks to report twice a year all lines of credit to the department in excess of certain amount.

9. The bill giving the commissioner authority to designate a bank as a reserve bank and increasing the reserve in the smaller reserve towns.

10. A bill making it a misdemeanor to cause or to aid or permit an overdraft.

11. The bill to increase the salary of examiners.

12. The bill to change the fees of banks for examinations.

13. The bill limiting the right of a bank to loan money to its directors.

14. Several bills relating to the right of the commissioner to examine banks in course of liquidation requiring a report from a receivership, examining a bank asking extension of its corporate existence.

These bills were carefully considered by the association committee. The bills in reference to the examination of the bank affairs last above referred to were agreed to. The bill in reference to the lien on stock was thought unnecessary. The bill in reference to examination before issuing the certificate was agreed to. The bill in reference to disqualifying directors for failure to attend meetings was not agreed to; nor was the bill requiring a report as to lines of credit; nor was the bill as to overdrafts. The bill as to the increase of the salary of examiners was agreed to. The bill in reference to payment for examinations was not in complete form before the committee and so was not considered. The other bills were modified and certain amendments approved by your committee.

Michigan bankers are on guard and the multiplicity of banking bills is a trifle bewildering. A strong legislative committee in such cases is an association's best preparation to ward off drastic and undesirable legislation.

BOSTON CONSOLIDATIONS

Organization of the Industrial National, capital $500,000 and surplus of $250,000, and the Fidelity Trust Company, capital $500,000 and surplus $100,000, is said to be the result of the dissatisfaction with which a considerable portion of the business community of Boston has viewed bank consolidations which have been in progress there.

Since 1898 the number of national banks in Boston has been reduced from fifty-seven to nineteen, and the capital stock thereof from $49,600,000 to $28,800,000, or over 41 per cent, although in the meanwhile the dividends paid to the stockholders have increased $1,360,000, or 120 per cent. Including the bank for which a charter has just been applied, only four new national banks have been organized in Boston during the past fifteen years; but, as one of these subsequently was liquidated and another was wound up, owing to failure, the proposed bank is only the second real addition that has been made to the city's national bank outfit since the Spanish-American War.

ITALIAN BANKS BUY BONDS

A combination of Italian banks, headed by the Bank of Italy, has bought up at par without public subscription, four per cent five-year treasury bonds to the amount of $80,000,000, the issue of which was authorized last December to meet expenses of the development of the state railroads and for other purposes. A portion of this sum, to the amount of about $10,000,000 will be employed to pay off that part of the Ottoman debt accruing to Italy, and a further amount will be devoted to meeting expenses incident to the war in Tripoli.

PHILADELPHIA SCHOOL BOND OFFERING

The Harris Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago and its eastern associates are bringing out in this market $1,950,000 Philadelphia school district registered 4 per cent bonds, maturing serially from July 1, 1923 to 1942 inclusive. The bonds are in denominations of five hundred dollars and one thousand dollars and the price on the maturities from 1923 to 1932 is 100½ and interests, and on the remaining maturities 100⅝ and interest.

DETROIT BANKER IN CHICAGO

Elmer E. Ford, assistant cashier of the Old Detroit (Mich.) National, accompanied by Mrs. Ford, was in Chicago Monday. Mrs. Ford left on the Santa Fe limited Monday night for a visit with relatives in Los Angeles. While here Mr. Ford said that business conditions in Detroit are coming along steadily with a good feeling as regards the future. Mr. Ford returned to Detroit on Monday night.

Plans have been completed for the consolidation of the First National and the Bank of Mt. Auburn, Ill., the latter a private bank.

NEW CAPITAL ISSUES

American railroad and industrial, mining and mercantile corporations and states and municipalities have announced new capital issues, consisting of bonds, short term notes and stocks during January, indicating a grand total of $169,322,000. This is $198,600,900 less than January's total a year ago. The fact should be emphasized that no small part of this output will be employed to pay off maturing obligations and to refund different issues, for which no allowance has been made.

The steam and electric railroads floated $75,679,000, as against $218,193,200 in 1912. The industrial and miscellaneous total was $74,189,400, as against $122,699,700.

NATIONAL CITY SENDS OUT CIRCULAR

National City Bank of New York in its monthly circular says:

"Aside from its importance to those who pay federal taxes, or receive payments from the government, the recent decision of the secretary of the treasury to make direct use of the banks in handling the $2,000,000 which Uncle Sam collects and pays out every day is of general interest inasmuch as it furnishes a striking example of the evolution of government business methods.

"When the plan is in thorough adjustment it is contemplated that banks will receive directly just that portion of the daily income of the government required to make the disbursements demanded of it. This will result, it is believed, in nothing but the excess of receipts over expenditures finding its way into the subtreasuries in the form of currency. It is not contemplated that the plan will require larger balances in banks than the government now is carrying—slightly less than $50,000,000. With a proper distribution of the daily income these balances will be disturbed but little in making current payments.

"Another feature which it is believed will be decidedly acceptable to banks will be the possibility of a bank having placed to its credit, at any point it may wish, its portion of the daily income of the government. In this manner an interior city bank may get a credit in any other city without cost for exchange.

BANK PROMOTIONS AT BEACH, N. D.

The annual meeting of the directors of the First National, at Beach, N. D., brought notable changes in the official staff of that institution. E. E. Noble, who has been president of the bank since its organization, although not active in the management for the past two years, handed in his resignation, Mr. Noble having decided that his insurance business required all of his time and attention. O. C. Attletweed, the efficient cashier for the past three years, was promoted and elected to the presidency and the position he has occupied was given to L. E. Austin, who for the past year has acted as assistant cashier. E. J. Curtin, of Iowa, was re-elected vice-president, as was also the old board of directors consisting of E. E. Dickinson, E. E. Mikkleson, E. L. Holvin, E. J. Curtin and O. C. Attletweed, who are to be congratulated for the way they have conducted the institution. No bank in the west has a stronger list of stockholders and directors than the First National of Beach, N. D.

HIGH CLEARINGS

With the exception of one month, Chicago bank clearings for January were the largest in the history of the clearing house.

ILLINOIS CONSOLIDATION

Plans for the consolidation of the First National of Westfield with the Westfield Bank have been completed, the former having purchased the stock of the latter. The two concerns will continue under the name of the First National. Officers are as follows: W. H. Druvel, president; J. Richardson, vice-president and H. E. Spelbring, cashier.

DETROIT BANK INCREASES CAPITAL

Home Savings of Detroit has increased its capital stock from $750,000 to $1,000,000, which, it is asserted, is a preliminary step to a merger with the Wayne County Savings.

According to the directors' plans, 2,500 shares of stock will be disposed of at $200 a share, the proceeds being used to increase the surplus to $1,000,000 from $750,000, as well as increasing the capitalization. Directors anticipate little difficulty in selling the stock, as it is now listed at $315.

NEW BROKERAGE FIRM

Eugene Dike, who formerly was connected with Finley Barrell & Co., has organized a brokerage firm which will be located in the Home Insurance building.

E. E. CRABTREE, of Jacksonville is back from Galveston at which place his wife and daughter will remain another month. Mr. Crabtree speaks very highly of the climate, the hotel and the friendliness and hospitality of the citizens.

MR. CRABTREE is chairman of the newly appointed legislative committee of the Illinois bankers association, and one of the fairest minded men in the association.

THE others named by President Phillips are Asher R. Cox, John W. Little, LeRoy A. Goddard and August Blum. No one would call it an anti-private banker committee.

IT will be the part of this committee, if a bank supervision bill gets up before the legislature, to see that the terms are reasonable and that the privates be given a fair time in which to convert.

IT is believed that the Dawes plan will prove acceptable to most of those concerned in the supervision movement.

THE Dawes plan was prepared as a sort of composite of all the recently passed supervision bills and of the chief bills prepared by bankers association committees in the various states.

IT concedes that the average private bank will require from three to five years to convert into shape to meet banking law requirements, chiefly because of loans upon and investments in lands and enterprises.

THERE should be no difficulty in securing such and other liberal provisions. On the question of absolute supervision by the state there should be no compromise asked nor any granted.

OUR old friend L. W. Gammon, manager of the protective department for the A. B. A. is out after THE CHICAGO BANKER for giving credit to the Wisconsin Bankers Association rather than to the A. B. A. for an arrest.

THE case was that of Norton who passed forged paper on the Citizens Bank at Clinton, Wis., and on the First National at Elkhorn, Wis.

OTHER associations and other agencies may have been working on the case but Norton was located by C. W. Tobie, manager of the western criminal department of the Burns agency. The expense of bringing him back from Colorado where Tobie had him arrested was borne by the two banks and by the Wisconsin Bankers Association in three equal parts, all to be refunded by the state.

THIS is slipped in here just to put a lot of hard working allies of the A. B. A. straight in the record.

MISS M. LENA RIDDLE has retired as editor of the Texas Bankers Record, and has been succeeded by (so he tells us) a big, awkward, homely man who is going to do his durndest to fill the place.

THE new editor is William A. Philpott. What happened to Miss Riddle, Mr. Philpott in his "Top o' the Mornin'" to his readers did not say.

AN excellent idea of modern Turkish life is given in Demetra Vaka's two books, "Haremlik" and "In the Shadow of Islam." The latter, especially, shows not only the domestic life of Turks and Turkish subjects, but gives an interesting picture of the organization known as the Young Turks' Party, and makes clear the difficulties which have made it impossible in this country of many nationalities for even the patriots to become really united.

IN "Junior Citizenship in the Home" (February Home Progress) Mabel Hill emphasizes the importance of training children to some understanding of the questions of government. The schools are giving more and more attention to this subject but their instruction, to be of lasting value, should be supplemented in the home. Nor is the opportunity wanting. Scarcely a day passes that the children are not brought into direct contact with some of the varied activities of the city, state, or national government. By a proper use of these opportunities the whole subject may be made of vital interest and the child sent into the world with the real knowledge of his duties as a citizen.

COL. J. P. HINTON of Hannibal, not only is a "show-me" but a "show-you" banker of the up-to-date type.

NO sooner did he read of the Connecticut bank which was attempting to increase the birth rate by starting a savings deposit account for every new baby than he "took his pen in hand."

IT appears that Mr. Hinton's bank for the past five years has been sending to every new white baby in Hannibal a cute little savings bank book "in baby blue and white," showing one dollar deposit in its favor.

THE little book states the rules of the bank on savings and how the dollar may be made available. Mr. Hinton says the plan "has worked fine" and brought many adult accounts as well.

THE popular ex-president of the "premier" bankers association will tell you how to do it if you want to make the banking hit of 1913 right in your own town.

A. S. BOOTH, who was cashier, now is vice-president, and H. J. Smith is the new cashier of the First National at Pueblo.

HARRIS TRUST lists more than 250 different issues of municipal, railroad and public corporation bonds in its February circular.

THE Harris also issues a tract on "Why Bonds Are Safe Investments," which is good dope for the bond salesman as well as for the investor. A postal card will be well invested.

EX-GOVERNOR CHARLES S. DENEEN can be found at the Windermere Hotel until he gets back in his own home in May. You see he didn't figure his "maturities" rightly.

HE says he's going to re-enter the practice of law. A "busy" rumor had it all along LaSalle Street that he will be connected with W. L. Moyer's sky-parlor trust company. The governor is pretty sure-footed as well as pussy-footed in things financial.

IT was "A great day for the ——" Well, it was a great day at Springfield on Monday last.

WE see that an "unknown" defeated "a man named Watts" in the Palm Beach tournament, but he wasn't the "man named Watts" that we know, who helped win the all eight cup at the A. B. A. tournament.

NEXT year, so plans are, Watts, Fuller, Cutler et al, will be handicapped "plus 75 or so." Even that might not settle it.

THREE more weeks and Wilson goes in.

"BANKING in Mexico" and "A Trip to Nome, Alaska," in The Guaranty News, New York, are far beyond the average on such subjects.

The CHICAGO BANKER

A Weekly Paper Devoted to the Banking and Financial Interests of the Middle West

FEBRUARY 15, 1913 — Entered as Second-Class Matter January 15, 1903, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March 3, 1879 — 10 CENTS A COPY

COMMITTEE ON NEW CONSTITUTION

Chairman Robert E. James of Easton, Pa., recently called a meeting of his special committee, appointed to revise and broaden the constitution of the American Bankers Association, to meet in this city on Monday, February 17th. Members of the committee, including Chairman James, began to arrive on Friday morning and numerous conferences were held during the day with Chicago members of the executive council and with execcutive officials of the various sections. The members of the committee are:

Robert E. James, chairman, Easton Pa.
W. J. Bailey, Atchison, Kan.
O. E. Dunlap, Waxahachie, Tex.
C. H. McNider, Mason City, Ia.
Gordon Jones, Denver, Colo.

It is reported that Chairman James practically has completed a draft of a constitution which largely adheres to the views expressed by other members of the committee and by leading members of the association who have taken a deep interest in the new constitution. It is expected also that Andrew J. Frame, who offered the resolution for the appointment of the committee at the Detroit convention, will present a draft of a constitution following along the lines of his address made at that time. The committee will hold its sessions at the Congress Hotel and will welcome suggestions and interviews from those taking an interest in the subject under consideration.

BANKERS TO MEET AT SPRINGFIELD

When the executive council meeting was held in Chicago on January 22d it was decided by the members of the committees on agriculture, vocational education and good roads to call a meeting at Springfield on Tuesday, February 18th, at ten o'clock, of those who are officially connected with the Illinois Bankers Association and the members of the advisory committees in respective counties who are taking an active part in committee work and who are interested in the legislative work of the association. All of the officers and members of the executive council, group chairmen and others interested will meet at the Leland Hotel at ten o'clock to consider the bills which these committees have prepared on the subjects of agriculture, education and good roads. At 12:30 an informal luncheon will be held in the ball room of the Leland Hotel to which Governor Dunne and the other state officers and all of the members of the legislature will be invited as guests of the association. After the luncheon a program of speaking will be provided in which Governor Dunne and representatives of the various groups in the legislature will be invited to participate in the way of speeches. The members of the bankers' committees will present the bills and explain their provisions. It is expected that every county in the state will be represented by one or more of the active members of the association and members of these committees will appreciate the interest of the officers and group chairmen and members of council in assisting in bringing about this representation.

A meeting of the members of the two committees on agriculture and vocational education, and good roads, will be held at the Leland the evening of February 17th.

Special cars will be attached to the Springfield trains leaving Chicago, Monday night, February 17th, for the convenience of those going from the northern part of the state.

NEW BANK EXAMINER

Comptroller of the Currency Murray has announced that Robert Neill, of Batesville, Ark., has been appointed a national bank examiner. Mr. Neill is about 29 years of age and has had eleven years' banking experience as bookkeeper, teller and assistant cashier with the First National, Batesville, Ark.

Chicago Men Figuring In Recent Promotions

J. EDWARD MAASS

EDWARD F. SCHOENECK

MR. MAASS was elected cashier of the Corn Exchange National at its recent annual meeting. He was born in Chicago and educated in the public schools, beginning his banking career with the American Exchange National in 1888, and being made an assistant cashier of that institution in 1895. Later he was assistant cashier of the American National, formed by the consolidation of the American Exchange National and the National Bank of America. In 1900, when the American National and the Northwestern National were absorbed by the Corn Exchange, he became assistant cashier of the latter institution, in which capacity he served until his election as cashier.

Mr. Schoeneck also was born and educated in Chicago. He started with the American Exchange National in 1890 as a clearing house clerk. When the American Exchange National and the National Bank of America consolidated, he was placed in charge of the transit department of the American National. Since 1900 Mr. Schoeneck served the Corn Exchange as manager of its transit department until his election as assistant cashier of the bank last month. During the last two years he has represented the bank at a number of bankers' conventions. He is rated as one of the best transit men in the country. Mr. Schoeneck has been quite active in A. I. B. work, having served on many of the committees. He formerly was business manager of the "Bank Man."

Both of these promotions are the reward of faithful, efficient service. Messrs. Maass and Schoeneck are well and favorably known in the banking world and have hosts of friends from whom they are receiving congratulations. Both are thorough bankers and well qualified to discharge the duties of the positions which they have assumed.

SALES MANAGER FOR CHICAGO SAVINGS

Chicago Savings Bank and Trust Company announces the appointment of Charles B. Schoolfield as sales manager of their real estate loan department. Mr. Schoolfield has for some time been connected with Marshall Field & Co., having charge of city sales of bank and office supplies. He has had extensive real estate experience, also.

E. C. Hart

E. C. Hart, formerly a Missouri bank examiner, has been elected vice-president of the Mid-City Trust and Savings of Chicago.

W. O. JONES hasn't given up his poetic indulgences since his elevation to a vice-presidency of the Park National.

A MEMBER of his Flatbush Sunday schooi class asked for an autograph, commemorative of his election, and W. O. just dashed off this little bit:

"WHILE rocks will wreck a ship at sea," Soliloquized wise-headed Hank;
"It's mighty queer, it seems to me,
A lack of rocks will wreck a bank."

"BANKS SOLD WITHOUT PUBLICITY" is the business-getting catch line in a bank broker's advertising. A bank that tries to get along without publicity ought to be sold without it if possible. They are of the kind the broker has for sale.

DR. KIRBY again has testified that he started his "bank" on less than one thousand dollars of borrowed money, and that he drew the first fifteen thousand of deposits out on his own individual notes. A fine state of affairs for a state like Illinois when such things can happen without hindrance of law.

SOL. LEWINSOHN seems to have fallen from grace, at least so in the municipal courts, since he opened a private "bank." He has been barred as a professional bondsman.

THERE is a bill pending before the Massachusetts legislature which, if made a law, will prevent any woman from starting a breach of promise suit unless she can produce a written marriage proposal from the man she sues.

"WATCH your step," Woodrow, from now on. "Lots of room in the rear" for the untrustworthy.

CHATHAM AND PHENIX NATIONAL, New York, sends out one of the handsomest statement folders to be seen in a thousand. It is in two tints of lilac and embossed in gold leaf. Does Mr. Kaufman's well-known taste in such matters high credit.

THE Chatham and Phenix keeps galloping along in deposit gains, showing at last call $23,000,000.

F. G. CALDERON in his new book, "Latin America," published by Charles Scribner's Sons, has a chapter on "The North American Peril" in which he says, as a sample, that "to save themselves from Yankee imperialism the American democracies would almost accept a German alliance, or the aid of Japanese arms; everywhere the Americans of the North are feared. In the Antilles and in Central America hostility against the Anglo-Saxon invaders assumes the character of a Latin crusade."

LOOKS good to see J. S. Pomeroy listed as a vice-president on the latest Security National statement. The folder is a very handsome one, showing a sky-line view of the Minneapolis banking district in which the big white Security skyscraper stands out in fine style. Deposits of $21,000,000 stand out also.

ALL of nearly two millions surplus and three-fourths of the one million capital of the First National, Kansas City, have been "earned"—which is some record.

RESOURCES of $54,000,000 are shown by the Irving National of New York. Bankers' balances show up strong in the deposit line. Everything's been running smoothly since Rollin P. Grant took the wheel.

NORTHERN TRUST, Chicago, is using its colored view of LaSalle Street financial district in a telling way on its statement blanks.

S. W. STRAUS, a Chicago expert in such matters, says that "during the last year the attention of eastern investors has been directed to an increasing extent toward western investments, and more especially investments based on real estate in Chicago."

MR. STRAUS also holds that "in Chicago the large downtown office building which fails to return 8 per cent on the capital invested is either poorly designed or poorly managed. Instances are known of a net return in the downtown Chicago district of 10 to 12 per cent, while apartment buildings situated in the best residential districts should never return less than 9 per cent."

AS predicted in these wise paragraphs the New York bankers have decided to hold the 1913 state convention in Ottawa, capital city of Canada.

JOSEPH T. TALBERT, New York, is chairman of the committee of arrangements and on "international relations," so to speak.

THERE will be a celebration of the 100th anniversary of the peace between the English speaking nations to help things along.

SECRETARY WILLIAM J. HENRY, who seldom overstates things of a business nature, says that "from the enthusiasm that has greeted the announcement there is every reason to expect a very large attendance and the promise of the most interesting and profitable convention ever held by the association. The ablest speakers of Canada and America will be drawn to the meeting, and the entertainment suggested by the Canadians is unusually attractive."

THE date will be about the "middle of June."

WE join with Chicago Chapter boys in their sorrow at the untimely death of Herman E. Ellefson. He was high class from every point of view and a worker in A. I. B. circles of the most effective type.

"CHARLES B. MILLS, Security Bank building, Minneapolis, Minn.," is one of the newest entries on our subscription books. That's one more lively Iowa member of the boosters for the thrifty city by the falls.

Touches upon proposed banking and financial legislation by congress

WASHINGTON LETTER

By R. A. ALBERTSEN

Relates to administrative and department matters interesting to our readers

Washington, February 13th.—The statisticians employed by the special house committee that has been investigating the financial and monetary conditions in the United States have completed their report on interlocking directorates. The report, which has been printed for the use of the congress, deals with eighteen selected financial institutions. These are: J. P. Morgan & Co., New York; First National, New York; Guaranty Trust, New York; Bankers Trust, New York; National City, New York; Kuhn, Loeb & Co., New York; National Bank of Commerce, New York; Hanover National, New York; Chase National, New York; Astor Trust, New York; New York Trust; Blair & Co., New York; Speyer & Co., New York; Continental and Commercial National, Chicago; First National, Chicago; Illinois Trust and Savings, Chicago; Kidder, Peabody & Co., Boston and New York, and Lee, Higginson & Co., Boston and New York.

Total Resources $25,325,000,000

The object of this branch of the inquiry was to trace the affiliations of these institutions with the greater banks, trust companies and insurance companies, transportation systems, producing and trading corporations, and public utility corporations, through representation on their boards of directors. The firm members and directors whose affiliations are thus shown number 180.

In the aggregate these eighteen institutions hold 385 directorships in forty-one banks and trust companies, having total resources of $3,832,000,000 and total deposits of $2,834,000,000; fifty directorships in eleven insurance companies having total assets of $2,646,000,000; 155 directorships in thirty-one railroad systems, having a total capitalization of $12,193,000,000, and a total mileage of 163,200; six directorships in two express companies, and four directorships in one steamship company with a combined capital of $245,000,000 and gross income of $97,000,000; ninety-eight directorships in twenty-eight producing and trading corporations having a total capitalization of $3,583,000,000, and total gross earnings in excess of $1,145,000,000, and forty-eight directorships in nineteen public utility corporations, having a total capitalization of $2,826,000,000, and total gross annual earnings in excess of $428,000,000; in all, 746 directorships in 134 corporations, having total resources or capitalization of $25,325,000,000.

The Pujo Report

It is said the Pujo committee will report that a money "trust" exists in this country to the extent and in the form in which the existence of such a combination was charged in the resolution under which the investigation was ordered, and that J. P. Morgan & Co. constitute the dominating influence.

Five bills are in the final stages of preparation and will be presented to the house as a means of annihilating the alleged financial oligarchy that has its headquarters in the office of J. P. Morgan & Co.

The bills constitute the most comprehensive and exhaustive plan ever proposed to congress for the guidance of the business world.

Will Restore Competition

The underlying purpose of the bills is to restore "old fashioned" competition in the business world and to make it possible for the little man to go forward with his projects in spite of dictation or interference from the big men.

In order to do this the committee will report that the present concentration of wealth in New York must be dissolved.

The bills are aimed at stock exchanges, clearing house associations, national banks, railroads, interstate corporations, and life insurance companies, which the committee considers the great vehicles that have been most instrumental in bringing about the concentration of wealth.

Nation Building Going on in Europe

It is believed in official circles here that Continental Europe has not yet emerged from the nation-making stage. During the second half of the nineteenth century the process went on with almost uninterrupted activity, and it has been resumed in the twentieth. A man need not be much over fifty years old to be older than the German Empire; than the Austro-Hungarian monarchy in its present form; than the Republic of France and the Republic of Portugal; than the kingdoms of Italy, Roumania, Servia, Bulgaria and Norway. There are men still living who were born before the kingdom of Greece and the kingdom of Belgium; before the "Congress Kingdom" of Poland had been extinguished, and the Republic of Cracow. Great Britain alone among the countries of Europe retains both the geographical limits and the political system of eighty-five years ago. France, Germany, Russia, Italy, Turkey, Denmark, Roumania, the Balkan States, have lost territory or gained it. Spain has passed from monarchy to republic and from republic to monarchy; Portugal from monarchy to republic; Sweden has been separated from Norway, and Holland from Belgium; the papacy has been deprived of the last vestige of its temporal sovereignty. And yet the fact remains that there is no nation in Continental Europe which feels that it has attained its ultimate shape, or that it can attain that result without taking from others something they would withhold or holding something they intend to take. All the greater nations at least, and some of the smaller, are still in the consolidating, the reconstructing, the rehabilitating phase, and the Balkan kingdoms are just entering upon it.

Postal Savings Banks Check Sending Abroad

The establishment of postal savings banks resulted in keeping in this country last year $12,000,000 which otherwise would have been sent abroad, says the postmaster general. The total deposits of the 13,000 postal savings banks in this country are approximately $35,000,000. Before the establishment of the banks the international money order business amounted to $109,000,000 a year, and was growing at the rate of $17,000,000 annually. Last year it reached only $97,000,000.

Officials of the Postoffice Department say comparatively little money deposited in the postal savings banks has been withdrawn from private or national banks. Instead the money has come from hiding places.

It has been demonstrated, the postal authorities say, that if given the opportunity of depositing their money with the government, the foreign-born residents will do so in large numbers rather than send their savings abroad for deposit.

High Clearings for January

January bank clearings for the country have been exceeded only three times, the New York total only four times and the total outside of New York only once in the history of the United States. Encouragement is found in the knowledge that this high mark was reached despite the dullness in speculation in stocks and commodities, and mild weather, which retarded retail trade. A number of the important cities of the nation showed totals which were in excess of those of any previous month.

BANKER IS FOUND GUILTY

Boise, Idaho, February 10th.—Edward Payne, former president of the defunct Boise State Bank, was found guilty of making false reports to the state banking department by a jury at Boise to-night. A son indicted with his father was acquitted.

Charles Jenks, for ten years a vice-president of the Michigan Savings of Detroit, has been elected to the presidency, succeeding George Peck, deceased. George Wiley, the cashier, was advanced to the position made vacant by Mr. Jenks' election as president. Mr. Wiley will discharge the duties of both vice-president and cashier.

URGE NEW BANKING LAWS

Indiana business men in general and Indianapolis manufacturers in particular are anxious for congress to take up the matter of revising the national banking laws during the special session. This is indicated by many letters and telegrams that are coming to the office of Representative Carter Glass, chairman of the subcommittee that has this proposed legislation under consideration at this time. Edgar H. Evans, of Indianapolis, has written the following letter to Representative Korbly: "The experience of both banking and business during times of commercial crises, such as 1907, and even in such apparently unimportant affairs as the late money stringency, shows the necessity of proper banking and currency legislation. We trust that the congress at the special session will take up this matter and push it to a definite issue. As business men, we are much interested in the establishment of our banking and currency situation on a sound basis that will prevent or at least minimize periodical upheavals."

STATE CONTROL OVER STOCK BOARDS

Albany, N. Y., February 12th.—The state superintendent of banks will be given jurisdiction over stock exchanges if a bill introduced to-day at the suggestion of Gov. Sulzer becomes a law. The measure is designed to bring about the incorporation of the New York stock exchange and other exchanges.

The suggestion of state supervising and regulation of stock exchanges by compelling their incorporation was opposed by a committee representing the New York stock exchange at a recent conference with the governor.

Two other stock exchange reform measures were also introduced. One would compel a broker to report to a customer the name of the party with whom he deals in buying or selling stock and the specific time of the sale or purchase. The other would make it unlawful for the New York stock exchange to prohibit its members from doing business with or for the members of other exchanges.

HOTEL WAR ON BAD CHECKS

The days when clever professional check swindlers grew fat on hotels of the land have passed. The men who carried printing presses and changed their checks and stationery every week or ten days either have emigrated or are "on the inside looking out." They have come to grief, 122 of them, in the recent two years, and it isn't nearly as much fun as it used to be. Most big hotels pay dues to an association for their protection. The association sends out its detectives and "rounds up" the forgers.

Besides 122 convictions for forgers, thieves, and hotel "beats," the association has recovered more than $10,000 in bad debts. Also it has passed resolutions asking for enactment in every state of the limited liability and protection from fraud law now in effect in several states.

HARRIS ANNOUNCES LOS ANGELES BONDS

Harris Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago and E. H. Rollins & Sons have just purchased and are bringing out in this market $3,000,000 Los Angeles Railway Corporation first and refunding mortgage 5 per cent bonds dated December 1, 1910, due December 1, 1940.

The Los Angeles Railway Corporation does the entire street railway business, with a system comprising over 371 miles of track, in the city of Los Angeles and the rapidly growing suburban section southwest, serving a population now estimated at 450,000. Gross earnings for the calendar year 1912 were $6,556,325. Bankers are offering the bonds at 97 and interest.

CHICAGO A BILLION DOLLAR CITY

Bank deposits in Chicago have crossed the billion dollar mark again, the amount reported by seventeen national and sixty-three state banks being $1,008,000,000. The state banks and trust companies, reporting their condition as at the beginning of business February 5th, show $525,000,000 in deposits, an increase of $16,724,000 over the amount November 27th last. This increase follows a gain of nearly $35,000,000 reported by the national banks for the same period. The state banks show an insignificant decrease in their aggregate loans and discounts and an increase of about $23,500,000 in their cash resources. The national banks added more than $25,000,000 to their cash means, making a total of $48,750,000 in all. The cash means of the state banks are equal to 27.8 per cent of their total deposits, those of the national banks at 41 per cent and the cash holdings of both are 34¼ per cent of their total deposits.

NEW BANK LEGISLATION

The legislature in the state of Washington has a bill up fixing 10 per cent as the reserve against savings and time deposits. Also among others the following: An act authorizing notaries public who are stockholders, officers or employees of banks or other corporations to take acknowledgments, except where such notary is a party to the instrument; an act increasing the amount under the joint account act from $300 to $1,000; an act punishing the making of false statements against banks; the uniform warehouse receipt bill; an act placing the affairs of failed banks under the charge of the state bank commissioner, instead of expensive receiverships through the courts; an act making it grand larceny to draw a check on a bank without money being there to pay, or arrangement made to care for it; an act amending the law authorizing cities of the first class to put up securities instead of a surety bond for municipal deposits—making it uniform with the county and other depository laws. In addition the committee of the Washington association is at work upon a law regulating private banks. The Legislative Committee consists of the following: J. H. Edwards, chairman, vice-president Dexter Horton Trust and Savings Bank, Seattle; R. L. Rutter, vice-president Spokane and Eastern Trust Company, Spokane; C. S. Gilchrist, cashier United States National Bank, Centralia; W. H. Pringle, manager Scandinavian American Bank, Tacoma; Robert Moody, vice-president First National Bank, Everett.

PLAN FOR FARMERS BANKS FOR NEW YORK

Among the bills to be introduced in the state legislature of New York as the result of the work of the New York State Food Investigating Commission, which has organized the New York State Markets League at 2 Rector Street, is a measure to provide for the creation of co-operative banks for personal credit designed to enable farmers to borrow money with which to conduct their farming operations and thus encourage production.

The proposed system of banks is to be patterned after the land mortgage banks of European countries, which have worked successfully. Horace V. Bruce, originally a member of the commission, who is now secretary of the New York State Markets League, said that the league will try to bring about co-operation between producers and consumers by means of legislation.

HOOSIERS OPPOSE GUARANTY PLAN

A bill recently introduced in the Indiana legislature providing for the guaranty of bank and trust company deposits seems to be meeting with some opposition. A majority of the house judiciary committee B. has voted to recommend the indefinite postponement of the bill. It is probable that there may be a minority report, according to Chairman Weisman, author of the bill.

"Farmer" James J. Hill is the Real Thing

New York Times Annalist says it is his avocation. He builds railroads for business, but coddles the soil for the sheer love of it. Thinks Wall Street hasn't solved this genius

A banker who lives at a New York hotel and spends his days in the Wall Street district, who wears gray spats and a white vest edge and is used to the formalities and sartorial niceties of the eastern financial circles, stepped out of an elevator on the fourth floor of the Great Northern general office building in St. Paul, entered Room 415, and sat down in a hard-bottomed wooden chair. He gave a name of some consequence in the money world to a very plain unliveried man, who said he would "see about it" as he went into an adjoining room. For a time the eastern man sat looking across a bare floor at a picture of an old wood-burning locomotive on a brown-painted, pine-board wall, back of a wooden handrail in an anteroom about 7 by 12 feet.

After a few moments a door opened and a man in shirt sleeves stood on the threshold. A black cigar with quite a length of undropped ash still clinging to it was in his mouth, a partly buttoned waistcoat bulged out below a wealth of beard, and a narrow bald line led back across the head, upon which there lay a mass of hair still thick enough to bespeak the leonine adornment of younger days.

"Come in," he said. It was James J. Hill.

Soon the man was listening to Mr. Hill's discussion of agricultural development in the Northwest.

The eastern man had come out to St. Paul to put the finals on a deal of some importance. In fifteen minutes, after close analysis, the matter was disposed of. Then for thirty minutes Mr. Hill talked about the relative production of the farms of Minnesota and the farms of Denmark. Comparisons in figures came out of him with startling exactitude.

"He is a farmer," said the eastern man to another eastern man later at the Hotel St. Paul. He was right.

James J. Hill put down a railroad across an empire, developed the iron ore industry of Minnesota, wrote his name into the Titan class in the world of finance, and did so many other things since he first came on earth, seventy-four years ago, on his father's farm in Ontario, that many commentators, from varying viewpoints taken from preconception, have seen in him as many predominant qualities. But Mr. Hill is basically and fundamentally a farmer, and he always will be one. Deep in his heart is an inborn love for spreading fields and verdant meadows, the low of cattle, and the smell of the sweet, damp earth that turns up under the plow.

Has James J. Hill retired from active business? Of course he has, for he says so himself. Note the evidence of retirement. When he gave up, two years ago, the presidency of the Great Northern Road, it was the final step in the gradual passing over to other men of cares and responsibilities incident to the direction of great transportation properties. Now, having relinquished his official titles and responsibilities, he merely gets down to his office at 10 A. M. every day when he is in St. Paul. He finds a pile of letters and papers on his desk, all of which he reads and some of which he signs. A map comes down off a wall, he touches a button and a man comes in, and he asks for other documents and dictates some letters. It is lunch time and he goes out, but is back again by 2 or 2:30 P. M., and when the lights go on he is still at it. It is as good an illustration as the country affords today of how hard it is for a man who has been a lifetime in the harness to enjoy leisure after he has decided to do it.

But there is one thing that stands out in his busy life. He always had his affairs so arranged that if an association of farmers in Minnesota, a North Dakota agricultural club, a Montana county fair, or a Washington or Oregon society interested in development work desired a deal with him the door was open. How many times a week he is asked to go somewhere and speak on agriculture only his private correspondence would show, but nearly every day some one, from somewhere, following up a letter of request by personal solicitation, sits outside and looks at the picture of the little old wood-burning locomotive until he gets a chance. Big names do not appeal to Mr. Hill. Of course, when he is asked to speak to an organization such as that of the men who make railroad equipment, as he was just recently, it is flattering, but he would rather go to a country fair and look at the live stock and the grain and make an address to a gathering of farmers at the race track.

From the moment Mr. Hill became manager of the old road that was the base upon which the Great Northern system of to-day was built, he grasped the broadly fundamental fact that if a railroad is to make money it must have stuff to haul, and the best way to get stuff to haul is to have the country along the road raise it. The result of this applied principle everybody knows. He was born a farmer, always was and is to-day a farmer.

Mr. Hill really has four farms.

He lives for a time each year on one of them a few miles outside St. Paul. On it are fine cattle and everything that a real farmer points to with pride.

Another is in the extensive greenhouses back of his Summit Avenue residence, and here, only a short time ago, a party of Minneapolis bankers and business men assembled to see more than 200 plots, each made up of dirt brought down from Minnesota and North Dakota and chemically analyzed. Here they saw wheat growing on soil as it was taken from the farm, on the same soil provided with nitrogen when chemical analysis showed that it needed nitrogen, with potash when it showed the need of that, and with phosphorus when the need of phosphorus was found. Here they saw grain, planted in every instance on the same day at the same hour, small and spindly on the original soil and tall and thick on the treated plots, and here they were told by Mr. Hill that his experiments, to carry out which he had brought into St. Paul a train of twelve cars of dirt, all sacked and marked, showed that the great soil need of the Northwest is phosphorus.

The third Hill farm is big, but divided into widely separated units, each only ten acres or less in size and widely scattered along the line. Here, under scientific treatment on the Great Northern experimental farms, Mr. Hill has produced grain that has gone thirty, thirty-five, and forty bushels to the acre on farms whereon the owners, farming in old-fashioned manner, had produced fifteen, sixteen, or in some instances twenty bushels and thought they were doing well.

The fourth farm in which Mr. Hill is interested stretches from Minneapolis straight through to the Idaho line, and beyond into Washington. Everything agricultural that goes on in this vast country is known to Mr. Hill shortly after it has happened, and sometimes before it has happened. All the country that lies tributary to the Great Northern rails is to him but a great farm in which he is deeply interested.

When Mr. Hill celebrated his seventy-fourth birthday the citizens of St. Paul gave a great dinner in his honor. He then spoke on his favorite topic, agriculture, and attacked the methods of the State Agricultural College in development work. Nothing that had occurred in the Northwest for a long time made such a stir. Minnesota, with 2,150,000 people, has 600,000 of them living in the three cities —Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Duluth—but nevertheless it is still predominantly a state of farmers, and the state legislature is very much a farmers' legislature. It gives up much money for the college, and to have Mr. Hill say that its work was ineffective was startling.

Nevertheless, when the State of Minnesota opened a new building recently at Crookston, Mr. Hill was asked to make the inaugural address, which he did, and the building was named in his honor. It was recognition of the fact that while his criticism was severe it was constructive.

If any eastern man who knows Mr. Hill meets him in New York and happens to call him "Farmer Hill," he need not fear that the railroad magnate will take offense. On the contrary, it is a title that he seems to value more highly than he would that of senator from Minnesota or secretary of agriculture.

NEW YORKER TELLS OF STORY TOLD BY FORGAN

A well-known Wall Street man related a good story told by James B. Forgan, president of the First National of Chicago, in a recent address on the financial system of the country.

Speaking of the present system of bank reserves Mr. Forgan said it reminded him of the case of a Chicago hospital in which a wealthy man had endowed a bed to be reserved exclusively for emergency cases. Soon after placing the bed in the hospital a man, dangerously injured in an accident, was rushed to the hospital but when the ambulance arrived the superintendent said that there was no room for the patient.

"But you have a bed here endowed for just such cases," declared the friends of the injured man.

"I know that, but I can't put the patient in it," was the reply.

"Well, why not? It's for emergency cases."

"Yes, but if I put anyone in it, it will be no longer held for emergency cases. Under any and all circumstances it must be kept ready for an emergency case and its occupancy would violate the terms of the endowment," was the unanswerable argument of the superintendent.

"The ambulance drove away with the injured man," concluded Mr. Forgan, "but by the time another hospital had been found the patient had passed away. And that is just the way in which the so-called bank reserves of the country are handled, under present laws. They are for emergencies, but when the emergency arises they must be held intact in order that the law be not violated."

BANKING LEGISLATION IN NEBRASKA

There have been introduced in the Nebraska senate bills providing that where newly organized state banks' first payment to guaranty fund does not equal full credit amount additional amount shall be made up; banks which liquidate may retain 75 per cent of guaranty fund balance to be paid to state banking board; all of fund to go toward payment of losses to depositors in failed banks; relating to method of computing average daily deposits of banks under guaranty banking act; conferring power upon banking board to withhold charters where it is considered that town or village already is sufficiently supplied with banks; providing that loans and investments may amount to ten times amount of capital and surplus. Present law allows eight times that amount.

TABOR STATE BANK

Joseph Klicka will be president of the Tabor State Bank, with $200,000 capital and paid-in surplus of $50,000, successor to the Tabor Savings Bank, with $50,000 capitalization. The Tabor interests applied last March for a national bank charter, but other interests in the same locality got in ahead of them.

Thomas J. Davis, formerly cashier of the First National of Cincinnati, has been elected a vice-president of the bank. A. R. Luthy succeeds Mr. Davis as cashier.

Charles G. Dawes Tells How Investors Are Fleeced

Charles G. Dawes, president of the Central Trust Company of Illinois and former comptroller of the currency of the United States, voiced some original ideas on investments in an address before the Electric Club of this city at their annual banquet on Thursday evening.

Coming from a man who has long been recognized as one of the most astute financiers in the United States, his remarks carried great weight with his hearers. They were not, however, calculated to evoke pæans of applause or congratulations from the gentlemen who hover over the stock ticker, or whose inner-office manipulations cause the ticker to record amazing fluctuations in the prices of certain stocks.

Average Investor Doomed

For the most important promise advanced by Mr. Dawes was that the "innocent investor" in stocks listed on the stock exchanges of the country had only one certainty ahead of him, viz., that his pelt would be taken by the experienced manipulators as surely as is the fleece of the lamb by the village butcher.

"The stock exchange," said Mr. Dawes, "is the best illustration we have of men preying on human weaknesses. Those on the inside get together and agree to form a pool.

"Whatever stock may be the subject of this pool's manipulations, the average investor buys it at an inflated value. Then something happens. The pool causes this 'something' to happen, and the average investor, in a panic, gets rid of his stock at a much lower price than he paid for it. The pool, which sold the stock at the inflated figure, buys it back at the depressed figure.

No Chance to Beat Game

"The average investor is fleeced. He always will be fleeced. Absolutely, you cannot beat the game."

Mr. Dawes then told his hearers that he knew only two ways of investing money which he considered absolutely safe.

"The safest and best way of all," he said, "is to find a man whom you know personally, and who has a good paying business of his own. Invest your money with that man, in the business in which he is successful. He will be as successful with your money as he has been with his own.

"The other way is to invest your money in an electric light or gas plant in a city where it enjoys a monoply of the product it sells to the consumer. If this sort of business is properly managed there is almost no chance of loss."

Investment in real estate, Mr. Dawes said, could not be considered as other than a gamble, for the reason that if the district in which the property is situated happens to turn out poorly the land may decrease in value, while it certainly will not become more valuable.

Why Skyscrapers Are Bad

Skyscrapers, the speaker added, are bad investments because of the tendency of the times to provide office space to keep pace with the maximum demand.

"The moment there is a falling off in business from its highest point," he said, "the first to feel it are the office buildings, where the tenants either retrench on space or move to cheaper quarters. I make the assertion that investment in office buildings is not a profitable investment. I know.

"And stay away, by all means," said the speaker in conclusion, "from investment in propositions offered you by promoters who promise unusually large returns. When you buy into such a scheme you buy something you know nothing about, and you know nothing about the persons back of the proposition. Irrigation propositions are of this character, to my way of thinking.

"Because the astute promoters word their literature in such an attractive manner as to make enormous profits seem assured is no reason for believing that they will be able to keep their promises."

Tersely his advice is:

BUY:

1—An interest in a business in which some man whom you know personally is making a good profit. He will take your money and make it earn a good return for you.

2—Shares in an electric light or gas company having a municipal monopoly on the product which it supplies to the user.

BEWARE OF:

1—Any "listed stock" in which stock exchange gamblers and "thimble-riggers" may have engineered a pool to give fictitious values and fleece unwary investors.

2—Investment in large office buildings, which are the first property to suffer from retrenchment on the part of tenants during periods of business depression.

3—Real estate, which, contrary to the general impression, is a gamble, its increase in value depending on the success with which the purchaser can guess the direction of development of the city in which the tract is located.

4—(Particularly dangerous)—Propositions advanced by promoters who promise amazingly large returns. Not more than 2 per cent of the investors in these propositions make money out of them.

CAPITAL ONE MILLION DOLLARS

By C. C. Burford

The Commercial-German National of Peoria, with capital of $750,000, surplus of $600,000, undivided profits of over $200,000 and deposits of over $5,200,000, is one of the best known banks in that city. "Business has flowed with increasing volume during 1912," was the comment on the bank for the past year and an equally prosperous year in 1913 is assured. The entire staff of officers and directors was re-elected. William Hazzard, well known to Illinois bankers generally, is the cashier. Walter Baker is the president and John L. Flinn and John Finley are vice-presidents.

Auditor Brady Gives First Permit

State Auditor James J. Brady signed the first permit for a state bank after taking office for the incorporation of the Bingham State Bank in a town of the same name near Vandalia. The capital will be $25,000 and the permit was issued to J. W. Bingham, E. C. Fitzgerald and E. R. Lankford.

Auditor Brady also has authorized the incorporation of the State Bank of Piper City in Ford county. The capital will be $25,000 and the permit was issued to J. C. Culbertson, H. M. Hawthorne and Asa E. Burger. The new state bank will succeed the private bank of J. C. Culbertson. Two banks have been doing business in Piper City, the other being the First National.

E. E. Crabtree Home From Texas

E. E. Crabtree, vice-president of the banking firm of F. G. Farrell & Co. of Jacksonville, former president of the Illinois Bankers Association and a member of the executive council of the American Bankers Association from Illinois, has returned from a three-weeks' vacation in Galveston, Texas, whither he went with Mrs. Crabtree, their son, Leonard Farrell Crabtree, and Miss Alice Wadsworth of Jacksonville. The rest of the party remained for a more extended stay in the South. While away, Mr. Crabtree visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Crabtree, at their home farm near Lawton, Okla. Mr. Crabtree's absence from the state prevented him from attending the recent midwinter meeting of the executive council of the Illinois Bankers Association.

Mr. Crabtree has been elected secretary and a director of the Illinois Steel Bridge Company, which held its annual meeting in the bank of F. G. Farrell & Co. in Jacksonville last week.

Banker's Executors Give Large Bond

W. L. Shellabarger and J. M. Allen have filed their bond of one million dollars as the executors of the last will and testament of the late David S. Shellabarger, formerly president of the National Bank of Decatur and a heavy stockholder in that institution. Their bond is only $200,000 less than the executors of the estate of the late James Millikin of Decatur gave a few years ago. The Shellabarger estate is considered worth $500,000, much of it in personal property and considerable in bank stock. Mr. Allen is assistant cashier of the National Bank of Decatur.

Death of Illinois Bankers

Robert R. Collins, cashier of the Knox County State Bank of Knoxville, died at the Galesburg hospital after a week's illness following an operation for appendicitis. Mr. Collins was supervisor of his township and also was secretary of the Knox County Fair Association. He was thirty-nine years of age and had resided all of his life in Knox county. He is survived by his parents, wife, and two small daughters.

George L. Harry, who organized both the Lincoln National and the Lincoln State banks, died February 9th at his home in Lincoln. At the time of his death he was a director of the Lincoln State and was at one time its president for a number of years. For sixty years Mr. Harry had been a leading figure in Logan county affairs. Mr. Harry was a "forty-niner" who crossed the mountains and plains in 1849 in quest of the precious metal in California, spending seven months in the gold fields, where he was fairly successful. He returned home by way of the Isthmus of Panama and New Orleans. He later engaged in the general merchandise, lumber and banking business with success. His father was a soldier in the War of 1812 and received a soldier's bounty in land in Logan county, causing the family to remove there in 1837 when George L. Harry, who was born in Zanesville, Ohio, in 1829, was eight years of age. Mr. Harry was active in Masonry and in the Presbyterian church, was a trustee of Lincoln College and an officer of the Lincoln Chautauqua.

MILWAUKEE NEWS LETTER BY CHALMER B. TRAVER WISCONSIN

Recent returns from the call for bank statements indicated the combined resources of all Milwaukee banks to be close to $112,000,000. Loans now are more than $66,000,000, a gain of about $3,000,000 in two months. Deposits in that period advanced from about $88,000,000 to more than $92,000,000. This is the biggest gain made by Milwaukee banks in the interval between national bank calls by the comptroller of currency. Every state bank shows an excellent individual gain, as well as the national banks, and in the face of the springing up of many neighborhood banks in the outlying sections of the city, each of which also shows a remarkable growth. The loan gain of state banks since November 26th is nearly $800,000 and the deposit increase more than $1,700,000. Says the cashier of one state bank: "Banking conditions are a little quiet just now but a steady business of large volume is steadily being attained by the local banks. The demand for money is good. Savings accounts are mounting, as most workmen are regularly and profitably employed. There are some reports of tardy collections, but such complaints reach us at all times of the year, even in the best business seasons. There is no cloud on the horizon for continued banking and trade prosperity for the remainder of the year 1913."

Bank clearings in Milwaukee for the month of January reached the high-water mark of $72,065,421, as compared with $58,975,403 in January, 1912, and $67,055,628 in January, 1911.

Sees Peril in Treasury Order

That treasury order No. 5 invites panic was the statement of A. F. Croser, Cincinnati expert on currency problems, while in Waukesha, Wis., last week. "If the federal treasury deposits public funds in banks without getting at least 1 per cent interest it is a plain violation of the law," said Mr. Croser. "A western senator forced Aldrich to insert the Rich-Vreeland currency act of 1908. Before that it was charged that public funds were deposited without interest in favored banks to repay political obligations or campaign contributions. Banks loan credit, not cash. Each million of cash deposited in bank reserves enables the banks to inflate their credit loans four to ten million dollars. If the million cash is withdrawn, all of such loans based thereon must be called in and canceled immediately. The aggregate credit loans of the 24,000 banks exceed fifteen billion dollars, and their cash reserves are only a billion and a half—a ten to one ratio. If the government should deposit one hundred millions cash in national banks without interest, or at least 1 per cent, the banks could at once increase their credit loans at least four hundred millions. When the hundred millions cash is withdrawn it will force contraction of bank loans on business customers and cause stringency, business disturbance, and possibly panic."

Criticises Proposed Law

George D. Bartlett, secretary of the Wisconsin Bankers Association, has returned from Madison where he attended a committee hearing on the "no stop check bill" introduced by Assemblyman W. E. Walsh of Milwaukee. Mr. Walsh's bill provides that no person may stop payment on a check after signing and delivering it. "The bill seems to propose an unwarranted and foolish condition," is Mr. Bartlett's verdict. "A man who after issuing a check finds he is the victim of fraud, has every right in the world, it seems to me, to prevent the final success of that fraud."

Bill Relating to City Finances

Assemblyman Edward Hinkel has introduced in the assembly at Madison a bill concerning the handling of city finances and empowering cities of the first and second classes to establish national banks. It is the idea of Mr. Hinkel that the banks could invest their deposits in municipal bonds and thus give the city a profit on the interest rate.

CHICAGO'S VISITORS

Charles L. Jeffrey, president of the Chesterton (Ind.) Bank, visited in the financial district last Saturday. Mr. Jeffrey reported satisfactory business conditions at Chesterton.

Albert E. Bingham, cashier of the Bower City Bank of Janesville, Wis., was a recent Chicago visitor. Mr. Bingham reported satisfactory business conditions in the flourishing manufacturing city of Janesville. N. B. Solner, cashier of the Union Savings and Trust Company, Seattle, Wash., called on Chicago banking acquaintances last week on his way to New York City. Mr. Solner is a native of Wisconsin but has spent a quarter of a century in Seattle and in the Northwest and is enthusiastic in his belief that that section of the country still offers a splendid opportunity for young business men with brains and capital to engage profitably in the various business enterprises and openings which are afforded in that section. Mr. Solner says that Seattle is growing steadily and that their business constantly is developing with the important territory of Alaska. V. K. Tuggle, assistant cashier of the New England National of Kansas City, was a recent Chicago visitor.

BANKER DISCUSSES GUARDING OF CREDITS

At a conference of cashiers and other bank officers held last week in Newark, E. W. Davenport, vice-president of the Fourth National, New York, an authority on credits, gave a talk on that subject. Illustrating his address with a blank credit form, such as is now generally used by banks in large cities, Mr. Davenport told of the methods used by his bank and others to determine the credit of depositors, particularly business men.

Large banks, Mr. Davenport said, now have officers call on customers, inspect their plants, go over their books and investigate their manufacturing and bookkeeping methods. This system, far from being resented, is now welcomed by the average business man, Mr. Davenport said, as it increases the confidence between bank and depositor.

Public accountants are becoming more and more a factor in the banking world, the speaker declared, and their visits are welcomed by business men. Mr. Davenport answered a number of questions at the conclusion of his talk.

St. Louis and Southwest Banking Letter

By R. L. ROBINSON

St. Louis, February 12th.—The demand for money during the past week has been fair, but is still only of moderate proportions, while the supply of loanable funds has been quite large. Rates were steady at 4½ to 6 per cent on call and time loans. Business has been quite active at the financial institutions.

Bankers Trust Company Elects

A stockholders' meeting to vote on an increase in the capital stock of the Bankers Trust Company from $1,250,000 to $2,500,000 yesterday was called for April 14th. The growth of the business which compels the borrowing of money is stated as the cause of the increase, in the letter to stockholders. The new stock is to be offered to present stockholders at par. In previous stock issues, the stock has been taken by stockholders at $200 for the $100 share. The surplus of the company was last week increased to $2,500,000 from $1,250,000, as the result of a bonus earned for financing a railroad in Texas. At the annual election of the company, S. B. Hunter was elected a director to succeed to W. E. Talley of Rogers, Ark. The officers and other directors were reselected as follows: J. E. Franklin, president; C. S. Marsh, vice-president; Henry Carter, secretary; F. E. Wiliams, assistant secretary; G. E. Morris, cashier; L. E. Parker, Jefferson City, and J. P. Graham.

Bank Deposits Decrease

The call of the comptroller of the currency on St. Louis banks on Thursday of last week for the first statement of the year 1913 showed a marked change from the conditions of a year ago, as shown by the call as of February 20, 1912. There was little change from conditions at the last call made as of November 26, 1912. Compared with a year ago, the deposits, the reserves and the loans and discounts show a material decrease. The following table shows the three significant items for twelve downtown financial institutions under the present call, under the preceding call and under the call a year ago:

Date	Cash and sight exchange
Feb. 4, 1913	$ 99,955,943

Decrease in Bank Reserves

A closer use than a year ago of the money held by banks was shown by the condensed bank statements made public on Monday by the St. Louis clearing house. Loans and discounts were shown in the statement of February 4th to be $1,973,775 larger than on February 20, 1912, and the cash reserves were shown to be $10,442,086 smaller. As compared with the preceding statement, made for November 26, 1912, the loans and discounts showed a decrease of $500,748 and the cash reserves an increase of $7,910,887. The deposits as a whole showed an increase of $9,036,199 as compared with the preceding statement and a decrease of $3,388,606 as compared with the statement of a year ago. The following table shows the principal items for the three statements.

Date	Deposits
Feb. 4, 1913	$323,821,466
Feb. 20, 1912	327,110,072
Nov. 26, 1912	314,785,267

St. Louis Postal Savings

The total deposits in the postal savings banks in St. Louis are $365,000, and the amount of bonds issued is $30,000. The postal savings bank deposits have the effect of swelling the private bank deposits in that the postal savings deposits are redeposited in the private banks. Postmaster Akins says that inquiries in St. Louis show that only 5 per cent of the postal savings depositors have had bank accounts before.

C. L. Martin Goes With St. Louis Bank

C. L. Martin, of Unionville, Mo., has been elected a vice-president of the International Bank of St. Louis, to become active in the affairs of the bank in Missouri outside of St. Louis. Mr. Martin has been assistant bank examiner for Missouri for the past four years and his extensive acquaintance in the state no doubt will aid materially the International in the way of new business.

Bankers whose customers have business at the St. Louis National Yards can realize full value of such business only through an account with this bank.

Urges Fire Insurance Bills

Support of the bills to make fire insurance companies liable for damages on account of delay in payment of just claims is being urged upon bankers and other business men throughout the state of Arkansas by Allen Berger, a banker of Jonesboro. Mr. Berger is doing his work in behalf of the measures by means of circulars sent through the mail. "If you ever had a fire insurance loss," the circular reads in part, "you probably will know that instead of your policy being a protection, after paying a premium for such protection, you have most likely a basis for a lawsuit unless you are of a mind to accept a settlement kindly provided for you by expert adjusters sent out by the company in the interests of the company. I believe the proposed bills will give the protection that the people justly are entitled to and work no undue hardship on the insurance companies who are asked to carry out a contract for which it specifies a charge. In many states there is an insurance commission which provides what charge shall be made for fire insurance. Such is not the case in this state, and as the company sets its fee, it surely ought to carry out its contract and the law should make them do it."

Former Banker Given 5 Years

R. H. Lusk, former president of the First National of Wilburton, Okla., who was indicted on Wednesday of last week for misapplication of the bank's funds, was sentenced on Friday to five years in prison. A warrant was issued for him on Thursday. Lusk's shortage was $40,000. It is understood that relatives made good the amount.

Second District Bankers to Meet

On Saturday, February 15th, the Second District Bankers convention will be held at Corpus Christi. An interesting program has been prepared which will be concluded with a banquet at the Nueces Hotel. Agricultural topics will form a part of the program. Joseph F. Green, of Gregory, Tex., manager of the famous Taft ranch, will deliver an address upon the value, to the community and to the banks, of modern demonstration methods on the farm, use of silos, etc. Edwin Chamberlain of San Antonio will talk about foreign banking methods, particularly the matter of farm credits. H. R. Eldridge, president of the Texas Bankers Association, who has just been called to the vice-presidency of the National City of New York, will talk on "The Foundation of Credit." One-half hour will be allotted to discussion of work of the Texas Bankers Association's committee on agriculture.

over the figures of the latter part of 1912 is shown in the report of the national banks, recently ordered by the comptroller of the currency. In only one instance are the figures at the close of business, February 4, 1913, greater than those at the close of business, November 26, 1912. The combined capital of the national banks of Houston is $200,000 greater. This is the result of the increase by the Lumbermens National from $400,000 to $600,000. The total combined capital of the six national banks of Houston is $5,300,000 and the total combined surplus and undivided profits are $2,313,436.25. The total combined deposits are $41,206,317.75.

Banks to Get Refund

The city council of Beaumont, Tex., has agreed to refund the banks of Beaumont the taxes they paid in excess of a 50 per cent valuation. Under the Somers system real estate and improvements were first valued at the full amount and 50 per cent of this full valuation was fixed upon as the valuation for taxation purposes. The board of equalization, however, decided and adhered to the policy of taxing personal property on the rendered value. The various banks rendered their property, which is embraced under the heading of capital stock and surplus, at 60 per cent of its actual value. At the last meeting a petition was filed, asking the council to reduce this valuation to 50 per cent. The council at that time, by a vote of 5 to 1, declined to do so on the ground that the banks had the opportunity to appear before the board of equalization, and failed to do so. At another meeting a motion was adopted to rescind the council's previous action and place the banks upon a 50 per cent valuation basis and the tax collector was instructed to refund the amount of taxes paid in excess of 50 per cent valuation, which will amount to two or three thousand dollars.

Death of Houston Banker

Orren T. Holt, president of the National Bank of Commerce, Houston, Tex., died early Friday morning at his home in the Hotel Bender, of heart failure. For years Mr. Holt has been prominent in banking circles. After leaving the field of law as an active practitioner he made the banking business his life's work. He was a leading spirit in the organization of the South Texas National and later became its vice-president. Afterward he became vice-president of the South Texas Commercial National, resigning this position only last year to accept the presidency of the National Bank of Commerce, an institution that he helped organize. Mr. Holt was an ardent supporter of all public enterprises and civic improvements and served on many committees. He was mayor of Houston from 1902 to 1904.

RESTRICTING "INFLUENCE" IN BANK LOANS

Rigid rules are necessary that all influence, or suggestion of influence, may be barred in the making of bank loans. Where the borrower is a bank director, or a firm in which the director is interested, the subject becomes still more difficult of solution. J. S. Calfee, cashier of the Mechanics-American National at St. Louis, and member of the A. B. A. executive council for his state, permits us to call the attention of bankers generally to a bank rule adopted by the Mechanics-American, which is simplicity itself. It should not be adopted to meet a particular situation but as an antidote for the "situation," and at a time when no corns are to be trod upon. The rule to which we refer does not allow a director to remain in the board room when his loans, or the loans of any firm or corporation in which he is interested, are being passed upon. Mr. Calfee, after a trial, says: "We believe this rule is an excellent one, as it affords the officers and directors passing upon the loan an opportunity freely to discuss a loan, which, as a rule, is not done when the director whose loan is being considered is present."

On the general subject of "Regulating Bank Loans" the St. Louis Republic, a very influential paper in things financial, has this to say:

It is reported that the Pujo Committee is about to draft a bill for the reformation of certain banking abuses, providing, among other things, that no bank shall lend money to one of its active officers and also that it shall make no loan to a director. The first recommendation is very good; the second verges on the absurd.

No active banking officer has any business borrowing money from his own institution. It practically amounts to his loaning to himself. For particulars of the results of this practice see obituaries of many defunct banks and statements of certain waterlogged institutions still in being.

But loans to directors are a different matter. Take the case of the small town with a single national bank, the only strong financial institution in the community. Such a law would shut out all the active business men who were users of money from the bank's directorate. That this would harm the bank is clear. The best material in the community would be ineligible. Who would be benefited?

If the Pujo Committee desires to prevent abuses through loans to directors, the practice of at least one St. Louis bank points the way. A director asking for a loan submits a statement of his business affairs and withdraws from the board room until after his application has been acted on.

In the circumstances this is a strong indorsement of the Mechanics-American plan, but no stronger than it deserves. The Pujo Committee asked President James B. Forgan for a list of loans to directors. It promptly was filed and no secrecy attempted. The loans to directors and to institutions in which they are interested, in a well conducted bank, are among the best on the books. No other than high-grade banking is here referred to. Bank robbers if prevented from loaning to directors simply would find some other plan of "getting the money." We should like to hear of a better and simpler plan than that outlined by Mr. Calfee, if any such there be.

SEASONAL BANK LEGISLATION

More than thirty legislatures are in session and in most of them some sort of bank legislation is up or under contemplation. California has a new state banking bill intended to compel stronger capitalization, construed by some as a "raid upon the little fellows." The capital runs from $25,000 in the smaller towns to $300,000 in cities of 200,000 population. The new bill has the backing of bankers all over the state and evidences the intention to dismantle the weak institutions with insufficient capital.

New York has not less than ten new bills or amendments on the list. The latest is a bill "To Protect Private Bank Depositors." The protection of the depositor is a hobby with the legislator and always carries with the effort considerable popularity and political prestige. One section of the proposed amendment provides for the immediate liquidation of the accounts of private bankers who decide to discontinue their business, and of those whose business must be wound up because of death. Another provision is directed against hazardous investments, and would compel private bankers at all times to maintain their assets in a perfectly liquid state, especially where deposits are for the most part subject to payment on demand. A popular clause in the new act is one providing that private banks shall maintain an ample cash reserve, same as state banks. Private banking already is under special supervision with certain license restrictions in New York.

At Springfield, in this state, several new bills and amendments have been put upon passage. One bill provides that private banks be capitalized from $15,000 up to $25,000, and deposit securities or bond with the state auditor of from $5,000 to $50,000 to protect depositors. Private banks also would be examined twice a year and file quarterly reports of condition. This bill will be backed by the committee of the Chicago city council. A second bill is the regulation "Blue Sky" bill, with heavy penalties for failure to comply. All parties are committed to the "Blue Sky" principle, in the state. A second bill regulating private banks, similar to the one mentioned above, has been introduced with slightly closer restrictions and calling for $50,000 capital in the larger cities. Last week THE CHICAGO BANKER printed (on guess) the names of the I. B. A. committee on legislation. They were E. E. Crabtree, Ascher Cox and John W. Little, all private bankers, and L. A. Goddard and August Blum, organized bankers, with "leanings." The committee was named by President John D. Phillips. Chairman J. S. Aisthorpe of the executive council named a committee on "general legislation," consisting of W. A. Heath, G. W. Curtis and E. D. Durham. The names of the Aisthorpe committee were made public. Had ex-President Harris named the "legislative committee" it would not have been dominated by private bankers and their sympathetic friends, but no one has anything to fear in the way of unfair tactics at the hands of the present committee. It is to be hoped that they will concede the situation and labor for just provisions which may not be a hardship upon the honest private banker, but which will turn the impostor out of business.

MR. OTIS ON THE SITUATION

Not long since, Joseph E. Otis of this city returned from an extended stay in New York, where he went to make a first-hand study of the financial situation, so puzzling in recent times. He has reached a conclusion that there is a double situation, one presided over by the elder financiers who come down from a time when the government was with them, or, at least "reasonable," and one composed of the younger element who see the public and government as fixtures to be taken into account in all or nearly all future operations.

The one class Mr. Otis refers to as "those who may be called old timers, who have large means amassed under former conditions and cannot understand the change in sentiment toward capital which for some years has been growing. They know things are not now as they were and are not in the frame of mind to understand why this is the case. They appear to be waiting for a return of conditions under which they prospered and consider the present as holding or presaging something to come for which they wish to be prepared."

The other he describes as a younger and more confident element, "holding a different view, more nearly in touch, it would appear, with the trend of national sentiment. These younger financial interests are full of confidence and see nothing to suggest undue caution. They are prepared to go ahead with a clear appreciation of conditions. But they necessarily are influenced by the attitude of the older element, which latter, controlling as it does the direction of so much capital, really

All of this is interesting reading and may point the other studies of what seems to be a new alignment of financial thought and action. Evidently we are entering a new cycle of development.

BANDITS GET $6,350 LOOT

Chattanooga, Tenn., February 10th.—At an early hour this morning burglars robbed the Marion Trust and Banking Company, at Jasper, of $6,000 in cash and $350 in jewelry and other valuables. The safe was completely demolished and the interior of the building badly damaged. Nitroglycerin was used. C. B. Simpson, who was asleep in the office of the Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph Company over the bank, was awakened by a masked man, who, with drawn pistol, demanded that he keep quiet. The burglars then cut all the wires, both local and long distance, commanding Simpson not to leave until after 4 o'clock.

S. H. Alexander, president of the bank, says the loss is more than covered by insurance and the robbery will not interfere with the banks' business. The burglars broke into the railroad station toolhouse for implements with which to break open the doors.

BRIGHTON BANK TO PAY DIVIDEND

Receiver J. B. Vaughn, who has charge of the affairs of the defunct bank at Brighton, Ill., which was conducted by Blodgett Bros. & Co., has decided to pay a dividend to the depositors of the bank. The dividend will be 30 per cent of the amount of deposits and will aggregate between $25,000 and $30,000. The bank was closed October 11, 1912, with deposits aggregating $80,000.

OFFERS PRIZES TO CORN GROWERS

Corn Exchange National of Philadelphia has offered $1,250 in prizes for the best corn grown during 1913 in the states of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland. This action on the part of the bank is due to the realization that better crops mean increased prosperity. It is planned to stimulate agricultural development, to increase both quantity and quality of production, and thus ultimately to lower the present high cost of living.

PRIVATE BANK BILL IN MICHIGAN

A bill providing for regulation, supervision and inspection of private banks has been introduced in the Michigan legislature by Representative Peter Jensen of Escanaba.

The bill provides as follows:

Section 1. Every partnership, firm or individual now engaged in, or who may hereafter engage in the business of banking, buying or selling exchange, receiving money on deposit subject to check or otherwise holding themselves open to the public for the purpose of receiving money on deposit, and commonly designated as private bankers, shall be subject to the following restrictions, control, examinations and supervision:

Section 2. Every partnership, firm or individual now engaged in, or who may hereafter engage in the business mentioned in section one of this act, shall at least once in each year make a statement (under oath) of all property, real and personal, owned by such partnership, firm or individual, its description and location, and a statement of all its debts and liabilities of every kind and nature, and file such statement with the banking commissioner of this state, together with a surety bond of at least one-half of the average deposits of the last preceding year, but in no case shall such surety bond be for a less sum than ten thousand dollars.

Section 3. It shall be the duty of the banking commissioner of this state upon receipt of such statement and surety bond, to make examination and ascertain as near as possible the values of such real and personal properties, and if satisfied that such statement is true and correct, he shall authorize in writing, such partnership, firm or individual to do business as mentioned in section one of this act. The banking commissioner shall prepare blanks for making statements of such real and personal property as mentioned in section two of this act and furnish same upon application. It shall be the duty of the banking commissioner of this state to make examinations of all partnerships, firms and individuals doing business in this state as provided for in section one of this act, and he shall have the right to exercise the same power and authority as he now has relating to the enforcement of the general banking laws of this state.

Section 4. Any person who shall wilfully and knowingly make and subscribe to false and incorrect statements as provided for in section two of this act for the purpose of defrauding the depositors, shall be deemed guilty of a crime and upon conviction thereof shall be subject to imprisonment from one to ten years in the discretion of the court having jurisdiction thereof.

PITTSBURGH BANK REVIEWS CONDITIONS

Peoples National of Pittsburgh, in its monthly review of commercial conditions in that section, said:

"The labor situation is still unsatisfactory in some respects. The scarcity, however, is confined mainly to unskilled labor, and relatively high wages—the maximum paid during last summer and fall—do not seem to attract a sufficient supply of desirable quality. The announcement by the Steel Corporation of an advance in wages, and involving a gross increase of approximately $1,000,000 a month, is believed to have been prompted as much by a desire to hold and attract the best labor, as by all other considerations combined. The example of this largest employer has been followed by some others in the same line of business.

"There is a tendency, also, toward establishing a parity between the rates for commercial loans and the yield on the better grade of investment securities. This yield has been gradually rising, until the average cost of capital to corporations of the better class is now above rather than below 5 per cent. Temporary loans, even by foreign governments, have been made recently on a percentage of cost considerably above 5 per cent, and London advices intimate that bankers are counting upon that rate as the minimum that will be realized on loans to be issued by the belligerents in the present European war. It is not unreasonable to count upon investment rates affecting banking rates for loans. Both are part of that movement involved in the higher cost of labor, commodities and capital."

CLEVELAND CHAPTER

By P. J. Slach, President.

The Cleveland Chapter had a most rousing meeting on Tuesday evening, January 28th. The meeting was called to order at seven o'clock instead of eight owing to the unexpected surprise of having W. J. Burns, the noted detective, with us. Mr. Burns gave us an able address on the topic, "How bank tellers and employees may protect themselves against, and how to detect fraudulent transactions." It was a treat indeed, and we only regret that the time of Mr. Burns was so limited. We earnestly hope that we may be favored with another visit on his part.

John Fish, the assistant attorney of the Guardian Savings & Trust Company, presented very forcibly the questions relating to the "Negotiable Instrument Law," especially bearing upon presentment for payment and notice of dishonor.

An informal debate also was held that excited very much interest and a lively discussion upon the topic, "Resolved that it would serve the best interest of the bank to have tellers handle both receiving and paying, instead of the present method of having these duties separated." We were favored with many of the officers present and they also participated in expressing their views, but their consensus of opinion was upon the negative side.

R. P. Sears of the Cleveland National Bank presented a most interesting paper upon the recent promotions in our city. The most recent promotions which have not as yet been published are:

C. L. Corcoran, assistant cashier of the Central National; A. M. Corcoran, assistant secretary of the Superior Savings & Trust Company; J. C. Sanders, secretary, L. H. Fisher, treasurer, G. M. Kovachy, secretary, G. A. Spear, assistant secretary, Henry Piwonka, assistant treasurer, and L. H. Hajek, auditor, all of the Woodland Avenue Savings & Trust Company. W. R. Green, chairman of the finance committee, announces that he has a few more surprises for the members in the near future.

NEW YORK BANK ON BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Fourth National of New York in its February financial letter says:

"During the past week this bank has sought the views of business men concerning the commercial outlook and the possibility of a slowing down in general trade owing to the uncertainty over probable tariff revision. As a result of this informal inquiry it may be said:

"First: It is evident that business men of the country are not looking forward with serious forebodings to the new administration. It is expected that the President-elect will give a safe and sane administration and one calculated to build up rather than to tear down enterprise. This feeling is almost universally held.

"Second: Uncertainty because of expected tariff revision is unquestionably holding up business in a few industries, but these are industries that would be vitally affected by a lowering of the duties. The feeling of manufacturers is not at all one of fear that their business will be ruined, but, on the contrary, the opinion is that revision will be conducted sanely and with a view to disturbing business as little as possible. The knowledge that the schedules are to be changed within a few months, however, leads naturally to some cautious buying. It is generally felt that the work of revision should be pushed as rapidly as possible so that the period of uncertainty may not be prolonged.

"Third: Taking the country at large, it may be said that the area of disturbed business is relatively small, and such branches of industry as are affected represent but a small proportion of the whole. It is significant that from some centers where local industries would be affected by reduction, comes the assurance that tariff revision has been largely discounted, so that when new schedules are actually announced there will be little further adjustment required.

"The disclosures of this investigation, therefore, go far toward refuting the theory that the country is witnessing a gradual slowing down of business in all lines. Such a theory is unfounded, and the information which this bank has received shows conclusively that general business not only continues good but that merchants, manufacturers and corporation managers everywhere expect it to be much better."

CENTRAL WEST LETTER

By EDGAR P. ALLEN

Omaha

The total deposits of the twenty-three Kansas City banks are $12,000,000 greater than a year ago. During the interval between the last two calls, from November 26, 1912, to February 4, 1913, the deposits increased $4,500,000. The total deposits in the Kansas City banks are 114¾ millions in the national banks and the state banks and trust companies have an aggregate of 34¼ million dollars, making a total of 149 millions in all the Kansas City institutions. The total resources of these banks amount to 175½ millions. With a gain of $44,000,000 in deposits the national banks now show an increase of nearly $3,000,000 in cash and exchange, and an increase of only $650,000 in loans. The proportion of cash and sight exchange is over 43 per cent, which compares with slightly more than 44 per cent a year ago. The greatest gain in deposits is shown by the Southwest National Bank of Commerce. A year ago it had $20,417,526 and at the recent call it had $32,008,822.

Bankers Discuss Bills

The executive committee of the Kansas State Bankers Association met in Topeka last week for the consideration of the banking bills now before the legislature. The measure that has been discussed to greater extent than any of the others is the proposal that assessments and bonds should be left in the hands of the banks instead of being placed in the guaranty fund until called for by the depositors of failed banks. The committee by a practically unanimous vote agreed to recommend that this change not be made. Bank Commissioner Dolley said that the proposed change would operate against the efficiency of the guaranty law, because of the fact that there would be no funds in the hands of the state treasurer which could be drawn upon in case of failure of any guaranteed bank. Mr. Dolley also was of the opinion that the bulwark of the guaranty law rests in the large funds of money and bonds now being accumulated with the state treasurer. He said it was absolutely necessary that the depositor should have the assurance that there is a fund that can be drawn upon at a moment's notice, if necessary, to meet the emergency of a failed bank, and not a single cent to be used for any other purpose. Under the proposed amendment, the fund, instead of being in the state treasury, would be disbursed among the guaranteed banks of the state. When needed to pay a loss, it would be necessary to call a sufficient amount of it to the state treasury to pay the loss. In the judgment of the executive committee this is an unwise proposal. This decision is interesting in view of the fact that in many states the deposit guaranty plan now is under discussion and it has been a mooted point whether the so-called "Nebraska plan" of leaving the guaranty fund assessments in the hands of the contributing banks is wise. Another feature of the guaranty plan that has aroused much argument is the liability of a bank just entering the fund. Under the present Kansas law a new bank is required to pay the same amount it would have been called upon to pay had it gone into the fund at the time the law was adopted. Some of the members of the committee do not believe that a new bank should be required to pay that much, inasmuch as it was not guaranteed during that time. Practically the same points of discussion have been brought up among the state bankers of Nebraska and Oklahoma.

Dolley Discusses Guaranty of Deposits

Reports from Washington that congress is considering a bill for the government guaranty of deposits in national banks, were discussed by J. N. Dolley, bank commissioner of Kansas last week. Mr. Dolley fought for nearly five years for the Kansas guaranty law and when he had won in the legislature he fought it out in the courts when the constitutionality of the law was attacked. Kansas was one of the first of the states to adopt the guaranty plan and Mr. Dolley predicts that it will be but a short time before all bank deposits will be guaranteed. "Congress will pass a bill providing for government guaranty of deposits in national banks," said Mr. Dolley last week. "It undoubtedly will be embodied in the banking and currency reform bill," continued Mr. Dolley. "The plan advocated by W. J. Bryan in 1908 has been adopted by the Glass subcommittee which is charged with the duty of drawing up a bill in amendment of the banking and currency law. It requires that all national banks shall pay a small amount each year for the creation of a fund in the treasury department, as a guaranty of deposits in such banks. It is a government guaranty, pure and simple, of bank deposits and will be administered directly by the government. The principle of guaranty of bank deposits is in the banking world to stay, and it only will be a matter of a short time until every depositor's money in the United States will be guaranteed fully against loss.

The banks of Wichita, Kas., have decided that henceforth they will keep open Saturday afternoons until 3 o'clock. The reason given by the national banks is that there are several state banks that keep open until late Saturday nights and the national banks have to protect their interests to some extent.

Banking news from Minneapolis—St. Paul financial center, and surrounding States, compiled by J. Edwards Smith

Surplus of the Northwestern Trust Company, affiliated with the First National, St. Paul, is to be increased from $100,000 to $500,000, it is reported, and the capital from $200,000 to $500,000, making the first million dollar trust company at the capital city. Louis W. Hill, chairman of the First National, was made chairman of the trust company, a new position. Haydn S. Cole, former vice-president and counsel, was elected president to succeed E. H. Bailey, who will devote his time to the bank. Ira C. Ochler, former secretary, was vice-president and secretary. John J. Toomey also was elected vice-president and A. W. L. Wallgren, assistant secretary. James J. Hill is the additional director. The First bought the trust company before Mr. Hill bought the bank.

The Northwestern Trust Company began business May 6, 1903, and always has been regarded as a splendid though small institution. Its board of directors formerly was composed of C. W. Ames, E. H. Bailey, Kenneth Clark, Haydn S. Cole, W. B. Dean, Frederic A. Fogg, George W. Gardner, Charles W. Gordon, J. M. Hannaford, James W. Lusk, A. E. Macartney, W. A. Miller, Albert L. Ordean, Edward N. Saunders, Theodore A. Schulze, Theodore L. Schurmeier, R. E. Shepherd, J. H. Skinner and Freeman P. Strong.

New safety deposit boxes and other facilities to take care of the big increased business already are being installed.

Tell of Ambitions as Boys

When the question was asked several business men of Minneapolis what their ambitions were as boys, some of the bankers got caught in the net. "The river that flowed through our farm had too many fish in it for me to dream much," said E. W. Decker, president of the Northwestern National, "but I guess that the city and the boys in the bank looked brightest to me as a future." Joseph Chapman said: "I always was too busy having a good time to think of wanting to be anything."

Bankers to Meet at Bismarck

The second annual meeting of the Missouri Slope Group Bankers Association was held in Bismarck, February 6th and 7th. The business meetings of the association were held in the Orpheum theater and there was a banquet at the McKenzie hotel Thursday evening, February 6th, given by the banks of Bismarck and Mandan to the delegates, the bankers attending the session of the legislature, and the employees, officers and directors of the Bismarck and Mandan banks. This association was formed at a meeting held in Mandan in May of 1912 and its aim is to promote the welfare and give opportunity for better acquaintance between the bankers of the western part of the state. The officers are: President, Lewis F. Crawford, cashier Interstate Bank, Sentinel Butte; vice-president, J. L. Bell, vice-president First National, Bismarck; secretary, E. H. McHugh, cashier Farmers and Merchants, Mandan; and treasurer, E. H. Troutsdale, cashier First National, Mott. The meeting was called to order on Thursday afternoon, February 6th, by President L. F. Crawford. President E. A. Williams, of the Bismarck City Commission, delivered the address of welcome and C. L. Timmerman of Mandan, vice-president of the First National, gave the response. Addresses were delivered by Governor L. B. Hanna and J. W. Wheeler, vice-president of the Capital National, St. Paul. L. F. Crawford spoke on "Some Recent Monetary Reform Agitation," and H. V. Rice of Minneapolis, manager Creamery Package Manufacturing Company, had for his topic "Increasing the Purchasing Power of the Individual." At the Friday morning session addresses were made by the following: George F. Orde, vice-president First National, Minneapolis, "Modern Methods of Handling Country Checks;" State Tax Commissioner L. E. Birdsall, "Bank Taxation," and by Senator W. C. McDowell, cashier First National, Marion. A discussion on "Proposed Banking Measures Before the Legislature" was led by A. P. Hanson, chairman house committee on banking. The meetings were open to the public and were very largely attended.

Demands Thirteen Millions from Bank

Sebastian Gilsoul, a native of Belgium, created a sensation in the Merchants Bank of Faulkton, S. D., on Tuesday when he appeared before the cashier's window and insisted upon immediate payment of $13,000,000 of a $30,000,000 deposit he said he had in the bank. Gilsoul, who is a farmer of northern Faulk county, was possessed of the delusion that he was a second Andrew Carnegie, and said he wanted the money to give away in order that he might die poor. He was taken before the insanity commission and sent to the asylum at Yankton.

Alberta Loses Royal Bank Case

The privy council of London has given judgment in the appeal of the Royal Bank of Canada against the Alberta government in favor of the bank. This was an action carried through all the courts of Canada in which the government won until it reached the highest court in the empire. The application was for the disallowance of an act of the Alberta legislature under which the province assumed an even million dollars placed on deposit in connection with the Alberta & Great Waterways railway project, financed and outlined by W. R. Clark, a Kansas City banker, and his associates. The money now will be given back to the bondholders. The government will have to indemnify all concerned in the Alberta & Great Waterways railway project for any damage or loss sustained by interested persons; it must also pay all the costs of the lower courts.

Twin City Deposits

Increase of $1,000,000 in deposits in St. Paul banks was made between the last two calls. In the big banks the aggregate was given at $50,000,000. The bank merger, it is said, together with the increase of capital, and other changes, has stimulated business. The First National, was reported $17,177,313, is expected to have $25,000,000 before the close of the year.

Deposits in Minneapolis banks are reported at $9,842,857 more than at the first call in 1912. The last total is $112,496,730. As compared with the previous February call it is found that deposits increased $9,842,857.35; loans and discounts increased $4,904,645.05; savings deposits increased $2,183,639.83.

Comparison of the statement of February 4, 1913, with the one immediately preceding that of November 26, 1912—shows: Deposits decreased $3,441,588.73, loans and discounts decreased $2,276,730.20, savings deposits increased $941,173.77.

Whelpley, teller for the National bank of La Crosse, secretary-treasurer. The secretary was instructed to invite the seventh district bankers to have their annual meeting in La Crosse in June.

Banking circles have the story that the St. Paul First National is to have an agricultural extension department similar to that conducted by the Northwestern National, with Louis W. Hill, chairman of the board in supervision, something absolutely in his line. When asked about the department Mr. Hill intimated that if the feature is desired it will be put in.

At the annual meeting of the old First National of Bayfield, Wis., directors and officers were elected as follows: A. H. Wilkinson, John Kranzfelder, H. J. Wachsmuth, George A. Packard, T. F. Wieland, J. P. O'Malley; president, A. H. Wilkinson; vice-president, G. A. Packard; cashier, J. P. O'Malley. This bank is one of the solid financial institutions of the Bayfield peninsula.

The Farmers State of Freeport, Minn., is a new institution with $10,000 capital. Herman Rose is president. Michael Kraker is vice-president and Frank Rieland is cashier.

The Minneapolis bank clerks are planning a contest with the St. Paul Chapter in adding machine work. A clerk has been appointed from each bank to prepare for the function. The clerks had a dinner last week, addressed by J. G. MacLean of the Security National on "Bank Credits." M. J. Murphy, general agent for the Protectograph, talked on check protection and indicated how checks are raised. The possible number he put at 90 per cent of all checks written. P. M. Kerst, Twin City interior bank examiner, gave a talk on his work. The next dinner is to be in March.

Dakota Notes

The Martin State Bank (S. D.) has been incorporated with T. C. Torrison of Omaha and M. C. Cummings and Charles Sallen of Martin, and J. J. Boesel of Alen, S. D., as incorporators. The capital is $10,000.

Emil Gunderson, state representative from Williams county, N. D., has introduced a bill for a department of uniform accounting to be included in the bank examiner's department. Mr. Gunderson is one of the youngest representatives in the state legislature.

S. G. Severtson, cashier of the First National, Sheyenne, N. D., may be made the next state examiner. He was for several years connected with the office of the city treasurer in Minneapolis and later moved to Sheyenne. The position first was offered to former Senator Gunderson of Aneta, but his private business would not permit the acceptance of the offer.

H. H. Cook and J. A. Weiland, Marion, S. D., have decided to start a bank at Egan as the Farmers and Mechanics State.

The Gregory National (S. D.), with $50,000 capital, has been merged with the Corn Belt Bank and Trust Company, with capital of $60,000. H. L. Returned from the convention at Bismarck, N. D., P. J. Leeman, assistant cashier of the Minneapolis First National, said that fall threshing will be renewed in the spring, or threshing discontinued in the fall will be renewed. He said: "Along the Soo line between Bismarck and Drake, N. D., there is much flax unthreshed and farmers will have to get busy. Thus laborers will be wanted when the spring breakup comes. I was disappointed to see that little fall plowing was done."

A. W. Ewert, president of the National Bank of Commerce of Pierre, S. D., elected state treasurer last fall as a progressive, is expected to come out as candidate for senator. Mr. Ewert has lived in the state many years.

BANK LEGISLATION LIKELY TO FAIL

Washington, February 13th.—Representative Carter Glass, chairman of the subcommittee of the banking and currency committee, which is considering the reform of the currency laws, says that upon the business men of the United States rests a large part of the responsibility for action on remedial banking legislation. He gives warning that unless the business world acts promptly there will be a long postponement of currency legislation.

In an article just made public Mr. Glass calls attention to some of the serious dangers in connection with the currency and banking problem.

"Not the least of these," says Mr. Glass, "is the possibility that those who have hobbies to urge or who are wedded to some particular bill or idea will endeavor to force their particular bill upon Congress.

"In this connection it should be borne in mind that the banking and currency question is one that has figured for a great while in American politics and has been the sport of politicians animated by the bitterest spirit. Happily there is now a calmer and saner attitude on the question than has existed for a long time.

"But a resumption of the old and bitter point of view, which has been so injurious heretofore, would simply bring back the hostilities of former years and render progress impossible. This remark applies to extremists on all sides of the question. Reasonableness is essentially demanded more than anything else.

"It would be strange, indeed, if a perfectly ideal bill should be passed by congress as the result of the present discussion. That would be unprecedented in American politics.

"What can fairly be looked for is the enactment of legislation which will be good in itself and which will go as far in the direction of rectifying present conditions as the existing feeling and the existing partisanship of this subject will allow. When such a bill has been formulated its success will depend greatly on the attitude of the commercial and business public. If they are wedded to preconceived notions or disposed to follow extreme ideas urged on them from any source, it is to be feared that they will simply prevent action.

"Nothing is more urgent at the present moment than the adoption of a fair-minded and moderate point of view, which will be content with what is possible, provided the measure presented to congress, whatever it may be, is in accordance with the best knowledge and experience on the subjects to which it relates."

Co-operating with the expressed desire of Mr. Glass and the currency committee, the National Citizens' League of Chicago has sent a letter to its members in all the states, saying:

"Mr. Glass must be taken at his word; he must be shown that the business world is not indifferent; that there is an insistent demand for banking reform. It is a case for individual, not for concerted action.

"Every business man should immediately address a letter to his representative in congress.

"Every banker should do the same.

"It is not necessary to specify particular points. It is enough to say that the need of a new banking and currency system is plain, the demand for it insistent, and immediate action is wanted."

R. H. Stewart, for many years vice-president of the City National of Dallas, Tex., has been elected president to succeed Edward O. Tenison.

Spokane banks no longer will trust to mere names for the identification of their depositors or persons presenting checks for payment about whom there may be doubt. Six of the leading financial institutions have adopted the finger print system of identification and placed contracts with the Eastman-James Company for the Yawman and Erbe Manufacturing Company's finger print outfit, the same as is used in the Spokane police department.

The banks to adopt the system and place the orders are the Old National, Union Trust and Savings, Scandinavian-American National, Exchange National, Fidelity National and Spokane and Eastern Trust Company. The Traders National has the matter under consideration.

George H. Balsley, local representative of Yawman and Erbe, says that the bankers of the country owe their introduction to the finger print plan of identification to W. D. Vincent, cashier of the Old National of Spokane, who has been a student of the system for five years. At the last convention of the American Bankers Association the finger print system was indorsed through the efforts of Mr. Vincent.

The finger print system, as a means of identification, is said to be far better than the use of names. In 100,000 finger prints taken by the government not six were found that looked alike. The finger print test is taken by placing the tips of the fingers and thumbs of both hands on a card especially designed for that purpose.

R. Lewis Rutter, vice-president and secretary of the Spokane and Eastern Trust Company, was elected president of the Spokane Clearing House Association at the annual meeting, February 4th. Thomas H. Brewer, president of Fidelity National, was elected vice-president, and M. M. Cook, cashier of the National Bank of Commerce, succeeds W. D. Vincent as secretary and manager. The clearing house committee for 1913 consists of R. Lewis Rutter, A. F. McClaine, president of Traders National, and E. T. Coman, president of the Exchange National. The Spokane Clearing House Association was organized in 1891 and began active work in 1893. Samuel Galland, secretary of the Northwest Loan and Trust Company, is the retiring president.

The annual banquet of the association will be held Saturday evening, February 15th. The committee in charge consists of Samuel Galland, W. D. Vincent and R. Lewis Rutter.

Net earnings of the Washington Water Power Company, a Spokane power and electric railway corporation, were $959,493.72. The following figures are from the annual report just made public:

Total assets, $21,461,374.66; capital stock, $14,081,900; outstanding bonds, $5,628,000; passengers carried in 1912, 20,726,062; car miles run, 3,698,584; gross receipts, $3,170,245; expenses, including taxes, $1,602,353; net earnings, $959,493.72; paid in taxes, $163,159.13.

These trustees were elected: W. A. White, William L. Frothingham, Francis S. Bangs, Frank Lyman, Theodore F. Hicks, Harold T. White, Jonathan Bulkley, Oscar F. Zollikoffer, Benjamin B. Lawrence, Guy DuVal, Edwin G. Merrill, all of New York city; Philip Cabot of Boston, and Henry M. Richards, D. L. Huntington, J. P. M. Richards, W. J. C. Wakefield, N. Fred Essig, L. M. Davenport and W. S. McCrea, all of Spokane.

The annual report to the stockholders shows that the outstanding bonds amount to $5,628,000, of which $400,000 still is in the treasury.

The bonded debt was reduced during 1912 by the purchase for the sinking fund of $103,000 first refunding mortgage bonds of 1909, leaving $4,985,000 outstanding in the hands of the public. There also are outstanding $243,000 collateral trust bonds, $2,000 having been exchanged for first refunding mortgage bonds during the year. The total amount of bonds purchased for the sinking fund of the first refunding mortgage bonds now is $372,000.

A bill authorizing the organization and operation of mutual savings banks in the state of Washington has been introduced in the state senate by Senator Harry Rosenhaupt of Spokane. The bill is based on the New York law and provides for non-stock institutions, the object being to enable small depositors to secure better interest for their money. Under the mutual system dividends are distributed among depositors instead of stockholders. Eleven or more persons may incorporate such a bank, and the state examiner may pass on the petition. Semiannual dividends are provided for in the bill, and the setting apart of a percentage of all deposits as a guaranty fund.

Statistics compiled by the Spokane Chamber of Commerce show that the territory within the 150-mile radius of Spokane has banks capitalized for a total of $15,967,661, with deposits aggregating $76,196,853. Spokane is the financial and trade center for this large territory, commonly known as the Spokane country or the Inland Empire.

J. C. Cook, assistant cashier of the German-American Bank of Ritzville, Wash., reports business conditions good and the farmers prosperous and optimistic regarding the outlook for 1913, adding:

"There is an abundance of snow in the country and the farmers look upon it as a favorable indication for a big crop next season. Half the average of the district is in fall wheat this year and the snow means a great deal to that crop. Practically all farmers have sold last year's crop, although some are still holding for higher prices."

In a letter from Ralph Van Vechten, president of the clearing house section of the American Bankers Association, W. D. Vincent, cashier Old National Bank, is reminded of his appointment of western representative of the section in the matter of establishing the numerical system in banks of the West. Mr. Vincent is assigned to the largest territory of any of the divisional heads—Washington, Oregon, California, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico. The system is one adopted by the association whereby each state is given a letter and each bank a number by which checks and other documents of all banks can be designated and recognized by other banks.

Contract for the superstructure of the palatial Davenport hotel in Spokane has been awarded to the Brayton Engineering Company of Portland, Oregon, on a bid of $1,100,000. Work is expected to begin March 20th, and the contract calls for the completion of the hotel, ready for the furniture, by May 1, 1914.

The contract price, which is exclusive of the cost of excavation and building the foundation, and naturally of the cost of the site and the furnishings, is the largest contract ever awarded in the city of Spokane for a building of any kind. It includes every detail of construction, however, above the foundation, and more than a score of subcontracts will be let by the successful bidder.

Albert E. Reid, formerly connected with the Spokane and Eastern Trust Company, has been appointed and confirmed as bank examiner of Idaho. Mr. Reid is a graduate of the University of California.

Clarence Cunningham, former president of the Weiser (Idaho) National, now a resident of Rawlings, Wyo., is in Spokane looking over the field with a view to establishing a new bank in the Spokane country.

Circulars have been issued by the secretary of the Edmonton Retail Merchants Association, headed by M. S. Booth, manager of the Hudson's Bay stores, to local trade unions asking that some effective measure be taken to prevent the circulation of worthless checks now being paid to tradesmen. It was suggested that the practice might be done away with if every union passed a resolution prohibiting acceptance of wages unless paid in currency or properly accepted checks. A. Farmilo, general secretary of the Trades and Labor Council, reports that several unions already have acted upon the suggestion and that others will follow suit.

Canadian Northern Railway Company resumed steel laying on its Peace River line on January 30th. Work on the main line, west of Edmonton, will be suspended during the construction of the steel bridge across McLeod river. Grading on the Peace River line has been completed to the Pembina river. The Goose Lake extension has been completed to Munsen, where the line connects with the Calgary-Vegreville road.

Accepted checks must hereafter accompany tenders submitted by contractors for civic improvements in Edmonton. These will be deposited to the credit of the corporation. The former procedure was to accept marked checks with these words: "Not to be deposited." This did not protect the city, as payment might be stopped. The board of commissioners will not accept such checks in the future.

Mrs. Carrie P. MacFarlane, administratrix of the estate of her husband, D. S. MacFarlane, deceased, has sold the insurance business to the Alberta Agencies, Ltd., of Edmonton.

Calhoun Oil Company, Ltd., of which H. S. Williams is manager, owning gas wells at Pelican Falls, 175 miles north of Edmonton, has submitted four offers to supply the city with natural gas. The proposals range from taking a straight franchise to selling gas to the city. One well is developed and two others will be ready in March and May. The proposition is being considered by the commissioners. Reports submitted by John Brodie, city gas expert, place the cost of the pipe system and distributing plant at $3,000,000. He says that gas for domestic use can be delivered at 30 cents per thousand cubic feet. The rate for commercial concerns is placed at 12 cents.

BANK HOLDS ANNUAL DINNER

The annual dinner of the officers and employees of the Corn Exchange National of Chicago was held on Tuesday of this week at the Hotel Sherman. F. W. Smith, recently elected secretary of the bank, served in the capacity of toastmaster.

NEW DALLAS BANK

Merchants National of Dallas, Texas, will open for business February 17th in its building at 1109 Main Street, which was purchased for the bank last December. The new institution has a paid-up capital of $250,000 and a surplus of $50,000. At a meeting of the organizers held on Saturday last the following directors were elected: L. L. Jester, Jules K. Hexter, Murphy W. Townsend, Dr. W. W. Samuell, Ben B. Cain, W. Frank Knox and Herbert W. Jester.

The directors elected the following as officers of the bank: Ben B. Cain, chairman of the board; L. L. Jester, president; W. Frank Knox, vice-president; Herbert W. Jester, cashier; Harry Williams, assistant cashier; John C. Pickett, paying teller; G. W. McCleary, head of the bookkeeping department.

The opening of the new bank brings to Dallas several men with their families who have figured conspicuously in the business affairs of other cities. L. L. Jester has been actively engaged in the banking business for the last thirty years at Corsicana, Houston and Tyler. Herbert W. Jester comes to the Merchants National as cashier from the Jester Guaranty State Bank of Tyler, having resigned a similar position with that institution; Harry Williams, formerly exchange teller at the City National of Dallas, resigned to accept service with the new bank. He is a native of the city and enjoys a wide acquaintance. John C. Pickett formerly was paying teller of the United States National of Denver. G. W. McCleary, formerly was cashier of the First National of Honey Grove. Jules K. Hexter formerly was engaged in the banking business at Victoria, at which place he was president of the Levi Bank and Trust Company. Mr. Hexter removed to Dallas about three years ago. Dr. W. W. Samuell is a native of Dallas. Murphy Townsend is a member of the law firm of Dabney and Townsend and is also a native of the city.

PRESIDENT MOSER IN NEW YORK

Byron W. Moser, president of the American Institute of Banking, was one of the speakers at the annual banquet of New York Chapter at the Hotel Astor February 6th. Approximately a thousand New York Chapter men and their guests were present at this, the big social event of the season. E. G. McWilliam, president of the chapter, presided.

Mr. Moser, in the course of his address, referred enthusiastically to the prosperity which prevails in the Institute, many of the chapters of which he has visited during the past six months. He paid a handsome compliment to New York Chapter when he stated that the high educational standard which has obtained with that organization ever since it was founded has acted as a most stimulating and healthful incentive to all the chapters of the country.

President Moser went from New York to Boston, where he spoke at the Boston Chapter banquet on February 10th.

WOULD HAVE FARMERS RAISE MORE STOCK

Credit measures as a means of forcing farmers to raise more stock, and thus ultimately lower the cost of living, will be tried by bankers of Minnesota and North Dakota, if they follow the policy advocated by E. W. Decker, president of the Northwestern National, Minneapolis. Mr. Decker announced he will take up this proposal with the executive committee of the Minnesota Bankers Association.

"I would not refuse credit to a farmer who is raising only grain," said Mr. Decker, "but I would extend his credit if he keeps stock. When it comes to a question of making a loan to a farmer who has only grain, or one who keeps stock in addition to raising some grain, I should favor the man with the more diversified farm. If the state bankers explain this discrimination to the farmers I am sure it will have much effect in advancing diversified farming.

"Meat is so high that we can hardly afford to eat it. They are selling yearling steers on Texas ranches on the hoof for $26 apiece. North Dakota farmers are getting $15 apiece for hogs.

"The solution is that the farmer must raise more stock. He has devoted all of his attention to raising wheat. Now he complains that the cost of harvesting is very high and the price of wheat is very low. It is selling for 60 and 70 cents, and the farmer wants to know what the trouble is.

"The time is here when the discerning banker will have have to refuse loans unless a farmer has stock on his farm. The reason that farmers in Minnesota do not raise stock may be because it is easier to raise grain. It will be easier to establish credit if he raises stock, and thereby helps to force down the price of meat. It will mean cheaper living cost, and in times when the price of grain is low he will be able to fall back upon another asset and have prosperity where he would have had poverty."

KEWANEE (ILL.) BANKER RESIGNS

E. J. Faull, assistant cashier of the old Kewanee National, which recently liquidated and whose business now is being conducted as the Kewanee Trust Company and Savings Bank, has resigned and shortly will engage in the practice of law and conduct a real estate, loan and insurance business. He will be associated with W. E. Copitz. Mr. Faull was connected with the Kewanee National for six years. He believes that the territory comprising the counties of Henry, Stark, Knox and Bureau offers a good field for the business he contemplates engaging in.

A handsome ten-story building is planned by the American Trust and Savings at Cedar Rapids. E. R. Moore, president, has been in Des Moines making arrangements and has had plans drawn by Des Moines architects. The structure will be the highest in Cedar Rapids. It will be fireproof and thoroughly modern and up to date in every particular.

Des Moines, February 13th.—An important meeting of the legislative committee of the Iowa Bankers Association will be held in Des Moines within a few days. The committee will look into the condition of affairs at the state house and find just how the various measures which affect banks are located. It is thought that Chairman McHugh of Sioux City, A. F. Dawson of Davenport and J. K. Deming of Dubuque all will be able to attend the meeting.

Measures in which bankers are interested are showing no diminution in number at the legislative session. At this time there are two bills to put private banks under state supervision and three bills which would give state and savings banks and trust companies power to act in a fiduciary capacity. It appears that one of the latter is being backed by some of the bankers in southeastern Iowa. There is some little opposition to the bill because it provides that the bank before thus acting must put up bonds with the state. Bankers in the country districts fear this would be impracticable and often impossible. Numerous bills affecting the office of school treasurer are pending. The latest would not abolish the office but would abolish the salary paid the official. The house committee has reported the Burt "Blue Sky" bill for passage. This is an exact copy of the Kansas law and is identical with the bill fathered in the senate by Senator C. H. Thomas. There are other bills designed to meet the same end but they have not been acted upon at this writing.

After Loan Sharks

Members of the Iowa legislature are on the trail of the loan shark. Representative Kane of Dubuque introduced a bill in the house at the instigation of the Dubuque Industrial Association. This provides a maximum interest on chattel loans of 2 per cent a month. Such loan agent first must secure a state license and put up a bond for $1,000. It provides for a hearing when any borrower believes the loan agent is not giving him fair treatment. Another loan shark bill has been introduced in the senate by Senator Allen of Pocahontas, a banker. Senator Allen has patterned his bill after the statute in the District of Columbia. It provides for a state license at $500 per year, with a bond of $5,000 per year. The agent must keep a register of business, subject to approval by the state auditor each year and must submit a report to the state auditor and have it published in a newspaper. Size of the loans is limited to $200 and interest at the rate of 1 per cent a month is permitted. Loan agents will oppose both measures. They believe that 3 per cent a month should be permitted them.

Alleged Forger at Large

F. C. Van Camp, alias Edwin Johnson, was thought by Secretary Hall of the Iowa Bankers Association to be in the penitentiary in Arkansas until a forger showed up at Clarinda surprisingly like Van Camp in methods and appearance. Van Camp worked in Iowa some months ago but was caught and convicted. Secretary Hall secured a description of the man who worked at Clarinda, representing himself to be a billboard agent and advertising man. He is tall and slim, sandy complexion and blind in the left eye. Secretary Hall believes, however, that Van Camp has a glass eye which he uses when he wishes to disguise himself. He is thought to have two or three hats and other articles of disguise by which he changes his appearance as he travels about.

Supposed Swindler Arrested

William Brooks, who was arrested in Des Moines while pretending to be deaf and dumb, was thought to be a fellow who was wanted for bilking a Webster City bank out of $375. Accordingly, one of the officials of the bank was brought to Des Moines to peep at Brooks through the bars. He failed to identify him. Brooks was posing as deaf and dumb when a Des Moines detective, suspecting him, slapped him in the face. Brooks stood for it without wincing, but when he had received two or three spats he lost his temper, regained his speech and broke forth in a choice line of expletives.

Bank Wins Important Case

The Keokuk National will receive $8,500 in cash from the board of supervisors of Lee county. The bank had paid this amount into the county as taxes on government bonds. Later the county refused to refund, claiming that taxes once collected cannot again be secured unless paid under protest. The bank started suit to recover the money in August, 1908. It was a hard fought case but Judge Henry Banks last week decided in favor of the bank, citing a decision in the courts of Polk county.

Des Moines Clearings Show Up Well

Des Moines bankers feel that the showing made in January was highly encouraging from the standpoint of clearings. The total clearings for the month amounted to $20,838,085 as against $18,191,411 for the corresponding month last year. The final week of the month showed total clearings of $4,166,044, an increase over the corresponding week last year of $337,569.

Fine New Bank Building

Cashier E. A. French of the Security State at Keokuk has written Secretary P. W. Hall that the new building which that bank is preparing will be ready for occupancy by the 15th of the month. The bank recently was organized with a capital stock of $125,000. It is a strong institution and the new building will vie with the famous Keokuk dam as a place to go sightseeing when the bankers of that group meet in that city February 22d.

Banker's Will Filed for Probate

The will of the late Moses Strauss, Des Moines capitalist whose death occurred recently in California, was filed last week. It bequeaths $2,000 to charitable organizations and the remainder of the estate valued at practically a million dollars goes to the widow and five children. Five days prior to the making of the will, the deceased banker put the estate in trust. In this trust there are 3,000 shares valued at $100 per share. In it are included $8,500 in stock in the Citizens National and $3,175 in the State Savings, both Des Moines banks.

E. E. Hart is Buried

The funeral of the late E. E. Hart, Council Bluffs banker whose death occurred at Long Beach, California, last week, was held in Council Bluffs February 5th. Business practically was suspended during the funeral and every bank in the city closed. Among the pallbearers were Gen. Grenville M. Dodge, Council Bluffs; Judge Smith McPherson, Red Oak; Judge Walter I. Smith, Council Bluffs; Grant Fitch, Milwaukee; Victor E. Bender, Springfield, Ills.; Louis B. Hasbrouck, New York; Homer A. Miller and Arthur Reynolds, Des Moines; Congressman W. R. Green of Audubon, and eight bankers and business men of Omaha.

Iowa Convention

It is probable that the state convention of the Iowa Bankers Association will be held in Des Moines the week of June 15th. There are no other conventions in Iowa that week that would interfere with the holding of the bank meeting.

Iowa Notes

The national call for statement of condition on February 4th found the bankers of Des Moines in good condition. The total deposits for the four institutions in this city were $2,863,718 above those for the date of the preceding call, November 26th. Loans, however, show a falling off of $441,872 for the same period.

Senator John T. Clarkson explained the employers' liability act, which is pending before the state legislature, at the February banquet of the Des Moines Bankers Club at the Savoy hotel last week. The measure is a subject of much controversy.

Among Iowa bankers in Des Moines recently were noted President Parley Sheldon of Story County Bank, Ames; President D. P. Hogan, Farmers Savings, Massena; President L. A. Andrew, Citizen Savings, Ottawa; President Ed McDonald, First National, Coon Rapids; Cashier J. J. Sherman, First National, Bancroft; Cashier Harry Hill, Citizens State, Earlham; President A. L. Ackerley, Exchange National, Leon; Cashier G. W. Evans, Commercial Savings Lohrville; President R. F. Graeber, Sheldahl Savings; Vice-president W. H. Tatten, Ames Savings; President L. Collins, Citizens National, Knoxville; Vice-president W. N. Hostrop, Citizens National, Cedar Falls; President Roger Leavitt, Cedar Falls National; President C. A. Wise, Citizens National, Cedar Falls; Cashier George W. Curtiss, State at Redfield; Vice-president E. F. King, First National, Webster City.

G. S. Gilbertson, formerly treasurer of state and well known in Iowa bank circles, was stricken with paralysis but it is thought will recover.

The Commercial National at Charles City announces an addition to its building and a complete remodeling of the interior. The additional room thus afforded will make the institution even more popular than it has been in the past.

William Stephens, president of the Jackson State Savings of Maquoketa, died in Chicago while on a visit. His son Ralph, cashier of the institution, went to Chicago and brought the remains back to Maquoketa. The deceased was prominent in northwestern Iowa and served in the legislature.

The Farmers Savings at La Porte is a new institution which has filed articles with a capital stock of $30,000. A. Wallace of La Porte, is president; J. A. Wenmoth, vice-president; Jesse O. Kober is cashier.

President A. Nelson of the Citizens State at Cambridge surprised his friends by slipping away to Moberly, Mo., where he was married January 21st to Mrs. A. Tomlinson, keeper of the Cambridge hotel. News of the pretty romance did not leak out for a fortnight.

The Spring Hill Bank burned with a loss of $2,000 in a fire which destroyed the Odd Fellows Block in Spring Hill.

Harry Sokol, cashier of the Kinross bank, was married to Miss Myrna Fish at Collins.

The Security Savings at Boone announces a new structure this coming summer. It will cover two business blocks. The front end will be used by the bank and the rear for two store rooms.

Four additional banks have been made county depositories by P. H. Martin, county treasurer at Des Moines. They are the Citizens at Altoona, $9,000; Drake Park Bank, Des Moines, $4,500; University State, Des Moines, $4,500; Farmers Savings, Grimes, $9,000.

M. M. Reynolds, president of the Guthrie County National at Panora, one of the Reynolds family famous in banking circles, was a Des Moines visitor last week.

J. B. Stephenson, Marble Rock banker, has been very sick at San Bernardino, according to word which reached his many friends in Iowa.

W. W. McKay has been elected president of the Exchange at Ida Grove succeeding S. M. Corrie who has gone west for the winter.

President E. F. Rose of the Clarinda National was a visitor in Des Moines recently.

Charles Pasche of Kansas City, formerly president of the Iowa National at Davenport, dropped into Des Moines recently to greet his old-time friends there.

C. F. Bartlett has purchased a part of the stock of C. O. Earnest, cashier of the Riceville State at Riceville.

South Dakota Notes

The South Dakota legislature is considering the tax commission question. It is proposed to adopt a plan similar to that in Iowa by which it is expected to have taxation matters thoroughly sifted and an equitable system established.

James Halley, president of the First National at Rapid City, will be one of a party of fifteen who sail February 16th for a cruise of the Mediterranean.

The Harris Trust and Savings of Chicago has taken up $100,000 in building and refunding school bonds issued by the Independent School District of Rapid City.

The Farmers State at Winner has closed its doors and will be merged with the Security of the same city. Messrs. Crook and Chain, well-known Nebraska bankers, have become actively identified with the institution, it is said.

M. D. Thompson becomes president of the First National at Vermillion. He has been vice-president but was advanced to succeed the late D. M. Inman. W. H. Inman and E. M. Hart are vice-presidents and Carl Anderson, cashier. Martin L. Thompson was elected member of the board of directors.

GROUP ELEVEN, IOWA

The committee of Group Eleven of the Iowa Bankers Association in a meeting in Burlington selected Keokuk as the next meeting place of the body. The date of meeting is February 22d. Over two hundred delegates are expected to attend this gathering from southeastern Iowa points, and a number of eloquent speakers will afford intellectual entertainment at the meeting and at the banquet which will be given.

TERRA COTTA AND THE BANKER

Up to within the last twenty years the use of terra cotta in architecture was restricted to decorative features purely. With the adoption of steel frame construction for our larger buildings, terra cotta developed by leaps and bounds and became the fitting clothing for the skelcton. The plasticity of the medium; the ease with which it can be molded to fulfil the conceptions of the architect and the artist; the wonderful palette of colors, making possible an untold number of beautiful effects, are most appealing. And terra cotta makes its appeal to the practical man also, through its permanence, its fireproof quality and the ease with which it can be kept clean. No material ever used before so nearly approaches the ideal of what a building material should be for buildings both large and small.

The banker and the bank, around whom revolves all the business of the community, are realizing more and more the value of a building in which are inherent beauty, strength and permanence. In such a building each member of the community takes pride. He is proud to be seen entering, he is proud to be seen leaving and he enjoys meeting his friends there. A bank beautifully housed is indeed the true center of business. Naturally terra cotta is being recognized by bankers as the most desirable material of which to construct their banks, and their confidence has proved itself in no wise misplaced. In fact, not only is terra cotta being used for the exterior of the building, but marble wainscoting is being replaced by terra cotta in soft shades and textures which harmonize with the wood and metal fixtures and lend an air of richness and beauty difficult to describe. The wisdom and foresight of the modern banker are proven by the increasing use of terra cotta for the exterior and interior of the modern bank.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION SUCCESS IN WISCONSIN

The success of vocational education in Wisconsin was attributed to the fact that labor and capital have been equally enthusiastic in its support, by Dr. Charles R. Van Hise, president of the University of Wisconsin, who spoke last week before a meeting of the ways and means committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce at the La Salle Hotel.

Fred M. Lamson, Stuart W. Webb and George W. Grant have been elected vice-presidents of the Old Colony Trust of Boston, increasing the number of vice-presidents from five to eight.

WOLVERINES CONSIDERING "BLUE SKY" LAW

About 50 bankers, brokers and attorneys were in Lansing recently having a hearing before joint committees of the senate and house on the "Blue Sky" bills, designed to prevent the offering for sale of stocks and bonds whose value is worthless or questionable.

Four such bills are pending in the senate and three in the house, all modeled in whole or in part on the Kansas law.

Among those from Detroit were Ex-Judge Carpenter and H. E. Spalding, representing the Detroit stock exchange; Charles Dunn and Charles S. Campbell, of the Union Trust Co.; Hal H. Smith, attorney for the state bankers association, and H. W. Noble and William A. Hamlin. Others included M. L. Howell, of the First National, Cassopolis; Presidents R. D. Graham, of the Commercial Savings, and E. D. Conger, of the Peoples Savings, of Grand Rapids; Boyez Dansard, of the Dansard Bank, Monroe; Samuel Velte, of the Farmers and Merchants, Lake Odessa; President J. S. Wiedeman, of the Isabella County State, Mt. Pleasant; Cashier Eaton, of the Kalamazoo National; L. W. Keightly, of the First State of Constantine.

Banking Commissioner Doyle, Deputy Commissioner Manning and Deputy Insurance Commissioner Orr participated in the discussion.

FIRST NATIONAL OF ESCANABA, MICH.

Located at Escanaba, the metropolis of the Upper Peninsula, the First National, the oldest, largest and strongest bank in Delta county, interior of whose office is shown below, has enjoyed a steady and uninterrupted growth for many years.

Originally started as a private bank by C. C. Royce, present vice-president, in 1870, and organized as a national bank in 1887 it has, through its 42 years' existence, proven itself worthy of the confidence which the community so largely reposes in it. Beginning as a national bank with a capital of $50,000.00 it has, very largely from earnings, increased its capital to $100,000, built up a surplus of $100,000 and has $20,000.00 in undivided profits, besides owning its own modern and complete banking office and building. F. H. VanCleve, president; C. C. Royce, vice-president; Leslie French, cashier and active manager, and E. G. Royce, assistant cashier, are all gentlemen of sterling worth and judgment and high ideals. Its deposits of $1,450,000.00 reflect its standing, and its well-deserved reputation for honesty and conservatism coupled with its proven courtesy and real desire to help its customers in every permissible way, makes its outlook for the future very bright.

INTERIOR FIRST NATIONAL BANK
Escanaba, Michigan

QUICK METHOD FOR HANDLING COLLECTION LETTERS

The Old Detroit (Mich.) National uses a Burroughs adding machine to run off their collection letters. They use a 15 column split machine, which permits of printing numbers and accounts at one operation. The numbers which designate customers list but do not add. The amounts representing items of cash, both list and add. A large sheet made up of nine letter forms is inserted in the carriage of the machine. The sheet is perforated between forms so that the letters can be easily torn apart. In order to eliminate the necessity of writing in the names of the last indorsers, each of the banks' customers is given a number, and is furnished by the bank with a rubber stamp bearing this number. This enables the machine operator to make up the letters very rapidly—the number being all the identification necessary on the letter to indicate the name and address of the customer. The operator is able to trace the last indorser, without recording, either in their books or on the letter sheet, the name of the party from whom it was received.

The names and addresses of the banks to whom sent are inserted either with indelible pencil or with typewriter. Then the sheet is inserted and the number of the last indorser listed, while the amount of the check is both listed and added at the same operation. When writing the letters the Old National writes the letters in duplicate. The duplicate sheet is not perforated, and is filed in post binders for permanent reference.

NEW BOOK BY LAURA E. RICHARDS

Dana, Estes and Company, Boston, has issued a new story by the famed author, Laura E. Richards, who wrote "Mrs. Tree," "Geoffrey Strong" and "Captain January," known to all readers as top notchers. Miss Jimmy is a combination of Mrs. Tree, Mary Sands, Miss Phoebe, and others of Mrs. Richard's well-known characters, a combination well nigh irresistible. The marriage of Miss Jimmy's sister and her mother's death made a change necessary in the home life. What happened after that is best told by one of her village neighbors.

"After that, as everyone knows, Miss Jimmy went off to a city hospital to study nursing and took her 'di-plomy' and stayed in the city five years succeeding 'Something wonderful,' we heard. Then Finey's health began to fail and Jimmy took her name off the nurse's register and came back to the village, and then it was that she became for better for worse, for richer for poorer, our Miss Jimmy."

The effect of this home-coming on the village in general, and her sister in particular, we will leave the reader to find out. It is sufficient to say that lovable, energetic Miss Jimmy made her presence immediately felt in many ways. The book sells at one dollar.

MICHIGAN BANK REPORT

On December 31, 1912, according to figures contained in the annual report of Banking Commissioner E. H. Doyle, the 441 state banks and five trust companies of Michigan had on deposit $319,311,715, a gain for the year of $23,541,271. Since 1889 deposits in state banks have increased $288,027,590. Twenty-nine new state banks began business in 1912 with aggregate capital of $772,500. Nineteen state banks increased their capital by $1,480,000.

Commissioner Doyle recommended that the trust company law be amended so as to prohibit the receipt by trust companies of other than trust deposits, or that such companies be required to maintain the same reserve as now is required of state banks.

M. was tendered to the members of Camp 100 and to the officers of all Illinois camps of the Sons of Veterans.

February 26th the Hamilton Club will give a grand ball and reception at the Hotel LaSalle. Some of the old style dances will be introduced, such as "Lancers," "Prairie Queen," "Montibello," and the "Virginia Reel." Reservations should be made through Frederick A. Rowe.

TO STUDY RURAL CO-OPERATIVE FINANCE

Next May the foreign commission of the Southern Commercial Congress will sail from New York for a three months' tour of the principal European countries to study methods of agricultural co-operative finance. The movement for the establishment of some system of rural co-operative banking in this country is regarded as the most important and far-reaching public project undertaken since the Civil War. President Taft recently in his speeches stressed the need of such a system, and called a conference of governors to meet in Washington to consider the problem. The state department recently instructed all American ambassadors and ministers to investigate the foreign systems, and some of these diplomats already have made their reports to the state department, notably Ambassador Herrick at Paris.

RESERVE FOR PRIVATE BANKS

A bill has been introduced in the New York legislature requiring private banks to maintain ample cash reserves in the same manner as savings banks. The bill is in the nature of an amendment to the private banking acts and was introduced by Senator Foley. The bill further prohibits any investments of a hazardous nature and will compel private bankers to maintain assets easily convertible into cash in cases where liquidation is neccessary. Provision also is made by this amendment for the immediate liquidation of the accounts of private bankers who decide to discontinue their business, or of those whose business is discontinued by reason of death.

GERMAN-AMERICAN STATE

The German-American State of Lincoln, Neb., re-elected its officers and directors for the ensuing year. The officers are: President, Julius Reusch; vice-president, Nicholas Ress; cashier, William Seelenfreund. The board of directors consists of Charles Klose, F. B. Sidles, Henry H. Barth, Frank E. Gillen, Nicholas Ress, William Seelenfreund and Julius Reusch.

BANK GIVES GIFTS TO EMPLOYEES

The Corn Exchange Bank of New York made gifts of $60 each to its 500 employees last week on the occasion of its sixtieth anniversary. The total of the gifts was $30,000. On its fiftieth anniversary gifts of $50 were made to each employee.

John L. Forkner has resigned as cashier of the National Exchange Bank of Anderson, Ind. He has been a banker for thirty-two years, most of the time as cashier of the National Exchange. He has retired from active work but still will retain his interest in the National Exchange.

DEDICATION OF LINCOLN HALL

Lincoln Hall, devoted to the higher study of the "humanities of learning" and designed for junior, senior and postgraduate work in the classics, Germanic and Romantic languages, English, history, political, social and economic sciences and said to be the most fitting memorial yet erected to the memory of the martyred president, formally was dedicated February 12th, Lincoln's Birthday, upon the campus at Urbana-Champaign, in the presence of many educators from all parts of the United States, prominent state officials and citizens in all walks of life.

Lincoln Hall is a long building four stories high, severely plain in architecture, thereby fitting the plain life of Lincoln the better, finished in the most beautiful marble within and believed to be one of the most perfectly designed and elegantly finished university buildings in America.

The dedicatory exercises were held in the morning and afternoon and a smoker to the invited guests at the University Club in the evening completed the day. During the morning hours in the University auditorium a number of addresses upon the humanities were delivered by prominent Americans under the general head of "The Importance to the Commonwealth of Adequate Provision for the Study of the Humanities." Professor Frederick J. E. Woodbridge of Columbia University discussed philosophy; Professor Bliss Perry of Harvard University, and formerly editor of the Atlantic Monthly, discussed language and literature, and Dr. Albert Shaw, editor of the Review of Reviews, spoke upon the social and economic sciences.

At three o'clock in the afternoon the large University auditorium was filled with students and citizens to hear the dedicatory services proper. Dr. Hugh Black, of Union Theological Seminary of New York, delivered the memorial address upon "How Lincoln Appeared to Scotchmen." W. C. Zimmerman, state architect, presented the building to Governor Edward F. Dunne, who in turn presented it to the president of the board of trustees of the University, Mr. William L. Abbott of Chicago, and he in turn charged President Edmund J. James of the University with the care of the building. The audience then adjourned to Lincoln Hall where Bishop William F. McDowell of Chicago offered the prayer dedicating the building to the study of the humanities in memory of Abraham Lincoln and in the name of the people of Illinois.

Representatives were present from scores of colleges and universities throughout the United States and greetings were sent from many institutions in Europe by letter and cablegram. Many distinguished guests were present from over Illinois and prominent among the visitors were many descendents of the contemporaries of Lincoln. The contemporaries of the Great Martyr are remembered in panels around the outside of the building and all known descendants of these men who could come were welcomed. Scenes from Lincoln's life also adorn the outside of the building and in every way possible his career is sketched from the rail-splitting days to the stirring hours of the Lincoln-Douglas debates and to the sad days of the Civil War. The state generously has remembered the name of her great Abraham Lincoln in a most fitting and dignified way and the structure will be a priceless heritage to succeeding generations.

C. R. McKAY

C. R. McKay, manager of the transit department of the First National of Chicago, was in New York last week. While there Mr. McKay stated that Chicago bankers are optimistic as to the future and that western prosperity is of such a character that it will not be disturbed by political uncertainties incident to the change in administration at Washington.

Books on Banking, Finance and Economics

Credit. By J. LAWRENCE LAUGHLIN, of the Department of Political Economy, University of Chicago. Postpaid, 53c.

The nature of credit and its effect on prices have long been a subject of disagreement among economists. Its basis is commonly assumed to be money or bank reserves.

Essentials of Business Law. By FRANCIS M. BURDICK, LL. D., Professor of Law in Columbia University. 12mo. Postpaid, $1.50.

This book shows how the rules of law governing the commonest business transactions have been developed, and it tells what they are to-day. Technical law terms have been discarded as far as possible, and when they are used they are so explained and illustrated as to be easily understood. The principles of law are simplified and expressed in clear, lucid everyday speech.

Foreign Exchange. Tables converting foreign money into United States money, and United States money into foreign money at all commercial rates of exchange used in financial transactions between the United States and foreign countries. All about foreign exchange, including various forms of foreign commercial paper and terms, abbreviations, etc. For banks, bankers, steamship agents, importers, exporters and manufacturers. Cloth, $5.00.

Government Regulation of Railway Rates. By HUGO R. MEYER. A Professor of Political Economy in the University of Chicago. Postpaid, $1.60 net.

Investment Bonds. By F. LOWNHAUPT. Postpaid, $1.90.

Prospective investors who wish to make advantageous use of their money will do well to take notice of this volume. The author does not theorize, but tells only plain facts of the relation of the bond to its issuing corporation, and of the general investment aspect of the instrument.

Trust, at St. Joseph, is right in between the two belligerents quoted above. He says "The First National Bank has for years rendered the best of service to its depositors and correspondents."

YOU can believe all three of them, for no section has better banks or abler bankers.

ALFRED G. SCHULTZ is such a clever advertiser that one would not expect him to send out his "Germania National" statement folder without the name of either city or state to identify it. For this time we will charge it to the printers' devil.

NOT less than one thousand statement folders reach this office at each call. It is surprising that in so many cases the "venue," as the lawyer would call it, is not included. The name of the city and the state should share in the advertising, and it's easier to read it than to look it up.

EXCHANGE NATIONAL, Spokane, is up to four and one-half millions.

THE music store windows are showing a "full window" of "Melody" and "Improvisation," both "for the violin with piano accompaniment by Charles G. Dawes."

YES, by the banker whom everyone thinks of as being engrossed with "finance" by day and "gas" by night, yet the play time of the head of the big Central Trust is for music—piano and violin.

EVIDENTLY Edward F. Swinney isn't the only lonely pebble on the beach that we supposed when it is a matter of "earning surplus dividends, and in charging off real estate" that we supposed him to be.

JOSEPH H. INGWERSEN, in his little bank—the Peoples Trust and Savings—can "show" as well as the Missourian. The Peoples has done lots of things "out of earnings" and has paid a half million in dividends and a million and a half in interest which truly "speaks for itself."

THE Peoples has capital $300,000, and surplus the same. Deposits $3,512,000.

IRA J. COUCH, over at Chapins, says this talk about a warm winter makes a wine house man wonder why nothing but the stock market was tender enough to freeze up and stay frozen.

TO Col. Fred Farnsworth, New York: After reading yours of February 6th, we vote for Briarcliff Manor as first choice, Atlantic City as second and Hot Springs a bad third for the May meeting of the council.

PENNSYLVANIA will hold its 1913 convention in Pittsburgh chiefly because of "the inaccessibility of Bedford Springs," where it has been held the past five years. Places off the main traveled roads are not in it for conventions.

MICHIGAN bankers, stockbrokers and investment dealers who attended the hearings at Lansing do not want the state to regulate the issue of stocks, nor do they wish a commission that will have as an obligatory duty the inspection of all issues of stocks and bonds offered for investment in the state. They want, instead, regulation of the dealer in stocks and the power of review of all stock and bond issues by the securities inspection commission, with the exercise of such power only when attention is particularly called to a specific security and evidence against it is laid before the commission.

THE board of governors of the Investment Bankers Association of America met at Baltimore week before last. If they discharged any rocks or rockets at the "Blue Sky" proposals, they used Maxim silencers.

UNION NATIONAL of Louisville has distributed a booklet containing a reprint of George M. Reynolds' testimony before the Pujo committee as the "new financial gospel."

L. L. BACCHUS, for "years and years" at the head of the banking department in the state auditor's office in Springfield has resigned, to take effect March 1st.

IN reality, Mr. Bacchus has been the superintendent of banking, in so far as Illinois has such a thing, and ably and justly filled the place. Rumor has it that Frederic Porter of Chicago is to have the place.

MR. BACCHUS will give his attention to his audit company in Springfield, and will be a "handy man" when a bank wants a clean accounting or good advice.

CEDAR RAPIDS (Ia.) NATIONAL has two new, distinguished vice-presidents in Ed. H. Smith and Glenn M. Averill. Honors were not "thrust upon" them. They were earned, just like Ed. Swinney's surplus.

THE capital jumped up to $300,000 also and seven new directors were elected. You can't get ahead of Cedar Rapids nor outflank the Cedar Rapids National. Part of this boquet is for Kent C. Ferman.

SOL. WEXLER talked pretty plainly to the Pujo committee and didn't deny that "banks all over the South violate the law by loaning money to farmers on real estate."

HE advocated an amendment to the law which would allow the farmer the same privilege as other classes, that of borrowing from a national bank "on his own stock in trade—his land."

MR. WEXLER wants the law so that the farmer legally can be helped to "make his crop" by eight months loans on his land by national banks.

WORD comes from California that Arthur Reynolds has been driving his big, new Pierce Six pretty much all over the state—driving it himself.

HE has some Iowa friends along to keep him and Mrs. R. company. They went first to Pomona, Riverside, Redlands, San Diego and Santa Ana and back, taking in the pleasure of it all in three days.

ENGINE was working fine, so they hitched up and started over Coast Route for San Francisco. Stops were made over nights at Santa Barbara, Paso Robles, Del Monte and at the St. Francis in San Francisco.

TIME only was taken to call on such old friends as Anderson, Lynch, Crocker, Wilson and Fagan. Then the party headed South again, intending to stop at Stockton, Fresno, Bakersfield, etc.

SECRETARY COLBURN of the California association says Mr. Reynolds was enthusiastic over the good roads, some of which "were like a parlor floor." The mountain scenery was described as "beyond description."

MR. REYNOLDS promised everybody he would come up again while in Pasadena and bring George M. along.

DOWN in Pasadena, Arthur lives at 657 West California Street, only three blocks from George M. at 408 South Orange Grove Avenue. Present intentions are to "play golf every day" from now on.

THE parcels post weight extension which is urged in many quarters and which the postmaster-general seems disposed to favor would, as now appears, be a long step toward the assumption of real express company functions by the government.

SEEMS some one has to be looking after "Fred" Hoopes, down in Galveston. No sooner had Crabtree of Illinois departed than Hawes of Missouri mounted the look-out chair. It's a great town and Hoopes is not the only attraction.

WE aren't half so anxious to see Woodrow in the chair as we are to learn that the the Pujo committee has ended its useless and tiresome sittings.

ONE of the most important questions relating to any plan for the reform of our national banking system is that which concerns the reserves to be held against deposits to assure their payment on demand.

"I READ," said the discharged prisoner, after a thirty-year term, "of the wireless telegraph, but the skirtless dresses I see on the streets seem like a dream I had, once, of a place that never could be."

FIRST NATIONAL, Appleton, Wis., has begun to dismantle the old building and will erect a fine monumental structure, to be ready for occupancy by the first of the year. Building will be much like that of the Des Moines (Ia.) National, over which President Arthur Reynolds reigns.

THE FIRST, of Appleton, was started in 1870 and has had steady, prosperous growth, until it is one of the solid institutions of a state where they "have no bank failures."

THE officers of the bank, who have the direct charge of the bank's management, are: Herman Erb, president; F. J. Sensenbrenner, vice-president; George H. Utz, cashier; Louis O. Wissmann, assistant cashier; and Albert O. Hecht, auditor. These are men who have spent years in this line of business, beginning at the foot of the ladder.

BULL MOOSER FLYNN of Pittsburgh is reported to have lost his voice talking progressivism. If he will continue to use his check book the chief of the herd will agree to do the talking. CASHIER.

any real bullish activity; the situation and outlook is really more favorable for a better trading market than recently and the belief prevails in well informed quarters that it will be more advisable to favor purchases of any of the better stocks at this level, and on any further recessions, for moderate turns, than to suggest liquidation or short sales."

THE Western Economic Society will hold a "Conference on Scientific Management" at the Sherman House, Chicago, on March 14-15th. Experts and authors of efficiency and scientific systems of all kinds will be on the speaking list.

ONE of the notables is Dr. K. M. Blackford of the M. Rumely Company at La Porte, Indiana. He is to tell the secret of the great growth and popularity of the Rumely enterprises.

ONE of the active spirits in the Texas banking field sends in a good word for the agricultural movement in Texas and outlines one kind of activity which certainly is effective and not to be denied. Next two paragraphs for particulars:

"AT last there is being generally reaped the results, practical results, of the work of the untiring Joe Chapman crowd. At the annual meeting of the Farmers and Merchants State Bank of Waco, Texas, there was passed a resolution to the effect that two of this bank's officers or directors should canvass the city of Waco and the county of McLennan with a view of securing subscriptions of at least $5,000 annually, to be paid for three years, which fund should be used in securing at least two expert agriculturists who should be at the service of the farmers of McLennan county. These experts are to visit the farms whenever called upon and assist the farmers in the employment of better farm methods.

"THE Farmers and Merchants State Bank pledged $250 of this fund, and the originators of the plan, the president, A. R. McCollum, and Vice-president Gross, were assigned the duty of canvassing the merchants and bankers of the county. No sooner had the announcement been made of what had been done, however, than the other banks of Waco called up these gentlemen, assuring them of their co-operation and subscription, as did also several banks of the smaller towns of the county, and Mr. McCollum and Mr. Gross say they have every assurance that the fund will be raised without leaving their offices. So much for Texas and its live association, as this is fruit of the recommendations of the agricultural committee of the Texas Bankers Association.

NOW for the next county—rather the next bank—to get busy. All that is required is initiative. The F. & M. of Waco demonstrated how prepared the banks are for leadership in the good work. One active man can do it. R. T. Forbes at St. Joseph, Mo., demonstrated it for Buchanan county. "Do it now!"

WORD comes from New York that G. E. Allen of the agricultural committee of the state association got busy on a Washington tip from Chapman, and had all congressmen wired direct. W. D. Vincent of Spokane and E. J. Curtin of Iowa joined in. What a feather in the cap of the A. B. A. committee on agriculture if this comes off!

ALLEN was at Canton for farmers' week, for the New York committee, and was down to appear at Cornell on Thursday of this week for their farmers' meetings. He's about the best item you can get on a program these days.

ANOTHER good card is "Farmer Bill" Edens of Chicago. He can talk farming, good roads, organization benefits and banking. Can do it on a moment's notice. We hear that Kauffman has filed a claim for "time" at his convention and that Montana put E. J. Bowman on his trail for its state convention.

FIRST NATIONAL, Boston, soon will be in it with Chicago's Central Trust in the matter of staff equipment. It has six vice-presidents and as many assistant cashiers. Resources are close to one hundred millions and "still rising."

THE F. & M. of Philadelphia has paid $13,337,000 in dividends. Good stock to put away in the strong box.

FIRST NATIONAL, Grand Rapids, Wis., uses picture postals for its statements. On the front are the figures in neat, small type and on the reverse an "interior" of the new bank building. Good stunt!

FIRST BANK AND TRUST COMPANY, Cairo, has turned the two million corner in resources.

CONTINENTAL AND COMMERCIAL, Chicago, has $107,718,585.68 bank balances in its deposit account. "Combined" deposits are $234,373,959.37 in the allied institutions.

NORTHWESTERN NATIONAL, Minneapolis, will be forgiven for this modest little "toot" in its late folder: "A broad vision on the part of its founders, and a continued liberality of policy on the part of the management of this bank, have combined to make it more than a local institution."

CEDAR RAPIDS NATIONAL started as a private bank in 1877. Ten years later it took a broader view of its opportunities and responsibilities and it incorporated. Sorry? Not with more than five millions in deposits and a trail of "dividends paid" that looks like a comet's tail.

"FORTY-EIGHT years young," says the First National of Clarksville, Tenn., in red at the top of its statement folder. It has only another lap to go to have its surplus equal to its capital and then it can stay young.

PRESIDENT F. E. FRISBEE of the First National at Sheldon, Ia., is preparing to celebrate the bank's "silver wedding." Will be 25 on the 28th of the present month.

A SOUTHERN banker writes in to say that while New York City is fighting for the privilege of having permanent piers 1,000 feet long in its harbor, Pensacola, Fla., has just finished one pier 1,225 feet in length, has four more like it planned for the immediate future, and also is to have one 2,700 feet long.

PENSACOLA is blessed by nature with one of the greatest land-locked harbors in the world. The city is located on a bay just seven miles from the Gulf of Mexico, and the bay and gulf are connected by a channel that is 480 feet wide and has a minimum depth of 33 feet.

COL. R. E. James, Easton, Pa., arrived in Chicago yesterday, loaded down with "dope" for the new A. B. A. constitution. Other members of the committee on revision came in on other trains. There are Dunlap, McNider, Bailey and Frame all on the ground. Sessions at the Congress.

THIRD NATIONAL, St. Louis, has a live staff all the way from Mr. Huttig, also president of the A. B. A., down to Walter Creely, the office boy.

WALTER reads THE CHICAGO BANKER and when he sees a "scare head" in a local paper on financial lines he clips it and sends it in. Last item was about the recovery of two of eighteen stolen ten thousand dollar notes. The paper was fairly in "agony" over it, hence the hit it made with the junior banker at the Third.

"REAL BANK ADVERTISING" is a very entertaining booklet sent upon request by The Harvey Blodgett Company, St. Paul. Has hundreds of sample ads, all free.

E. ST. ELMO LEWIS, of Detroit, has been made vice-president of the National Association of Corporation Schools, which has held its first national convention in New York City. Mr. Lewis spoke on the subject, "Increasing Efficiency Through Educational Methods."

GEORGE S. PARKER says about his Live Stock National at Sioux City that "in addition to our facilities for a general banking business, which are equal to those of any bank in this territory, our superior and exceptional facilities for handling all business pertaining to the live stock industry make us the bank in Sioux City for bankers in our trade territory."

H. L. JARBOE, president of the Drovers National at Kansas City, says "our location, experience and personal attention, together with our increased capital, assure prompt and satisfactory service on all business entrusted to us. A good bank for cattlemen and bankers."

RICHARD TASKER FORBES, president of the First National, likewise of the First

BANKERS RALLY AT SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, February 19th.—There was a grand rally of enthusiastic workers of the Illinois Bankers Association here yesterday and last night. Governor Dunne and the legislators were the patient and willing victims of much oratory at the luncheon provided. Good roads, agriculture and vocational education were the texts provided. B. F. Harris is the chairman of one interested committee and S. E. Bradt of the other.

Mr. Harris discussed the vocational training bill and also spoke of agricultural bills advocated by the Illinois Bankers Association. The three agricultural measures urged by Mr. Harris were:

Taking advantage of federal aid for payment of field demonstration experts as provided by a bill pending before congress.

Authorizing county boards to aid the field demonstration movement in the various counties.

Providing for the compilation of records relating to acreage, production per acre, etc., to be gathered by assessors.

Mr. Bradt dealt with the good roads movement. He explained that the good roads bill advocated by the association provides for an economical and efficient system of road building and provides also an equitable scheme for raising funds.

"Rural townships are not financially able to bear all the burden of building good roads," said Mr. Bradt. "The city of Chicago now bears no share in road improvement. Chicago can properly assist in road improvement through a state tax. The present automobile tax fund should be used as part of the fund for improved road construction."

Governor Dunne expressed his desire to become well informed on the subjects under discussion, but did not indicate his personal views. J. D. Phillips of Green Valley, president of the State Bankers Association, welcomed the guests. W. G. Edens of the Central Trust of Chicago presided.

Two of the eastern vice-presidents who have attracted favorable notice by reason of their association activities are Glenn F. Barns and W. C. Page, respectively of the West Virginia and Maryland Bankers Associations. Mr. Barns is cashier of the Pioneer National at Ritzville, and Mr. Page president of the Calvert Bank, Baltimore.

ENTERTAINED BY RALPH VAN VECHTEN

On Thursday Vice-president Ralph Van Vechten of the Continental and Commercial National, and president of the clearing house section of the A. B. A., paid a splendid compliment to the constitutional committee holding sessions in Chicago. He invited Messrs. James, McNider, Dunlap, Bailey, and Gordon Jones to a luncheon at the Chicago Club. As "guest-of-honor," John McHugh of Sioux City was present. The gentlemen who had been wrestling with the new code of ethics for the big A. B. A. hadn't been taking much time off and enjoyed the outing. Chairman James and his busy bankers on the committee were too anxious to complete their work to yield much time, but they enjoyed the hour at the club and evidently were pleased at the Van Vechten courtesy.

The committeemen left for their homes Thursday night, and the original draft of the new constitution remained about as it was prepared in Easton, Pa. Much correspondence had been indulged in by all members of the committee with members of the council and with each other. As prepared, the document is not revolutionary but ought to put the association at ease for years to come as a working foundation.

Col. Farnsworth went to Pittsburgh to attend the banquet there. John McHugh who dined with his host, Van Vechten, left with his family for Hollywood, Cal. Gordon Jones is in the best of health, which all will be pleased to know. C. H. McNider learned that his big son had arrived safely in Panama. Those who hadn't voted yet, cast their ballots for Briarcliff but want French Lick or Excelsior Springs for next year.

August Blum, First National, gave the committee a luncheon on Wednesday.

NEW GOOD ROADS BILL UP

Secretary Andrew Smith of the Indiana Bankers Association was in Chicago this week and says Indiana will redeem herself by passing a good roads bill slightly different from the one defeated last week. He is working hard to get the negotiable instruments bill passed and to help sidetrack a guaranty bill which is having some support.

INVESTMENT BANKERS YEAR BOOK OUT

The official report of the Investment Bankers Association of America containing the proceedings of the organization meeting and of the first annual convention appears in a handsomely bound volume of 250 pages, compiled by Frederick R. Fenton of Chicago, secretary of the association. It also includes the constitution and by-laws, lists of officers and committees and members.

GALESBURG BANKER RECEIVES APPOINTMENT

Captain C. C. Craig, president of the Bank of Galesburg, has received an appointment as chief of Governor Dunne's staff. Capt. Craig is well and favorably known in banking circles, being interested in a number of Illinois banks.

W. W. GASSER, of the Gladstone (Mich.) State Savings is offering prizes to boys and girls for essays on "Methods and Possibilities of Agricultural Improvement in Cloverland."

THE essays will be published and distributed in the district if they prove to be illuminating and satisfactory.

CHARLES G. DAWES, president of the Central Trust Company, has gone to Pasadena, Cal., for a month's vacation.

THE committee on new constitution was so busy this week that Charley McNider never got to tell his "information bureau" story—not even once.

LOWER stock market prices are predicted all along the line.

HADLEY had a big house in Indianapolis last week and another one in Chicago this week. Something doing. Had Roosevelt given him a chance something would have been doing at the Coliseum last June, also.

THE new loan shark law in Indiana allows "two per cent a month and fees and expenses for making the loan." The chief debate was upon the question as to whether the new bill was "for" or "against" loan sharks.

RECENT investigations show more business failures in 1908 than in 1896, but in the latter year they were used as a political asset. The political press agent, when well paid, can do wonders.

CENTURY SAVINGS, Des Moines, has gone up from $465,000 deposits in 1910, when L. E. Stevens took charge, to $1,079,000 at last call. Pretty good pace, even for Iowa.

BY wireless we learn that the voting for Briarcliff Manor, as the place for holding the May meeting of the Big Council, was about two to one. Atlantic City was second, and Hot Springs, Old Point Comfort and Chicago (latter two not on ballot) were about even.

WHY not have it in Chicago next year and every year. But, says the Colonel, they will not attend the sessions. Too many swell vaudeville houses—and there you are.

WINFIELD (IOWA) STATE BANK recently celebrated its twentieth anniversary with "eats." Quite a feast, and Cashier H. S. Young was the toastmaster. J. C. Green is the president.

ARKANSAS will hold her state convention this year in Little Rock on April 23d and 24th. Headquarters at Hotel Marion. Robert E. Wait, at Little Rock, is secretary.

ALSO group meetings will be held as follows: Three at Springdale, February 21st; Four at Fort Smith, on the 22d; and Five at Hot Springs on the 25th. In March, Six will meet at Texarkana on the 7th; Two at Walnut Ridge on the 11th and One at Helena on the 13th.

DOWN in Oklahoma they speak right out in meeting and the following eloquent paragraphs from Secretary W. B. Harrison are examples in point:

"IT hardly is conceivable that the Oklahoma legislature would pass a bill that would throw into bankruptcy, if enforced when a law, thousands of solvent farmers, merchants, business men and others, force the liquidation of scores of financial institutions and drive from the state hundreds of thousands of dollars now being loaned here, thus creating a panic where a lamentable money stringency now exists.

"HOUSE BILL No. 441 is the most dangerous and drastic anti-usury measure ever introduced in any state legislature to our knowledge. A reading of it will convince any banker that however honest his dealings may be, however much he may endeavor to obey the law as to interest rates, he cannot afford to take the chance of being declared a criminal under such a law.

"THERE are other vicious bills of this nature before the legislature. If you have not already done so, please take this matter up at once with your senator and representative. Give them to understand that the banks of Oklahoma are anxious to have lower interest rates prevail but such a result cannot be achieved by laws which drive out capital. The robbery system practiced by a very few unscrupulous money loaners must not be permitted to excuse such disastrous legislation as is proposed."

HEADQUARTERS for the Big Missouri Convention will be at the "Robidoux" hotel at St. Joseph. The convention is on May 20th-21st. A very accommodating young fellow named Keyser, at Sedalia, is the secretary.

RICHARD TASKER FORBES, Sr., (don't forget the senior) president of the First National Bank of Buchanan County (St. Joseph) can fix you up for "room and" and will be glad to do it.

GEORGE M. REYNOLDS, writing from Pasadena to a friend, says: "I'm well and having a splendid time. Remember me to all the boys."

YOU Chicagoans may have noticed that Col. Farnsworth seemed all swelled up, this week, like unto a first-babe father. There is a reason, as the stereotyped ad man would say.

Thrift Campaign of American Bankers Association

Secretary E. G. McWilliam of the Savings Bank Section explains the plan to the Vermont bankers in convention at Rutland. An able talk by an enterprising official

The fact that there are multitudes of people in this country belonging to either of the three classes—the hoarder, the "wild cat" victim, and the improvident—is the reason that the savings bank section of the American Bankers Association has undertaken a campaign of education in saving and thrift among the people in every state of the Union.

Truly we live in an age of contradiction, and the bewildered man who has believed all his life in the principle that "figures do not lie," must have come to the conclusion that they at least are misleading. Here on one hand we have the newspapers of the country printing in bold type the fact that our savings are the largest in the world, having increased so many millions in a year; that our average savings deposit is the largest in the world, and that theoretically every man, woman and child in the country has a nice little nest-egg in dollars and cents, while on the other hand we are confronted with this announcement that the savings bank section of the American Bankers Association is inaugurating a campaign of education in savings and thrift.

Surely this is a remarkable situation meriting the attention of every thoughtful bank man, therefore let us pause for a moment to consider it briefly. The amount of savings of this country, together with the number of savings depositors in all classes of institutions accepting savings deposits, is approximately as follows:

	Number of Depositors	Amount
State banks	2,738,337	$ 574,936,098.65
Savings banks	9,794,647	4,212,583,598.58
Private banks	120,155	23,753,469.66
Loan and trust cos.	2,632,685	813,745,937.90
National banks	2,342,290	637,069,543.54
Total	17,628,114	$6,262,088,648.33

This is a vast sum of money and surely augurs well for the thrift of the country if judged entirely by itself. But should a country's thrift be judged by the size of its savings or its average savings deposits alone? Is not the real barometer of thrift to be found in the people rather than in the dollar? In other words, some of us feel that a country's thrift should be measured not by the amount of its savings but rather by its proportion of savings depositors to population, and applying this test to the United States as a whole we make a very poor showing in comparison with some of our European neighbors.

The above figures embrace reports also from our island possessions, and upon the basis of population at the last census, which showed a total of ninety-three millions, the percentage of savings depositors is slightly over 18 per cent—a little more than half of England's percentage, which is next to the lowest of the ten leading countries of Europe.

These ten leading European countries average 373 savings bank depositors per thousand of population. Switzerland heads the list with 554, then comes Denmark with 442, Norway 415, Sweden 404, Belgium 397, France 346, Netherlands 325, Germany 317, England 302 and Italy with 228. Dr. Henry Smith Williams calls attention to the fact that the population of the United States is greater than the combined population of England and France, yet these countries together have more than 27,000,000 savings depositors—we have less than 18,000,000. He also says, "Now note this suggestive sequence. Of the four great industrial countries of the Western world, France has the lowest wage scale and the highest percentage of savings bank depositors (34.6). Germany has a slightly higher wage scale and a slightly lower savings bank percentage (31.7). England has a wage scale still higher and a savings bank percentage correspondingly lower (30.2). America has by far the highest wage scale and by far the lowest savings bank percentage.

"Trade for trade, the American wage scale is often not far from three times the French scale. Contrarywise, the percentage of savings bank depositors is three times as great in France as in America. This may be a coincidence, but it is at least a suggestive one. The fact seems strongly to suggest that extravagance grows and thrift decreases with the increasing wage scale."

Dr. Williams based his argument upon the number of depositors in savings banks alone, but it loses little force when viewed in the light of the figures we quote, especially when it is noted that one third of our savings depositors and one half of our savings are found to be in the mutual savings banks of New York and New England.

While it is a recognized principle of economics that as a country improves its civilization it increases its wants, we in our craze for the luxuries of our high state of civilization have developed a vice which is distinctly American—extravagance. Without going into the merits of other contributing causes, there is no doubt but that extravagance is in a large measure responsible for the high cost of living in this country to-day, and the relatively small number of savings depositors.

Spurred to action, the savings bank section of the American Bankers Association has instituted this campaign of education in savings and thrift and for the curtailment of extravagance among the people throughout the country. Committees are being organized in every state, and already the work is being energetically taken up in various sections of the country. The school savings bank is being organized where it never was heard of before, and banks, instead of using the stereotyped advertisements handed down by years of precedent, are beginning to inject a little human interest therein, showing the people that they have some interest in them besides the purely selfish one of gaining their deposits.

Right at this point some one is sure to call attention to the fact that Vermont as a whole is a pretty thrifty state, evidenced by the fact that there is about one savings depositor in every three people of its population, and to ask what it all has to do with you anyway. And as a state you are to be congratulated upon a condition which, if it prevailed throughout the Union, would make our economic condition impregnable; but there are at least three fields where you can do good work—among the children, the foreigners, and in saving the "sucker" from himself. Your children find their way into all sections of the country, and if they have been thoroughly grounded in the principles of thrift during their school days, as they go out into the world they will carry their principles with them, and in a measure be "the leaven which shall leaven the whole loaf." You now have the school savings bank in successful operation in some parts of your state, and through a delightful co-operation between the State Savings Bank Association of New York and the board of education, represented by a committee headed by Abraham Stern, we are assured that it will be an established fact throughout New York City in the very near future. While possibly entailing some expense and trouble to the banks, it is a sure foundation for future business, and is the best kind of advertising, to which the mutual banks can have no possible objection upon the score of commercialism. As to the trouble involved, it seems as though that should not enter into consideration, for the mutual bank is the people's bank and its employees their servants, to serve them in every way consistent with conservative banking.

You have a considerable foreign population and a great field in that direction. If we can gain the confidence of these people, which we certainly would if they understood our banks, the bulk of the money which is put into money orders or carried about in belts or coat linings, would find its way into the banks; and now that we have the finger print method of identification, the illiterate foreigner may be dealt with without risk, and his business will be found profitable.

distinct function in educating people to become savings depositors, and the fallacy of that great opposition which developed among the savings banks of the country when the postal savings bank originally was proposed has been proven. This system now has between 25 and 30 millions of the people's money belonging to nearly 300,000 depositors, and even its most ardent opponent hardly will say that the postal savings bank has in any sense been a competitor of the banks. However, much to the surprise of everyone, the postal savings bank has as yet not attracted the "stranger within our gates" as anticipated,—only about 25 per cent of its depositors are foreigners. The bulk of the deposits apparently has come from the homely hoarding places of that large class of people who distrust all banks, but have confidence in the government. Officials of the system cite many experiences substantiating this theory and embracing the tender of sums for deposit ranging from those slightly in excess of the legal limit of one hundred dollars per month to $20,000, which was offered in a Western town in the form of sacks containing long unused and tarnished coins. As a result of these experiences the director of the postal savings system recently advocated the removal of the limit upon deposits, while limiting the sum upon which interest would be paid to $1,000. He argued that if this were done, there still would be no incentive to transfer accounts from banks and that many millions of hoarded dollars would be added to the circulating medium of the country. Also that in time of panic people naturally would draw from the banks and deposit with the government, which would then immediately, under the law, redeposit with the banks.

This undoubtedly is a most dangerous recommendation, and any movement toward its consummation should be opposed by the whole banking profession, for while theoretically it sounds all right, it is fair to assume that only a portion of the banks will qualify as postal depositories, and in time of panic those banks which had not so qualified would be sure to suffer, and exercise a demoralizing influence upon the whole situation, even assuming that the government redeposited with the qualified banks in same proportion that they had been drawn upon,—which would be difficult. However, as now conducted, the postal savings bank is a valuable influence toward promoting our economic welfare, and many a person who has acquired the habit of saving in the postal bank, when he has reached the $500 limit prescribed by law, not being attracted by the low interest of postal bonds, will continue saving in some bank.

And so I would urge upon you the serious consideration of the school savings system, not because it is a money maker for the banks, but because it is a public service. There never was a truer saying than that in banking "he best serves himself who best serves others." So in rendering this service, the far-seeing banker will realize the future business it means and the tremendous value of having the children talking in their homes about the local bank, which they gradually will begin to feel is their bank.

In considering the adoption of the school savings system in any community, it is most desirable to select such a method of handling the detail that no extra labor will accrue to the teachers, and no time be taken from the regular school work of either teachers or scholars, for it is necessary to have the enthusiastic co-operation of all to insure success. Many systems are in use in various parts of the country, for the school savings system is in successful operation in about thirty states; but the most simple one which has come to my attention is in operation in one of our Brooklyn schools. Here the work is done almost entirely by the pupils; for instance, for the boys the work is handled by eight boys from the 7A class up, that is, boys from 12 or 13 years of age to 14 or 15, under direction of one of the teachers, a young man known as treasurer of the school bank. In this particular school, three days a week from 8:30 to 9 o'clock A. M. deposits are received. The children make out their own deposit slips, draft slips and signature cards. The latter are made out in duplicate in order to be filed numerically and alphabetically. In place of a pass book or stamp card such as is used in many school systems, a card is issued in duplicate, upon which is printed amounts both for deposits and drafts in multiples of 5 cents. When a deposit or draft is made, the cards are placed one over the other and the amount deposited or drawn is punched out with a metal "punch." One card is retained, the other given to the child, by which method a duplicate record is maintained which is beyond dispute. An individual record also is kept upon a ledger card.

Trust Company Service in New York City

This company, with ample capital, large resources, and an efficient and well-systematized organization, has the ability and disposition to give good trust company service.

Our various departments, including banking, foreign exchange, bond, trust, transfer, reorganization and collection, are well equipped with modern facilities for transacting business promptly and economically.

For these reasons we feel justified in cordially inviting the New York accounts of banks and trust companies.

Guaranty Trust Company of New York

Capital and Surplus - $30,000,000.00
Deposits - $168,000,000

An account is carried in bulk with a savings bank in the name of the school, subject to withdrawal by the treasurer. No interest is paid in this instance until an individual account reaches $5, when it is transferred from the school account and a pass book issued. Upon withdrawals over 25 cents in amount, consent of the parents is required, and the expense of supplies for the system is met by the proceeds of an athletic meet held once a year, and a school paper which is published twice a year. By this system the children are trained not merely in the habit of thrift, but in what is equally important—business methods.

From available figures, the amount on deposit through school savings systems throughout the country is over one million dollars belonging to over 200,000 children, and these figures continually are being augmented through the efforts of the vice-presidents of our association in connection with our campaign of education. It recently has been taken up in Arizona, is being considered seriously in Chicago, and as stated, is promised for New York in the near future. Other states are seeking the legalization of the school savings bank by their legislatures, so that all over this great country of ours thought is being directed toward thrift.

As an illustration of how the "grown-ups" may be reached in cities, you may be interested to know that through co-operation with the supervisor of lectures of the board of education in New York we have arranged a series of lectures to be given in Cooper Institute upon the subject of thrift from the standpoint of the different aids thereto at hand, such as the commercial bank, trust company, savings bank, postal savings bank, insurance company, savings and loan association, thrift association, and regarding "loan shark" conditions. The idea is to tell the people in terms which they will understand, exactly the nature and functions of all of these institutions, explaining how they should be used, and their relations to the people.

I believe the day of "every man for himself and the devil take the hindermost" is passing, and that men are realizing more every day the need of co-operation. Let the bankers set the example, and in so doing a confidence will be developed upon the part of the people that no business depression ever can shake.

TO VOTE ON TRUST CO. MERGER

A special meeting of the stockholders of the Guardian Trust Company of New York has been called for March 5th to vote on selling the business and assets of the company to the Empire Trust Company. President E. F. Clark, of the Guardian Company says that no specific price has been fixed for the stock of his company. He says that the terms provide for the transfer of the business and assets of the company to the Empire Company, the liquidation of the assets, and the payment to Guardian stockholders of a liquidating value for their holdings.

Investment Bankers Prepare Modified Blue Sky Law

Comparison of its principal features with the chief provisions of the Dolley revised plan after two years' experience in Kansas. Chicago Investment Bankers take action on the two bills at Springfield

The Investment Bankers Association of America has sent out a draft of a bill to regulate the sale of securities, together with a discussion of the measure in which is recognized the need of certain suppression. It is believed by the investment bankers that the existent laws in some of the states of the Union are adequate to cope with the situation which is presented and that the idea is for more effective action rather than for the provision of further mechanism. The importance of accomplishing the desired end without placing undue burdens on, or causing undue delay in, the immense daily volume of legitimate transactions also is emphasized.

The law recommended by the Investment Bankers Association differs widely in many respects from the re-draft of the Kansas "Blue Sky" law prepared by Commissioner Dolley, containing such changes as he recommends after two years' administration of the law.

Before endeavoring to sell securities under the Investment Bankers law, the applicant is required merely to file a statement under oath showing his name and principal place of business and the names, residences and business addresses of all persons interested as principals, officers, directors or trustees, including the name, residence and business address of an agent residing in the state, if any; also two certificates signed by different persons, who are officers of different state or savings banks within the state, or of national banks, stating that in their opinion the dealer is of good business repute and financial standing. If the dealer is a non-resident, a designation duly signed, which by its terms shall be irrevocable so long as the dealer shall continue to negotiate for the sale of securities, is required, designating a resident agent, or the commissioner or attorney for the dealer upon whom service may be made. The law gives the commissioner of banks the right to require such dealer, except when the securities are offered to other dealers and banks, to file with him a statement showing the security or securities so offered, and the commissioner may by such order require such dealer to mail to him, as soon as any copies are so mailed or shown to any prospective purchaser in the state, a copy of all printed or otherwise reduplicated circulars of any security or securities the dealer shall offer for sale in the state, including a copy of all advertisements thereof inserted in any newspaper, magazine or other periodical published in the state. The commissioner may limit such an order to securities of any particular class or character on which he may deem such information necessary.

It will be noticed that no permit is required as a prerequisite to doing business, as is the case in the Dolley bill. The Investment Bankers Association takes the stand that to require a permit would have a tendency seriously to injure the investment banking business.

The preliminary conditions of the Kansas law are more numerous than are those of the Investment Bankers bill, the Dolley law requiring: An itemized statement of actual financial condition and the amount of properties and liabilities; a copy of all contracts, bonds or other securities which it is proposed to make with or sell to contributors; sample copies of all literature or advertising matter used or to be used by such investment company; a copy of the constitution and by-laws, or articles of copartnership or association. If it shall be an incorporated investment company, it also shall file a copy of its charter, and if it be a foreign investment company, such copy shall bear the certificate of the secretary of state, or other state officer having custody of such records, that it is a true, complete and correct copy.

All of the conditions above enumerated must be complied with preliminary to securing a permit from the banking commissioner. A filing fee of $25 is provided for in the Kansas law. It is the contention of the Investment Bankers that the fee, if any, should be small and that any state militates against its own welfare by the imposition of preliminary conditions of too onerous a character.

The Dolley law contains a great many provisions not found in the Investment Bankers bill. Under the Kansas law the banking commissioner has the right to make a detailed examination, audit, and investigation of the investment company's affairs,—after the filing of the original papers providing that such investment company may at its option, in writing, refuse to have such investigation made, in which event said bank commissioner shall reject its application.

The Investment Bankers law is similar to the Kansas law in that the banking commissioner has the right to investigate and require certain information relating to the securities proposed to be sold by the investment dealer; but, as has been pointed out, this is not a preliminary condition. In discussing the initial requirements of its proposed law, the Investment Bankers Association says:

"It seems desirable to make this initial requirement simple to comply with, in order to allow a reasonable freedom of dealing in legitimate securities. If, for example, a dealer should, as a result of established reputation, or of magazine advertising, receive an order from a distant state, the dealer could fill the order by simultaneously filing the information definitely required by Section 1. This information would give notice to the state officer of the dealer's doing business in the state, and give the officer an opportunity to investigate if he wished. Some bills have been drawn requiring a prior registration of dealers and a prior approval of securities by the commissioner. This method proceeds on the assumption that the commissioner can automatically prevent any wrongful sale of securities. Such a result seems to be impossible, and if it were attainable, its superiority over the restrictive method would hardly be worth the expense and machinery necessary for its execution, even if we ignore its injury to the freedom of honest business between citizens of different states."

Like the Dolley law, the bill of the Invest-

Touches upon proposed banking and financial legislation by congress

WASHINGTON LETTER

By R. A. ALBERTSEN

Relates to administrative and department matters interesting to our readers

Washington, February 20th.—Sir Edmund Walker, a Canadian banking authority before the currency reform committee of the house, declared the defects of the United States banking system were a lack of flexible currency, fixed reserves which dissipated needed cash in times of stress, and the absence of a rediscount bank.

Sir Edmund declared that the banks of the United States had not grown in relation to the great industries of the country and that they were now "behind the times." He recommended a system of regional banking organizations to strengthen the individual banks, but said that he "was not in favor of the Aldrich plan without qualifications."

In these regional divisions, he said, the banks should be allowed to issue asset currency in bank note form, which would appear as it was needed and disappear when the need for it had passed. The national bank note system, he said, should be continued and perfected.

The witness thought that in addition to maintaining the national banking system the "individual banking system" should be aided by the government. He recommended that permission be granted to private bankers to establish large banks in the large cities of the country with branches in foreign countries.

He said that bad banking could not be prevented by government guarantee of deposits.

After the Harbor Front Land Grabbers

Investigation of encroachments on the Chicago river and harbor by private interests, involving millions of dollars in property, will be undertaken by the United States government, if a resolution reported out of the rivers and harbor committee is passed by congress.

The resolution, which was introduced originally by Representative Sabath, was reported out of committee by Representative Gallagher, and directs the Secretary of War to make a thorough investigation of all encroachments and obstructions in all branches of the river and of the lake front from Lincoln Park to the Indiana line. The original resolution provided for an investigation of river encroachments only, but was amended by the committee to include the lake front.

Stands by Free Government Deposits

Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh is opposed to the exaction of interest on the $47,000,000 of government funds now on deposit in national banks.

He gave his views on the question Wednesday to the house committee on expenditures in the treasury department, which contemplates reporting a bill providing for the payment of interest on national deposits similar to the practice in vogue in most states and large cities. It is estimated that at 2 per cent the revenue from interest would be between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 a year.

The government now receives $20,000 a year interest on $1,000,000 in approximately 1,000 special depository banks, but no interest on the $47,000,000 in the 500 regular depositories.

Two Kinds of Deposits Described

In reply to a question by Chairman Cox as to the advisability of the government's exacting interest upon its public deposits generally, Secretary MacVeagh said:

"I think there are two kinds of deposits to be recognized. First, the deposits for the purpose of transacting the business of the treasury department in its daily work, and secondly, the deposits of surplus funds, where there is no daily movement in the deposits.

"As to the latter class, undoubtedly interest should be paid. The interest should be charged not by competition, but at a fixed rate. When I came into the treasury department the rate was 1 per cent and I raised that a couple of years ago to 2 per cent, so that all the government interest rates are now 2 per cent, which is the rate between banks in this country."

No Government Regulation for Exchanges

Regulation of stock exchanges and clearing houses may be left largely to the states in the report which the Pujo money trust investigation committee will make to the lower house of congress. The committee discussed the evils disclosed at its hearings and possible remedial legislation. The report will be submitted to congress probably February 27th.

Legal difficulties are in the way of federal regulation of stock exchanges, particularly that at New York. Several members of the committee hold that such institutions are entirely under the jurisdiction of the states.

With a possible view of leaving regulation largely to the states, the committee has sent for copies of the bills regulating the New York exchange, proposed by Governor Sulzer of New York.

A scheme of prohibiting the listing of interstate commerce corporations on exchanges which failed to comply with certain rules was suggested.

A similar suggestion existed as to clearing houses, although it was suggested that the committee could effect proposed reforms by prohibiting national banks from joining clearing house associations which failed to incorporate or failed to observe prescribed rules.

Portland Banker Writes a Blue Sky Bill

John A. Keating differs radically from Dolley and from the Investment Bankers Association in his ideas of regulating the sale of corporate stocks and bonds

Portland, Ore., February 17th.—A "Blue Sky" bill in new form has been proposed to the legislature. It is a radical departure from the Kansas law and approaches the subject in a different manner. The bill represents the ideas of John A. Keating, vice-president of the Lumbermens National Bank, who made an investigation of the general subject of "Blue Sky" legislation when in the East last fall. In discussing the bill yesterday, Mr. Keating said:

"The selling of stocks and bonds is a merchandising business thoroughly organized and distinct from other lines of effort, as much so as any kind of merchandising. There are engaged in the selling of securities, individual brokers and the various degrees of responsible and well organized bond houses, some of them with heavy assets.

"All stocks and bonds reach the investor through the medium of dealers, except in rare instances, where corporations endeavor to distribute their own securities when they thus become, for the time being, dealers themselves.

"But the selling of securities is also a part of the banking business, bonds, for example, being loans of large size running for a longer period than is customary with bank loans, but otherwise being credit instruments of a similar nature.

"The government regulation of banks has been very efficient and to obtain similar effectiveness in the proposed regulation of the selling of securities, we can use the state and national banking laws as models.

State Control of Securities Suggested

"Let the state control the securities at the point of issue to the people, namely the dealers. The government does not undertake to go back of the banks, to the concerns who offer their paper to the banks, and examine into the affairs of each and every one of them. This would involve the government in an amount of detail work which would be overwhelming and which would be entirely impracticable. Neither does the government undertake to tell the banks whose notes they should take. This would be carrying paternalism to the extreme. The government does, however, exercise a most exacting supervision over the banks and takes vigorous action whenever the latter acquire any bad paper. The constant pressure of this supervision and the drastic measures which the government takes when the banks have made mistakes in the buying of bad paper, acts as a deterrent and stimulates the banks to deal only in good notes.

"Let us do the same with the selling of securities. Let the state watch the dealers in securities closely, examining the stocks and bonds which the dealers are offering to the public, and take vigorous and drastic measures if the dealers offer unsafe and fraudulent securities. As for the advantage of this from an administrative standpoint, consider, for example, that a responsible bond house will be offering, during the year, possibly 100 different bonds which would involve 100 investigations should the state undertake to supervise the corporations issuing the securities. On the other hand, if the state had to watch the dealers, it would mean only one place to watch instead of 100. Again, of these 100 different bonds which the dealers would offer for sale to Oregon investors, possibly all but one would be issued by non-resident corporations scattered all over the United States. If the state were to direct its supervision to the corporations issuing securities, it would control only the one of these issues put out by an Oregon corporation, and have nothing to say as to the other 99; whereas, if it supervises the dealers, the situation presented is entirely different.

"The point where the securities pass into the hands of the investor, namely the dealer, is the point for the state to apply its supervision. No fraudulent securities can ever get into the hands of the public under such a system of regulation, provided the laws are efficiently administered.

"Blue Sky" Legislation Inevitable

"As to the necessity of 'Blue Sky' legislation, all are agreed that such legislation is sure to be enacted. It is equally important, however, that the machinery provided for the regulation of this business shall be capable of practicable administration, and also that the business of trading in securities shall be hampered as little as possible. Oregon is a state peculiarly in need of capital for development purposes and, for the most part, this capital will have to be obtained by issuing stocks and bonds. It is true that most of these securities have to be sold in the East, but portions of the same issue are sold in Oregon at the same time and the greater part of the issues, which are marketed in the East, sell much better if the eastern dealers know that some of them are being taken at home. Thus the whole problem of financing Oregon developments is involved. It would be very easy for a crude law to stop the flow of capital to Oregon.

"I believe that the public will support a practical law measure for the supervision of dealers in securities. To get at the corporations themselves, as is proposed in the Kansas law, will involve an elaborate program of corporation regulation which will be supported only when the public has been educated up to that point, and which would arouse very serious opposition to such a 'Blue Sky' law.

"For example, one of the proposed bills provides that the books of any concern putting out a bond issue shall be open to all comers. If the legislature desires to enter into such a wide program of corporation regulation, they should do so on its merits as corporation legislation and not disguised as a 'Blue Sky' law.

"As for the department under which to place the supervision of the dealers in securities, it must be remembered that most of the bond issues are put out by corporations whose floating indebtedness is already being taken care of by banks, and with whose credit the super-

By C. C. Burford

Business during the month of February has been generally good and in many respects better than in January. Bankers have been very busy during the month and there is a very optimistic tone as regards the business of the year. The new crop soon will be a matter of concern to bankers and farmers and there will be much depending upon the opening of a favorable spring and of a generally good crop year.

Corn is moving in many places where the supply of grain cars and the condition of the roads will permit. There is yet a vast quantity of corn among the farmers and a large reserve buying ability is indicated by the visible supply of grain.

There is an active demand for money but with the approach of the first of March, which is a very busy season with country bankers, this demand is normal and healthy and is expected. Farmers are borrowing large quantities of money and they have abundant credit to hold their grain and to buy automobiles. Farm sales of live stock and implements, the season having fairly closed for "public sales," indicate very high prices for all kinds of live stock; horses and mules, dairy and beef cattle and hogs and sheep all selling very high. Milch cows and hogs are especially high. The wise prophet who boldly has declared the "passing of the horse" should attend a "public sale" in Illinois and should attempt to buy a good team of horses or mules. He will find, in the slang of the day, "that he has another guess coming," as horseflesh never has been higher nor more generally prized than it is now. Farmers everywhere are interested in horse breeding. Altogether the farmers of the state as well as the bankers are in a very prosperous condition and are much too busy to be disturbed by cries of "wolf."

New State Bank at Silvis

Application has been made to the state auditor for a permit to incorporate the Silvis State Savings Bank, in a village of that name near Moline and Rock Island. The town has been without a bank for two months, since the time when J. Lee Crowder was held up by robbers and beaten into insensibility and $900 in cash taken. Mr. Crowder had been operating a private bank and decided after the robbery to liquidate the bank, one of the banks in East Moline taking over the business. Richard Walsh, former mayor of Silvis and president of the Walsh Brakeshoe Company, is one of the incorporators and probably will be the president. A number of business men of Silvis are taking stock. The capital will be $25,000.

Banker Returns from Panama Canal

B. F. Caldwell, formerly president of the Caldwell State Bank of Chatham and of the Farmers National of Springfield, has returned from an extended trip to Cuba, Porto Rico, the Panama Canal and Central America. Mrs. Caldwell accompanied him. Mr. Caldwell was deeply impressed with the canal and said: "It is a stupendous undertaking, hardly conceivable. Seeing it makes one all the more glad to say 'I am a citizen of the United States and my country is building the canal.' The success of the Panama Canal is absolutely assured." Mr. Caldwell was a candidate for governor in the Democratic primaries last year when Governor Dunne received the nomination, and has served in congress.

Rock Island Bankers Cartooned

H. B. Simmon, cashier of the Rock Island National and of the Central Trust and Savings, Rock Island, is one of a number of citizens of that city who are being cartooned by the Rock Island Daily Union. The picture shows Mr. Simmon, as cashier of the banks, opening a safe which is fairly bursting with money, and below the cartoon are three stanzas of "poetry" singing the praises of the cashier and wishing him pleasure and a successful trip while on a six weeks' vacation which he now is enjoying. K. T. Anderson, cashier of the State Bank of Rock Island and manager of the public school savings system, is another banker who has been good-naturedly cartooned by the newspaper.

J. S. McFerren Lauds Hoopeston

J. S. McFerren, president of the First National of Hoopeston, former mayor of that city and a prominent canner and manufacturer, spoke recently before the Hoopeston Business Men's Association upon the topic of "Hoopeston's Past, Present and Future." After reviewing the history of the city where he has been a powerful financial factor and a good citizen for over thirty-five years, Mr. McFerren spoke of the re-opening of the Hoopeston Malleable Iron Company, the doubling of the force of the American Can Company's Hoopeston factory and of the mammoth new warehouse now being erected by the company in that city and of the increased force of Hoopeston's two large canning factories. He urged a progressive and unified spirit and spoke also of the need of more dwelling houses for the factory men. He also urged better roads into Hoopeston, as that city is only eight miles from the Indiana system of gravel roads, and said that trade now is going to Indiana, such as Lafayette and other cities, instead of to Seventh Bank for Champaign?

There is some talk about a new bank to be established in Champaign, to be backed by prominent and wealthy Catholics of Champaign county. There has been talk in different directions for years about the possibility of an institution in the Twin Cities to be controlled by the Catholics. Whether or not the present movement will terminate in anything definite is a conjecture. There now are six banks in Champaign and with four in Urbana there are ten banks already doing business in the field.

Champaign county boasts of more banks than any other county of the state, excepting Cook (Chicago). There are forty-two banks in the county and it is indeed a very small village which does not have at least two banks. Most of them are private banks, there being seven nationals, six state and twenty-nine private banks. One of the privates, the Farmers Savings and Loan of Urbana, has a state charter to organize as a state bank to be known as the First State Trust and Savings Bank, which will bring the number of the state banks in the Twin Cities up to seven by April 1st, when the charter will become effective.

Two New State Banks Chartered

A permit has been issued for the incorporation of the Dupo State Savings Bank at Dupo, near East St. Louis. The capital will be $25,000. The permit was issued to John F. Adelsberger, George G. Lindemna, Louis J. Dyroff, Edmond Godin and R. E. Gillespie.

Auditor Brady also has issued a permit for the incorporation of the Avondale State Bank of Chicago, with capital of $200,000. Edmund Szajkowski, Joseph Kowaczek and Stanislaw Mroczkowski are given the charter.

Illinois Notes

The safety deposit boxes of the new Ayers National of Jacksonville, have proven very popular and they rapidly are being rented by customers and friends of the bank.

Cairo citizens are interested in a bond issue of $100,000 for the protection of the levees of the city. The Cairo bond issue is a part of the total of $650,000 required for the work. The business men there do not wish a repetition of the trying days of March and April, 1912, when the Ohio and Mississippi rivers almost surrounded the city. The election will be held February 25th. J. S. Aisthorpe, president of the First Bank and Trust Company and chairman of the executive council of the Illinois Bankers Association, is one of a committee acting under instructions from the citizens urging the support of the measure. Each man who votes against the measure will be termed "an undesirable citizen."

Macon county farmers have met in Decatur to perfect plans for a soil improvement organization.

H. H. Marbold, president of the Bank of H. H. Marbold of Greenview, has associated his two sons, Hiram J. Marbold and B. F. Marbold, with him in the business. The firm name now will be H. H. Marbold and Sons. The elder Marbold is one of the most extensive farmers and stock-raisers in the state and the Marbold bank is so beautiful and complete in every detail that it is said that it would do credit to a city of 15,000 people.

The State Bank of Eureka will erect a three-story bank building this esason.

E. Waldo Stansbury, formerly of Saybrook, has been named cashier of the Englewood State Bank of Chicago. Mr. Stansbury has been trained for the position by being bookkeeper with the Pantagraph Printing and Stationery Company of Bloomington, bookkeeper with the S. Brainerd Sons Company and the Western Electric Company of Chicago, and as private secretary to Edward Tilden of Chicago. The Englewood State Bank is thirty years old and has deposits of one and a quarter millions of dollars.

Another record breaking land sale may be mentioned when an eighty-acre farm near DeLand, Piatt county, sold recently for $25,000, or $312.50 an acre. This land is devoid of suburban qualities, being located near no large town and DeLand is a village of 800 people. This is an indication of prices for central Illinois farming lands.

The new State Bank of Greenview, recently organized, has purchased a lot on the public square of that town and will erect a new building.

The Illinois Central Railroad Company has filed for record an equipment mortgage in favor of the Commercial Trust Company of Philadelphia for $9,314,080, of which $1,314,080 will be paid in cash and the balance in twenty equal semiannual notes, payable from August 1, 1913, to February 1, 1923.

Among the many bills which have been introduced into the house of representatives of the Illinois legislature is one by Representative Fahy for the creation of a state bank commissioner, of a depositors' guaranty fund levied against the capital stock of banks and of the state banking board. Senator Bailey has introduced into the upper body a bill to provide for the state supervision of investing companies, which bill was prepared by the Illinois Bankers Association. A similar bill was introduced by Senator Cornwell.

Piatt county farmers and business men, organized under the title of the Piatt County Good Dirt Roads Association, is pushing the topic of better highways in that county of rich soil and high-priced land.

MILWAUKEE NEWS LETTER BY CHALMER B. TRAVER WISCONSIN

The last week for the introduction of bills in the state assembly brought out a new bank deposit guaranty measure drawn by Senator Husting, although the senator can claim little credit for authorship as the bill practically is the same that was introduced by Senator W. C. Owen in the 1911 legislature. The present bill, therefore, needs little explanation to those who are familiar with the provisions of the former bill. The dominating principle is that all the banks of the state shall contribute to a fund placed in the hands of the state treasurer, which fund shall be used to pay depositors of any bank that closes its doors. This bill, as did the other, affects only state banks. The national banks do not come under the law. What chance the bill has of passing depends greatly on the success of the Wisconsin Bankers Association in securing amendments to the insurance laws. The committee has been at work for more than a year on a plan of insuring the bank deposits by the banks. This plan, which was prepared carefully, met with general indorsement, although difficulty was found in insuring the large banks with deposits of several millions each. Under the insurance laws insurance can be written only to three times the average amount of insurance policies granted by the company. This provision would prevent the proposed bankers' insurance company from giving insurance of more than $600,000. It is proposed to amend the law so as to permit reinsurance in other companies in the case of large banks. Should this pass, the state bankers association probably would adopt the insurance plan. Unless something of this kind is put in operation it is believed that the Husting bill will receive favorable consideration. Two years ago the senators voted against guaranty of bank deposits for the stated reason that they thought it only fair to allow the banks to work out a guaranty plan among themselves. The committee which worked so hard and so successfully in defeating the Owen bill were told frankly that unless the bankers worked out some plan before the next legislature met they might be forced to accept the state guaranty law.

Banking Commissioner Makes Recommendations

Banking Commissioner A. E. Kuolt embodies several recommendations with regard to the laws governing state building and loan associations in his annual report to the governor this week. The recommended changes, briefly summarized, are limiting and defining the size of loans to be made according to the size of the association; providing a uniform satutory form of bond for fiduciary officers of the associations; making clearer the provisions as to incorporating associations; prohibiting the issuance of stock in fractional shares or partial withdrawal by indorsement on certificate; defining the amount of stock to be held by any one person; making clearer the provisions declaring and apportioning dividends; automatic forfeiture of charter of associations failing to commence business within one year from date of incorporation, and providing fees and expenses for examination of associations outside the state authorized to do business in the state. The sixty-one associations in the state were reported to be in a flourishing condition.

Bill Relating to State Funds

A bill providing that state funds be deposited exclusively in state banks was introduced in the legislature this week. Under the present plan the funds generally are distributed among both state and national banks at the discretion of a board of deposits composed of the state treasurer, attorney-general, secretary of state and the governor. Those favoring the bill claim that the national banks are not taxed on the same plan as the state banks and that the latter regularly are inspected by the state banking department, whereas it has no supervision over national banks.

Bank Encourages Crop Improvement

The State Bank of Colfax is departing from all precedents in the practical encouragement of crop improvement among its clients. Last year, at the suggestion of Cashier George F. Vorland, the directors of the bank sent three farmers who operate farms in the vicinity to attend the farmers' ten-day course at the University of Wisconsin. So successful was the experiment that this year the bank sent four more men to the university agricultural school. This is only one of several incidents of the growing business intimacy between Wisconsin bankers and farmers. To L. A. Baker, cashier of the Manufacturers Bank of New Richmond, and President J. W. Hutchinson of the Iowa County Bank of Mineral Point has been given the credit of first directing the attention of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture to the possibility of utilizing this relation of the farmer and the banker for the improvement of agricultural conditions and the consequent benefit of all. Out of the initial efforts of these men has been developed a well defined form of extension service. The Wisconsin Bankers Association contests have been models for similar competitions in many other states.

DEATH OF INDIANA BANKER

William R. McKeen, president of the McKeen National of Terre Haute, one of the largest and most widely known banks in Indiana, died Tuesday, February 18th, at his home in Terre Haute. Mr. McKeen was eighty-three years of age, and had been for fifty years one of the most prominent financiers in the state of Indiana. He also was prominent in railroad matters, having been president of the Vandalia Railroad Company from 1870 to 1896. This road, extending from Indianapolis to St. Louis through Terre Haute, with other branches, is now a part of the Pennsylvania system and affords that great trunk line a St. Louis entrance and on into the West.

Mr. McKeen also was very prominent in the affairs of the republican party and had attended all of the national conventions from 1872 until 1904. In 1897 he was a candidate for United States Senator when Charles W. Fairbanks of Indianapolis was elected. Mr. McKeen was the only civilian in the state of Indiana to have been elected a member of the Legion of Honor.

F. A. CRANDALL RETURNS FROM EAST

F. A. Crandall, vice-president of the National City Bank of Chicago, returned this week from a ten-days' trip through the East, where he visited New York and Philadelphia. While in New York Mr. Crandall attended the banquet of the local chapter of the American Institute of Banking. On his way home he stopped off at Cincinnati, at which point he acted as one of the judges in the debate between the Cincinnati and Pittsburgh chapters of the A. I. B. Mr. Crandall represents the American Institute of Banking on the executive council of the A. B. A. and always has taken an active part in Institute matters.

He says that although the East expects some slowing down in business as a result of the change in administration at Washington, this belief has not assumed any serious proportions and no feeling of alarm or apprehension is being experienced.

St. Louis and Southwest Banking Letter

By R. L. ROBINSON

St. Louis, February 20th.—The demand for money during the last week has increased slightly and came from all classes of customers. Rates were steady at 4¾ to 6 per cent on call and time loans. Eastern exchange, particularly New York, has been in fair offerings and demand. There was a small premium in selling between banks where heretofore it was a slight discount. All branches of banking have been active. A gain of more than $3,500,000 has been made in shipments of shoes from St. Louis, the world's greatest shoe market, in 1912. During the year, $25,525,823 pairs, valued at $49,338,031.72, were made by fourteen manufacturers, which represents a gain of $2,442,546.48 in volume and in pairs of 616,716. The total shipments from St. Louis, according to the Shoe and Leather Gazette, were $64,610,141.31, a gain of $3,582,688.48 over 1911. The average price a pair increased from $1.80 to $1.86 in 1912.

Withdraws Offer

The Mississippi Valley Trust Company of St. Louis, which recently agreed to sell the state capitol bonds for a commission of $143,000 and now has declined to undertake the transaction on the ground that the legislature had provided that the commission be paid out of the capitol building fund instead of out of the general revenues as the company requested, in an open letter to the press fully explains its position. The resolution as passed by the house provided that the commission for the Mississippi Valley Trust be appropriated from the general revenue, but this was amended in the senate, the house concurring, thus removing the conditions under which the company said it would take the bonds.

The state fund commissioners are having about as much trouble in trying to get satisfactory interest on the state's surplus moneys as they have had in trying to dispose of the capitol bonds. Two-twentieths of its daily balance have been awarded by the fund commissioners to the First National and the Exchange Bank of Jefferson City, each institution taking one-twentieth. Satisfactory bids have been received for only five-twentieths. The Mississippi Valley Trust, which received fifteen-twentieths of the funds four years ago on an average interest basis of 3.29 per cent has notified the fund commissioners, through representatives, that it would not act as a depository for this proportion of the state funds under the old contract later than March 15th. This means that the state must find new depositories by March 15th or suffer the funds to lie in the state treasury without interest. The new democratic administration dislikes to accept a lower rate of interest on the surplus funds now amounting to $5,067,000 than 3.29 per cent, the amount obtained by the fund commission four years ago.

The fund commission hopes to dispose of the capitol bonds to the state depositories which must put up securities to cover the amount of funds they receive. By this plan each bank bidding for money would be asked to take an equal amount of capitol bonds to deposit as security. Following are the bids for funds of which all were rejected except two:

First National Bank, Jefferson City; one-twentieth, 3.30; Exchange Bank, Jefferson City, one-twentieth, 3.29; National Reserve Bank, Kansas City, one-twentieth, 2.87; St. Louis Union Trust Company, St. Louis, one-twentieth, 2.87; St. Louis Trust Company, St. Louis, one-twentieth, 2.90; Mississippi Valley Trust Company, St. Louis, one-twentieth, 3.05; Mississippi Valley Trust Company, St. Louis, two-twentieths, 3.03; Mississippi Valley Trust Company, St. Louis, four-twentieths, 3.12; Mississippi Valley Trust Company, St. Louis, two-twentieths, 3.00; Commerce Trust Company, Kansas City, one-twentieth, 2.95; Commerce Trust Company, Kansas City, one-twentieth, 3.15; Southwest National Bank of Commerce, Kansas City, one-twentieth, 3.03; Southwest National Bank of Commerce, Kansas City, one-twentieth, 2.65.

Favor Mortgage Fee Tax

A bill providing, in lieu of every other tax on real estate mortgages, a stated fee of one-fourth or one-half of 1 per cent of the face of the mortgage, to be paid as a recording fee, will be drawn up and passed on this week by the directors of the Real Estate Exchange and the members of the exchange and then introduced into the general assembly, with a recommendation that it be adopted. This action was decided on at a meeting of the members of the exchange, following a spirited address by J. Hamilton Grover, vice-president of the Mortgage Guarantee Company. Mr. Grover declared that millions of money, which might be invested in real estate mortgages in St. Louis, sought other investment fields because of the law taxing real estate mortgages at full value.

Bankers whose customers have business at the St. Louis National Yards can realize full value of such business only through an account with this bank.

Gains on the St. Louis Lines

Gross earnings of all United States railroads so far reporting for the first week in February aggregate $3,233,775, a gain of 3.6 per cent, as compared with the earnings of the same roads for the corresponding period a year ago. This is a considerably less satisfactory comparison than that of the first week in January, but the weather all through last month was exceptionally favorable for railway traffic, while this month adverse climatic conditions in some parts of the country have been a retarding factor and probably account to some extent for the decreased gain. Nearly all the roads included in the statement, however, report gains, and where a falling off does occur in comparison with last year, it is in every instance very small. Among the leading systems upon which increases appear are the Colorado and Southern, Denver and Rio Grande, Minneapolis and St. Louis, Missouri, Kansas and Texas and the St. Louis Southwestern.

This action was taken at the regular monthly meeting of the commerce association. A number of speeches were made by members of the organization and many good ideas were offered for the maintenance of the good roads after Harris county has secured them.

THE QUEST FOR GOOD ROADS

The quest for good roads which has been stimulated by bankers and their associations has become nation-wide if not continent-wide. Illinois has been a leader in scientific agitation through its Highway Improvement Association, and much good has been accomplished. Over in Iowa they have about agreed upon a plan, and a bill has been presented in the house at Des Moines. It provides:

Establishment of a state highway commission of three members, with ample authority, these commissioners to select a highway engineer.

County engineers for every county in the state, to be employed by supervisors.

Classification of all highways into county and township roads.

All money expended on county roads to be in line of permanent work. No money to be spent except on approval of engineer.

Two mill levy to be placed in compulsory drag fund to be paid out only by superintendent of township roads.

A separate feature of the bill will fix a 1-mill levy for state aid to be raised from all taxable property in the state, including all property in cities, but this money is to be used only on country roads for permanent highways.

Over in Canada they have concluded an enthusiastic convention at St. John, at which a Provincial Good Roads Association was formed, and resolutions were passed strongly urging the government to take the roads out of politics and to provide for three trunk lines stretching across the province from the Maine border; to abolish statute labor, and to provide for a patrol system; also to appoint a competent engineer under whom all road work would be carried on.

In Minnesota the 1-mill tax amendment to the constitution was passed at the last election and the legislature is about to take up the consideration of how much of the tax will be ordered into effect. The mill is the maximum and the legislature may decide upon the limit of assessment for the next two years up to that amount. This full tax can produce about $1,000,000 a year. The bill for which the good roads people are working now has been introduced by R. C. Dunn, promoter of the mill tax, to centralize supervision policy, set aside a percentage for maintenance, and to build roads that will last. The bill divides state aid into four classes based on assessed valuations of counties. The counties with the lowest valuations are to be allowed 80 per cent aid. The minimum is 50 per cent.

Bad luck has fallen upon the movement in Indiana for the present legislative season at least. The house, by a vote of 79 to 13, has killed the Hughes good roads bill, which was drafted by the Indiana Good Roads Association and indorsed by numerous organizations. It also was the aministration good roads measure. The bill provided for the creation of a state highway commission and would have prevented farmers from working out their road taxes. It was the sentiment among the farmers against the bill that killed it. This shows where important educational work must be done. The fate of the Indiana bill will fall upon similar bills in this and in other states unless necessary preparatory educational work is done.

WASTE BETWEEN PRODUCER AND CONSUMER

In that explicit new volume, "The Stock Exchange from Within," the author tells how markets differ from exchanges. His friend has the largest peach orchard in Virginia and last year the "crop all over was big," so those who had bought the Virginian's peaches watched. The railroads put up the rates on "local" and he netted but from 7½ to 15 cents per basket on the commission house plan. To see for himself he went to Richmond and found his own peaches selling at $1.25 per basket and almost no "loss" from the faults conjured up by the commission plan. The author's cure is an open exchange such as has been provided to fix values for securities.

Another author tells why living is so high, in his opinion. It is the cost of distribution. Mother used to buy the flour and then make the bread, biscuits, pies, etc., herself—one delivery for all. Now "mother" (but not called that homely name) comes in from an afternoon at bridge and spends a nickel telephoning for a half dozen biscuits to be sent over by a man and team. Many and costly deliveries must be assessed against the food in consequence.

A Washington apple farmer found apples which he "shipped at a loss," selling in Chicago at $1.60 per bushel. Something is wrong between the producer and the consumer. The one is made a fool of by the middlemen and the other makes a fool of himself by false ideas of living beyond his means. The housewife has become a "society lady." Now come the publishers of nine agricultural journals having united in a call for a conference of economists, railroad men, and farm leaders to be held in Chicago from April 8th to April 10th, to consider means of reducing waste in the distribution of farm products to the consumer. In effect it is the signal for a campaign against extortion by the middleman. The call for the conference is signed by Frank P. Holland of "Farm and Ranch," Ben F. Biliter of the "Farmer's Guide," Frank E. Long of the "Farmer's Review," and Charles W. Holman.

If the promoters can find a man who knows, and who is willing to tell, it will be fine reading and useful information.

GIVING OF THEIR TIME

It must be a higher motive than mere ambition which causes eminent bankers willingly to absent themselves from business, from home comforts, or from the delights of travel or resort life, to come to Chicago at this season to wrestle with the "growing pains" which afflict the great American Bankers Association. No man in his "state of nature" ever enjoyed such dry work as the construction or revision of a constitution and by-laws. Nothing but high patriotism to the association and habitual good citizenship will explain it. The Detroit convention picked out its ablest and commandeered their services without remuneration. Not one of the number faltered or "explained." The full list of these useful servants gives us the names of:

Robert E. James, Pennsylvania.
Charles H. McNider, Iowa.
Gordon Jones, Colorado.
O. E. Dunlap, Texas.
W. J. Bailey, Kansas.

For the week they have labored to correct the ills—both real and imaginary—of the powerful organization which has outrun the constitutional provisions which, though crude, once were adequate. It is not the place to tell the chief objections nor the proposed remedies. The able committee will do that in an official but not in a drastic way. Col. F. E. Farnsworth sat with the committee in an advisory capacity and at its direct invitation. He neither is an "insurgent" nor a "stand-patter." If it could be planned to have the new constitution made the order of business for the opening session at Boston, in lieu of innumerable addresses of welcome, the first day would be a "hummer" instead of a "frost" as is usual.

NEW JERSEY ANTI-TRUST LEGISLATION

Fate may have decided that from New Jersey, "the mother of trusts," should come the "seven Sutherland sisters," or seven anti-trust bills which define the position of the president-elect upon such matters. That the people who have been anti-trust for years would choose their triumphant leader from the most trust-ridden state in the Union could not have been foretold. Of his bills Governor Wilson says that they "simply make an effort to apply in a business-like way the principles that the whole country has agreed upon."

The bills are seven: First, a trust is defined and criminal penalties are provided for individual directors; second, watered stock is

The definition of a trust is a combination or agreement between two or more corporations, firms or persons to restrain trade, to acquire monopoly, to limit or reduce production or increase prices, to prevent competition in manufacture, transportation or buying and selling, to control or fix prices, to pool, withhold from the market, etc., in order to preclude competition. Trusts are declared illegal and indictable.

There will be an attempt to put similar measures on the national statute books as tenders to the Sherman act. Their effect in New Jersey will be studied not only by this whole nation but by all nations. It may be as Governor Wilson has said, that subsequent acts of congress "might have to be different." He is open minded upon the subject and will be governed by results and revelations.

intendent of banks is already well informed. He is constantly in receipt of information as to their credit, through his examinations. The atmosphere surrounding him is full of it, and he has an organization which is dealing constantly with such questions. To duplicate this in another department can be done successfully, but will cost money.

"The Kansas 'Blue Sky' law is the first which has been enacted and its principle has been generally applauded. Naturally the first impulse of the parties desiring similar legislation in other states has been to copy it. The law voted upon under the initiative in Oregon last fall, and one or two bills introduced at this session, have been such copies. However, the Kansas law is not capable of successful administration. It involves the corporations issuing the securities and the dealers in hopeless confusion, and it throws an amount of work upon the superintendent of banks which would involve an enormous expense. It is a better plan to use for a model for this proposed regulation of bond dealers the laws governing deposit banks, which have been the result of a long evolution, and which have been an unqualified success."

Substance of Keating Bill

Mr. Keating's bill includes many of the provisions in the measure that has been proposed for enactment in Ohio, and it also embodies the stringent portion of the Kansas law relating to examination of persons and corporations issuing securities for sale. The superintendent of banks is made the officer responsible for enforcement of the act and he is authorized to appoint such clerks and deputies as are absolutely necessary. Fees collected are to be turned into the state treasury and the expenses of the superintendent of banks' office are to be paid upon the auditor's warrant in the usual way.

The bill provides for the licensing of all persons dealing in stocks, bonds or securities of any nature. The annual license fee is fixed at $100 and to obtain a license a dealer must file with the superintendent of banks evidence establishing his sound moral character and good business repute. When the superintendent of banks has determined that the applicant is a proper person, he is required to grant the license.

The superintendent of banks may at any time revoke a license upon ascertaining that the licensee is insolvent, has violated any pro-

[illegible] act, engages in illegitimate business or is in any manner dishonest.

The bill provides further that no licensee may dispose of any securities without first filing in the office of the superintendent of banks full information, and receiving his approval.

The superintendent of banks is authorized to exercise a general supervisory power over corporations and persons issuing securities for sale and he may at any time make a detailed examination of the affairs of any such corporation. If he finds that the business does not promise a fair return of its stock upon its securities, he is empowered to prohibit further sale until the general plan of business has been amended in such manner as to satisfy the superintendent that it is solvent and that it provides for a fair, just and equitable plan of business.

In order not to interfere with legitimate dealing in securities, the bill provides certain exceptions about filing information. These exceptions are made to cover special transactions where there can be almost no chance of fraud and the exceptions are made very specific in the language of the bill. Another result of the exceptions will be to strip enforcement of the bill of red tape and relieve the office of the superintendent of banks of embarrassment in actual operation.

Penalties provided for violations are fines of $100 to $5,000 and imprisonment up to three years.

ment Bankers gives to the commissioner the right to refuse to any dealer permission to sell any securities, an investigation of which has convinced the commissioner that they are of an unsound character. In both cases the applicant has the right to appeal from the decision.

Both bills exempt certain securities as not coming within the purview of the law.

The Kansas law requires every investment company or stock broker licensed under the act to file at the close of business December 31st, March 31st, June 30th and August 31st of each year, and such other times as required by the bank commissioner, a statement setting forth its financial condition, amount of its properties and liabilities, and such other information concerning its affairs as the bank commissioner may require. Any investment stock company or stock broker failing to file its report within ten days of the dates specified, or failing to file any special report within thirty days after request from the bank commissioner thereof, forfeits its right to do business by reason thereof.

The general accounts of every investment company, domestic or foreign, doing business in the state must be kept by double entry, and such investment company, its copartners or managing officers must at the close of business each month make a trial balance of such accounts, which must be recorded in a book provided for that purpose; such trial balances and all other books and accounts of such investment company shall at all times during business hours, except on Sundays and legal holidays, be open to the inspection of stockholders and investors in said investment company's securities and to the bank commissioner or his deputies.

The Kansas law contains other provisions, none of which is found in the draft as prepared by the Investment Bankers Association, among them being examination, as in the case of state banks.

"Blue Sky" legislation, recently presented to the Illinois senate to regulate the sale of securities in the state was considered Wednesday evening, February 19th, at the University Club at a meeting of representatives of seventy investment banking houses which comprise the local membership of the Investment Bankers Association of America. This gathering was the result of a special call of Geo. B. Caldwell of Chicago, president of the association. A general sentiment has been expressed among local investment houses that the proposed legislation contains measures so drastic as unnecessarily to hamper legitimate investment banking business. The meeting was devoted to a discussion of the bills already presented to the state legislature in comparison with the "model" bill that has been drafted by the Investment Bankers Association as a suggestion for a bill of a practical form.

That the Chicago members of the Investment Bankers Association might have the cooperation of the Illinois Bankers Association in devising constructive ways and means to shape the trend of regulation in Illinois, invitations were extended to the officers of the bankers' association by Secretary F. R. Fenton to be guests at the informal meeting. The two "Blue Sky" bills which have been introduced in the Illinois legislature by Senators Bailey and Johnson have been referred to the committee on judiciary. These follow in the wake of similar legislation presented in about thirty states. Many state legislatures now have before them four or five of these measures to regulate the sale of securities. Most of the bills are direct descendants of the Kansas "Blue Sky" law passed last year and many are identical in structure and idea with this act.

Attention is called by the Investment Bankers Association that although Commissioner J. N. Dolley of Kansas, the author of the original law, sent a communication rather widely to the press, stating his intention of recommending an amendment of his act providing for giving an investment banker of proven integrity a right to go ahead and do a general business in securities, nearly every legislator who has presented a bill disregards this correction and adheres to the idea of the original act.

The Investment Bankers Association, soon after the introduction of the Kansas bill, set out through its counsel and legislative committee to analyze all phases of legislation proposed to regulate the sale of securities. This endeavor has received the support of investment bankers from all parts of the country who claim that provisions in the proposed measures impose obligations that are outrageous because they are out of proportion to any possible good they can accomplish.

The model draft of the association is the result of a three months' expert study of the situation and is offered, not to direct the legal merits of such laws as shall be enacted, but to guide consideration as a business matter and in relation to the investment business as it actually is carried on with the highest integrity and with the utmost possible protection to the investor.

FORMER STATE TREASURER MAKES A HIT

Former State Treasurer E. E. Mitchell, president of the First National of Carbondale, Ill., endeared himself to thousands of old-line republicans of Illinois by his act in providing admission, in the King Home for Old Men in Chicago, for Bailey Dawson, formerly a resident of Jacksonville and for many years identified with republican organization work in Chicago and Illinois. Mr. Mitchell donated his salary which accrued between January 31st and the day the deadlock was broken in the Illinois legislature by the election of a speaker, and which legally belonged to him as a result of the failure of the legislature promptly to canvass the state vote. Mr. Mitchell accordingly decided to give Bailey Dawson a lift into the King Home. His action has the cordial indorsement of many bankers throughout the state who also are friends of Mr. Dawson.

CENTRAL WEST LETTER

By EDGAR P. ALLEN

Omaha

During the past week at least twenty-five presidents, vice-presidents and important employees of Kansas City banks were in attendance upon various bankers' meetings in the Southwest, and the somewhat meager reports they have sent in of conditions encountered indicate a sentiment of vigorous optimism among the banking fraternity of this section. Until recently there was some uneasiness because of dry weather which retarded wheat and lowered the springs and streams so that many stockmen had to haul water. But heavy snow falls, following each other over practically all of the wheat states, have improved the agricultural situation wonderfully and crops will go into the spring in good shape. Kansas City continues to hold sixth place in bank clearings with a slight percentage gain over a year ago, although recently both St. Joseph, Mo., and Omaha have fallen off. General business is reported excellent for the present year with collections better than have been known for many months. The wholesale jewelry houses of Kansas City have had no better business in years and it is significant that the heaviest demand is for expensive jewelry, gems and high grade novelties. Two of the jewelry houses report the demand for diamonds is 50 per cent greater than for the first two months of 1912.

Proposed Changes in Kansas Law

Practically the only changes in the present banking laws of Kansas that have been proposed the present winter were suggested by Senator Joseph of Butler county. In one bill he would require the county treasurer to distribute county funds for deposit among all the banks of the county in proportion to their capital and surplus. This is to prevent one or two banks from having a monopoly of county deposits. The second bill introduced by Senator Joseph is far more important. At the present time, state banks coming under the state bank guaranty law pay their assessments to the bank commissioner and the fund is placed on deposit with the state treasurer. At present, this fund amounts to half a million dollars, $100,000 in cash and $400,000 in bonds. Senator Joseph would place this money in the banks contributing to the fund, and declares that the interest which this amount of money would draw almost would pay the annual assessments for the benefit of the fund. The Joseph guaranty bill would require that each bank under the law must place the amount of its assessment in a special fund, to be handled as part of the bank's surplus, but to be subject to check by the bank commissioner. In case of necessity the bank commissioner would prorate the amount required among the banks and draw his check upon their portion of the state guaranty fund. "There are 900 state banks in Kansas," explained Senator Joseph, "and I have written to all of them about this plan. They have declared in favor of the plan in the ratio of about six to one." However, Commissioner Dolley and other experienced bankers do not look with favor upon the change. They say that a definite and known fund in the state treasury ready at all times for release to depositors of failed banks, produces a sense of confidence that is highly desirable among bank patrons.

Nebraska Law Likely to Remain Unchanged

Although the Nebraska legislature has had a number of bank bills under consideration it now seems unlikely that any changes in Nebraska bank laws will be made at the present session unless there is a radical change of sentiment in the lower house. The banking committee of this legislative branch has defeated a bill which would have exempted from the protection of the state deposit guaranty all interest-bearing deposits. This committee did recommend, however, two bills which appeared to have decided merit, the one to allow the state banking board to refuse a charter if in the judgment of the board enough banks already exist in the locality, the other to allow banks to loan ten times their capital stock and surplus. However, these recommendations have been sidetracked in the general rush of other business and to the present time all efforts to restore them to the business calendar have failed.

Bankers Victims of Joke

Kansas City stay-at-home bankers have been greatly amused at the story which has drifted out of Bartlesville, Okla., depicting the plight of the local delegation which was arrested in that town as part of the playful welcome extended to visiting financiers attending the Bartlesville bankers' convention. The special train bearing the bankers had scarcely arrived within the limits of Bartlesville last Monday morning before it was visited by four city officials who "raided" the Kansas City car for signs of intoxicating liquors, even going so far as to hold lighted matches to the breath of some of the slumbering delegates. It is a serious offense to "introduce" liquor into Oklahoma but when the sleuths failed to find any signs of the "liquidating" element, they decided to make arrests anyway. They took six Kansas City bankers in charge, accusing them of "failing to introduce" or "failing to produce," it is not yet clear which. The visitors were arraigned before the local municipal judge and resident bankers kindly went on their bonds. In the afternoon all six were found guilty and each was duly sentenced to take the "ninty-ninth degree in the Occidental Order of Houn' Dawgs," Monday night. In vain did the guilty ones invoke the habeas corpus and every other technicality to gain freedom. The law in Bartlesville is inexorable and the sentences were carried out. In the ninty-ninth degree the bankers were taught how to "speak for it" when a ham bone was held out of their reach, to bark at the moon and at strangers. The most difficult part of the work for a number of the heavyweights was accomplishing the great "houn' dawg" feat of scratching the left ear with the left hind foot. Those who were the victims of the joke were George H. Hovey, president of the Interstate National; Charles H. Moore, vice-president of the Southwest National Bank of Commerce; J. A. Jackson, cashier of the Gate City National; J. C. English, cashier of the Traders National; C. W. Allendoerfer, assistant cashier of the First National, and George D. Moore, assistant cashier of the New England National.

Serious Legislative Situation in Oklahoma

Practically every other matter has been sidetracked in the Oklahoma legislature for the past ten days while the members have been working out the details of various proposed amendments to the banking law, and it is conceded by Oklahoma state bankers that unless remedial action is taken the whole fabric of bank deposit guaranty will fail and most of the state banks will be forced to nationalize. The state bankers through their committees and by personal attention have worked hard to lend intelligent assistance to the lawmakers in perfecting a measure which will provide full protection to depositors as in the past, a practical plan for stable assessments and emergencies, and an ample penal code. One of the principal features of the proposed enactment fixes the annual cash assessment on the state banks at one-fifth of one per cent of the average daily deposits, which is said to be four times the experience table of losses as exhibited by the report of the national monetary commission. The irregularity of assessment in the past has gone far to create a spirit of unrest among the state bankers and bring about a condition that not only threatens the continued practical operation of the guaranty law, but the actual existence of a number of good state banks. These facts are brought out in a recent recommendation of the state bank commissioner and from the reports of the secretary of the state bankers association.

New Kansas City Trust Company

The second new financial institution to be organized in Kansas City since January 1st filed articles of incorporation last week. It is to be known as the Kansas City Terminal Trust Company and the capital stock is fixed at $100,000. The company will transact a general trust and banking business at Thirty-first and Main Streets, in a semi-residential section where there is considerable neighborhood business activity. William LeRoy, formerly of Brooklyn, is named as president; Albert A. LeRoy, first vice-president; James D. Oliver, second vice-president, and Herold G. Hunter, secretary and treasurer. William LeRoy, who has many investments in Kansas City, will move from Brooklyn and his brother Albert, comes from Lakehurst, N. J. Herold G. Hunter is at present with the Traders National of Kansas City. The company proposes to establish a safety deposit department which should be popular in the neighborhood of fine homes and large apartment houses.

Central West Notes

Apparently Missouri is to join the ranks of the "Blue Sky" states, as the Vrossley- McClintic "Blue Sky" bill was passed in the senate recently. It gives the banking department supervision of the issuance of corporation stock for the protection of innocent purchasers, and is aimed at that class of corporations whose stock has nothing more tangible behind it in the way of assets than the wide blue sky. It is patterned after the statute of Kansas and thus far has had smooth sailing.

Charles E. Billingsley, formerly president of the Capital National of Guthrie, Ok., who was sent to the Leavenworth federal prison for seven years for misappropriating the funds and falsifying the books of his bank, has been released on parole. After the release of Walsh, Billingsley was known as "king of the prison bankers' colony." He was received July 22, 1910.

The Commerce Trust Company of Kansas City has purchased $925,000 in municipal bonds of the cities of Dallas and El Paso, Tex., being awarded the Dallas issue of $525,000 against a field of sixteen bidders, and the El Paso issue of $400,000 against twenty-five other bidders. C. E. Keplinger of the bond department sent Gerald Parker, his assistant, to negotiate the deal which he accomplished with great credit.

A report has been current for some time that litigation will tie up the transfer of the assets of the Great Western Life Insurance Company of Kansas City to the International Life Insurance Company of St. Louis. It is said some of the stockholders have become dissatisfied with the terms of the transfer and, although the case was threshed out in various suits that were settled several months ago, there is nothing to prevent a reopening of the case, in the opinion of some of the lawyers for the stockholders.

John Flack, president of the City National of Omaha, was the principal speaker at the recent monthly dinner of the Omaha Builders Exchange. He discussed banking reform, advocating a central bank or national reserve association. He said the lax banking methods of the present day are the cause of financial panics and that the cure lies in wise banking reform.

A special committee of five members has been appointed by the Oklahoma legislature to investigate the state banking department and especially the alleged irregularities in the management of the bank guaranty fund. It does not seem to be the general opinion among Oklahoma state bankers that the committee will find any irregularities of importance.

Nine Houston, Tex., bankers who tried to attend the recent group meeting of the Fifth Texas district at Dallas arrived about nine hours too late for the proceedings. They professed to be highly indignant and passed strong resolutions condemning the Dallas bankers for their troubles. They charged in their preamble that last year the Dallas bankers, "by foul and dastardly design," burned a railroad bridge which caused the Houston delegation to be late at that time. This year these same scheming financiers held up the Houston train and the resolutions further set forth: "It is resolved that we trust by 1914 the Dallas bankers will have absorbed from Houston representatives that confidence in themselves which will actuate them in permitting their competitors to meet them on an equal footing in the solicitation of business, thereby enabling the interior bankers to become advised of that exceptional service, found nowhere outside the METROPOLIS," meaning, of course, Houston.

Banking news from Minneapolis—St. Paul financial center, and surrounding States, compiled by J. Edwards Smith

For the moment the Minnesota bankers are going to quit talking about how to farm best and raise live stock and discuss their own particular business and financial affairs. They have postponed this discussion, however, until next June, when the annual state convention is to be held at Duluth. The committee in charge met this week in Minneapolis and talked over the channels in which the papers and discussions are to be directed. On this committee are E. L. Mattson, Scandinavian American National; J. W. Wheeler, Capital Trust, St. Paul; W. D. Willard, First National, Mankato. The program is to be somewhat different from the one of last year when the bankers met at the central state agricultural farm school in the Twin Cities. The Duluth bankers already have organized to handle the convention in such a way that it is to be one of the chief events of the year in the frozen North.

Bankers Offer Prizes for Corn

As to the offer of the state bankers association of $800 in cash prizes in an acre-yield growing contest for boys and girls to be conducted by the extension division of the agricultural college with each county as a unit, the Duluth papers announce the following:

No entry fee will be charged. Rules and regulations now are being sent to the 8,000 rural schools of the state inviting the country boys and girls to join. It is expected that a number of St. Louis county children will participate. The rules are as follows:

1. He must raise only one acre of corn, no girl or boy being permitted to raise more than one acre of corn and pick out the best acre when harvested.

2. The corn may be drilled or checked any distance in the row, but the rows must be three feet eight inches apart, three feet six inches apart or three feet four inches apart, in order to make the demonstration acre conform to normal farm practice.

3. The acre plot must be at least twelve rows wide and one-half the width of the row must be figured outside of the two outside rows.

4. He must do all work required to grow the crop, unless he is too young to plow the ground, or do the work preparatory to plowing, it being permissible to secure assistance in this particular if full account of all expense is entered in the cost of production.

5. He must keep a record of all operations on blanks sent to the county committee for distribution by the extension division, and must send in all reports promptly to the county committee. Three reports will be necessary, one after the planting has been completed, one after cultivation has ceased and one after harvest.

Bankers Meet at Grand Forks

Northwestern North Dakota bankers had their annual midwinter meeting February 19th, at Grand Forks. Five counties were represented at the meeting which ended with a banquet—Grand Forks, Pembina, Cavalier, Walsh and Nelson. H. N. Johnson, of Lankin is president, C. C. Gowran, of Grand Forks, is vice-president, and C. W. Ross, of Grand Forks, secretary-treasurer. Among the speakers were former Governor E. Y. Sarles, of Hillsboro, Karl Farup, of Park Rapids, M. C. Bachellor, of Grand Forks, Dr. Meyer Jacobstein and President F. L. McVey, of the state university.

Changes at Onida (S. D.) Bank

Changes were made in the personnel of the First State of Onida, S. D., Tuesday. A large part of the stock held by A. W. Ewert and V. V. Ketchum of Pierre, was transferred to J. H. Gropengieser of Onida and E. D. Sutton of Laurel, two directors. Mr. Ewert retired as president and Mr. Sutton succeeded him. Both Mr. Ewert and Mr. Ketchum remain as directors. J. E. Mallery, who now is interested in fruit lands in Montana, resigns as cashier and is succeeded by M. R. Brown, assistant cashier. Mr. Brown has been with the bank since its reorganization two years ago.

Surety Company Absorbed

The Northern Casualty Company of Aberdeen, S. D., has acquired the Northern Surety Company of Mitchell. The company which goes out of existence has been doing business eight years. It is said to have the largest premium income of any company in the state. The combination makes the Aberdeen company the largest between the Twin Cities and the coast. Changes in agencies are not expected. The office at Mitchell will be a branch, in charge of John C. Bryan, assistant secretary of the former company, and the only official to remain, and of Vice-president E. S. Pettijohn, who has been in charge of the Minneapolis office of the Aberdeen company. President A. J. Shunk of the buying company said:

"We are proud of the company that we have been able to build up here in the past few years and the addition we have taken in makes ours the biggest casualty company in the country between the Twin Cities and the coast. The new company will add no new branches to the organization but only will increase the volume of the business and will make the

Hill Sees Need for Currency Reform

James J. Hill, in speaking of the urgent need of currency reform in this country said:

"To-day we are presenting the anomalous spectacle to the world of having more gold than is held by England, France and Germany, combined; and still our monetary system is so unscientific that we cannot utilize this stupendous financial advantage over these countries. I hope President Wilson and his advisers will quickly devise a scheme that will enable us to utilize this advantage."

Bankers' Opinions of E. W. Decker's Plan

What the opinion of bankers is regarding the plan of E. W. Decker, president of the Northwestern National, to stock farms with cattle is indicated in several letters received.

J. E. Platt, cashier of the Security Bank of Clark, S. D., and secretary of the South Dakota Bankers Association, and now in Pierre, has written that South Dakota will welcome a plan for livestock promotion work. George H. Johnston, cashier of the Citizens State Bank of Wales, N. D., sends in a typical case of the net results to the producer this year from the grain crop, that of A. G. Lantz, a farmer near Wales. Mr. Lantz produced 2,413 bushels wheat, 2,362 bushels oats, 819 bushels barley, and 250 bushels flax, which he sold, getting 75 cents at country station for the wheat, 23 cents for the oats, 35 cents for the barley, and $1.15 for the flax, a total of $2,927.16. It was a big yield in bushels, and had prices been the same as in the year before, when he received $1 for wheat, 40 cents for oats, 90 cents for barley, and $2.15 for flax, his return would have been $4,632.40, or $1,705.24 more than he really received. Mr. Johnston gave the illustration to show that on every Northwest farm there should be enough livestock to make an independent resource when conditions beyond control of the farmer make returns small on grain, and to prove also that grain cropping is bad if continued.

Advocate of Good Roads

William F. Kittel, cashier of the First National of Casselton, N. D., is an advocate of the good roads movement. At the Minneapolis First National he discussed the situation in his state, standing for the cash payment of road taxes, instead of work on the roads by the poll taxed farmer. He said: "The farmers used to scrape the weeds into a long ridge and call it a road, over which it was less easy to travel than the unbroken prairie. The purpose was to get a certain amount of work done and to build a road that would let all the water run down to either side. But things have changed in North Dakota since those days. The farmers have become acquainted with the uses of the split log or King drag, and the old turnpikes are very much different now than they used to be. North Dakota now has some of the best roads in the United States."

Addresses Development Association

Speaking at the West Central Development Association meeting at Graceville, Minn., J. W. Wheeler, president of the Capital Trust Company, his subject, "Farm Credit," said that Minnesota bankers, realizing the peculiarly local conditions in Minnesota, have pursued business tactics that differed somewhat from those used in other sections of the country. He said that banking institutions here have sought the opportunity of being of some benefit to the community at large. Notwithstanding the popular belief, said the St. Paul man, the farmers of Minnesota practically controlled its banks.

Mr. Wheeler asserted that co-operative organizations were a good thing, but he warned against those associations wherein every member was not absolutely sure of every other member. He declared that the greatest trouble with co-operative organizations was a tendency on the part of disagreeing members to refuse to live up to the constitution which called for concerted action. The banker advised the farmers to study the credit system thoroughly. He admitted that changes were necessary, but said a solution of the problem would be difficult.

Conditions Good in North Dakota

General good conditions were reported by the bankers at the Grand Forks district meeting of North Dakota this week. Reports were made of the system of credits for farmers desiring to stock their farms with cattle and the results are good. Northwood, Larimore, Grafton, Park River, and Langdon are centers where the plan is under way and the importation of pure bred cattle has given a good start in the dairy business. Karl Farup, president of the district association, is head of the movement in Walsh county. He is giving attention to the dairy stock feature. In Cavalier county several creameries have been started in the year, the farmers taking up the stock in them.

The farmers, under the plan employed at Larimore, pool their interests, money being furnished by the bank, which takes the notes of the farmers for the full value of the stock, the same to be paid within certain periods. About 100 cattle will be shipped to Larimore soon, while about 50 will be shipped to Northwood under the same plan.

Northwest Notes

Fred A. Irish, vice-president of the First National, Fargo, who with E. J. Weiser, president, has been in the East, returned home last week. Mr. Weiser went South on business.

At Pierre, S. D., articles have been filed for the Perkins County Better Farming Association, with a capital of $10,000, and headquarters at Lemmon, the purpose being to promote agriculture by teaching better methods. The incorporators are C. D. Smith, D. C. Draught, F. A. Finch, W. H. Doherty, J. S. Elliott, all of Lemmon. Also for the Pine Ridge Loan and Investment Company, with headquarters at Interior and capital of $100,000; incorporators J. O. Rounds, H. C. Snodgrass and Harry Wentzy.

Pacific Northwest Banking News

With not one failure of a state or national bank in 1912, the state of Washington has a record of which its citizens are proud. The annual report of State Examiner J. L. Mohundro will be issued soon. It shows 248 banks and trust companies, and 10 trust companies not doing a regular banking business, operating in the state. The resources of the different banks are shown to total $121,039,096.67. All are reported to be in stable condition. The report also urges the necessity of certain legislation, among other things a law prohibiting private banks from operating in this state. The examiner states that every institution receiving the public's funds should be incorporated and under the supervision of the state department. The report also asks that the name of the head of the department be changed from "state examiner," as the law gives the same title to a department under the state auditor's control. The suggested title is "supervisor of state banks." Two hundred and eighty-one examinations were made during the year, for which fees were collected to the amount of $10,855.97. The total expense of the examiner's office for the year was $13,845.39.

Filing this week of the trust deed or mortgage of $750,000 from the Davenport Hotel Company to the Union Trust and Savings Bank of Spokane completes in detail the financial arrangements for the $2,000,000 hotel. The bond issue of $750,000 was underwritten by the Mercantile Trust Company of St. Louis through the bond department of the Union Trust and Savings of Spokane.

The issue is arranged in 1,500 bonds of $500 each bearing 6 per cent interest, a portion of the issue being retired each year for 10 years. J. E. Ferris, treasurer of the Union Trust and Savings and manager of the bond department, who had charge of the negotiations and placing of the loan, said: "The publicity given this large financial transaction throughout the East has brought to Spokane much favorable notice and comment in financial circles. Our company has received several requests from eastern institutions and bond houses asking for details and speaking in high commendation of the general basis of credit in Spokane which justified such a large undertaking and the placing of such a large bond issue with an eastern banking house. It is an interesting fact that before the loan was arranged the Mercantile Trust Company of St. Louis had a number of special examiners, including several groups of officials and directors, make special examinations and reports on Spokane and the surrounding country and all matters in connection with the business future of this city."

To arrange for a meeting of the executive committee of Northwest Group 2 of the Washington Bankers Association, to discuss plans for the annual session in the spring, W. R. Baker, cashier of the bank of Colville, Wash., president of the group, was in Spokane this week conferring with W. L. Clark, auditor of the Spokane and Eastern Trust Company, secretary and treasurer of the group. An invitation has been extended to the executive committee and guests to meet in Colville, February 22d, to arrange for the annual session, which usually is held in May, just before the annual convention of the state association.

Alarmed at the enormous quantity of lumber that is being shipped into Canada from the United States, the Mountain Lumber Manufacturers Association, at a meeting held in Nelson, B. C., last week, adopted a resolution urging the Canadian federal government to give the industry adequate protection by means of a tariff. It was declared that lumbering is the only industry in Canada that does not receive some form of protection. Of the 300,000,000 feet of American lumber of common grades that was put into the Canadian market last year nearly one-third was shipped from mills of the Spokane country. The annual report of the Western Pine Manufacturers Association gave the exact figures as 80,422,067 feet.

Eastern Washington and northern Idaho will unite in giving an annual corn show, the first to be held at Colfax, Wash. Thereafter the exhibition will be given on railroad trains at various towns in the Spokane country. Since it has been established that corn can be grown profitably in the Spokane country, many farmers are turning their attention to it as a feed for hogs, which prove a sure revenue producer in this section.

With a mantle of snow on the ground throughout the valley, Walla Walla wheat is well protected and farmers have little fear of cold weather. When the snowfall started the ground was not frozen and when the thaw comes much of the moisture will run into the already well-soaked soil. Weather conditions so far this winter, both in the Walla Walla district and in other sections, are most favorable known for years, according to old-time wheat growers.

Trustee Company of Spokane, which owns five large office buildings, declared a 6 per cent dividend this week, and reports for the year 1912 showed a splendid business. Harry A. Flood is president of the company.

James C. Cunningham, vice-president and manager of the Union Trust and Savings Bank, on his return from a several weeks' trip through the East and South, states that business conditions have improved a great deal in the large commercial and manufacturing centers since the first of the year, and the bankers and business men predict 1913 will go down in history as an exceedingly prosperous period.

Douglas N. Pitcairn, for the last three years paying and receiving teller of the Bank of Montreal, has severed his connection with the Spokane branch to accept a position with the same institution at the London (England) branch.

H. M. Richards, vice-president of the Spokane and Eastern Trust Company, has gone to Florida for two months of fishing.

EDMONTON NEWS

Two million dollars is the amount which the legislature, now in session in Edmonton, will be asked to appropriate for telephone extensions to be made during 1913 throughout the province of Alberta. The system, which is owned and operated by the government, represented a total capital expenditure of $5,728,288 at the close of 1912, as compared with a valution of $3,830,035 at the end of 1911. The surplus of receipts over operating and maintenance expenses last year was $62,283, a total average profit of 12.1 per cent on the investment, as follows: Exchanges, $329,287, 12.61 per cent; toll lines, $286,862, 17.72 per cent; rural lines, $64,582, 4.71 per cent.

The gross revenue during 1912 was $680,731; cost of operating and maintenance, $618,448. The city of Edmonton paid $153,000 for the transfer of the Strathcona exchange. The total earnings in the six years, 1907 to 1912, amounted to $2,087,444; operating and maintenance cost $1,678,852, leaving a surplus of $407,592 on December 31, 1912. The physical plant and services were increased about 75 per cent during the year, over 1911, the valuation being placed as follows: Toll lines, $1,494,419; rural lines, $1,369,950; exchanges, $2,333,022; buildings and sites, $248,455; stock on hand, $282,440. Additions were made as follows: 1907-9, $1,784,094; 1910, $890,369; 1911, $1,008,994; 1912, $1,914,490.

Estimates for 1913 prepared by W. J. Harmer, deputy minister of telephones, show plans for the expenditure of $900,000 on rural lines, an increase of $250,000 over last year; $700,000 for exchanges, or $25,000 more than in 1912, and $400,000 for long distance lines. The latter item is not so large as in 1912, for the reason that the work completed last year will meet the requirements of the province for some time. However, it is given out that preparations will be made to keep this branch of the service fully up to date.

Mr. Harmer's report shows there were in operation in the province at the close of the year 6,689 miles of toll lines, and 9,671 miles of rural lines, connecting 7,120 rural subscribers and giving service to 14,692 exchange subscribers. Toll lines have been increased in four years since service took over Bell system, which had been operating in the province for

The Harris Trust & Savings Bank makes a specialty of handling inactive reserve accounts for banks and bankers, and of supplying carefully selected bonds for investment or circulation purposes. ¶ During the past thirty years its officers and directors selected and purchased, after careful investigations, over one thousand, two hundred and fifty million dollars of bonds, which have been sold to a constantly growing list of conservative clients. ¶ In buying bonds of this institution the investor secures the benefit of the extensive experience and trained judgment gained through the selection of this large amount of safe investments. ¶ The special character of the bank's business permits of liberal interest terms on inactive or reserve accounts of banks, bankers, corporations and individuals.

15 years, from 1,859 wire miles, connecting 70 offices, to 6,698 miles, connecting 234 offices, there having been as many miles constructed during each subsequent year as during all years previous to December 31, 1908.

Twenty-four hundred and ninty-four wire miles of long distance lines were constructed during 1912, the banner construction year in the history of the province. This represents an increase of 59 per cent on previous total miles in operation. On rural lines the amount of wire miles was almost doubled, there being 4,746 miles constructed, as against 4,925 in operation at the beginning of the year, an increase of 96 per cent. Thirty-three hundred and thirty-six new subscribers were added to the 3,784 rural subscribers at the beginning of 1912 and 3,840 new exchange subscribers were added to the 10,852 exchange subscribers. The increase in the number of rural subscribers was 88 per cent and in exchange subscribers 35 per cent. At the end of the year totals were as follows:

Long distance lines in wire miles, 6,698; rural lines in wire miles, 9,671; subscribers at rural stations, 7,120; subscribers at exchange stations, 14,692.

Thirteen town exchanges were constructed during 1912, also new central office equipment installed in 26 others, and extensions made to all existing exchanges, 17 of which were either rebuilt or considerably enlarged. The greatest growth was naturally in the large centers, Calgary, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat and Macleod. Edmonton exchange is the property of the municipality, which also owns and operates all the pubic utilities in the city. Provisions were made in Calgary for the installation of 4,200 additional lines; Lethbridge exchange was increased by 500 lines, while Medicine Hat and Macleod exchanges increased 100 per cent.

Messrs. Francis, Ross and Lea of Montreal, who were engaged to make a thorough examination, have advised the city of Edmonton to take immediate steps to provide a water supply for 100,000 population, with a recommendation to make preparations for 200,000. The cost of the first mentioned system is placed at $5,515,000, the latter involving an expenditure of $8,500,000. The general request is for a plant to supply 200,000. The present popuiation is about 61,000. The police census taken last June gave a population of 53,383.

The report submitted to the board of commissioners, headed by Mayor William Short, recommends the Saskatchewan river as a source of supply, the experts saying that the watershed of 11,000 square miles is at present mostly through an unsettled district, thus insuring pure water. The minimum flow of the stream in Edmonton is 3,000 cubic feet per second, and affords an abundant and never-failing supply.

The Rio Grande Valley Bank and Trust Company of El Paso, Texas, has increased its capital from $300,000 to $500,000.

The Des Moines Savings has decided to adopt the finger print system of identification. While this method has prevailed extensively in the East, it has not been taken up in this section of the country as yet and this will be the first Des Moines institution to adopt the plan. Robert B. Umberger, the teller, will be finger print clerk hereafter.

Des Moines, February 20th.—The legislative committees in charge of the bills designed to put private banks under state supervision held an important hearing Tuesday afternoon. Judge F. H. Helsell of Fort Dodge appeared on behalf of the private bankers who are objecting to the passage of such enactment. An earlier meeting was called but it was postponed because Judge Helsell could not be present. Many private bankers were present Tuesday. It is reported that the bill in the house of representatives has been left to a subcommittee of three members, of whom two are private bankers. Under such circumstances the outcome of the measure is not difficult to forecast.

Group Meetings

Group 10 of the Iowa Bankers Association started the ball rolling February 12th, at Bloomfield. The attendance was splendid and the Des Moines bankers who were present report a most successful convention. The reception which preceded the program was held at the Commercial Club rooms. The luncheon was at K. of P. hall at noon—and it was a magnificient spread. The program was announced as follows: "A Closed Account," Miss May Hinkle; "An Overdraft," John J. Ethell; "Under Iowa Pride," W. J. Steckel; "Burglary Insurance," O. D. Wray, cashier Bloomfield State; "Recommendations of the Iowa Tax Commission," L. T. Richmond, cashier First National, Albia; "The Lever Bill," E. L. Stickney, cashier First National, Moulton; "Publicity," Frank Epperson, vice-president Manning and Epperson State, Eddyville; "Blue Sky Law," J. R. Mackey, cashier First National, Sigourney; "Some Unpaid Services," J. L. Therme, cashier Keosauqua State. This looks like a long program, but as the speeches were limited to ten minutes, a great deal of time was not consumed. A most enjoyable afternoon was spent. The Davis county capitalists who were hosts upon this occasion have been commended highly for the fine entertainment provided.

Two group meetings will be held Saturday (February 22d). Group 7 is in session at Waterloo and Group 11 at Keokuk. The bankers of Waterloo, who are hosts at the meeting of the group there, issued most attractive and novel announcements but at this time of writing the program has not been furnished me. However, the announcement promises "Washingtonian speech, toothsome eats, spicy eats and smoky smokes." A smoker Friday night at the chamber of commerce and a banquet at two in the afternoon, February 22d, are interesting features of the session. The program for Group 11 provides for a session at Keokuk. Members meet at the Elks building at 10 A. M. to register. At 11 A. M. appointment of committees and reports; Address "Forward to the Soil," J. A. S. Pollard, cashier Fort Madison Savings; election of officers; I. P. M. banquet at the Elks building. Group 4 is announcing that its meeting will be held at McGregor May 20th, or thereabouts. A. J. Carpenter of Elkader, president, and F. A. Schuetz of Lawler, secretary, were at McGregor last week making preliminary arrangements. There are about 130 banks in the association and a most interesting program is anticipated.

Relates Amusing Experience

Harry T. Blackburn, cashier of the Iowa National, relates a humorous experience. A woman recently purchased a draft at a rear window, and was told by the clerk to have an officer sign it, meaning of course an officer of the bank. Some minutes later, the woman reappeared with a policeman whom she had located in the street below and who was inquiring just why he should sign his name to a draft issued by the bank. He thought some sort of a bunko game was being worked but affairs soon were explained satisfactorily.

Question Constitutionality of Law

The constitutionality of the state law governing taxation of national bank stocks has come to the front again at Council Bluffs. Judge Thornell has been hearing arguments by attorneys representing various banks of the city and by assistant attorney-general C. A. Robbins. The First National contends that the action of the legislature under which its assessment was made is unconstitutional and the Commercial National is seeking the refund of taxes paid under a statute which since has been declared unconstitutional.

Iowa Notes

The Iowa Trust and Savings, Des Moines, has moved into its new quarters in East Des Moines. The institution now has one of the finest bank homes in the city. Circassian Walnut, used for the first time in Des Moines, makes up the interior woodwork. The marble is imported. The bank is located on the second floor of the handsome new Teachout building.

Council Bluffs bankers are pointing with pride to the fact that the five banks of that city show an increase in deposits of $216,118.49, as compared with the same total a year ago while the assets for the same time have increased a quarter of a million.

Figures for the banks of Des Moines, both national and state, show a gain of $2,634,619 in deposits since last year. The total as shown at the recent calls was $32,287,240.83. The average cash reserve is shown to be 35 per cent.

The bank of Dallas Center is laying claim to distinction with a showing of deposits totaling $1,200,000. This isn't anything remarkable except for the fact that Dallas Center is a town of only 800 people. Like all Iowa towns, however, it is surrounded by a prosperous and wealthy farm community.

N. R. Jones, who died on his eightieth birthday at Humboldt recently, was well known in northern Iowa and the father of Ned Jones, cashier of the State Bank of Worthington, Minn.

The Farmers Security at Ogden is the name of a new institution formed with a capital stock of $50,000. C. J. Heldt is president and C. J. Heldt, Jr., cashier.

J. A. Workman, cashier of the new bank at Ferguson, was in Des Moines last week. Mr. Workman formerly was with the Peoples Savings at Baxter and has many friends in Des Moines. The new Ferguson bank starts with a capital stock of $10,000.

Al Miller has purchased the stock of Nelson Royal in the Des Moines Trust Company and thus gets possession of the controlling interest. Mr. Miller has been president of the institution and Mr. Royal vice-president. Mr. Royal now retires to engage in private business. The office of vice-president remains vacant temporarily.

C. W. Fishbaugh, president of the Security Trust and Savings at Shenandoah, died last week after a long illness. He had lived in Iowa since 1882 and was well and favorably known in the southwestern part of the state.

The State Savings at Chariton has increased its capital stock from $35,000 to $50,000.

Miss Eleanor Sweet, daughter of the late S. S. Sweet, founder and president of the First National at Belle Plaine, was married a few days since to Paul Smith of Waterloo.

The Cantril State has been granted permission to do business. G. L. Norris is president and Lee Harbridge is cashier.

The Brayton Savings is a new concern at Brayton. It has a capital stock of $12,000 and will open in March. Niels P. Hoegh is president and O. F. Ide is vice-president. Other officers will be chosen later.

The Northwestern Loan and Trust is a new concern at Sioux City. The capital stock is $100,000. J. A. Magoun, Jr., is president; B. H. Kingsbury is vice-president; I. M. Lyon, secretary and treasurer.

George W. Ferguson, formerly a private banker at Ferguson, was given his liberty at Marshalltown when County Attorney Anthony C. Daly dismissed indictments on six counts charging fraudulent banking, embezzlement, and obtaining money under false pretenses. The county attorney in his motion states that the dismissal comes "in the furtherance of justice."

J. P. Greenshields has been elected president of the First National at Council Bluffs to succeed the late Ernest E. Hart. Mr. Greenshields is advanced from vice-president and E. A. Wickham was made vice-president. He is president of the State Savings at Council Bluffs.

South Dakota Notes

The Security Bank was destroyed by fire which did damage of $65,000 to the town of Doland. The bank was located in the Fargo building, which was burned.

Clarence Good, arrested for forgery and bound over to the circuit court at Mitchell, escaped from a deputy sheriff who had put him to work in the corridor at the court house.

Fred Whittaker and Henry Weigland have been arrested and held in the Marshall County circuit court for forging checks.

TOLEDO RAILWAY BOND OFFERING

The Harris Trust and Savings Bank is bringing out in this market $5,822,000 six per cent first lien five-year bonds of the Toledo Traction, Light and Power Company, due February 1, 1918. The bonds are secured through the deposit of securities by a first lien on the local street railway system of Toledo, comprising about 117 miles of track, and the principal electric light and power generating plants and distributing systems in that city. In addition they are secured by a lien, subject to divisional bonds, on the artificial gas and steam heating plants and interurban lines, aggregating 125 miles of additional track. The surplus earnings are over two and one-half times the bond interest. The bank is bringing out the bonds at par and interest to yield 6 per cent.

STOCKYARDS BANK FOR INDIANAPOLIS

The necessary money for the new bank at the Union Stock Yards, Indianapolis, has been obtained and announcement is made that the Stock Yards Bank, a dream of years, will be a realization in the near future. The institution will start with a capital stock of $100,000, and a surplus of the same amount. This will make the bank an exceptionally strong financial institution.

Nearly all of the stock has been subscribed by stock yards men. A board of directors, consisting of nine men, will be chosen. When first started the bank will do business in the Exchange building, but later a separate building will be erected.

The establishment of this bank is the result of planning for more than ten years, during which time at different intervals talk of establishing a bank was heard. It was only recently, though, that the men interested in the stock yards got behind the movement in earnest.

ANOTHER GOOD THING THAT DOLLEY DID

Chairman Chenoweth of the executive committee of the Kansas State Bankers Association has called the regular quarterly meeting of the committee to be held at the banking department rooms Saturday, February 22d.

When J. N. Dolley became bank commissioner and the new state association was organized, he adopted the policy of making the executive committee an advisory and official committee, as a part of the banking department. This committee meets each quarter at the office of the bank commissioner and spends the full day in the discussion of all matters pertaining to state banks in Kansas. Mr. Dolley also endowed this committee with powerful influence. No bank legislation ever received the support or disapproval of the bank commissioner unless it was satisfactory to the executive committee of the association. All banks that had any grievances against the banking department had the right and privilege to file complaint with the executive committee of the Kansas State Bankers Association and they in turn would present it to the department for consideration and adjustment. In fact, during the administration of J. N. Dolley as bank commissioner, all important changes were made with the advice and consent of this committee. The relationship has been very satisfactory to the state bankers of Kansas.

Mr. Dolley, speaking of this arrangement recently said: "I am more than pleased with the results of constituting the executive committee of the state association as a part of the Kansas banking department. It has been of great value to me in this work. The committee's advice and co-operation are entitled to much of the credit for the advancement and progress that have been made during the past four years. The state bankers of Kansas are vitally interested in the work of the banking department and they should be officially recognized through the proper channels and I believe that my plan solves the problem. These able, capable and successful bankers have been a great source of support and help to me in the discharge of the duties of the office of bank commissioner. The co-operation between the banking department and the state association is essential indeed to secure satisfactory and efficient results."

It is predicted in Kansas that Mr. Dolley's plan of acting with the executive committee will be followed in other states just as his "Blue Sky" law is being adopted by all the legislatures. Kansas believes in Dolley and so do many other states, evidently.

NEW DECATUR BANK ELECTS OFFICERS

The stockholders of the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Decatur at their annual meeting elected the following directors: D. S. Wisegarver, Decatur; R. E. Best, Palmer; Thomas E. Lyon, Springfield; P. E. Ballet, East St. Louis; H. C. Hunter, St. Louis; J. R. Pogue, Sullivan, and F. W. Drisch, Fithian. The officers elected are: President, D. S. Wisegarver; vice-president, R. E. Best.

James A. Linden has resigned as president of the First National of Scranton, Pa., and has been elected chairman of the board. Charles S. Weston will be the new president and George L. Dickson and J. Benjamin Dimmick have been elected vice-presidents.

What Lies at the Bottom of this Commotion?

August Blum, vice-president of the First National, replies to those who assail our institutions, our customs and our laws. Unrest, clamor and agitation not justified. Never has a nation prospered as ours

We are living in a time of unrest, clamor and agitation. Social and business standards, which have hitherto regulated men's conduct, are vehemently challenged; the relations between capital and labor, between the men of affairs and the so-called common people, are made the subject of passionate discussion; our political institutions are called into question; even the federal constitution, upon which the fathers of the republic founded our national existence, and under which for a century and a quarter we have lived, moved and had our being, is referred to in terms of disdain; our laws and our judicial system are spoken of as a disappointment to millions of men; our politics is said to be dominated by a coterie of crooked bosses; our press is called venal, and our commercial and industrial activities are described as the exploitation of the masses by a ruthless and greedy plutocracy. I refer to recent literature, and particularly to a book entitled "The New Democracy," by Walter Weyl.

It cannot truthfully be said that all these charges are advanced by reckless and irresponsible agitators or by fanatical and misguided reformers. It is not only the shallows that murmur. Many well-meaning people are helping to swell the chorus of discontent. They see certain defects in the manifestation of our life (which, it must be admitted, do exist) and think, in their impatience, that these defects can be cured by a quick remedy, by patent medicines. And there is no lack of quack doctors who support these notions.

What lies at the bottom of this commotion? What are the reasons that the spirit of our day is stirred into a rebellious attitude? Are we just discovering the evils complained of? And have we suddenly awakened to the recognition that our political, social and business life is depraved and needs the infusion of a new morality?

I solemnly believe that the impeachment is not justified. Every page in the history of this country registers an incontrovertible denial of the indictment.

Efforts to improve conditions under which we live have been going on unremittingly from the beginning. The American people have not been given to gross exploitation of material things as is charged by the writer I have mentioned. That cannot be a sordid nation which wrested its independence from a powerful foe through eight years of war, full of hardships, privations and patriotic self-sacrifice; a nation which has given birth to a noble band of men and women struggling in the face of obloquy and persecution against the wrong of human slavery. No nation which is given exclusively to materialistic pursuits would have waged a war for four years for the preservation of the union, for an object sublimely ideal, and in doing so poured out blood and treasure without stint.

Following the history of the last half century we see a constant striving of all our national forces for a better and purer life. Think what great progress has been made in eliminating the evils of the spoils system, the bane of our political life, until public opinion, spurred on by a select body of men, decreed that this hydra should be crushed. Our system of election (witness the Australian ballot) has been vastly improved, the old obnoxious primary elections have been abolished. The discontinuance of rebates by railroads in favor of the large shipper, and stoppage of discrimination in rates are well-known and salutary accomplishments. These are all moral and ideal victories.

If we turn to the material triumphs achieved by this nation during the same period I would have to sing a pæan swelling into mighty chords. Never has a nation prospered as ours. Never in history has there been such wonderful development of agriculture, industry, commerce, invention, improvements in every department of human household as there has been within this republic. The figures of our production, of our industry, of our bank deposits, of our foreign and domestic commerce are dazzling in their magnitude. And hand in hand with this marvelous development goes the national wealth, and this wealth is increasing in enormous proportion as new machines, new scientific processes and new methods of organization open wider opportunities.

And to return to the ideal achievements, see what wonderful results have been obtained in public instruction, in universities and technical schools of all descriptions, in agricultural colleges, and in the thousand and one humanitarian endeavors that spread their benefactions over this wide country.

When we survey all these facts calmly and dispassionately, we may well conclude that the pressure for changes and improvements is not a new invention, but is simply the swelled onrush of an historical stream that took its rise far back in the past. The landscape is changed but the waters of the stream are the same, only more turbulent, because the propelling force is greater. The landscape is the modern environments which call for new adjustment, both of viewpoint and action. No new duties have arisen but the old duties have assumed a changed aspect, have been enlarged and widened by an ever progressing spirit of enlightened democracy. Our social conscience, never silent, speaks with a louder voice; and we are, with a new vigor born by new circumstances, fulfilling the law of every organism to develop and move forward towards the goal of a higher destiny.

In this new and quickened life we are face to face with a group of feelings and conceptions, and meet with proposals for enactments which a generation ago would have been decried as socialism, and if one would want to be particularly emphatic he would have called them rank socialism. Words are but symbols and this term "socialism" has lost much of its terror and gained entirely new aspects. It was not a radical, but that stanch old leader of the English conservatives, Lord Salisbury, who declared that we are all socialists to-day. The word has remained but the thing has changed. It means no longer the dogmatic and radical program of such men as Marx and Engels. A new spirit has come over the dreams of the socialists. There is a tendency on the part of its new and enlightened leaders, both in England and on the continent (our own socialists are a negligible quantity) to meet on common grounds with a great body of progressive people. And we, on the other hand, are willing to make certain concessions to the spirit of collectivism. Many institutions which have been in existence for years are socialistic in their final analysis. The socialistic concept is older than St. Simon or Robert Owen, older than Plato; its root can be traced back to the Hebrew prophets, those mighty preachers of social justice and righteousness. With regard to socialism, we may be compared to the hero of Molière's comedy who found out that he spoke prose all his life without knowing it. We had something like socialism in the guilds of the Middle Ages. Our public school system is in a sense socialistic; so is our park system, created over forty years ago and splendidly developed ever since; so are our hospitals, our free dispensaries, our public libraries and many other similar benefactions. When the city of Boston established public baths and free concerts for the working people, when Germany and England introduced old age pensions and a fund for sick and disabled wage-workers, they followed the same trend. Radical individualism, that is, the theory that the state must not interfere in any of the concerns that ought to belong to private initiative, is well nigh a dead issue. Many good people who entertained the latter view do so no longer. Times change and we change with them.

I have dwelled upon this subject at some length because I hold that the socialistic theories which I have alluded to form, consciously or unconsciously, the backbone of modern tendencies in the political, business and social world.

And now comes the important question: How shall we face the situation? What is to be our attitude with regard to these conceptions which are more and more gaining ground? If socialism in its best sense is, as many maintain, a new religion, we must conceive it as such; that is to say, we must treat it as a state of feeling and a line of conduct growing out of it; we must adjust ourselves to it. You certainly do not understand that I advocate the establishment of a socialistic state such as has been outlined by the apostles of the socialistic creed. We know that many of the schemes proposed are so Utopian, so visionary, that under present conditions they are utterly impossible of practical execution. What the future form of society and its economy will be we cannot foresee, but, recognizing a logical continuity in the development of human affairs, we cannot resist the conviction that somehow at some time the social dreams of the best minds will be realized, that a closer brotherhood of the children of men will be established; that the so-called masses will participate more and more in the enjoyments of life; that slums and sweatshops will cease to exist; that peace on earth and good-will among men is not an idle fancy. Somehow the human family is advancing towards a better and worthier status.

If any one had foretold to a man, say of the fourteenth century, that no walls would surround our cities, that our dwellings would not be fortified, that a considerable surface of our houses would consist of fragile glass, that men would travel unarmed and unattended by hired guards from one end of the country to another, aye, all over the earth, this fourteenth century man could not have conceived such a condition. Might not, therefore, our far-off descendants look with a pitying smile on our inability to conceive the order of things in which they will most probably live? Let us, therefore, pause, and after taking inventory and having learned how much we have gained, see what we can do to continue the concern on a safe and profitable basis.

I can conceive of only two lines of policy. The one is to make all reasonable concession to the spirit of the new democracy. We must reconcile ourselves to a somewhat wider function of governmental forces than we have witnessed under the old individualistic order. Whatever our theoretic views may be, we must recognize that the government, which means the people, through its collective organs, has a right to dictate and insist upon certain methods which square with an enlightened democratic spirit; has a right to prohibit unfair and oppressive methods in the treatment of competitors; has a right to insist that public corporations should treat man and man alike, that the financial status of great public corporations should be held to full publicity, and that conspiracies of whatever nature which lead to the injury of the public should be sternly prohibited and punished. If we all adopt this mental attitude much will have been gained.

The second and higher task, however, is this: That we must all and each of us order our lives and our daily work in harmony not only with the foregoing conceptions but also with the dictates of high-mindedness and rectitude. Our true patroitism must consist in a line of conduct which squares with the noblest demands of religion and humanity. Salvation, after all, must come from within, and only a virtuous and intelligent people can be trusted to order its life on wholesome and enduring foundations. If all employers would treat their workers with kindness and consideration, I venture to say many of the labor troubles from which we suffer now would cease. I know manufacturers who never have any trouble with their men; on the contrary, I have one in mind now who is said to get twenty-five per cent more work out of his men than other manufacturers because he is their friend, gives them fair wages, and at the end of the year lets them participate in the profits of the concern. Also in this respect honesty is the best policy. A democracy can only be successful if it is made of intelligent and virtuous citizens, and from this it follows as a corollary that the bringing up of the growing generation is our highest and most sacred concern. We must get at the root of things if we want to bring about a healthy growth.

In all candor much remains to be done in the education of our future citizens. Admirable as our school system is, it needs strengthening at many points. Many of our teachers are underpaid and undertrained. This is a harsh thing to say but the truth must not be blinked. Every business man will tell you, as my friend David Forgan recently has told, that the graduates of our grammar schools are insufficiently taught. But the scholastic training is only one side of education. What should be strengthened in our public schools is the infusion of the moral fibre into the pupils. The schools should not only teach what to know, but in a still higher degree what to be. If this task were fulfilled (and it depends entirely upon the personality of the teacher) we should probably witness less crime in the young fellows whose misdeeds are a blot upon our civilization. Our teaching staff might be strengthened in many ways. Moreover, the pupils should be looked after during the years of adolescence and not be left to follow the bent of their untrained minds. Miss Addams has spoken golden words on that subject. We should have continuation schools—night schools perhaps—for the lads and girls who go to work after leaving the grammar school, or who by reason of their age cannot secure work; and these continuation schools should be directed by efficient male teachers for the boys. Think of it, what a gain we shall have made in the character and composition of the nation if we succeed in raising our girls and boys to a higher and nobler conception of citizenship; when through well-planned education our wage workers feel that labor well performed is honorable service; when they have learned to appreciate that they are coworkers in the upbuilding of the nation and when industry, frugality and a fair compensation enables them to take part in the intellectual movements and enjoyments of civilization. Such a prospect presents to us a most attractive picture. Is it not capable of being made a living reality?

We have many perplexing questions to deal with but if we face them with calm reason, with cheerfulness, with that common sense which is the heritage of the American people, if we refuse to be swayed by the hysteric clamor of some spokesmen, and steadily and earnestly work, each in his own sphere, for a better and worthier life, then we shall follow the only method by which existing faults can be slowly but effectually remedied and the country be sped on to a nobler future. We shall then not be inclined to see a lurid western sky foreboding night and darkness, but will resolutely turn our faces to the East and behold the first golden rays of the morning sun rising over the hills and shedding light and warmth upon this earth, promising a brighter and happier day to our country and to mankind.

River Valley next fall, according to Fred Irish, vice-president of the First National of Fargo, N. D. He said: "We agree with those who say the salvation of the farmer lies in raising plenty of live stock, and different kinds of grain. A man came into our bank the other day, and said that he was solely a wheat farmer—that he hadn't yet arrived at the stage of the game where he had to milk cows. Fortunately, that man is not like every farmer in North Dakota. There are some like him, and at times it is rather hard to get the farmer to understand that he must raise something else beside wheat if he wants to prosper.

"Through the efforts of the North Dakota Better Farming Association, and some Minneapolis bankers and lumbermen, we are carrying on a campaign of education that will bear more fruit this year than last. Farmers are going to raise a great deal of feed, and they will be able to handle plenty of stock."

The Farmers and Merchants State of Egan, S. D., has been formed with $10,000 authorized capital. Incorporators are: J. A. Weiland, H. H. Cook, and A. J. Weiland.

The First National of Ontonagon, Mich., has decided to double its capitalization of $25,000, giving capital and surplus of $78,000.

A. A. Miller and J. P. Foote have the controlling interest in the Scandia-American of Crookston, having bought the holdings of President Lewis Ellington and Cashier H. D. Reed, who retired. The capital is $50,000 and deposits more than $600,000. The two purchasers were formerly interested in the bank. Mr. Ellington was appointed postmaster at Crookston.

The Market State of Minneapolis is to have a new building, 110 by 112 feet, four stories, to cost $40,000. Offices will be domiciled on the upper floors.

The comptroller's last call found the Second National of Minot, N. D., with $1,176,490 resources and $956,555 deposits. The figures the year previous were $969,784 and $767,759. The Union National resources were $404,591 and last year $415,000. The Scandinavian American disclosed resources of $248,262 and deposits of $218,262 as compared with $211,895 and $173,197.

More than half the loss of the First National of Ceylon, Minn., through the operations of a man known as John Carr, and found to be named Reid, has been recouped through the work of Cashier F. C. Henningson. In California the cashier obtained from Reid, where he had been detained, a check on the Martin County National at Fairmont for his balance of $500 there and bills of sale for a $5,000 automobile from Reid and his sister. After paying a previous claim at Mason City, Ia., of $400 he had the car driven to Ceylon for sale.

The Twin City Life Insurancce Company of Minneapolis, backed by Northwestern bankers and other interests, began business this week at Minneapolis with $100,000 capital and $75,000 surplus. Of its assets $100,000 has been deposited with the insurance commissioner. The company intends to enter the Dakotas and Iowa. The president is J. H. Smith, Minneapolis, head of the First National of Crary, N. D.

The affairs of the Farmers & Merchants of Fairmont, Minn., are being closed up to make final payments to depositors. The dividend total is to amount to 92½ cents. The original statement showed assets of $87,532, of which $30,871 was in collections. Original liabilities were $77,475, to which were added $3,603 and property turned in to creditors amounted to $37,723. The balance unpaid, amounting to $3,026, is due to 169 creditors in small sums, from 5c up to $276. Only seven creditors have more than $99 unpaid. The trustees charged $3,800.

"The bank teller is the rapid fire credit man," said Charles Z. Coffin, manager for the Associated Retailers of St. Louis, in Minneapolis in addressing the Minneapolis Retail Credit Men's Association. "Credit systems to-day are excellent, but we always learn something new."

The executive committee of the second group of Minnesota bankers has settled on June 12th for the annual meeting at Luverne. An attendance of 150 bankers is expected.

Senator Carl Wallace of Minneapolis has introduced a bill in the Minnesota legislature to authorize savings banks for collection of savings from children in the schools, after the consent of the state superintendent of banks and the board of education has been obtained. The collections are to be made by teachers or bank employes. Each child is to be credited with deposits on his card and after he obtains $1, is to receive a pass book. Interest is to be paid after $5 has been deposited.

The Security State Bank is to be opened at Isanti, Minn., with $20,000 capital. The bulk of the stock is to be held by the business men and farmers in and around Cambridge and the home town. It will be the second bank for Isanti.

TO INVESTIGATE PAYMENT OF DIVIDENDS

Comptroller of the Currency Murray has instructed his examiners to investigate the practice of some national banks in paying dividends when their earnings do not justify it. The comptroller desires to induce the banks to strengthen themselves by the accumulation of a substantial surplus.

Jacob H. Herzog, assistant cashier of the National Commercial Bank of Albany, has been elected president of Group V of the New York State Bankers Association.

THE Colonel for the past year has been president of the Michigan Society of New York and closed his "season" with a banquet the other night. Things had hummed under his sway and the Michiganders were grateful.

THEY presented Colonel Fred. with a gavel made from a door-post of Old Fort Lernoult in Detroit. The post was dug up and identified by Col. William Livingstone when he was excavating for the piers under the new Dime Savings Bank building.

THE gavel was adorned with an inscription bearing silver plates, and along with it went a gold "President—1912" pendant, the ribbon being in Michigan colors.

VICE-PRESIDENT A. A. CRANE of the First National, Minneapolis, was in Chicago this week, returning from a ten day trip to eastern points.

A. B. A. convention dates at Boston are October 6th-10th. Get ready for the biggest Chicago-Boston special train ever run.

THEY are working on the program now. The "agriculturists" are to have a half-day with a "stunt" program. Chapman will preside with a corncob pipe for a gavel. Send him one —a big one—some of you Missourians.

ABOUT those addresses of welcome?

MANY of the states have cut them out entirely with the result that the opening session has been quite as well attended as the others.

DETROIT had eight addresses of welcome and "opened" to less than two hundred. Seasoned convention goers simply will not stand for it.

A DANDY bunch of choice conspirators were talking of the "situation" at breakfast at the Detroit Club, the opening day. Every one said some one should go and it was agreed to decide it by lot. George Orde and "Dick" Hawes passed the hat and Ralph Van Vechten drew the fatal ticket.

THE door-keeper said he "didn't see any such sized man" as "Van." was described to him enter the hall, and there you are.

TWENTY-TWO pages of the 1912 proceedings book are taken up by the addresses of welcome, and everything there has been said annually since Col. Bob Lowry first said it twenty-six years ago.

CHARLES P. BLINN, National Union Bank, is chairman of the hotel committee, and the man to address on reservation matters.

BOSTON bankers "are determined also that Boston, which has not entertained the association since 1886, shall give a convention and an entertainment unequaled, and genuine old New England hospitality will be extended."

IF it did cost the government $50,000 to put over that fine of $4,000 on James A. Patten, what's the use?

IF "airing" your opinions doesn't seem to keep them fresh and sweet you might try storing them for a while.

IT isn't safe to offer $10,000 for deposit in a St. Louis bank, judging by what happened last week. The would-be depositor was arrested.

UNION TRUST & SAVINGS, Spokane, has hit upon a "hit." It sends out cards, "good when presented at the bank counter" for a 1913 ownership map of the downtown district. Sequel shows that everybody wants one.

THE Boston people want President Vincent of the Minnesota University on the A. B. A. program. Here's a tip to this clever man: Only four years after President Wilson addressed the bankers at Denver he was elected president of the whole U. S. and all the colleges combined.

CHAPMAN as head of the agricultural committee of the A. B. A. is said to hope to get both Senator Paige, and Congressman Lever to speak on "farmers' day" at Boston. George Woodruff is going off to some "furrin" country so as to break in at the wind-up with some new "film," just as he did at Detroit.

SEATTLE NATIONAL has issued a "bird's eye view of Greater Seattle" in sepia color which is good advertising and a valuable souvenir. All the lakes, waterways, harbor, and the encircling Cascade range show up distinctly.

WHAT could be more appropriate than the offering of corn prizes by the Corn Exchange of Philadelphia? President Caldwell will give $1,250 for the ten ears which will improve on the bank's trade mark, and outshine all competitors.

NEW Banking: "Say Mike," said the railroad magnate who had just bought a bank, "you're to quit the audit job on the Steamline Railroad for a while. You're to be vice-president of Junko Rational, and I want deposits from everybody we buy from and balances from every bank we do business with along the line. See?"

E. W. DAVENPORT, Fourth National, New York, gave a clever business talk to a Newark club last week on "Credits." He showed why a bank can loan safely only on the fullest information.

GOVERNOR SULZER hasn't exhausted the list of possible big mistakes yet. He still has that Joseph G. Robin (sky) pardon matter before him. If the governor could get away for a short vacation the health of almost every one would be improved.

IF Wisconsin gets her new banking bill passed, the commission will be able to restrict the establishment of new banks where the business would not justify an additional institution.

NEW ORLEANS banks are seeking to agree upon a minimum checking balance below which a charge of a dollar a month shall be made.

TEXAS is preparing a "Blue Sky" bill which is to be "Sure death to the wildcats," if present plans carry.

PRESIDENT BYRON L. MOSER of the A. I. B. has issued a bill against addresses of welcome at the coming Richmond convention. Kindly pass this along to the Boston committee.

THE convention has been set for September 17th, 18th and 19th. There will be the usual big Chicago special train in charge of George Jackson. George intends to have the train painted to look like the Milwaukee cars so the boys will feel comfortable while embarking.

DEPOSIT rivalry between Boston's three big banks continues unabated. Last report puts the First in second place:

Shawmut	$86,891,147
First National	79,830,741
Old Colony Trust	73,211,419

THE one of the three which will do some strong Western advertising (too modest to name the medium) quite likely will be the first to cross the century mark in millions.

F. A. CRANDALL is back from "way down east," and feels hopeful that A. M. Barrett, an earnest Institute man, will be made superintendent of banking in New York. Barrett is treasurer of the Guardian Trust, New York City.

FRED heard down there that Wm. A. Law of Philadelphia is being urged to come out for the vice-presidency at Boston, "but not if Chapman is a candidate."

OUT here they feel that after grooming "Farmer Joe" for the race, things can't be changed even for such a fine man as the Quaker nominee. Both are of the kind that do things and both deserving.

WOULD anybody kick on seeing both Chapman and Law in the chair, that is, consecutively? You couldn't beat them.

GRAHAM of Baltimore is it for A. B. A. treasurer unless some one picks up courage enough to enter against him. All the present officials live in a little sort of Cherokee strip right up the middle of the Middle West and we should say that Minneapolis, Baltimore, or Philadelphia would fit into the new official map in fine balance. CASHIER.

NEW BANK ELECTS DIRECTORS

Kane County Bank and Trust Company of Elburn, Ill., which recently was incorporated, has elected the following directors: John Stewart, James Meredith, Mrs. E. W. Gray and others. The new institution is capitalized at $50,000 and will open for business May 1st.

The CHICAGO BANKER

A Weekly Paper Devoted to the Banking and Financial Interests of the Middle West

MARCH 1, 1913 | Entered as Second-Class Matter January 15, 1903, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March 3, 1879 | 10 CENTS A COPY

At Briarcliff

The mooted question as to where the May meeting of the executive council of the American Bankers Association is to be held has been decided by a referendum vote in favor of Briarcliff Lodge at Briarcliff Manor, New York. Colonel Farnsworth has an arrangement with the hotel that the members of the council will have it exclusively from May 3d until the close of the session "the week of May 5th," which is the official time set for the meeting.

Committee on Special Train

A special committee on train and train equipment has been appointed for Chicago composed of two members of the council and the treasurer of the American Bankers Association:

Fred A. Crandall, National City Bank, chairman; Wm. G. Edens, Central Trust Company; J. Fletcher Farrell, Fort Dearborn National, all of Chicago. This committee will decide upon the route and leaving time of the train from Chicago and will procure the best equipment possible for the convenience of the members who will travel by way of Chicago to Briarcliff.

Committee on Reservations

A committee on reservations has been selected embracing the names of members of council in various states who are willing to act in this capacity. Reservations upon the train can be made through any member of the committee on reservations or through any member of the committee on special train. The committee on reservations will consist of: Arthur Reynolds, chairman, Des Moines National, Des Moines, Ia.; Nelson H. Greene, Peoples Savings Bank and Trust Co., Moline, Ill.; George F. Orde, First National, Minneapolis, Minn.; W. D. Vincent, Old National, Spokane, Wash.; J. S. Calfee, Mechanics-American National, St. Louis, Mo.; Sol Wexler, Whitney Central National, New Orleans, La.; J. F. Sartori, Security Savings, Los Angeles, Cal.; T. J. Davis, First National, Cincinnati, Ohio; R. C. Stephenson, St. Joseph County Savings, South Bend, Ind.; Ralph Van Vechten, Continental and Commercial National, Chicago; H. P. Beckwith, Northern Trust Company, Fargo, N. D.; Gordon Jones, United States National, Denver, Col.; Emory W. Clark, First National, Detroit, Mich.; J. R. Downing, Georgetown National, Georgetown, Ky.; N. E. Franklin, First National Deadwood, S. D.; Edgar E. Crabtree, F. G. Farrell & Co., Jacksonville, Ill.; W. H. Bucholz, Omaha National, Omaha, Neb.; W .F. McCaleb, West Texas Bank and Trust Company, San Antonio, Tex.; E. M. Wing, Batavian National, La Crosse, Wis.; F. H. Goff, Cleveland Trust Company, Cleveland, Ohio; W. T. Fenton, National Bank of the Republic, Chicago.

The committee on special train will make an announcement probably in next week's issue of The Chicago Banker, and special letters will be sent out by the committee to members of council and members of committees entitled to attend the sessions at Briarcliff.

It is understood that the trust company banquet at the Waldorf will occur the evening of the second day following the close of the sessions of the council at Briarcliff.

Influential Association Workers

S. D. FITTON
HAMILTON, OHIO

PAUL HARDY
DENVER, COLORADO

Mr. Fitton is president of the Ohio Bankers Association and of the First National of Hamilton. His administration as chief executive of the Ohio association has been marked by the accomplishment of much effective work.

Mr. Hardy, cashier of the Interstate Savings of Denver, is secretary of the Colorado bankers. That they made no mistake in his selection is evidenced by the high position occupied by the organization among the various state associations, which is due in a great measure to Mr. Hardy's work.

IMPORTANT CHICAGO BOND OFFERING

The Merchants Loan and Trust Company, Northern Trust Company, and the Harris Trust and Savings Bank, are bringing out in this market $4,000,000 Chicago Railways Company first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, due February 1, 1927. These bonds are secured by a first mortgage on the important street railway system of Chicago with 466 miles of track. Annual gross earnings of the company have increased more than $7,000,000 within the past four years, and for the year 1912 were $17,919,574. The banks are offering the bonds at 99½ and interest.

EDWIN F. MACK

Edwin F. Mack, vice-president of the Central Trust Company of Illinois, has left Chicago for a business trip through the South, including Vicksburg and New Orleans.

The comptroller of the currency has received application to organize the Logan Square (Chicago) National to be capitalized at $50,000.

CHICAGO BANKER DIES

William S. Bishop, assistant cashier of the National Bank of the Republic, died of pneumonia this week at his home in Winnetka. Mr. Bishop had been with the National Bank of the Republic since April, 1908, having come from Duluth, where he was assistant cashier of the First National. He was 53 years old.

ALLEGED EMBEZZLER SURRENDERS

Frank O. Fredrickson, who is charged with embezzling $10,000 from the State Bank of Evanston, surrendered himself on Thursday of this week. He was indicted by the grand jury more than a month ago. He has been lodged in the county jail and his bail fixed at $10,000.

INCREASE IN TAX TO BENEFIT CHICAGO

It is believed that if the proposal of Governor Sulzer of New York to increase the tax on stock transfers to $4 is adopted by the legislature it will have the effect of diverting much of the business to Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston, where stock transfers are not taxed at all.

Mainly About Banks and Bankers

GEORGE ANDREW SMITH is a new staffman for the Fort Dearborn National. Mr. Smith is "Andrew, Jr.," and has been assistant to "Andrew, Sr.," who is the secretary of the Indiana Bankers Association.

HE had valuable bank training under his father's vigilant eye back in the Capital National, and has an acquaintance among Indiana bankers which will help him make good in the new business department of the Fort Dearborn.

VICE-PRESIDENT FARRELL speaks very highly of his new find and will put him to work under personal direction at once. The field of operations will include Indiana and parts of Illinois.

IN another column will be found an address on "corn" by Chairman Woodside of the South Carolina Bankers active committee on agricultural development. He presents the "Corn is King" subject in a logical and taking way.

HAVE you noticed page 19 lately? We have been running a series of exterior and interior views of new bank buildings there and intend to keep it up. By the end of a year a valuable portfolio will have been acquired by the scrapbook devotee.

HERE'S why we have to tell you about it: The big Streator banker came up to Chicago to be told about "the splendid picture of your new bank building in THE CHICAGO BANKER—a whole page."

HE came over to the office and bought all the copies he could get. Said he "had read every paragraph in the 'Mainlies' of that issue but had skipped the middle part."

SOMETIMES we fear too many of you do that, and are minded to scatter the "Mainlies" through all the pages as a punishment. Read page 19 and several pages each side. You will be benefitted most unexpectedly at times.

KEEP pages 19 for a while as a reference file. You will be building a new bank some day, and you may get ideas and suggestions which will save you time and thousands of dollars in real money.

THE Scribners have out a new book—"The Mexican Medicine Man." Must mean Huerta?

THE sudden leap into popularity of a new card game, Coon-can, has left a great many people behind. But they can easily catch up by reading the exposition of Coon-can in J. B. Elwell's "Auction Bridge" (Scribners'), in which the famous authority sets forth the principles, rules and laws of Auction as it is played under the new count. The book was intended at first to deal solely with Auction, but on account of the increasing popularity of Coon-can, and the fact that there was no adequate treatment in print, Mr. Elwell thought it best to include a chapter dealing with it, although it was "somewhat beyond the natural scope of the book."

L. P. HILLYER, vice-president of the American National, Macon, Ga., has tendered $600 to be given as prizes at the State Fair for the best corn yield. The basis of competition will be "the best acre."

HILLYER admits that he was stimulated by the corn prizes of the Corn Exchange National of Philadelphia, and thus the good work goes on.

CHAPTER men take note! George R. Martin, of the Seattle National, has quit you, except in spirit. He's gone with the Seattle Sun, a new newspaper, and says he "just couldn't help it, having been bitten by the newspaper bug" while serving on chapter publicity committees.

THE SEATTLE SUN starts off a full-fledged evening newspaper with all departments of a first class daily in full blast. Edmund H. Wells is the editor-in-chief and president.

WE predict that Mr. Martin will make good. He was good way back when he was with the Live Stock Exchange National, in Chicago, and has the habit. Before that he had been toiling at Greek and Latin roots in the University of Chicago.

"ALFALFA GROWING" is a new pamphlet being sent out as a document by the Michigan Bankers Association. The gospel of better farming is a wonderful thing.

MICHIGAN association is supporting a bill at Lansing which will give married women the power to bind themselves on a contract or obligation jointly with their husbands. It will make property held jointly by husband and wife liable for any debt upon a written instrument made by both husband and wife.

THE agricultural committee is working to get signatures of bankers who will help to secure county farm advisors. The work is going on nicely over there. Mrs. Secretary Brown is one of the most earnest workers in the state.

THE bankers are co-operating with the Agricultural College in forming the "Junior Agricultural Association of Michigan for Boys and Girls." The county school commissioners are helping along.

PROCEEDINGS book for the Kalispell 1912 convention, by the Montana Bankers Association, is out in tasty form. Secretary

J.R. Downing Indorsed for Comptrollership

Kentucky bankers and group officials at state-wide banquet discuss inefficiency of present currency system. John E. Buckingham, president of association, was the host

Louisville, February 26th.—Inefficiency of the present national banking laws and other defects in the currency system in the United States were subjects of discussion at a banquet given at the Tyler Hotel by John E. Buckingham, of Paintsville, president of the Kentucky Bankers Association, in honor of the group presidents and secretaries of the association and representatives of local banking institutions.

The banquet also was featured by the launching of a boom in favor of John R. Downing, of Georgetown, for comptroller of the currency under the incoming Wilson administration.

One of the principal speeches was that of Percy H. Johnston, of Louisville, national bank examiner-at-large, who discussed "The Inefficiency of the National Banking Laws, Particularly in Reference to Examinations by National Bank Examiners, and Remedies Suggested." Mr. Johnston pointed to the advancement of every business in the United States, including that of banking, and to the fact that the national banking law has remained unchanged. He also declared the fee system of remunerating bank examiners obsolete.

Other speakers were: J. K. Waller, of Morganfield, former president of the Kentucky association, and toastmaster; Mr. Downing, Logan C. Murray, Louisville; J. D. Wilson, of Greensburg; J. A. Crabb, of Eminence; T. Kennedy Helm, of Louisville; T. J. Smith, state banking commissioner; F. M. Gettys and Mr. Buckingham. Mr. Johnston's speech was in part as follows:

Law Too Conservative

"Not only are bankers and business men interested in bank supervision and administration, but nearly 15,000,000 people have deposited earnings and savings with the 22,000 banks of the country; and the total deposits held by these institutions aggregate nearly $22,000,000,000. During the forty-nine years' existence of the national banking law not a change has been made in reference to the employment, appointment or compensation of examiners. Methods, operation and magnitude have completely changed, notwithstanding. The compensation of examiners at present is based upon a system that proportions his fees according to the capital stock of the bank examined, with the exception of about 300 banks located in the reserve and central reserve cities and two or three Pacific Coast states, where the fees are fixed by the comptroller.

"There are many instances where the capital of the bank allows a fee of only $25 for examination, though the assets aggregate two to three million dollars—to strike an average. For this $25 fee an examiner is expected to make a thorough examination, defray his own expenses—and in many cases his assistant's—employ a competent stenographer to copy reports, send out verifications, etc. An audit company would, on an average, charge $50 for the same character of examination the national bank examiners are expected to make for the $25 fee. The national bank examiners are expected to assemble the directors and to appraise, with their assistance, the bank's loans and other assets.

Could Avert Failures

"National banks all over the country advertise the fact that they are under government supervision and examination. Then why not make the supervision and examination really effective? In the larger per cent of national bank failures such failures could have been averted or forestalled under proper supervision and examination.

"The real cause of trouble is that the examiner has not sufficient time to remain in the banks. It is an undisputed fact among examiners that the more time they have in a bank the more satisfactory is the examination, and more certain and complete can the true condition be ascertained.

"The fee system is wrong for many reasons. It is natural that an examiner should wish to earn as much as possible, and no matter how conscientious a man may be, human nature is the same the world over, and an examiner working under the fee system will invariably work in a hurry in order to make as many banks a month as possible. And if he did not, and took the time to make the character of examinations that should be made, he would not earn enough to pay his expenses. No reflection is made or intended in this article upon anyone of the one hundred national examiners in the service. The men in the service as national examiners are high-class, efficient and faithful workers, as a rule, but are handicapped and hampered by an obsolete law in reference to compensation.

"Clearing house associations are governed by the most successful and ablest bankers of the United States, and the fact that their examiners and assistants are employed on salaries should be conclusive proof that the fee system is obsolete, impracticable and inefficient.

Straight Salary Compensation

"I would suggest that all examiners be compensated by a straight salary and allowed an assistant and a stenographer. In large cities assistants should be allowed in number according to the requirement and volume of the work.

"The examiners and assistants should be paid their traveling expenses while working on the road or away from their respective homes.

"The examiners should be given smaller districts with less number of banks. They should be in position to take as much time as is necessary in any and all examinations."

Helped Group System

John R. Downing, member of the Big Council of the American Bankers Association, said in part:

"I have never claimed to be the father of the group system, but I do claim to have adopted it and helped to prove its worth. That it has grown and prospered I think is the best evidence of the fact that through its instrumentality the Kentucky Bankers Association is now generally recognized as one of the foremost associations of its kind in the United States. Nobly the bankers of the First, Third, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth and Ninth districts responded to our call.

"It is gratifying to know that an organization exists now in every district. I want to tell you officers of groups that while you may begrudge the time you lose from your business by attending these meetings, yet you never get anything out of the association unless you put something in. All of your enthusiasm and work is repaid many fold. My service as president of the Kentucky Bankers Association is one of the bright spots in my life. The time and energy spent have been of inestimable worth to me in the conduct of my own business. As a body we have accomplished many things; chief among them I count the bank supervision bill.

"We must all strive for a better banking and currency system in the United States. I have not made up my mind as to what is the best system. All have their good. We shall never, in my mind, have the Aldrich system. Its failure to awaken enthusiasm is due to the probability that it attempted too much. Its framers were of the opinion that we needed a new engine entirely, when we really needed, perhaps, a safety valve. No matter what the system, we really need a system so constructed that in times of unusual demands, financial stress, or threatened panic, we shall have a reservoir to draw from. It should not be so elastic that upon some fancied opinion the door should be opened too easily for the purpose of supplying either currency or credit, for I believe that more ills follow in the wake of inflation than of contraction."

T. J. Smith, state banking commissioner, dwelt upon the relations which should exist between the bankers and the state banking department. He declared during his speech that the Kentucky Bankers Association is in a way responsible for the enactment of the law under which the state banking department now operates, and that the department, to an extent, is the offspring of the association.

Mr. Smith remarked upon the responsibility of the calling of the bankers and the general characteristics and aims of the banker, but regretted the fact that there are some to whom "honesty is the best policy and nothing more, and not a matter of principle." He said they quite often end disastrously by overstepping the line.

"It is my opinion," said the speaker, "that a bank should not indulge in any business or undertaking, either directly or indirectly, which is not connected with banking. Banking is a business in itself and it should be restricted to the objects of incorporation, and every banker who sticks to a strictly banking business will find that he can be kept busy enough, but he should not become so busily engaged in making dividends for his shareholders as to 'lose the common touch.' He should keep in touch with the great masses who do not own stock in banks, but who are interested in the public welfare and who help to create that public opinion which is at the foundation of all law and all government."

Proper Supervision Necessary

Mr. Smith asserted that there should be no conflict between good banking and efficient supervision. "I regard proper supervision," he said, "as the handmaiden of sound banking and such should be the view of all bankers who are conscientiously interested in standardizing the banking institutions of our commonwealth. The theory upon which bank supervision is founded is a constructive one and not one of destruction. It is not intended to tear down, but to build up and strengthen, to give assistance and advice and to let each bank have the benefit of an experience which extends over and covers the methods of hundreds of other banks." He said the unregulated bank is fast becoming a thing of the past.

Speaking of the banking department and the commissioner, Mr. Smith said the latter is reponsible for the vast interests which depend for their existence upon the financial institutions of the state and also to the men and women and widows and orphans who have intrusted their savings to these institutions.

"He has no right to temper justice with mercy," said Mr. Smith. "He has no right to exercise discretion in reporting or concealing anything. Undauntedly he must report his findings and be satisfied with the consciousness of duty done."

Mr. Smith also indorsed Mr. Downing for comptroller of the currency.

Downing for Comptroller

At a conference held in the afternoon at the association's headquarters in the American National Bank building, every group officer present signed a petition asking the Kentucky delegation in congress to continue to support Mr. Downing for the office of comptroller of the currency.

The association decided to take steps against the recent heavy advance in the cost of stationery used in banks. It was declared that a reduction would be obtained even if it becomes necessary to concentrate all orders upon one concern.

Should Stand Together

Logan C. Murray in his speech declared that it was but natural that all Kentuckians urge the appointment of Mr. Downing to the position of comptroller of the currency. From the beginning, he said, Kentuckians had stood by each other and should continue to do so. He also dwelt upon Mr. Downing's fitness for the position.

J. D. Wilson, of Greensburg, discussed country banks and policies they should pursue. He said he did not believe it wise that country banks should pay interest on deposits.

J. A. Crabb, of Eminence, touched a more intimate vein in his address, and discussed some of the everyday joys and trials of the banker. He called attention to the troubles of the lawyer, the physician and the preacher, but said those of the banker included them all.

Mr. Buckingham concluded the speech-making.

MORGAN MONEY TRUST LETTER

Washington, February 27th.—The J. P. Morgan & Co. letter to the Pujo committee came too late to go into or affect the report. Mr. Morgan, when before the committee, agreed to send in his views in full on the money trust question. Some valuable points are concerned in the now unofficial communication.

In its conclusion the letter said of the power of money "in evil hands":

"We venture to submit the consideration that in a strong public opinion, such as exists in this country, there lies the greatest safeguard of the community, always assuming that congress will evolve a basic system of banking which is scientific and sound—as at present ours admittedly is not. The public, that is the depositors, are the ones who intrust bankers with such influence and power as they have in every civilized land, and the public is unlikely to intrust that power to weak or evil hands."

That part of the money trust inquiry resolution declaring it is "generally believed" that groups of financiers "create, avert and compose panics," was attacked particularly in the letter. Morgan & Co. set forth that withholding of money or credit by one man in any market would be "promptly relieved by the automatic flow of credit from some altogether foreign source."

"There is not even a vestige of truth," the letter continued, "in the idea that in whole or in part the financial convulsion of 1897 was brought on through the design of any man or men."

The letter said "mistaken inferences" had been drawn from "interlocking directorates," declaring such directorates represented only a quarter of the boards on which they served.

"It is preposterous to suppose," added the letter, "that every interlocking director has full control in every organization with which he is connected.

"Perhaps the greatest harm in the presentation referred to lay in the unwarranted inference that the vast sum of $25,000,000,000 was in cash or liquid form subject to the selfish use or abuse of individuals. Such an idea excites the public mind to demand the correction of a fancied situation, which in our mind does not and cannot exist."

The letter set forth that the banking facilities of the country, instead of being centralized in New York, had been scattered. Concentration of banking resources by mergers, the letter said, had been made necessary by the demand for banking facilities to handle large issues of securities.

The same was declared responsible for the combination of banks to handle public issues of securities. Bankers had been led to sit as directors and exercise authority in industrial corporations through the banker's "moral responsibility" for the corporations' securities which he has engaged to market.

South Carolina Bankers Association Interested in Corn Culture

Chairman Robt. I. Woodside, of the agricultural committee, in an excellent paper before the Fifth National Corn Exposition, gives valuable suggestions

While the corn crop of the United States in 1912 amounted to the stupendous figure of $1,759,000,000 and represented more than twice the value of the next largest crop, it is an undoubted fact that a great deal yet can be done towards improving the quality and increasing the quantity of the corn produced in this country. It is true that more and more attention is being given to the growing of corn, especially in this state, but nevertheless, far too little attention has been given to the most vital question of all, namely, proper seed selection. A great deal of time and labor can be saved and larger and more valuable crop yields can be obtained by a little systematic study of the question of seed selection. Many tests have been made and practical results obtained so that any grower of corn can secure without any difficulty the right kind of seed from which to obtain the best possible crop.

Another very important feature resulting from the improvement in corn production as a result of better selection of seed is the fact that the raising of live stock becomes thereby stimulated and encouraged and this is a most desirable thing as it naturally tends to improve the quality of the stock, to add to the productiveness of the soil and to open new channels to the farmer for profitable occupation. It is, therefore, of the greatest importance that bankers throughout the state render every possible assistance and encouragement to farmers in the purchase of selected seed and also encourage the growing of corn as well as other cereals for seed purposes.

We believe the time is at hand when the best interest of the state can be served by the division of the large farms into small tracts, thus improving general methods of farming by introducing the element of careful personal attention to details. As a splendid example of the wonderful results of farming on a small scale, it is only necessary to refer to the wonderful results achieved in France and Germany, where such is the custom. Any one who will take time to study, even in a small way, the methods of farming in these countries will be astonished to learn of the splendid yields from the small holdings of these farmers. This success is unquestionably largely due to the fact that the European farmer does not attempt to handle more than he conveniently can farm and by concentrating his efforts on a smaller area achieves results that would be impossible if his attention were centered over a much larger holding.

In order to encourage the development of small farms we would urge that the banks throughout the state, when practical, make advances for the purchase of farms to men of good character who are thrifty, industrious and ambitious, and encourage in every way possible the development of small farms, rendering at all times whatever assistance is within their power. Believing firmly that the progress and prosperity of our state can be increased greatly by encouraging more of our citizens to own and operate small farms, and realizing that the prosperity of our state depends upon the prosperity of our farmers, we earnestly urge this assistance.

In order to accomplish successful results in any undertaking it is, of course, essential that a proper foundation should be laid and for this reason we believe that it is of the greatest importance that scientific training and study in agriculture should be taken up in real earnest and a course in elementary agriculture taught in all public and high schools throughout the state. Ultimately the rural public schools should be consolidated into high schools and a special course in scientific agriculture adopted and taught in these schools.

It readily will be appreciated that the farm problem depends to a very large extent upon maintaining the fertility of the soil and to this end it is absolutely essential that systematic planting of crops be adopted which will maintain as nearly as possible the necessary balance of plant food. There is no better way to maintain this fertility and to build up soil conditions than by raising of a certain amount of live stock on the farm and a proper rotation of the various crops in such a way that the natural fertility of the soil is utilized to the best advantage. Illustrating this point by another reference to European farming methods, it is most interesting to note that as the result of careful fertilizing and systematic crop rotation, land in many parts of that country which has been producing crops for two thousand years and upwards is at the present time yielding more bushels of wheat, oats, potatoes and other products to the acre than can be shown in practically any part of this country where the land is very young so far as its cultivation is concerned.

Every farmer knows that the fertility of the soil is rapidly exhausted by continuous planting of the same crop year after year, and it is therefore of the greatest importance that farmers should adopt a proper and systematic rotation of crops in order to maintain the fertility of their land. We would especially urge that this important subject of crop rotation be given careful and favorable attention.

The foregoing recommendations are presented in necessarily brief form, but it is the intention of the committee on agricultural development and education of the South Carolina Bankers Association to do everything in its power to assist the farmers in improving farming conditions in the state. Throughout the United States there has been a general awakening to the importance of this great subject and it is hoped that before long great results will be shown from the work being undertaken. Better farming conditions certainly are possible and it is the duty of the banking fraternity to do all within its power to render every assistance to the farmer—and to the cause of improved farming this committee pledges itself.

WOULD HAVE STATE BEAR PART OF INSPECTION COST

An effort is being made by bankers of Cleveland, Cincinnati and Toledo to secure certain changes in the bank inspection measure now pending before the legislature, which provides that the entire cost of state inspection is to be borne by the banks. It is desired to have the state stand a portion of this expense, as in national bank inspection. A number of bankers of the above mentioned cities were at the capital recently in an endeavor to bring about this reform. Among those who made arguments in that behalf were President F. H. Goff of the Cleveland Trust Company, Thomas J. Monks of the Guardian, from Cleveland, and J. A. Robinson of the Ohio Savings and Trust, Toledo.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By R. A. ALBERTSEN

Relates to administrative and department matters interesting to our readers

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27th.—The famous Pujo subcommittee of the house committee on banking and currency met here to-day to consider the report prepared by Attorney Untermyer. But few changes were made in his draft and the whole subject was passed along to the full committee, of which Mr. Pujo also is chairman. It was an almost perfunctory performance. Just as Mr. Untermyer was the whole investigation, he has been the whole report. It is an Untermyer production, full of his prejudices and opinions, upon which the testimony had little effect.

There is little chance that the remaining ten members of the whole committee will oppose the findings of the subcommittee, and in that event the powers of the subcommittee delegated to it by the house, "to investigate and report," will be exercised fully.

Will Charge "Money Trust"

The committee believes in the existence of a money trust as outlined in the committee's resolution authorizing the investigation. The committee charges the concentration of wealth and credit built upon J. P. Morgan & Co. and their allies through their control of banking interests in New York, Boston and Chicago.

If the plans of Mr. Untermyer and the chairman of the committee go through, a radical report will be presented to the house by the full committee. This report will not only propose a series of sweeping reforms in New York stock exchange methods, but will present recommendations for the control of the clearing house associations and for the termination of the present system of interlocking directors and for a readjustment of the relations between private bankers and the interstate corporations, whose securities these bankers have handled for years.

Principal Features of the Report

The chief features of the Untermyer report are:

Prohibition of any national bank from joining a clearing house association unless it is incorporated, holds its membership open to every solvent bank, and confines its functions to the clearing of checks for banks in the association.

Prohibition against the same individuals sitting on the boards of potentially competing financial institutions and a limitation upon the size of the boards of directors of national banks.

Application of the cumulative system of stock voting to the election of directors of national banks and interstate corporations, the purpose being to give minority stockholders the legal right of representation on the governing boards.

Prohibition against officers and directors of national banks participating in underwriting syndicates and accepting bonuses in the making of loans to the banks' customers.

Prohibition against officers and directors borrowing money from their own banks.

Full publicity of assets and stockholders of national banks.

Would Guard Bank Loans

One of the most interesting recommendations the committee had under consideration contemplates a limitation upon the amount of money a national bank shall be permitted to loan on stock exchange collateral, the limitation to be in proportion to the bank's assets.

While the general committee is not publicly committed to any proposition, the chances are that Samuel Untermyer's radical views on many of these subjects will prevail. The committee has been largely under his control since the investigation began.

The report of the committee, however, will be only the first step. It already is apparent there is opposition even among the democrats of the house to the money trust agitation, and the making of the committee report merely will mark the beginning of a long fight in the course of which many of the committee's recommendations probably will fall by the wayside.

Problems for Wilson to Solve

Four great problems will compel the immediate attention of Woodrow Wilson after his inauguration as president of the United States on Tuesday next. They are in the order of their importance as follows:

Mexico.
Tariff revision.
Currency reform.
Trusts.

To the three last named matters the new president is expected to refer in his inaugural address. He has not submitted this document, which he has announced will be brief, to any of the senators and representatives believed to enjoy intimate relations with him. These leaders are hoping Mr. Wilson will abandon the policy of keeping his views to himself after he becomes president and will freely consult them.

VERMONT ENACTS "BLUE SKY" LAW

A "Blue Sky" law patterned after that first adopted in Kansas, and designed to exclude from the state questionable investment companies while turning the light on those already within the state, has become the law of Vermont by the approval of Governor Fletcher. The state bank commissioner will be required to investigate all companies seeking to do business in the state, and companies may operate only after receiving a license from him.

CAPITAL ONE MILLION DOLLARS

By C. C. Burford

State Auditor Brady's first statement of state bank conditions in Illinois reports total capital, surplus, contingent fund and undivided profits of $130,136,339. Total deposits February 5th were $711,569,951, an increase of $25,172,973 since November 20th. Loans on collateral security aggregated $227,719,236, loans on real estate $97,234,650 and other loans and discounts $188,675,092. Twenty new banks have been organized since the November call. An increase of six million dollars in savings deposits is a very encouraging feature of the report. Total savings deposits in state banks February 5th were $284,268,042.

Miller Weir Mourns Mother's Death

Mrs. Harriet Rumsey Weir, mother of Miller Weir, formerly cashier of the Jacksonville National, died recently at the ripe old age of almost ninety-one years. She passed away at the home of her son, Miller Weir, 623 West State Street, Jacksonville, and burial was at Greenville, Ky., where she was married in 1838. She was born in 1822 in Hopkinsville, Ky. Of ten children born to her, only one son, Miller Weir, survives.

Mrs. Weir was of sturdy Quaker and Scotch-Irish stock and was a woman of great intellectual attainments. She was a gifted letter-writer and until a few months ago conducted an extensive correspondence with many relatives and friends. She was a great reader, an interesting conversationalist and a most delightful friend. During the Civil War her husband was a member of the Kentucky legislature and after espousing the Union cause he and his wife were subjected to many trials, all of which they bore with courage. Bankers everywhere join in sympathy to Mr. Weir in the loss of his noble mother.

Central of Peoria to Aid the Farmers

The Central National of Peoria, whose new building to be erected this season was described recently in THE CHICAGO BANKER, is preparing to issue a crop report "which is a compilation of and deduction from nearly all sectional crop reports of whatever nature." The bank is seeking to give the farmers and land owners around Peoria careful and accurate information from all parts of the United States. Under the topic of "The Exchange of Crops," the bank says: "It is coming to be understood that if the farmers of Illinois do not have a good corn crop, they cannot buy Georgia's cotton or Kentucky's tobacco. If the planters of Georgia do not have a good cotton crop they cannot buy Oregon's apples or Ohio's grapes." The Central National of Peoria is adding another word in the linking of Illinois farmers and bankers so that the two are becoming more closely identified.

Vermilion County Bankers Meet

The Vermilion County Bankers Association met in Rossville February 22d. Thirty-five bankers representing twenty banks attended the meeting, which was addressed by George Woodruff, president of the First National of Joliet. Mr. Woodruff spoke from the subject, "The Conservation of the Soil and Vocational Education," and emphasized some of the fundamental principles of these favorite subjects of the Illinois Bankers Association. It was decided that each bank would donate $10 to the Boys' Corn Club of Vermilion county. The Saturday afternoon half-holiday, which was proposed, was vigorously voted down. I. E. Merritt, president of the Hoopeston National, was named president; O. P. Clarke, cashier of the First National of Georgetown, vice-president, and J. W. McKown, cashier of the Farmers National of Rossville, secretary-treasurer.

Livingston County Bankers

The Livingston County Bankers Federation met in the Elks clubrooms in Pontiac with fifty bankers present from all parts of the county. As might be expected, and as should be expected, agricultural topics were "the gist" of the meeting. Roy C. Bishop, soil expert for Livingston county, discussed the topic, "The Relation of the Banker to Applied Agriculture." A general discussion of the topic followed. John J. Doherty, cashier of the First National of Dwight and chairman of Group 5 of the Illinois Bankers Association, was another speaker. A banquet was served after the discussion.

Strikes Blow at Loan Sharks

Representative Morton D. Hull, of Chicago, has introduced into the Illinois legislature a bill which is directed primarily at loan sharks. The measure provides for the incorporation of wage loan societies with capital of $50,000 in all cities of over 250,000, which necessarily limits the effects of the measure to Chicago. Their business will be to loan money on wage assignments and they are not to be permitted to accept deposits, discount notes or do a general banking business. The bill will be introduced into the senate by Senator O'Connor of Chicago. The bill does not force all salary loan brokers to come under the ruling, but seeks to provide a substitute for the sharks and to provide funds for needy salaried people at lower rates.

THE LOGICAL REASONS FOR "SIX PER CENT AND SAFETY"

IN our opinion conservative investors are justly entitled to a rate of six per cent on their investments. We will be pleased to submit on application reasons why six per cent may be obtained on invested funds with perfect safety in the class of securities we offer.

¶ Investors for income, desirous of obtaining the highest interest rate consistent with safety, are advised to investigate these bonds which are issued in denominations of $100, $500, and $1,000.

¶ No investor has ever lost a dollar of principal or interest on any security purchased of us during the thirty-one years since this house was founded.

¶ We maintain a market for the securities we sell through our custom of repurchasing from clients, at par and accrued interest, less only the handling charge of one per cent, thus giving reasonable assurance of their convertibility.

ing Trust and Savings of Rochelle and president of the Hohenadel-Stocking Canning Company, has ordered several car loads of rock phosphate to be used for fertilization purposes. The canning company controls 6,000 acres of farming lands and the order was given after the soil had been examined by a soil expert.

The Mercantile Trust and Savings of Quincy, of which Harvey G. Riggs, well-known business man and good roads advocate is the cashier, reports deposits of $1,175,755 and loans and discounts of $1,085,000. Capital and surplus are $270,000. The bank was established in 1906 and the resources have increased from $971,125 in February, 1907, to $1,445,894 in February, 1913.

Banks over the state generally did not close on Washington's birthday except in some of the larger cities. The holiday coming on Saturday and so near the first of March, which is a busy time for country bankers, created a tendency to prevent observing the day as a holiday.

Rock Island banks are paying four per cent interest on savings although most of Illinois banks are paying but three per cent on savings and time deposits.

The Ricker National of Quincy is doing some effective newspaper advertising upon the important topic of systematic saving, and the Quincy National of the same city is another good advertiser.

Continued prosperity is indicated by the solid train load of motor trucks gasoline tractors and farm implements which the Avery Company of Peoria recently sent to Kansas City. The shipment was made via the Burlington and the train was open to the inspection of the public in the Burlington yards in Peoria. The Avery Company has added four hundred men to its force, making one thousand in all, is doing a business of half a million dollars a month and has declared a ten per cent dividend, besides carrying large sums for expenditures in enlarging the business.

Good roads talk continues and two cities, especially Peoria and LaSalle, each are to construct one mile of model road of concrete. The mile at Peoria will cost $12,500 and will be paid for by various interests such as the Peoria Association of Commerce, the Automobile Club, the village of Averyville, various merchants, the Peoria City Railways, the Rock Island railroad and many others. It is hoped that this one-mile road will be a link in a solid Chicago-St. Louis highway sometime. At LaSalle the cost of the mile of road was reduced to about $5,000, as much of the material was donated from Joliet material men.

Danville bankers and business men rejoiced when the Big Four, Wabash and Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroads paid out within three days between $200,000 and $225,000 in wages. Danville has important mining and railroad interests, and the city is one of the best business points in the state. The six banks there all are very prosperous.

A conductor on a street car in East St. Louis found a small black grip on the floor containing $2,250 in currency. A bank messenger for an East St. Louis brewery proved his ownership and the money was restored intact to the happy messenger.

Cashier H. M. Lott of the State Bank of Saybrook has been a recent business caller in Chicago.

The Illinois Retail Hardware Association assembled in convention in Springfield has approved the legislative methods of the Illinois Bankers Association in regard to good roads.

MILWAUKEE NEWS LETTER BY CHALMER B. TRAVER WISCONSIN

The aftermath of the 1912 building and real estate boom in Milwaukee promises more broken records for 1913. The confirmation of the ninety-nine-year lease on the Plankinton property by the supreme court last week, and the consequent declaration of C. W. Somers, Cleveland, lessee, that improvement operations comprising three skyscraper buildings would start at once, was the signal for a number of deals in all parts of the city. The Saxe interests announced their intention of erecting a large theater and office building on property recently acquired on Third Street near Grand Avenue. Other negotiations are reported by which it is supposed property of the Plankinton estate at Wells and Second streets will be leased for a large office building. Before the home office building of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company on East Wisconsin Street is completed, the remodeling of the Chicago and Northwestern depot on the lake front, two blocks east, will be commenced, the consummation of which, the officials promise, will make the depot one of the finest in the country. News of the proposed erection of several large mercantile buildings in the south side business district has encouraged unprecedented activity in real estate in that vicinity.

Wisconsin Bank Commissioner Issues Report

The total resources of Wisconsin state banks and trust companies on February 4th were $218,000,000, a gain of $24,000,000 or 12 per cent over 1912, according to a report of Banking Commissioner A. E. Kuolt issued this week. The state now has a total of 810 banking institutions, including 605 state banks, 128 national banks, 61 building and loan associations, 12 trust companies, and 4 mutual savings banks.

Milwaukee Bankers on Naval Committee

President Oliver Clyde Fuller of the Wisconsin Trust Company is a member of the naval committee of the Milwaukee Perry Centennial committee in charge of the lake pageant in connection with the centennial celebration next summer. Grant Fitch, vice-president of the National Exchange Bank, also is a member of the new committee.

Secretary Bartlett Back on the Job

Secretary George D. Bartlett of the Wisconsin Bankers Association reappeared at his office Tuesday after a week's illness with the grip. One of his first duties on regaining his feet was to notify members of the association that the automobile presented him by the association at the last annual meeting and which was partially destroyed in a recent garage fire, was insured fully and will be repaired and again placed in commission before spring.

Frederick Kasten, vice-president of the Wisconsin National, who has been confined to his home for several weeks, is reported improving.

KOKOMO TRUST OPENS NEW QUARTERS

Kokomo, Ind., Feb. 24th.—About 5,000 friends and customers of the Kokomo Trust Company visited the new home of this institution to-day and participated in the housewarming, inspecting the offices and vaults of this growing state institution. The removal of records and deposits was made to the new building in East Walnut Street on Saturday, February 22d, and to-day the doors of their new and spacious home were thrown open to the public at eight o'clock in the morning. A constant stream of visitors continued throughout the entire day and until ten o'clock in the evening. President Fred L. Trees put in the entire time on the lobby floor greeting the friends and customers and directing them to the various departments of the bank. Vice-president W. E. Blacklidge and Secretary-Treasurer Will E. Sollenberger also assisted in the reception and direction of callers, while Cashier Leslie M. Springer and Assistant Cashiers Lora W. Sloan and W. F. Mitchell were kept busy receiving deposits and performing the actual banking transactions of the day. Many new accounts were opened, which reflected the pride and confidence of the people in Kokomo and evidenced their appreciation of the progressive policy of the bank in providing so well for the convenience and comfort of its customers.

The regular stenographic force, consisting of Anna Rickey and Zora Curlee was assisted by the Misses Lelah Curlee and Della Ratcliff. These young ladies gave each visitor a beautiful carnation and the lady visitors in addition received souvenir posters, mirrors, and artistic bookmarks, and the gentlemen were provided with cigars and bill holders. Directors Edward S. Moore, Stephen Tudor, A. V. Conradt and Gilbert D. Jay were on hand the greater part of the time to assist in receiving and entertaining the visitors. Director Moore is engaged in the contracting business and had much to do with the remodeling of the present quarters. The old two-story building, which, with the changes, made a building faced with Bedford stone, has been well treated by the architects, and in addition to the convenience offered, presents a pleasing, artistic appearance to the eye. Director Jay formerly was engaged actively in the banking business at Kokomo, and now takes a prominent part in the managing of important manufacturing and agricultural interests.

An indirect lighting system is used throughout the bank and presents a pleasing effect. The fixtures are handsome and modern in every way. Safety vaults as well as the vaults for bank use are well arranged and most attractive in their substantial appearance.

The Kokomo Trust Company had its origin in the law offices of Blacklidge, McReynolds and Morrison, located on the second floor of the present building, about ten years ago. J. D. Johnson, whose death occurred several years ago, was its first president and the bank met with popular favor from the start. It was the first bank in Kokomo to pay interest on deposits and during the ten years of its existence has paid $100,000 in interest to its depositors. The present capital is $100,000 and the surplus $30,000. Stockholders' additional liability is $100,000 and present deposits are in excess of $600,000. A large line of farm mortgage loan business is handled in connection with the other activities of the bank and an abstracting department also is maintained in the bank's organization.

A splendid likeness of Mr. Johnson rests on the desk of President Trees and was greatly admired by many of his old friends and customers of the bank.

At four o'clock on Monday afternoon the presidents of all the other Kokomo banks, accompanied by their associate officers and directors, visited the new home of the Kokomo Trust, and were received by President Trees and the other officers and shown through the new quarters. President R. Ruddell of the Citizens National announced that their bank very shortly will engage in building operations and erect a ten-story office building in which

St. Louis and Southwest Banking Letter

By R. L. ROBINSON

St. Louis, February 26th.—During the past week the demand for money has been of fair proportions and came from all classes of customers. Rates were firm at 5 to 6 per cent on call and time loans. Commercial paper was in fair offerings and was mainly discounted by brokers at 5 to 5½ per cent. New York exchange has been in more than moderate supply, with the demand light.

Death of George M. Trumbo

The banking community was shocked on Monday to learn of the accidental death of George M. Trumbo, assistant cashier of the Mechanics-American National. He lost control of his auto, in driving on a country road near Clayton, and the car turned turtle, killing Mr. Trumbo instantly. He was born in Linneus, Mo., where his parents still live, and the body was shipped there for burial. Mr. Trumbo began banking with the American Exchange in 1900 and in 1905 was made assistant cashier. When the Mechanics-American was formed he was given a like position. He attended group meetings and conventions for his bank and had a host of friends in every state in the Union.

Busch, Charles F. Betz, Charles Ehlermann, C. W. Johnson, Walter R. Medart, Henry Menzenwerth, A. C. F. Meyer, Joseph Pauly, Charles Schroeter and F. Widmann.

Banker's Daughter Captures Fox

Miss Mary Thomson, daughter of William H. Thomson, vice-president of the Boatmens Bank, with the aid of the family butler, captured a half-tame gray fox Saturday morning in the back yard of the Thomson home, after several men had tried to capture it. Miss Thomson, who is very fond of animals of all kinds, succeeded in quieting the animal so that a lasso could be thrown. She has presented it, through the Zoölogical Society of St. Louis, to the Forest Park Zoo.

Land Syndicate Chartered

The St. Louis Land Syndicate has been incorporated with a capital of $50,000, $43,000 paid up, to take title to the property lying north and west of Gravois road, partly in St. Louis county and partly in St. Louis. The officers are: J. G. Hughes, president; C. A. Bodwell, vice-president and secretary; L. H. Miller, treasurer.

The following St. Louis banks have been approved as reserve agents: Third National for the First National, Mount Pleasant, Tex., and the First National, Mesquite, Tex; Mechanics-American National for the Scandinavian American National, Minneapolis, Minn., State National, Shawnee, Okla., and the National Bank of Commerce, Hollis, Okla.; the National Bank of Commerce for the Farmers & Mechanics National, Fairview, Okla.

Bank Clerks Entertain

An interesting program was arranged for the meeting of the St. Louis Chapter, American Institute of Banking, on Wednesday of last week. There was an illustrated lecture on "A Trip Through Yellowstone Park" by H. H. Hayes and music by Miss Elsie Marguerite Reid, Harvey B. Howland, Jr., and Miss Grace Lillian Walser. F. C. Ball of the Mississippi Valley Trust is president of the chapter.

Texas Bank Loses

By a decision rendered by Judge Joseph Buffington in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia, the First National of Beaumont, Texas, lost a claim for $4,365.-93 against the Security Investment Company, the Westinghouse concern which went into the hands of a receiver in 1907, but was taken out in 1908 by an agreement of creditors granting it an extension. The bank will, however, receive a pro rata share of its claim when the affairs of the Security company have been wound up under arrangements since made. The fight against the Texas bank was conducted by M. K. McMullen, who claimed that it would be unfair to the other creditors to allow it to recover when it had joined in an agreement granting the extension. The bank is required to pay the costs of the suit and appeal.

More Bankers Facing Arrest

Warrants for the arrest of George E. Nuehardt, president of the Chickasha Bank which recently failed and is now in the hands of a receiver, S. L. Sparks and T. J. Nelson, cashier and teller respectively of that institution, were issued last week on information filed by Attorney General Estes and Attorney D. A. Frayser, representing certain depositors. Nuehardt is charged with receiving funds in a bank that he knew to be insolvent. Sparks faces a similar charge and in addition is accused of perjury. Nelson, it is charged, received funds for an insolvent bank and also issued bogus checks.

Will Succeed G. M. Trumbo

James R. Leavell, for many years an attaché of the Mechanics-American National, and most recently in charge of out-of-town correspondents, has been selected as assistant cashier to succeed G. M. Trumbo, who met death early Sunday in an automobile accident in St. Louis county. The bank officials state that Mr. Leavell was not directly named in Mr. Trumbo's place, but would attend to some of his duties. Mr. Leavell, through a long connection with the Mechanics-American, has acquired a large the Citizens National will occupy the ground floor. The new building will be located on a site opposite the present location of the bank. The Kokomo bankers were generous in their praise and congratulations were extended to the officers of the Kokomo Trust. The second story of the building of the Kokomo Trust will be occupied by some of the leading business and professional firms of the city.

Officers of the Indiana Trust Company, the Indianapolis correspondent of the Kokomo Trust, sent a large bouquet of American Beauty roses with a note of congratulation, and also their new treasurer, M. F. Bayard, who but recently has been appointed to that position, succeeding the late Frank Martin. Mr. Bayard comes of an old Indiana banking family, his father being president of the First National of Vincennes. Another brother is cashier of the First National and his younger brother, Paul, is the cashier of the First National at Lawrenceville, Ill. During the past six years Mr. Bayard has been connected with the Commonwealth Trust of St. Louis as assistant cashier and has traveled extensively throughout Illinois and Indiana attending group meetings and conventions. The Central Trust Company of Illinois, the Chicago correspondent of the Kokomo Trust, was represented by W. G. Edens, assistant secretary.

Monday evening the scene in the bank was a most delightful one. The floral decorations and the lighting effects impressed everyone most favorably. Many of the visitors were interested in a local entertainment being arranged by the charitably inclined ladies of Kokomo for the benefit of the local Y. M. C. A., which is to be given under the auspices of the ladies' auxiliary of that organization. Mrs. Fred L. Trees, wife of the president, and Mrs. Leslie M. Springer, wife of the cashier, their parents and many others, assisted in passing out the handbills advertising the entertainment at the Sipe Theater for February 28th and March 1st. The program includes "The House that Jack Built," the operetta being the joint production of Jessie L. Gaynor and Mrs. Alice C. B. Riley and under the direction of Mrs. Reynolds of Des Moines, formerly director of music in the Des Moines public schools.

Everyone who attended the opening of the new quarters pronounced the event an unqualified success.

INDIVIDUAL AND PUBLIC WELFARE

Colonel Albert H. Scherzer of this city, a distinguished expert in waterway construction and among the greatest of living bridge engineers, has published a small pamphlet entitled "Great Money Energy for Individual and Public Welfare." To teach a great moral and financial idea Colonel Scherzer has compared closely the railway capital development of England and Wales with that of the United States. Like all engineering writers he proves diagrammatically and shows that the United States, with more than fifty times the area of England and Wales, has developed but three times the amount of railway capital. Based upon this fact he argues that the vast values given to railway investments in England are attributable to the fact that she has a wonderful coast line and a likewise wonderful system of internal waterways which brings the commerce of the world not only to her shores, but to her very internals. An interesting portion of the booklet is devoted, partly by illustrations and partly by text, to showing the low efficiency of shallow paving and the higher efficiency of deep paving in streets; how metal plate rails of the olden time were in advance of the best of paving, but gave way to the deep, high-efficiency metal rails of the present day. By the same convincing logic he shows the wastefulness of waterways when allowed to spread over a large land area with shallow depth when compared with improved, valuable, deep and high-efficiency waterways which lead down to the continuous, liquid, ocean rails which connect the continents. Along with these illustrations goes the statement that it costs one dollar to move a ton of freight fifteen miles on the most efficient road. One dollar will move a ton three hundred miles on an efficient railway or fifteen hundred miles on a deep inland waterway. On the ocean, which covers more than half of the world's surface, a ton of freight can be moved three thousand miles for one dollar. These basic facts are used to show why the nations which have developed their waterway facilities have advanced in population and wealth until the United States and England, with about one-fifteenth of the population of the world, enjoy nearly one-half of its developed wealth. The text which goes with the illustrations used by Colonel Scherzer is very clear, concise and convincing, and may be used as a handbook of authority by those who will become interested in the matter of waterway construction from time to time.

There are diagrams to show that the enterprising citizen of the country spends about seventy to ninety per cent of his business and individual income in constructive effort which adds to the wealth of individuals and increases the public welfare. A typical city spends about seventy per cent of its income from the taxpayer in building streets, sewers, libraries, electric light plants and other public works. The greater part of the balance is spent upon her schools. It is shown that both the citizen and the city do very much more for public welfare than the national government with its enormous income, of which it spends in this country only about fourteen per cent in constructive work, including the building of the Panama Canal. The bulk of her income is spent for war purposes—army, navy and pensions. The second largest proportion of her income goes for administration, legislation and similar expenses. The author of the pamphlet under discussion believes that the government should fall in line with her citizens and her cities and begin to plan and execute construction work for the direct welfare of the people, thus increasing the individual and the national wealth. The growth of public wealth from the days of George Washington is carefully traced and digressions are made to prove the great cost of war and the little which has been spent by this nation in constructive work in the line of its duty for the welfare of the people. It is difficult to read this carefully prepared pamphlet without believing that the most important moral obligation of the United States government has been pointed out within its pages. The author believes that the government could with vastly greater benefits create a huge public debt for constructive purposes, improving waterways, building canals and conserving the resources of the country than in any other way. He believes that the control of the waters of the great Mississippi valley could be accomplished for a less sum than was required to dig the Panama Canal. He shows the enormous waste of billions of tons of water flowing out into the gulf, which could be used for waterways, canals and irrigation purposes each year, rather than to be spent in destructive overflows which might easily be prevented. He believes that the federal government alone has the authority, money resources and ability for this great constructive effort and believes that the result would be the doubling of our national wealth within the next twelve or fifteen years. The question raised in this little booklet, which Colonel Scherzer will send to anyone wishing to investigate the subject, seems to be more potent with future big results than any issue at present occupying the public mind.

MORE EFFECTIVE BANK EXAMINATION

The necessity of the provision of examinations of the affairs of a bank which shall prove thoroughly adequate to reveal the true condition of the institution readily is apparent even to the layman. That the present national banking law is not sufficiently comprehensive or modern in its provisions to admit of this, must be conceded by the well informed. Provisions of the law applicable to conditions which existed forty or fifty years ago certainly are not adequate to deal with circumstances which exist to-day. The solution of this problem of more effective examination lies, therefore, in the amendment of the existent law in such respects as will adapt it to present needs.

One of the chief defects of the present law, perhaps, may be said to be that enough examiners are not provided to insure thorough examination, the territory assigned to each examiner being so large that to make a comprehensive inspection of a bank's affairs practically is impossible. Then, in addition, compensation for the examiners is provided by means of the fee system, a custom which ought to be abolished at once and a fixed stipend provided by statute. No reflection is intended upon any bank examiner when it is said that under the fee system it only is human nature to attempt to examine as many banks as possible, which, of course, frequently operates detrimentally to an intelligent determination of the true condition of a bank. The same thing is true of an insufficient number of examiners.

There are other defects in the law which require remedying so as to facilitate the work of the examiner such as the provision of assistants, employment of credit bureaus, etc. The fault is not with the examiners, who are high class, intelligent men, but with the system under which they work. Relief lies only in changing that system so as to make it conform to modern conditions.

INDIANA'S OLD CAPITOL A QUAINT RELIC

Indiana bankers and all bankers in the Central West generally who have been reared in the Hoosier State will read with interest the agitation for the purchase of the old "statehouse" still standing in the quaint little town of Corydon, Harrison county, the first capital of the state and also the capital of the old Indiana Territory. The old structure was erected in 1811-12, "was constructed to endure," its walls being quarried from the surrounding hills, the lower story having walls two and a half feet thick and the upper floor having walls two feet thick. In this forty feet square building, "severely plain," met the territorial and the first state legislatures of Indiana. Indiana was admitted to the Union in 1816 and the old statehouse remained the capitol of the state until 1825, when Indianapolis became the capital of the commonwealth. The house of representatives occupied the lower floor and the legislative council or senate, the upper, while the supreme court used the rooms when the assembly was not in session.

The building now belongs to Harrison county and is used for a county courthouse although a newer building has been erected for partial service as a courthouse in the same "square," as most Indiana towns have. It is proposed to buy the square and structure from Harrison county for $100,000 and to use the spot as a state museum, and the project is being almost universally favored throughout the state.

Harrison county will use this money to erect a new courthouse which is badly needed.

Old Corydon has many historic memories. A few rods from the old statehouse is the "Constitutional Elm," under which large tree the first constitution of Indiana was written, as the day was too warm for the fathers to assemble in the capitol. Near Corydon is the old farm of William Henry Harrison, president of the United States, and near that town in the Civil War occurred the "Battle of Corydon" in which farmers and villagers repulsed "Morgan and his men" after they had crossed the Ohio river fifteen miles away. Wyandotte Cave, which rivals Mammoth Cave in many respects, is near Corydon as are many other scenic beauties and, in fact, the entire region is a natural park.

Good pikes enable motorists from Louisville, New Albany, Jeffersonville, and many other near-by cities to skip over the county and to see the historic and natural beauties of Harrison county and the beautiful country along the Ohio river. In fact, old Harrison county could teach Illinois much about road-making but they have the added advantage of plenty of natural materials for good roads.

Corydon has two banks, the Corydon National and the First National. With the Corydon National is associated the Farmers Savings and Trust Company, the two institutions having deposits of $579,971 and capital, surplus and undivided profits of $261,000. The First National is another strong bank with deposits of over $200,000. There are few banks in the county, as most of the towns are along the pikes or the river and Corydon is reached only by a spur line of railroad. Considering the ruggedness of the country the Corydon National and the First National are especially strong banks.

William Ridley, president of the First National, has been worshipful master of Pisgah Lodge, No. 32, A. F. and A. M. of Corydon and also has served as grand master of the state of Indiana. George W. Applegate, Sr., and his son, George W. Applegate, Jr., also have served this venerable lodge, organized in 1817, just one year after Indiana was admitted to the Union, as worshipful masters. Corydon is a town of quaint historic organizations and associations.

The country about Corydon is rough and rugged but the county is prosperous, and fruit, sheep and wheat culture flourish. The people are frugal like the typical old New Englanders and it is small wonder that a bank like the Corydon National would have deposits of almost $600,000 and resources of almost one million dollars.

BURROUGHS CANCELLING STATE CONTRACTS

All contracts with state secretaries who do a mail order or supply business will be cancelled this year by the Burroughs Adding Machine Company. The old rate of eleven machines for the price of ten will not be renewed. Other lines are likely to be cut off and state associations restored to their proper functions, so that the small dealer may have a living chance.

DENVER BANKER TO WED

Samuel M. Willner, president of the Guardian Trust Company and president and general manager of the National Safety Vault Company of Denver, is to be married to Miss Theresa Black, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Black of Chicago, according to information made public recently. Mr. Willner met Miss Black through mutual friends while on his way east to attend a bankers' convention.

Minneapolis' park board expects to issue $225,000 bonds and the school board $300,000. The park issue will be the remainder of $525,000 authorized by the legislature of 1911. The council ways and means committee has recommended the issue.

BANKERS' CONFERENCE PRONOUNCED A SUCCESS

Those who were in attendance at the bankers' conference held in Springfield February 18th, are unanimous in the expression that the meeting was a great success. The members of the committees on agriculture and vocational education and good roads are having requests from all over the state for copies of the various bills which are being supported by the Illinois Bankers Association. Senator Magill of Bureau county introduced the vocational education bill in the state senate on Wednesday last and will advocate its passage in that branch of the legislature. Senator Magill is especially equipped to handle this matter in the senate. He comes from an important agricultural and stock growing district and is a student of farming and educational conditions.

In checking up it was found that fully seventy-five counties were represented at the conference as well as every senatorial district in the state. The comment made by members of the legislature who were present was most favorable. Even Calhoun county, of which Hardin is the county seat, and which is off the direct lines of travel, being located along the Mississippi and Illinois rivers, was represented at the conference by Elmer E. Williams, cashier of the Bank of Calhoun County, Hardin. Mr. Williams stated that their county is thoroughly aroused and that the people will support the bankers' program. John J. Bryant, who resides at Riverside, but who is president of the Hinsdale State Bank of Hinsdale, DuPage county, was an interested member of the conference. Mr. Bryant long has indulged the hope that the state of Illinois would preserve the beautiful virgin forests lying along the Desplaines and other streams in Cook and DuPage counties by creating state forests or an outer park system. He visited Springfield largely on behalf of this proposition, but also was interested sufficiently to attend every session of the conference and to indorse heartily the agricultural, educational and good roads program of the bankers association.

Senator D. W. Helm of Metropolis represented Massac county and Walter Rosenfield, vice-president of the Central Trust and Savings of Rock Island, represented Rock Island county. Mr. Rosenfield stated that important banking and manufacturing interests of his county are heartily in favor of the program adopted by the Illinois Bankers Association. Mr. Rosenfield enjoys an extensive acquaintance with members of the legislature and will be of great assistance in the matter of securing favorable hearings of these bills. General James R. Campbell, president of the First National of McLeansboro, Hamilton county, attended both the morning and afternoon sessions and was enthusiastic about the possibility of good being accomplished by the bankers through their organized efforts.

In speaking to the members at the morning session Gen. Campbell related in a graphic manner his recollection of the roads and bridges which he found in the Philippine Islands when he was a general in the United States army. General Campbell's son Val is cashier of the First National of McLeansboro; he has been enthusiastic in county federation organization and assisted in developing the group system. G. W. Hogan, president of the Peoples National of McLeansboro, also was an interested attendant. Capt. J. W. Kitchell of Pana, Ill., who but recently presented the people of Pana township with the coal rights lying under certain lands in that township and valued at about $75,000, also was present.

Capt. Kitchell created great enthusiasm when he was introduced and told of his desire to help in the improvement of road conditions by returning to the township a part of the wealth that came to him through fortunate investments and increases in value.

Judge George T. Turner, president of the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Vandalia, reported that they conducted a boys' corn contest last year in Fayette county and said that the meeting at which the prizes were awarded was attended by about seventy-five boys. Prof. Nolan of the agricultural department of the state university addressed them. They are expecting a larger class this year.

Unfortunately Montgomery county's representative had retired from the banking business and removed from the county before the date of the conference. This information was secured too late to arrange for other representation for this important county.

E. A. Smith, president of the First National of Morrison, represented Whiteside county and stated that they are making good progress in that county. Carroll county bankers are greatly interested in this movement. They reported that they would endeavor to interest the people generally in their locality in support of the program.

George L. Murphy, president of the American National at Woodstock, reported for McHenry county, saying that they have a county organization whose object is to encourage better farming. Within the month they have engaged a farm expert and will do everything in their power to perform good work in their locality.

Irving Shuman, cashier of the First National of Sullivan, and a member of the agricultural and educational committee of the Illinois Bankers Association, was prevented from attending the meetings by illness.

Madison county sent a good delegation in E. M. Bourman and J. Magnus Ryrie, both enthusiastic supporters of the agricultural, educational and good roads program.

SAN FRANCISCO CHAPTER

By William A. Marcus.

At the annual meeting of the San Francisco Chapter, American Institute of Banking, the following officers were elected: President, R. A. Newell; vice-president, J. S. Curran; secretary-treasurer, J. I. Riordan; governors, W. F. Gabriel, H. A. Haake, Edw. Moffatt, Jos. H. Leale, and C. H. Holt; delegates to the eleventh annual convention, R. A. Newell (ex-officio), J. W. McDermott and Wm. A. Marcus. Following the election an adding machine contest was held and the prize winners announced as follows: 1st, Roy Barber (Union Trust Co.), time: 2 minutes 45 seconds; 2d, W. F. Gabriel (Wells Fargo Nevada National), time: 2 minutes 55 3/5 seconds; 3d, Lloyd Head (American National), time: 2 minutes 57 seconds. One hundred and fifty checks were listed by the contestants. Final examinations in practical banking were successfully passed by the following members: J. C. Lipman, E. V. Krick, Edw. Moffatt, Prosper L. Wolf, and Wm. A. Marcus. Examinations in Commercial Law will be held this month.

We are pleased to report a net increase of sixty-three members during the past year, and are justly proud in mentioning the following Institute men who have recently been made assistant cashiers of their respective banks: M. R. Clark of the First Federal Trust, J. S. Curran of the Humboldt Savings Bank, B. D. Dean of the Crocker National, and R. R. Yates of the First National. Baseball teams are putting in some hard practice for the coming season and a lively race for the bankers' pennant is expected. The entertainment committee is busy preparing an exceptional program for the annual show in April.

HIGHER EDUCATION FOR AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF BANKING

The American Institute of Banking committee on postgraduate education, of which J. E. Rovensky of Pittsburgh is chairman, has issued in convenient pamphlet form a comprehensive plan of postgraduate study for 1913.

It has been asserted on numerous occasions by prominent bankers, legislators and publicists that in the solution of the banking and currency problem, which, as President Taft says, is the most important question before the American people to-day, the students in the American Institute of Banking will have a most important part. The postgraduate committee evidently believes that these assertions are well founded, for in the introduction to their plan of study these words are used:

"The American Institute of Banking now has been in existence twelve years. After much experimenting the Institute has adopted a standard course of study covering the theory and practice of banking and such principles of economics and law as pertain to the banking business. The work thus arranged not only furnishes fundamental knowledge needed by all bankers but also serves as an introduction and impetus to more extensive research. The Institute has to-day several hundred graduates—men who have shown their earnest desire to succeed by sacrificing a considerable part of their leisure time in the study of their chosen profession. Once the fire of ambition has been kindled it practically is unquenchable and nearly all these men—realizing the vastness of the field before them—desire to continue their studies.

"The Institute—the only systematic educational factor in the American banking world—was naturally called upon to assist and direct the efforts of the graduates. After much discussion and careful study the course outlined in this report was adopted. It will be observed that it consists largely of a study of this country's banking history. The intention is to have the student obtain a complete knowledge of the banking measures that have been tried in this and other countries—their effects on banking and the country in general and the reasons for their development or rejection. Having mastered this course the student will be prepared to take up the study and solution of present-day problems—that being the main object of the postgraduate course.

"As in every other science, the student of finance eventually must become the teacher. If progress is to be maintained he must master all that is taught by the past and then add his contribution of original thought to the common fund of knowledge. The question here arises, 'To what subject shall the graduates direct their attention?'

"The financial structure of the United States soon will undergo great changes. The methods of fifty years ago no longer fulfill the requirements of trade and radical alterations must be made. Here we have a field of unlimited possibilities. It not only is our opportunity but also our duty to assist in the reconstruction of our banking system. Having mastered the problems of the past let us then turn to those of the present and future."

Already several of the larger chapters have established forums in which the course of study outlined by the committee is being pursued and it is but a question of time when the result of this systematic study of fundamental finance, carried on by hundreds of the very best men in the country, will be reflected in some correct legislation.

Samuel Loveless, a New York banker, and his brother, Thomas Loveless, of Chicago, have been visiting their uncle, William Irwin, a pioneer resident of Guthrie, Okla.

CENTRAL WEST LETTER

By EDGAR P. ALLEN

Omaha

For nearly two weeks the Central West has been covered by from two to six inches of snow which has furnished all the moisture needed for the present, and it is certain that the wheat crop will go into the early spring season in prime condition to resist the high winds of March and April usually so destructive to wheat not thoroughly wet. It has been the consensus of opinion, expressed by bankers who have attended the various meetings in this territory recently, that the situation scarcely could be improved upon. In a purely agricultural district everything depends upon the farmers and when they are prosperous the effect is felt in all lines of business. The bankers keep a close watch on agricultural conditions and a dozen Kansas City financiers who have been in attendance upon group meetings in Oklahoma and Texas bring back glowing reports. The prospect of good crops in 1913 has had the effect of throwing a great deal of corn and grain upon the market which has brought fair prices. The open winter allowed the farmers to feed their stock at a minimum of cost and there seems to be an abundance of corn and other feed that can be sold for cash, thus increasing the farmers' bank accounts and deposits are increasing uniformly among country banks. The demand for money is normal for this season of the year and the fluctuation of banking items causes no apprehension whatever.

Drop in Bank Clearings

From sixth place in the list of American cities, Kansas City suddenly dropped to eighth place in the record of bank clearings for the week ending February 20th, yielding to Pittsburgh and San Francisco. Kansas City bankers do not pretend to know what caused this slump, but they feel that it is only temporary as Kansas City has been next to St. Louis for months and considers that its rightful place. It may be noted that this is the season of lowest ebb in agricultural marketing and especially in live stock operations. Cattle that were fed for the winter market have been disposed of to a great extent and stock that now is on hand will be held over to grass. Omaha and St. Joseph, Mo., have experienced similar conditions. But all of the Central West cities showed a uniform gain in percentages along with practically all of the other American cities for the week reported, Kansas City gaining 32.4 per cent; Omaha, 22 per cent; St. Joseph, 46.6 per cent, and Wichita, 26.3 per cent.

Fear Legislation Inimical to Banking

Kansas state bankers have become greatly concerned at the disposition of some of the members of the present Kansas legislature to enact new laws which seriously would affect the banking business of that state. While most of these bankers are not actively opposed to the suggested changes in the state deposit guaranty law as outlined in THE CHICAGO BANKER last week, several other matters have come up since then to cause anxiety. The corporation tax bill which was adopted recently required that all corporations doing business in Kansas must pay a tax on capital stock ranging from $25 to $2,500 annually. Exceptions were made in favor of all educational, religious, scientific and charitable corporations and insurance and building and loan associations. At the time this bill was under consideration an effort was made to include state banks among the exemptions but without success. Immediately the bankers on guard at Topeka notified the state bankers generally and practically every bank in the state sent a telegram protesting against this new form of taxation. The result was that after the bill had been passed a new bill was formulated correcting the banking features of the first, and this passed, so that the state bankers will not be subjected to the corporation tax.

Banking Boom for Topeka

Topeka is having a banking boom. Following the recent consolidation of the Prudential State Bank of that city with the Bank of Topeka comes the report that three more banks are in the process of organization and all have made application to the state charter board for bank commissions. A number of Topeka men are negotiating to buy the charter of the former Prudential State. The other banks will be known as the Kansas State, with a capital stock of $50,000 and the State Bank of Commerce of Topeka with a capital stock of $100,000, and with 500 and 1,000 shares respectively. There now are six state banks in Topeka in addition to the Prudential Trust Company, a a state institution which was a part of the Prudential State, but not included in the consolidation. The number of state banks is limited only in the discretion of the state charter board. That body makes an examination of the application, the need of the community for new banking houses, and the financial responsibility of the incorporators. The fear that the state charter board will not approve all three applications on the ground that three new banks are not needed in Topeka has led to lively competition among the various banking factions. H. L. West, formerly connected with a state bank at Junction City, Kan., heads the list of incorporators for the proposed Kansas State. His associates are A. Fassler, Guilford Dudley, H. A. Auerbach and Elon S. Clark. J. D. Deever, of Highland Park, Kan., and Roy M. Deever, of Berryton, Kan., who have been running a state bank at the latter place, are organizing the State Bank of Commerce and with them are C. A. Karlan, W. E. Atchison, L. G. Thorpe, Floyd C. Cox and D. L. Hoatson.

Prominent Texas Banker Murdered

A tragedy that brought sudden death to James Lewis White, treasurer of the Republic Trust Company of Dallas, Tex., and severe injury to Andrew Silvers, active vice-president of that institution, occurred in the trust company's offices on the eighth floor of the Wilson building in Dallas the afternoon of February 20th. Both men were shot and James A. Clopton, an irrigation promoter of San Antonio is held as the murderer and assailant. According to report of the affair given by Mr. Silvers, Clopton came into the company's offices to see about a loan he had tried to negotiate but which had been refused. After some conversation the promoter without warning opened fire upon the two men. White fell from his chair dead and Silvers, wounded in two places, ran into the hall and called for help. Later he was removed to his home and his physicians say he will recover. Clopton was arrested. Mr. White, the murdered trust company official, was one of the best known financiers in northern Texas. He was born on a Texas farm and studied law. About thirty-two years ago he organized the Collin County Bank, at first a private institution which later became a national bank. Later Mr. White became actively identified with a number of large industrial enterprises and helped organize the Republic Trust Company several years ago. He was very popular in banking, business and social circles in Texas and a number of commercial bodies passed resolutions of respect upon his death.

Central West Notes

J. B. Pollard, president of the Gate City National of Kansas City, is the prime mover in the organization of a new bank for Emporia, Kan. The bank will be known as the Lyon County State and will have a capital stock of $50,000. Mr. Pollard bought property on Commercial Street in Emporia which will be remodeled for the bank's occupancy about April 1st. It is understood that William Price, now president of the First National of Madison, Kan., will have a large interest in the Emporia institution and will have active charge. This will make the fourth bank in Emporia.

C. B. McClusky, vice-president of the National Reserve Bank of Kansas City, has gone to New York where he will meet the body of his brother, J. B. McClusky, who died recently in Germany, where he went for treatment from Dr. F. F. Friedman, who has announced his discovery of a serum for the cure of tuberculosis.

R. W. Hawkins, traveling representative of the Fort Dearborn National of Chicago, was in Kansas City last week.

J. W. Cox, vice-president of the Railey and Brothers Banking Company of Weston, Mo., the oldest bank in the state, was a Kansas City visitor recently.

Eugene P. Davis, assistant cashier of the Southwest National Bank of Commerce, left Kansas City recently for El Paso, Tex., where he visited his family who are spending the winter in that city.

W. T. Kemper, president of the Commerce Trust Company, with W. A. Rule, has gone to Shreveport, La., on financial business.

The Arkansas legislature by a close vote has defeated a state bankers' bill with a guaranty feature. The same bill without the guaranty has passed both houses.

A charter has been applied for to establish the First National of Holden, Mo. It is to have a capital stock of $25,000 and is being organized by J. H. Tevis, formerly a merchant of Holden, and Judge Isaac Farnsworth, now cashier of the Bank of Latour, Mo.

E. C. Million and A. U. Thomas, cashier and president respectively of the American National of McAlester, Okla., have been elected directors of the Dardanelle and Russellville railroad of Arkansas.

The American National of Tulsa, Okla., will open for business in a few weeks. J. W. McNeal is to be president of the institution and L. W. Baxter will be cashier.

Bates Burnett and Birch Burnett, president and cashier respectively of the defunct Farmers and Merchants Bank of Sapulpa, Okla., have been committed to jail until such a time as they will produce the books of the bank for examination.

E. F. Swinney, president of the First National of Kansas City, with a party of friends has gone on a southern trip in a private car and expects to be gone until March 12th. It is no secret that the party is scouting for ducks.

The Citizens State of Paris, Tex., has been organized with a paid-up capital of $32,000.

Arrangements almost are completed for the opening of the Merchants National of Dallas, Tex., which will have a capital stock of $250,000 and surplus of $50,000. This will be the fifth national bank in Dallas.

The Nebraska house of representatives has voted favorably on the bill allowing state banks to loan ten times the aggregate of their capital stock and surplus. The present limit is eight times that aggregate and an effort was made to have the limit removed entirely but this failed.

Robert N. Downie, for many years with the State Savings of Topeka, has resigned and has gone to Meriden, Kan., to become cashier of the State Bank of that place.

The Texas railroad commission has refused to issue an order for the registration of $596,000 equipment bonds of the International and Great Northern railroad to cover new locomotives.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Texas State Bankers Association at Fort Worth last week, H. R. Eldridge, president of the organization, who formerly was vice-president of the First National of Houston, tendered his resignation. Mr. Eldridge recently became vice-president of the National City Bank of New York and contended that he could not continue to serve his Texas associates while living out of the state. In spite of his protestations, however, his resignation was rejected for the time being, at least.

The Texas department of banking has approved the following reserve agents for Texas banks: for the First State of Corsicana, the Merchants National of Dallas; for the Texas State of Farwell, the First State of Amarillo.

The seventh district bankers of Texas at Cleburne selected Fort Worth as the next place of meeting and elected these officers: President, Ben O. Smith of the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Fort Worth, and Dan E. Lydick, cashier of the Exchange National of Fort Worth, secretary. The fourth district bankers at Waco elected S. M. McAshan of Waco, chairman and J. R. Knight, of Eddy, secretary.

Banking news from Minneapolis—St. Paul financial center, and surrounding States, compiled by J. Edwards Smith

To arrange a plan for a clearing house for county checks, F. A. Chamberlain, president of the Security National and of the Minneapolis Clearing House Association, and E. H. Bailey, president of the First National and of the St. Paul Clearing House Association, are to appoint committees for conference. The plan was set under way at a meeting Tuesday night of the Twin City Bankers' Club at the Minnesota Club, St. Paul, when George F. Orde, vice-president of the Minneapolis First National, reported for the committee which investigated the clearing house at Kansas City. Pending legislation was read by Kelsey S. Chase, superintendent of banks in Minnesota.

Security National Digests Trade Conditions

The March digest of trade conditions by the Security National, calls attention to the fact that at the beginning of the year business conditions stood at an abnormally or artificially high level, with the result that investment conditions were unsatisfactory. In February we have witnessed a slowing down and solidifying of the business situation and an increased activity along investment lines, the digest recites. "This investment activity," it continues, "is not very marked, but it exists and there are indications that it gradually will expand through the year.

"Some recession in business is to be expected but transactions recently have been so heavy that what would appear to be a material falling off would be nothing more than returning to the normal. Trading has been in excess of consumption and permanently trading only can equal consumption. While we cannot expect to set new records in many lines, it looks at this time as though the year 1913 would give a good account of itself."

Interest Manifested in E. W. Decker's Plan

L. A. Smith, who owns a section of land near Lakota, N. D., is the first farmer to write to E. W. Decker, president of the Northwestern National, indicating that he wants to stock his farm with cattle and will do so if he can get the money. He indorses Mr. Decker's plan for increasing the number of farm animals in Minnesota.

In addition to nearly seventy letters received by Mr. Decker in answer to his inquiries of bankers as to their attitude toward the plan, he received special opinions as follows: G. W. Hillhouse, president of the Alexander State of Alexander, N. D., says the local banks will not need help in working out the plan of extending credit to farmers who may decide to go into livestock raising. J. A. Gold, of Gold Brothers Security Company, Big Stone City, S. D., says the plan is the best yet suggested for restocking the farm. Mr. Gold gives the instance of the purchase by him of 600 steers for feeding, of the putting on of an average of five pounds in weight in the first seven days, and of the probability that the steers when marketed will bring $126 each.

Minnesota Banks in Flourishing Condition

Total resources of Minnesota state banks have increased more than $12,000,000 in a year. In its compilation for the last call the department of examination found that total resources a year ago were $138,549,995 and this year $151,113,632. Deposits have increased $3,858,099 and savings deposits $1,766,532.

Total resources and liabilities of the state banks on February 4, 1913, were $151,113,632,63, as compared with resources and liabilities of $138,549,995.35 on February 20, 1912. Prominent among the increases in resources reported for the period were $12,042,257.37 in loans and discounts, $530,028.59 in bonds and securities other than United States bonds, and $491,927.96 in cash on hand. Decreases of $527,424.32 in the amount due from banks, and $172,265.89 in real estate other than bank furniture, house and fixtures, are shown.

Increases in liabilities include $5,796,748.95 in time certificates, $3,858,099.10 in deposits subject to check, $1,766,532.41 in savings deposits, $822,700 in capital stock and $600,859.34 in surplus. Decreases in liabilities include $144,406.32 in demand certificates and $393,223.10 in the amount due to banks.

North Dakota Bankers Meet

The northeastern district group of North Dakota bankers at their annual meeting at Grand Forks elected officers as follows: President, C. D. Lord, Park River; vice-president, V. E. Bemis, Inkster; secretary-treasurer, J. R. Carley; executive committee, H. N. Johnson of Lankin, C. R. Green of Cavalier, B. Prom of Milton, P. D. Sevengal of Lakota, S. Torgerson of Grand Forks. The organization asked the secretary of state to investigate the Independent Harvester Company of Plano, Ill., on the ground that the company is selling stock in the state and has sold more than $6,000,000 at or above par, while the assessed value of the property at Plano is said to be assessed at $169,482. Dr. M. Jacobstein of the state university spoke on "What We May Expect From Our Democratic Friends." He said in part:

An Example of Increasing Business in "A.B.A." Cheques

A large Western Bank writes: "We have advertised Travelers' Cheques in our office by putting up placards, by putting on our desks postal cards, by sending out American Bankers folders, by advertising in programs, and by calling our customers' attention to the convenience of these cheques.

In 1910 we sold	$27,890
In 1911	$61,970
In 1912	$85,800

lican party failed to do in half a century. It isn't quite fair to ask the democratic party to undo or unravel knotty problems that have been growing for several decades. The experience of being in power, however, doubtless will be such a pleasant one that the party managers will see to it that something big is accomplished in order to retain that power.

"Our particular theme, banking reform, is not a very popular one, and by its very nature never can be popular. It is an intricate subject; one which has driven more men insane than any other subject with the possible exception of religion. The man in the street can't be expected to grow enthusiastic about so complicated a subject as the revamping of our banking and currency practices. What show has banking reform beside that of tariff reform and trust legislation? It is only natural and human, therefore, to expect the democratic party to grapple first with these more popular themes; ones which they committed to in their platform declarations; reforms which will redound to the party's benefit by swelling the popular vote at the next election.

"The democratic administration is in possession of a mass of the most reliable information ever collected in this country. A country-wide propaganda has been conducted for several years, and public opinion more or less prepared for legislation. The democratic administration has a wonderful chance to accomplish something big and constructive in the field of banking and currency reform. The democratic party has a chance to redeem itself and live down the monetary fallacies associated with its past history."

Northwest Notes

The bank guaranty act in South Dakota's legislature has been amended to include private as well as state banks. The bill has gone into the committee of the whole.

The board of directors of the Merchants Loan and Trust, Rapid City, S. D., will build at St. Joseph and Seventh streets. The building will cost $50,000. In the recent mild spell of weather farmers east of Mitchell, S. D., began spring sowing of wheat with a chance of there being spring rains to moisten the ground. For four days the temperature ranged between 55 and 70 degrees.

The State of Eagle Lake, Minn., is a $10,000 institution of which the incorporators are: S. J. Mealey, G. A. Brasie, Gustav Eggena, E. H. Sherwin, O. L. Cohnson, Monticello; W. F. Bullock, Minneapolis; W. D. Willard, Mankato; J. L. Cummings, F. E. Day, C. D. Pickle, Eagle Lake.

J. S. Pomeroy, vice-president of the Security National, is back from Washington, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Pittsburgh, and Cleveland. He said, "Eastern bankers declare the Pujo money trust probe has been good for the country. The bankers I talked with were unanimous in saying that the inquiry has brought out nothing derogatory to the banking system. The investigation has given the public insight into the banking methods and leads to a better understanding. The result will be increased confidence in banks."

The Minneapolis Stock Exchange has rented a new trading room in the McKnight building, recently erected, and will have daily calls instead of twice a week. The sessions will be open hereafter. A new listing committee will place new securities on the list. Officers elected are: President, E. T. Chapman, Stevens, Chapman & Co.; vice-president, L. E. Wakefield, Wells, Dickey & Co.; secretary, Arthur W. Stevens, Arthur W. Stevens & Co.; assistant, E. A. Fish; treasurer, H. D. Thrall, Minnesota Loan and Trust Company. The listing committee is T. W. Lewis, J. L. Root, and A. W. Stevens. Additional members of the board of governors, besides the officers, are as follows: George B. Lane, W. W. Eastman, P. O. Heide. The exchange has twenty-two members, with a limit of twenty-five. About fifty stocks are listed.

The First National of Northgate, N. D., has been incorporated by B. H. Edminster and others. The capital is $10,000.

Pacific Northwest Banking News

A. F. Anderson of Washington, D. C., former secretary of the National Monetary Reform League, was the speaker of the evening at the annual banquet of the Spokane Clearing House Association, February 15th, his subject being "Banking and Currency Reform."

"There are many persons to-day who will tell you that the Aldrich plan of reform is politically dead," said Mr. Anderson. "But I can assure you that it will be a long time before the American people will receive as good a report as that which was prepared by the national monetary commission. Aldrich was not the conceptor of the data of that report, but it undoubtedly was the most valuable source of information the American public has had access to.

"One of the great difficulties with our public system in America is that every man 21 years of age is qualified by the law to vote. It recently has been declared that the workingmen of America are qualified better to pass upon any question which the United States senate is called upon to pass upon than 95 per cent of the members of the senate are. Perhaps that is true, gentlemen. But it is my opinion that we should have trained men in the senate and house of representatives. Sixty-six per cent of the members of the senate and 72 per cent of the house of representatives are lawyers. I am of the opinion that we should have business men in these two bodies. The man who made this cigar I am smoking spent years of apprenticeship in acquiring the art of making good cigars. After he passed that period of learning he was not expected to do anything more than to make the cigars."

Samuel R. Stern delivered a humorous talk on "Foreign Banking." He recounted a number of amusing experiences in the Orient with bankers and banking methods and declared that the United States could take tips from those countries. R. Lewis Rutter was chairman of the meeting and introduced a few features of entertainment. A cabaret show proved a pleasing innovation.

A bill to legalize the practice of making temporary loans and transfers of state and county moneys from one fund to another has been prepared for introduction in the state legislature by Representative Zach Stewart of Spokane. The bill validates a practice which former State Treasurer John G. Lewis inaugurated and which, it is estimated, has saved the state between $15,000 and $20,000 in interest charges. This was the practice of allowing a temporary transfer of money during the collection of taxes, from a fund having a considerable surplus to another practically depleted. This method is illegal under a strict construction of the present law, which compels the treasurer, county or state, to stamp warrants drawn on a depleted fund "No warrants," allow these warrants to be taken up by banks and pay 6 per cent interest on them. At the same time either the state or county might have thousands of dollars lying idle in another fund drawing only 2 per cent interest. Under the proposed new law, the state board of finance, consisting of the governor, treasurer and auditor, may authorize the payment of warrants on overdrawn funds out of the general fund, the general fund receiving 2 per cent interest. The only exception is made in the case of schools and charitable, penal and reformatory institutions. In the case of the counties, a similar transfer may be made by the county treasurer with the consent of the commissioners.

Application for the biggest building permit ever issued in Spokane has been made by the Davenport Hotel Company. The plans cover 65 sheets of blueprints and the permit will be considerably larger than $1,000,000. The largest building permit ever issued by the city was for the Old National Bank building for about $1,000,000, and the Paulsen building was next with $650,000. The addition of the Davenport permit will give the building totals for 1913 a good lead over 1912 from the very start. The Davenport plans are being checked over to see if they conform in all details to the city building ordinance.

Spokane county property increased in valuation from $87,807,556 in 1908 to $122,588,525 in 1912, according to the annual report of Auditor Robert W. Butler. It is a source of gratification to taxpayers to know that the warrant indebtedness of $253,043.06, which existed January 1, 1909, has been wiped out, and the county now has a net cash balance of $34,375.46.

Three departments of the Northwest Loan and Trust Company—real estate, rental and insurance—will be turned over to the Fred B. Grinnell Real Estate Company March 1st. "Growth and the necessity for enlarging the floor space of our banking and trust business have been the chief factors in bringing about the decision to turn over to the Grinnell people our real estate, rentals and insurance," said Samuel Galland, president of the Northwest Loan and Trust.

Central listings bureau and multiple listings system have been adopted by the Spokane Realty Board, of which Carl L. Shuff is president. The multiple listings system will become effective as soon as 20 firms agree to participate. Central offices, in charge of a secretary, will be established. A number of prominent firms already have agreed to take part.

Spokane stockholders in corporations that failed to comply with the companies act of British Columbia, requiring payment of an annual fee and filing of the corporate information, need have no fear for the safety of their corporations, which were stricken from the list of joint stock companies, according to a telegram from Thomas Caven, member of the provincial parliament from Cranbrook, B. C.

Supervisor C. C. Reed of the Colville national forest, near Republic, Wash., has received application from the J. L. Harper consolidated mines for a contract to purchase 200,000,000 feet of timber, mostly Douglas fir and western larch. The cost of the timber, it is estimated, will be about $1 per thousand feet.

J. Grier Long, president Washington Trust Company, has gone to Chicago, Philadelphia and New York. Shortly he will join his family at New Orleans, and together they will go to Panama.

EDMONTON NEWS

Commercial, industrial and financial enterprises in Edmonton made greater gains in 1912, the largest in the city's history, than in any two years previously, according to statistics quoted by H. Milton Martin, retiring president of the Edmonton Board of Trade, at the annual meeting the afternoon of January 28th. He also said there is every indication that proportionate gains will be made this year. The percentages of increases for 1912 over 1911 are as follows:

Building, 250; general business, 125; customs house returns, 113; bank clearings, 82; manufacturing, 75; postage stamp sales, 40. Permits for 2,611 dwellings, 101 warehouses, 117 stores, 20 office buildings, 15 factories, 11 apartment houses, 15 schools and four hotels involving a total expenditure of $14,446,819, were issued in 1912. Mr. Martin said, adding: "Fourteen wholesale firms began business during 1912, giving a total of 63 now maintaining warehouses and carrying stocks. We also have 90 industrial establishments paying $46,834 a week to 3232 employees. Several concerns are building and expect to begin operations this spring. The railroads operating in Edmonton have a monthly payroll of $100,000. This is exclusive of the hundreds of thousands of dollars paid by contractors. The bank clearings amounted to $220,727,622, as against $121,438,394 in 1911 and $71,633,115 in 1910."

Mr. Martin also reported that excellent work was accomplished by the various standing committees in respect to manufacturing, transportation and rates, buying at home, legislation and civic affairs, and complimented the special committee having charge of the annual excursion of 3,000 miles throughout central Alberta last summer, saying that the tour was a big success from every viewpoint. He added:

Interior of Harris Trust & Savings Bank of Chicago

The Harris Trust & Savings Bank makes a specialty of handling inactive reserve accounts for banks and bankers, and of supplying carefully selected bonds for investment or circulation purposes. ¶ During the past thirty years its officers and directors selected and purchased, after careful investigations, over one thousand, two hundred and fifty million dollars of bonds, which have been sold to a constantly growing list of conservative clients. ¶ In buying bonds of this institution the investor secures the benefit of the extensive experience and trained judgment gained through the selection of this large amount of safe investments. ¶ The special character of the bank's business permits of liberal interest terms on inactive or reserve accounts of banks, bankers, corporations and individuals.

"The Edmonton real estate market is in a very healthy condition at the present time, prices not having increased with the same rapidity that the growth of the city would have warranted. The price of business property is based on the earning value of the property, considering that it should not earn less than 8 per cent. The outside properties, which have been put on the market, have not in all cases been valued on an earning capacity basis; the price has been arbitrary, though it is true that in most cases the value was reached shortly after being so placed on the market. Some well thought out scheme should be made operative in connection with subdivisions. In my opinion none should be allowed to be placed on the market until improved, at least to the extent of having streets graded and a good roadway to the property itself."

Mr. Martin also reported that the Imperial Home Reunion Association, composed of members of the Board of Trade, had in 1912 brought 295 women and children from Great Britain, these being the families of 80 applicants. The cost of the year's work was $13,267, which has been repaid or will be repaid by the heads of the families assisted with funds. The president's address will be printed for distribution. The report by the secretary, F. T. Fisher, dealt with the business of the organization and was adopted by a unanimous vote, which carried with it the hearty thanks of the organization.

These officers were elected for 1913, as recommended by the nominating committee, headed by A. C. Fraser, manager of the Merchants Bank of Canada: President, H. H. Cooper, manager A. MacDonald Company; first vice-president, S. H. Smith, president Western Realty Company; second vice-president, A. W. Challand, manager J. J. McLaughlin, limited; third vice-president, M. S. Booth, manager Hudson's Bay stores. The chairmen of the standing committees are: Industrial and commercial enterprise, S. W. Candy, retired, ex-city commissioner; transportation, F. M. Morgan, manager of Ames, Holden, McCready, limited: civic interests, Colonel F. C. Jamieson of Jameison, Rutherford and Grant: entertainment, T. M. Turnbull, manager of the Bank of Commerce; natural resources, H. Gilbert of Killen and Gilbert; good roads, James McGeorge, McGeorge & Chauvin, insurance.

Conveners of sections: Wholesale, J. E. Brown, manager Revillon's Wholesale, limited; retailers, M. S. Booth, manager Hudson's Bay stores; manufacturers, J. A. Bullman, manager Alsip Brick and Supply Company; financial, A. H. Dickens, manager Bank of Ottawa: grain and milling, R. T. Purvis, manager Brackman-Ker Milling Company; real estate, J. R. McIntosh, real estate and financial agent: insurance, James McGeorge, of McGeorge & Chauvin; lumber, C. A. Bell, manager McInnis Lumber Company.

Honey Creek, near Council Bluffs, is to have a new bank. Thomas Davis of Omaha will finance and manage the institution. A new structure will be erected to house it.

C. F. Luce, organizer of the State Savings at Logan, has sold his residence in Logan to W. L. Stern, prominent real estate man, and will remove to Tacoma, Washington.

Des Moines, February 28th.—The legislative committee of the Iowa Bankers Association took some important actions at its meeting in Des Moines last week. Chairman John McHugh of Sioux City, J. K. Deming of Dubuque and A. F. Dawson of Davenport attended and the sessions were held in the office of Secretary P. W. Hall. The various bills of interest to bankers which have been mentioned in previous letters were considered and their progress checked up. One new bill only was added to them. The committee favors provision for a public administrator for small estates to make probate of the same at a minimum cost. On the question of private savings banks and state regulation of the same the committee voted that it "neither will obstruct nor promote any legislation regarding state supervision of private banks."

In considering the pending bills relating to giving banks and trust companies the power to act in a fiduciary capacity, the committee passed this resolution, which was made a matter of record and probably will come up at the next state convention next June:

"Various bills introduced in the legislature favoring extensions of the powers of trust companies having been called to the attention of the committee, and being under discussion it was the opinion of the committee that legislation permitting the exercise of trust powers by certain corporations is advisable and necessary and has been tried in most of the states of the Union, but it appears to this committee that some bills already introduced seem to grant privileges to trust companies to do a banking business under conditions not applicable to other banking institutions and by so doing afford the trust companies a means of competition which might be unfair to banks.

"The committee learns that certain bankers in the state, members of this association, without consultation with this committee or the officers of this association, have undertaken to oppose or to amend the plans proposed in said bills. Without clear information as to the action or purposes of such self-constituted, independent committee, the legislative committee of this association is disposed to postpone any action as to any of the above mentioned bills now pending until it is known that the members of the Iowa Bankers Association are prepared to act in harmony; yet this committee recommends that if the legislature pass any act granting the right to do a banking business to trust companies, and otherwise extending the power of trust companies, that state and savings banks be given equal powers so that they will be clothed with authority to do all those things which a trust company may have authority to do; and not be required to carry on their banking business under restrictions not applicable to other corporations engaged in banking."

The legislature adjourned February 26th for its March recess of one week. The members when they reconvene will be in a position to know how their constituents feel on important measures now pending. So far as banking measures are concerned, the bill affecting private banks seems to be attracting extraordinary interest. At this writing it looks as if this bill has been slaughtered. Two of the three members on the subcommittee to which was referred this bill in the house were private bankers. Much criticism has been directed at Chairman Dixon of the committee for putting two private bankers on this subcommittee. The loan shark bill, giving the right to collect two per cent a month on chattels, is in jeopardy The country members cannot see the necessity for such regulation because the latter loan shark is confined to the cities. Senator Webber put in a bill to compel the state and savings banks to furnish to the state auditor the same information that national banks are compelled to furnish the comptroller of the currency. The senate passed a bill permitting bank directors to receive compensation for attendance at meetings and it is thought that the house will fall in line. The committee on retrenchment and reform has introduced a bill to compel statehouse officials to settle up every day with the state treasurer, who shall place the money in state depositories at 2 per cent on daily balances. Heretofore, the officials have been settling up once a month, the 15th, for the month preceding. This has given them control of the money for practically six weeks and it is stated that the funds have been kept in banks friendly to the officials while the state has received no interest.

Headed by ex-Secretary Dinwiddie of Cedar Rapids, a number of eastern Iowa bankers visited Des Moines one day last week to look after bills in which they are especially interested. The visit to Des Moines was the outcome of a meeting held recently at Cedar Rapids. There probably were a dozen of the visitors.

Bankers Interested in Seed Corn

The annual crusade for better seed corn has commenced. As usual, the Iowa Bankers Association is on the job. Secretary Hall is sending every member of the association what is called the "rag baby" corn tester. This is a strip of cloth so prepared that corn may be rolled in it and tested. The illustrations show where to place the corn and how it should look if it sprouts properly. Secretary Hall says that the bankers of Iowa are showing more interest in the subject this spring than ever before and he feels that the sending out of the "rag babies" will have a good effect.

Active Church Worker an Embezzler

E. A. Boggs, who set a new record in Iowa as a frenzied financier, was found guilty of embezzlement by a jury at Grundy Center. Boggs has been in the financial limelight in Iowa for several months—in fact ever since it was first discovered that he had borrowed $200,000 on his I. O. U. Boggs was arrested at Kansas City last spring. Five indictments were returned against him charging embezzlement from the bank at Morrison by collecting on a monument contract which he had put up as collateral security. Boggs always had been active in church circles. At present one of the Morrison bankers has sued a Waterloo banker for damages because the latter gave Boggs a letter of introduction, which he says influenced him in making his loans to Boggs.

Bank Book Valuable Asset

The value of a bank book as an asset never was illustrated better than in the case of Archie Brown, a paroled convict, who was up in court in Des Moines on the charge that he had violated his parole. Things looked dark for Archie until the latter pulled out a bank book showing that he had saved $100. Thereupon the court became lenient and decided to give Brown another trial.

Banker to Hold Reunion

H. C. Schultz of Waterloo, cashier of the Commercial National, has planned an interesting reunion. He has issued broadcast a request that every man in the United States named H. C. Schultz meet him either in Des Moines, St. Paul, or Omaha, for a big reunion and get-together meeting. A dozen men have replied to his invitation and it is said that many of them are in the banking business.

Iowa Notes

Preliminary arrangements for the meeting of Group 6 were made at a meeting in Des Moines last week of the program committee. This consists of Cashier H. F. Lanphere, Citizens National, Grinnell; Vice-president A. B. Talbott of the First National of Brooklyn, and Cashier Cyrus A. Barr of the Des Moines National. The meeting will be held in Des Moines as usual, probably in May.

Quite a scramble has been conducted among some northern Iowa bankers for possession of the property of one John Carr, arrested in California on charges of swindling. F. C. Henningsen, cashier of the First National at Ceylon, finally landed the big passenger automobile which Carr had left in storage at Mason City. Henningsen believes that the automobile almost will balance the amount which his bank is alleged to have lost as the result of Carr's dealings with it.

The Security National is to be a new bank at Mason City. The stockholders of the Mason City Loan and Trust are behind the new institution which they expect to open by May 1st. It will have a capital stock of $100,000 and E. W. Clark will be cashier, it is said. S. C. Schneider announces the new institution and says it will be a national affair.

Among the out-of-the-city bankers seen in Des Moines recently were noted President M. Knudson, State of Janesville; Frank Simmons, Ottumwa Savings; Vice-president D. A. Pattison, City of Paton; Cashier C. E. Narey, National of Spirit Lake; Cashier Fred Fitting, State of Dexter; Vice-president B. F. Ketcham, First National, Farmington; President J. F. Johnston, Bank of St. Charles; Cashier H. R. Long, First National, Hubbard; President F. Lorenz, Ogden State; Cashier J. N. Dinwiddie, Cedar Rapids Savings; Cashier E. D. Baird, North English Savings; President Charles D. Ellis, First National, Charles City; President D. P. Hogan, Farmers Savings, Massena; President C. R. Brenton, Bank of Dallas Center; President W. C. Stuckslager, Bank of Lisbon.

A. Rothschild, not being used to the handsome windows and fixtures in the new Iowa Trust and Savings, Des Moines, walked straight through a plate glass while making a hasty entrance to the institution. The pane was wrecked but the depositor escaped with only a scratched head.

Gilger E. Mackinnon, president of the Mechanics Savings, Des Moines, with a cheerful disregard for trouble, has entered the race for school director at the election March 10th.

C. J. Weiser and H. Reeves have combined with W. F. Daubenberger and have taken over the Larrabee interests in the First National at Gregor, thereby putting the two oldest banks in northeastern Iowa under the same management. Weiser and Reeves own the controlling interest in the Winneshiek County State Bank at Decorah. Samuel Merrill, afterwards governor, was the first president of the McGregor bank when it was founded in 1863. Another later governor, William Larrabee, purchased stock in the bank in 1865 and remained connected with the institution up to his death a few weeks ago.

J. P. O'Malley, president of the Peoples National at Perry, is being mentioned prominently as successor to George Roberts as director of the mint under the Wilson administration.

W. F. Coan, president of the Clinton National, Clinton, headed a delegation from that city to Des Moines to protest against a bill which would affect the interests of the Northwestern at Clinton.

Three suspects arrested at Waterloo are thought of the police to be the three men who tried to rob the bank at Hudson some weeks ago.

The new Brayton Savings at Brayton has purchased the fixtures of the Atlantic National, which has purchased a new outfit.

The Citizens bank, a private institution owned and conducted by Charles Comstock at Lost Nation, made an assignment to Robert Willard, and closed its doors one day last week. It is claimed that the depositors will be paid off fully and that the assets are sufficient to offset the liabilities. Willard is a brother-in-law of Comstock. The latter has been in the banking business for 20 years.

George W. Swords of Iowa City, receiver for national banks, has wound up the business of the Minot (N. D.) National. He has been seven years on the job and finally finished with a dividend making a total of 101½ per cent, whereas but 35 per cent was expected when the bank went into his hands.

South Dakota Notes

Efforts are being made to secure the passage of a law guaranteeing bank deposits. Senator Russell, an Aberdeen banker, has introduced a measure proposing a constitutional amendment for a mill tax of one tenth of one per cent to be levied each year on all taxable property in the state and applied towards the creation of a bank guaranty fund. When the fund reaches $1,000,000 this tax shall cease until the fund gets below $500,000. The fund thus created may be used in approved investments and shall remain as a guaranty of deposits in both national and state banks. The measure is expected to cause some little discussion.

E. E. Van Schoiack, president of the Farmers and Citizens at Bryant, has sold his interests to E. A. Syverson. Oscar Fryslie succeeds Mr. Van Schoiack as president and M. B. Hestad had been chosen vice-president.

The Merchants State at Egan is expected to be ready for opening in June. H. H. Cook is perfecting the work of the organization.

B. J. Glattly succeeds J. F. Parks as president of the Peoples National at Hot Springs.

Philip C. Saunders has been chosen president of the Merchants National at Milbank, succeeding Charles B. Williams.

Cashier J. W. Catlett has disposed of his interests in the Bank of Estelline.

Nearly $3,000,000 in commercial paper, representing loans made in August by Minneapolis grain firms for carrying the crop of 1912, came due this week. The first two days of the week were two of the largest of record in the bank loan departments. Much of the paper was renewed for short terms. The Security, First, the Northwestern Nationals had large amounts involved. The new loans are for 30, 60 and 90 days. President E. W. Decker, of the last named bank, said the country is beginning to pay up loans and the annual readjusting process is on. He said general business in the Northwest is excellent in all lines, and there is continued good demand for money at steady rates.

The Jackson County Bank of Black River Falls, Wis., celebrated February 22d by giving a reception in its newly completed building. The formal opening was set a week later. The bank is considered one of the finest in that part of the state, with marble wainscoting, oxydized rails, brass electroliers, terra cotta cornice, and mosaic floors.

Cost of Producing Money for Loan Purposes

Paper by A. W. Loasby, president of the Syracuse Chapter, A. I. B., at the Farmers' week conference at Cornell University

During the past few years considerable attention has been given to the development of agriculture along scientific lines, and we have read and heard much discussion about intensive farming, reclaiming of arid and swamp lands, and last, but not least, financing the farmer. There has been much protest over the fact that the American farmer pays a higher rate of interest than his European brother, and of late many students of finance and agriculture have been giving the European banking methods of financing the farmer serious thought with a view of formulating a plan to fit the American situation. It is regrettable that the impression prevails that the European farmer borrows money at 3 per cent interest or thereabout. As a matter of fact he pays in most cases from 4¼ to 6 per cent interest in accordance to the length and character of the loan.

What are the factors controlling the high rate of interest on loans to farmers?

First—Our inefficient currency system. This factor, of course, affects all branches of industry.

Second—Our country being comparatively new, the demand for capital is greater than in European countries.

Third—Businesslike methods have not been applied to the same degree as compared with other lines of industry.

The question arises, how is money produced for loaning purposes, and what does it cost in this country to produce it? The average man impresses a banker as thinking that our large financial institutions are unlimited reservoirs of money to be dealt out to any honest man for the asking. He does not realize that banks after all are only trustees, and the larger portion of their loanable funds is purchased from the public at a price, either in the payment of interest or service, and this money is called "deposits." The rate of interest paid on deposits in New York state is from 2 per cent to 4 per cent, and the operating and overhead expenses of the banks in connection with the deposits are estimated to approximate 1½ per cent. I make this figure approximate, because the overhead expense is not alike on all accounts. For example, an inactive account would command a higher rate of interest than an active account. On the other hand the larger portion of active accounts receives no interest, but is chargeable with a higher rate of operating the overhead expense. It is safe to say, however, that, after making allowance for reserves, money in transit, interest and operating expenses, it costs the average bank in this section approximately 4 per cent to produce each dollar of deposit. Of course, exceptional circumstances will vary this condition. For example, frequently New York banks are flooded with deposits, carrying a low rate of interest, which are subject to immediate withdrawal. The New York banks in such times make short loans of the very best character at rates which will show them a small profit or at least no loss. Under this condition, which is largely the fault of our currency system, the competition for high grade loans is keen, forcing the loan rate down to a very low point. On the other hand in the centers of great industrial activity, like Pittsburgh and also the agricultural sections, higher rates of interest are paid to depositors by banks, because the local demand for money is greater.

Now, why do the banks have to pay so much for money? It is answered in one word, "competition," and competition among banks is becoming keener every day, even among the banks which form the so-called "Money Trust." Fools and the ignorant are being separated from their money every day, but, as a general proposition, money shrewdly seeks the market where it gets the best bargain, and in the last analysis money is controlled by the people and not by the banks.

Let us take the different classes of borrowers, and see what rates they pay for money. Our government in recent years has issued bonds at 2 per cent. The chief reason for this low rate is this currency feature, which permits national banks to buy government bonds, pledge them with the government, and issue currency against them. Many people think there is a large profit in this operation for the banks. As a matter of fact the profit is about one per cent more than the banks would receive should they loan the money employed in the purchase of these bonds direct to the borrower.

STATE BONDS—Our Empire State recently issued bonds at four per cent, and they have not sold at a large premium, even with the added feature of being acceptable as security for state deposits.

MUNICIPAL BONDS—New York City sells its bonds on a 4¼ per eent basis. Few cities sell at a more favorable rate, and some of the western municipalities have to pay over five per cent. Short time financing by our cities commands even higher rates. The city of New York has recently paid 5⅜ per eent on short time notes.

STEAM RAILROAD SECURITIES—The sale of high grade railroad bonds on a four per cent basis seems to be a thing of the past. The Canada Southern Railroad recently sold bonds, guaranteed by the Michigan Central Railroad, which were offered to the public on a 4.70 basis. Allowing for bankers' profits the cost to the railroad is estimated at 4.85. This is an illustration of what a first-class railroad has to pay on a long-time loan, even with gilt-edge security—this particular bond being secured by a first mortgage on the property of the Canada Southern Railroad from Buffalo to Detroit in addition to being guaranteed by the Michigan Central Railroad, one of our greatest trunk lines.

The railroads are paying from 4½ to 7 per cent for money; the rate being based first on the general credit of the road, second the security offered, and third the length of time of the loan. Many railroads for several years past have resorted to short time financing, even at a higher rate of interest in the hope that money conditions will become easier, thereby permitting long time financing on more favorable terms.

In 1907 many three and five year notes were issued by the railroads with the hope that at maturity they could be renewed by long time bond issues at lower rates. The hopes of the railroad financiers were not fulfilled, and considerable short time financing is still practiced. There are several reasons for the high grade low interest bearing railroad bonds being looked upon with disfavor by the investor:

First—The increasing gold supply has reduced the purchasing power of the dollar.

Second—The high cost of living as compared with ten or fifteen years ago caused by the cheapened dollar, the increase of extravagance, whereby luxuries have become necessities, and the failure to increase the production of foodstuffs in proportion to the increase of population. These conditions have caused the investor to demand a higher rate of income on his investment.

Third—The increased cost of materials, supplies, wages, without a corresponding increase in freight and passenger rates has reduced in many cases the margin of safety over fixed charges, making the bonds less attractive.

PUBLIC SERVICE BONDS—The past twenty years have witnessed the wonderful development of our public service corporations, (namely, gas, electric light, power and traction companies) and the securities of these enterprises have become popular among investors, for the reason that the security offered is generally as safe as steam railroad securities, and the earnings proportionately as good. This class of securities, however, will average a higher rate of interest than the steam railroad securities, because the market for them is not so well established. Some of our steam roads with a high credit standing of many years are able to sell entire issues of securities abroad at more favorable rates than ean be obtained at home. It is safe to state that on the average our public service corporations pay from 4½ to 6 per cent for their bonds.

INDUSTRIAL CORPORATIONS—The years following the panic of 1893 witnessed the formation of our gigantic industrial enterprises through combinations and consolidations which involved a large amount of financing, and during the past decade the securities of well managed industrial corporations have found favor with the investor. Industrial bonds usually bear from five to six per cent, and the cost to the borrower is usually nearer six per cent.

In view of what has been shown, the American farmer cannot expect to borrow money for less than six per cent. Why does the American farmer have to pay from six to nine per cent for money, and in some cases higher? Because the farmer has not been as highly developed as a credit risk as railroads, public service companies, and the various forms of industrial enterprises. This condition is no doubt due to our vast resourees, which have in the past given greater opportunity for profit in mining, manufacture, transportation, etc., than agriculture, with the natural result that they have been developed to a higher degree of efficiency. Large concentration of eapital into one enterprise creates credit strength. Owing to the scattered interests in farming this feature is seen infrequently.

Many large financial interests are ultraconservative regarding farm loans, because of past experience with farm mortgages. What are the remedies for this condition?

First—Education. Education will do more to elevate the farmer as a credit risk than any one factor. Education will teach the farmer to apply business methods. A farmer should be just as eareful about his inventory and cost of production as the manufacturer. An efficient manufacturer can tell accurately the cost of producing a given article. Likewise the farmer should know the cost of producing each particular farm product. The agricultural colleges are awakening the whole nation to the necessity of applying scientific and commercial principles to farming, and the result is our large insurance companies are unlocking their vast resources and making loans on the high grade farm lands in the Middle West. This is the first step toward easier money for the farmer.

The savings banks in the eastern cities for some years have avoided farm loans. The present improvement in eastern farm values will no doubt restore confidence, and in the future we will see the savings banks more ready to accept farm loans. Our commercial banks in the East are capable of easily financing the crop movement. In the West, however, the situation yearly becomes acute during the crop moving period, and no definite relief can be expected until a more elastic currency system is adopted, which will permit the proper expansion of credit during the growing and crop moving periods and the subsequent contraction when the credit is no longer required.

Much long time financing for the American farmer is still necessary. This class of financing cannot be properly and safely handled by our commercial banks. It is out of their province. It would seem that some form of mortgage bank would fit the need. Recently, George Woodruff of Joliet, Illinois, formed the Woodruff Trust Company to operate along the lines of the Credit Foncier of France. The plan, as outlined, is briefly this: Loans are to be made on real estate only. Such loans as are made on farm lands are not to exceed 50 per cent of the value of the land. Loans may be made up to 30 years; each loan to be paid back in small semiannual installments on what is known as the amortization plan. Under this plan the loan will never have to be renewed, but will continue to run until the semiannual installments have cleared the debt, thereby eliminating commissions and renewal expenses.

In many sections of the country the interest on farm mortgages is eight per cent or more, but it would seem that the mortgage bank could afford to loan on farm mortgages for thirty years requiring an annual payment of eight per cent, which would cover not only the interest but also the principal of the loan, and the expenses and profits of the bank. The plan is to have the mortgage bank sufficiently capitalized to enable it to guarantee the farm loans and sell the same to investors. This plan will be watched with much interest of being a step toward the solution of the problem of long time financing of the American farmer.

The respective states should appoint commissions to study the conditions in their sections, co-operating with a national commission to consider the formation of a plan to establish agricultural banks for long financing, the same to be under government supervision. The present system of national and state banks under the elastic currency system would be abundantly able and willing to finance the good farmer for his short time requirements.

Recently strong financial interests have formed the Agricultural Credit Company. This company was organized for the purpose of purchasing long time farmers' notes of certain agricultural implement manufacturers, who sell their traction engines on long time to substantial farmers in the West and Northwest. It is the practice of the agricultural implement companies to require a certain amount of cash on purchase; the remainder to be paid on 12, 24, and 36 months' time, thereby enabling the farmers to purchase these expensive machines.

As a rule the traction plows are sold only to substantial farmers, who have their own lands, and who are worth a sufficient amount of property to justify their going into debt to the extent of buying such machines. These notes are sold to the Agricultural Credit Company by the implement companies under a certain guarantee, which guarantee is sufficient to cover any possible loss which might be sustained in the collection of the notes. The Agricultural Credit Company sells its own note to the investor, secured by the farmers' notes to an amount of 120 per cent of the issue. Under this arrangement the manufacturer immediately gets cash, and is not obliged to carry long time paper to maturity. The long credits extended by implement manufacturers have often been their menace in periods of financial stringency, and this plan will no doubt greatly relieve the situation, and, of course, is an indirect benefit to the farmer.

Strange as it may seem to agricultural interests this proposition was financed in Wall Street, and is only another illustration that money cannot be controlled, but will seek the safest and most productive market, and that, as the farmer elevates himself as a credit risk, he will find it easier to finance his projects.

THE Missouri circular is large and impressive and has illustrations in plenty to make the seed testing an easy certainty.

H. R. ELDRIDGE, resident vice-president for Texas for the National City Bank New York, is one of the sort that his great state is proud of. Here's how a loyal friend tells of a little episode going to show.

"ELDRIDGE tried to resign as president of the Texas Bankers Association at the executive committee meeting in Fort Worth on the 21st, but the committee, in one voice, scorned the resignation. He still is connected with several banks in this state and they would not even consider his request to be relieved as president of the Texas association. 'Some class' to a fellow who can fool his own people that way, isn't there? No wonder the National City picked him up?"

SAME high authority, after attending several district meetings says "the Texas boys want Hoopes on the A. B. A. council." "Fred" didn't have a look-in as head of the secretaries' section for his own duties as secretary kept him from having "one good time" at Briarcliff last year.

SEVERAL states have paid their secretaries similar compliments and Texas would "be in order" with the sunny-haired Galvestonian on the job.

THE Hobart (Ind.) Bank is in new quarters in the Strattan block, "the finest in that part of the state." The bank was started in 1884 by Joseph Gardner of Valparaiso, and since his death in 1906 has been operated by his son, W. H. Gardner. Mr. Gardner also is president of the Farmers National at Valparaiso. W. J. Killigrew is cashier.

R. J. CARMICHAEL of the Illinois Central city office is remembering his friends with fine Cuban postals. He has charge of the "Cubs" in their railway and boat itinerary. Nice job for a "fan."

GOVERNOR E. F. DUNNE has appointed W. G. Edens of the Central Trust, Chicago, and president of the Illinois Highway Improvement Association, a delegate to represent Illinois at the federal aid good roads convention to be held at the Raleigh hotel, Washington, March 6th and 7th.

THE 445 reserve city national banks in Illinois outside of Chicago gained $1,000,000 in deposits and lost $1,750,000 in loans and discounts during the last three months.

SIX per cent railroad stocks, like Atchison, Great Northern preferred, Louisville and Nashville, Pennsylvania, and Baltimore and Ohio, to mention only a few, at present prices ought to be regarded as being in the first class and suitable enough investments for anyone.

NOT anything could have shocked the members of the "flying squadron" like the untimely death of Comrade Trumbo. Even in a company of good fellows he veritably was a prince.

FIRST NATIONAL, Davenport, Ia., was the first to begin operations under the national bank act which was fifty years of age on Tuesday of this week.

THE bank is printing short sketches of the history of bank development under this act, which truthfully was entitled, when passed, "an act to provide a national currency secured by a pledge of United States bonds."

THE creation of this system was the outgrowth of the Civil War, and its objects were (1) to provide a sound and uniform currency to replace the miscellaneous state bank notes, many of which were worthless, and (2) to strengthen the credit of the government, by providing a market for its bonds.

SOON after this act became a law, a group of enterprising and patriotic citizens of Davenport, headed by Austin Corbin, got together and arranged to apply for a charter for the First National Bank of Davenport. It was nearly four months later, however, before the government was ready to issue the first charter for business under this law.

President Moser, of the American Institute of Banking, announces the appointment of the following gentlemen to serve on the program committee for the annual convention, which is to be held in Richmond September 17th, 18th and 19th: Chairman, Harry V. The first meeting of this committee was held at Baltimore at the time of the recent annual banquet of Baltimore Chapter, and general plans were laid out at that time which augur well for a most interesting and instructive convention.

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY TRUST, St. Louis, is making a big hit locally by advertising its "street level safety deposit vaults."

IN an artistic way the statement folder of the Bank of Pittsburgh simply can't be beaten.

You don't holler down the well.

F. E. FRISBEE, president of the First National at Sheldon, Ia., has a booklet out on "Twenty-five years as a National Bank" which is a neat, modest presentation of a strong case.

NELSON H. GREENE, vice-president of the Peoples at Moline, is sending out invitations to the "opening" of the bank's new fireproof building with its modern banking room.

THE festivities are taking place to-day (Saturday, March 1st), and the attendance is reported as S. R. O. which means "standing room only."

THE bank has had great prosperity under the watchful care of Mr. Greene, who is an ex-president of the Illinois Bankers Association and a "live member" of the Big Council of the American Bankers Association.

CHARLES W. KNOOP, cashier of the enterprising Black Hawk National at Waterloo, is secretary of Group 7 of the Iowa Bankers Association. He is one of the country bankers the city banker would do well to keep an eye upon. He really is of "major league" class.

"REPORTS regarding winter wheat are favorable. The snow covering had disappeared at the beginning of the week, so that the reports of further snows in portions of the West are welcomed; but the crop is well rooted, and the plant is vigorous, so that even if there were a little more snow, it should be able to get through the winter in good shape." —Ware & Leland.

M. J. GABRIEL has resigned the cashiership of the First National at Lyons, Ia., after 18 years of service, to enter the lumber business with his brothers who operate a chain of yards in the state. Formerly he lived in La Salle, Illinois.

A FRIEND of ours was in Spokane the other day, and was calling upon W. D. Vincent at the Old National. He expected to find W. D. engrossed in some problem of finance or in studying up on Big Council etiquette so that he can "act up" to the requirements when he dons his toga.

THERE is only one factory in this country where you can buy wire wheel spokes—steel spokes for bicycle, automobile and motorcycle wheels. Think of it. A great monopoly that few know of. Their expert engineer resigned and has just been allowed on spoke making automatic machine, good patents that he will not sell them; the only one they don't own. Machine has been built and is very successful. No experimenting to do. Has order for ten million spokes for year. Six machines make 20,000 a day at 300% profit, net. Individual or factory can secure liberal interest for small sum to be used in immediate developments. Young man, a good executive, can come in as active partner. Time not a factor and all applications will be carefully considered. Promotors not wanted. Must have best of references to exchange with our client.

NOT so. The "bank of personal service" was busy on its specialty. A constituent up at Valley had written in to say: "I would like to wrent a maskarade suit * * * * and to buy a glass eye for a horse." He was asking Mr. Vincent to get him addresses of proper persons, probable prices, etc.

"AND do you know," said the friend, "Vincent didn't pay a dern bit of attention to me until he had called up a masquerade house and the veterinary college, obtained the information and sent it off in a letter?"

IN Chicago the banks buy theater tickets, make railway reservations, select and send silk dresses and jewelry to their constituents, but in a new country the wants (also the English and the orthography) are likely to be different. Up to date the ball masque and the glass eye for the horse hold the record for oddity.

Baxter, state superintendent of banks, was indicted by the Franklin County grand jury at Columbus, Ohio, last week, on a charge of embezzling $3,140 from the tills of the Columbus Savings and Trust Company, which failed February 26, 1912. L. O. Murray will give us another preachment on this.

CHARLES S. CALDWELL, president of the Corn Exchange National, Philadelphia, which is giving a list of corn prizes, says: "We believe that crops are the basis of prosperity of the United States, and that banks will prosper as the country prospers. Increased crops mean increased bank balances and increased activity for almost every line of business."

THE Federal State Council of state secretaries representing about twelve of fifteen bankers' associations, will meet in Chicago, March 5th and 6th.

THE headquarters will be at the Hotel La Salle and "shop talk" will be the order of the day. A similar conference was held last year, at which time plans ran toward a co-operative insurance scheme which did not get on very rapidly.

P. W. HALL of Iowa has been a prime mover in the matter and will be quite active at the March 5th and 6th meeting.

SECRETARY W. F. KEYSER has out his large seed corn testing poster for the use of Missouri bankers. There was a good crop in the state last year but the bankers believe it can be increased this year by "eternal vigilance."

KEYSER tells us that "the testing of seed corn is not a difficult matter, nor does it require much time. Much can be gained and nothing can be lost by the adoption of the plan. It is impossible to determine beforehand the amount of rainfall or other peculiarities of the growing season, but it is entirely within the power of the farmers to make more certain the success of the corn crop, both as to quality and quantity, by seeing to it that

A Weekly Paper Devoted to the Banking and Financial Interests of the Middle West

MARCH 8, 1913

Entered as Second-Class Matter January 15, 1903, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March 3, 1879

PROTECTING THE NAME "TRUST"

Milwaukee, March 6th.—In Wisconsin the banking law wisely protects the use of the word "trust," just as most good bankers believe it should do in every state. Having learned the value of the word "trust" in Illinois, where the field is open to "wildcats," two misguided gentlemen from Chicago invaded the field in this city. One opened as the "Peoples Trust Company" in the Caswell block and the other hung out his shingle as "The Employees Loan Company." Both fell under the ever-watchful eye of Oliver C. Fuller, called by many the father of the new trust company banking law. He at once wrote the facts in a letter to State Bank Commissioner Kuolt as follows:

Dear Mr. Kuolt:

A chattel mortgage loan concern, located at No. 307 Grand Avenue, Room 518, Milwaukee, has opened an account with the —— Bank under the name of "Peoples Trust Company." I understand that the proprietor of the concern is a man by the name of Lawrence A. Waggoner, who has several other loan agencies under different names, one of them called "Employees Loan Company," in the Caswell block, Milwaukee.

I write to solicit your good offices in compelling this fellow to drop the word "trust" from the title of his company. He is possibly ignorant of the fact that he is violating the law and I think an official letter from your office informing him that he is violating the law and is liable to suffer the penalty provided by the statutes will be all that is necessary.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) Oliver C. Fuller,
President.

Wisconsin Trust Company,
Milwaukee, Wis., February 14, 1913.

Prompt action followed by Commissioner Kuolt and the offenders, Edward L. Combs and Lawrence A. Waggoner, had nothing to do but plead guilty and "promise to move back to Illinois" with their "trust" company and loan shark outfit. Sentence was suspended "pending good behavior or removal from the state." Mr. Fuller is being congratulated by bankers here for alertness in the good cause.

CHICAGO BANKERS LIKE INAUGURAL ADDRESS

Chicago bankers who were interviewed concerning their opinion of the inaugural address of President Wilson all expressed themselves as well pleased with it. The belief is that business interests of the country have nothing to fear from the new administration. It is expected that the new president will go about the work of tariff and currency reform in an intelligent manner.

CHICAGO BANKERS RETURN FROM TEXAS

Chicago bankers who attended the group meetings in Texas have returned to the city and express themselves as very well satisfied with their trip. John F. Hagey, assistant cashier of the First National, said:

"We were very much pleased with our trip to Texas where we attended the group meetings of the Texas Bankers Association. The hospitality with which we were received and entertained added not a little to our pleasure.

"Everything is looking exceedingly prosperous in the Lone Star State. There has been a great deal of moisture. As a result of the favorable conditions prevailing a general feeling of optimism is apparent everywhere."

Chicago bankers who made the trip were, in addition to Mr. Hagey, J. M. Hurst, National Bank of the Republic; Wilber Hattery, Continental; W. L. McKee, Fort Dearborn; A. W. Morton, National City, and James G. Wakefield, Corn Exchange.

Peoples Savings Bank and Trust Co., Moline

¶ The new building of the Peoples Savings Bank and Trust Co., Moline, Illinois, was dedicated Saturday, March 1, 1913. The growth of business made larger quarters imperative. The new banking room is one of the finest in the state. Congratulations poured in all day upon Nelson H. Greene, the active vice-president and executive manager. His work at Moline puts him in the A class.
